Profits Fall

Chart shows how industrial profits plummeted in 1971 because of rapidly mounting wage and salary costs. Although industrial selling prices grew slowly, the Economic Council of Canada said Monday, industry is bound to reduce old profit margins as soon as it can, and that might lead to another bout of inflation. There was no change in 1968 in labor costs per output unit from 1967. (CP Newsmap)

Self-made D. Matthews Conservative President

OTTAWA (CP) — Don Matthews of London, Ont., prototype of the self-made man, was elected president of the Conservative party Tuesday, hoping to put the Conservative organization in fighting trim for a federal election he expects next year.

Born the youngest son in a Brantford family of 10, Mr. Matthews, 45, now runs a small lead development and construction groups he started in Belleville in 1953.

"I'm my own man. I always was and I always will be," he told delegates at the party's national policy convention.

"My interest is not in doing something about the past but in promoting the future."

After leaving Brantford, where his father worked in the newspaper printing room and became the town's mayor, Mr. Matthews served in the RCAF in the Second World War before receiving an engineering degree at Queen's University in Kingston.

He married a local girl while at Queen's, then moved to London, joining the city engineering department.

In 1953 he formed Matthews Construction Ltd., the first of eight companies he started in 11 years, now amalgamated in The Matthews Group.

Meanwhile, his family grew to five daughters and a son. His wife and four of his daughters were on his victory platform Tuesday.

He became active in the Conservative party in 1957, the year John Diefenbaker led the party to power after more than 22 years of Liberal rule.

After serving as riding president in London East, he ran for Parliament in 1968, but was defeated in the Liberal sweep.

It took two ballots at the convention to give Mr. Matthews the party presidency as he defeated Roy Deyell of Calgary at the close of a six-man race.

Echoing the call heard throughout the convention session, he asked cheering delegates to join him in "a united party behind our leader, Robert Stanfield, who is going to be our next prime minister."

Thinking blonde hair distracted, above dark-rimmed glasses, he told reporters he plans "to stick to organization problems, leaving politics and policy to Mr. Stanfield."

After telling the delegates following his win that he proposed "to get on the rails and get going," and—after coaching—"Je veux reunecir . . . beau coup," he retired to his hotel room, the site of non-stop hospitality since the convention opened Sunday night.

In the coming days, he will confer with headquarters staff and Mr. Stanfield before starting the organizational work that Conservatives feel certain will lead them back to power.

UN Food Head Opposes Reducing Farms

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some farm leaders say Ottawa's farm policy is ill advised because it tries to remedy world agricultural surpluses by reducing the number of farms, a measure the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations has opposed.

Dr. A. H. Boerma, FAO director general, has called for adjustments that would reduce the harmful effects of national policies and a concerted effort by agricultural producing countries to work toward a global solution.

Dr. M. Rusciman of Winnipeg, United Grain Growers president, says a global approach seems to be the only way "we can get some answers to the universal conundrum of low income for the majority of farmers."

Mr. Runciman defined the federal program in 1970 which paid farmers to take land out of wheat production as "infamous" and said the announcement of the small farm development program Monday was another step in the wrong direction.

Roy Atkinson, president of the militant National Farmers Union, also was critical of the federal federal program designed to allow older farmers to get out of farming and younger men to expand their small operations.

Dr. Boerma has said the problem of international adjustment in agriculture "transcends national boundaries and applies to the world as a whole."

He called for programs to reduce the harmful effects of national policies and a concerted approach to agricultural and trade problems.

Basically, Mr. Runciman says, the problem in the 1970s is one of too much production. But other countries, particularly those in the European Economic Community, have heavily subsidized their producers to allow their surplus to be readily saleable on the world market while Canada is taking steps to reduce production and the number of farmers.

Farmers in the Common Market countries receive more than double what Canadian farmers get for their grain, prices which make "your mouth water," Mr. Runciman said.

"With prices like these stimulating production elsewhere in the world I think Canada would be ill advised if she went ahead and tried to solve world surplus problems with a unilateral program to reduce the number of farmers in this country," Mr. Runciman said.

Atkinson Farm President

WINNIPEG (CP) — Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon was elected to his third term as president of the National Farmers Union Tuesday.

Mr. Atkinson, 47, has led the organization since its inception in 1969.

His leadership was challenged this year for the first time. Walter Miller, 45, of Tara, Ont., NFU vice-president since 1969, let his name stand for the president's position.

Mr. Atkinson received votes and Mr. Miller 103.

Widening Gap

The gap between Canada's actual economic output and potential output with relatively full employment has been growing wider, The Economic Council of Canada says the gross national product will have to expand at a rate of six per cent a year for the next three years to narrow the gap and bring unemployment down to tolerable levels. Truck Spills Oil

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — A tank truck, carrying about 6,000 gallons of bunker oil, overturned at Highway 403 and the Queen Elizabeth Way near this Hamilton-area community Tuesday, causing traffic to be rerouted for more than four hours.

Bank Manager Ransoms Wife--In Beauty Shop

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal bank manager paid $40,000 in ransom Tuesday when he was told his wife had been kidnapped.

But all the time she was at a beauty parlor having her hair done, police said.

F. J. Guy, manager of a west-end branch of the Bank of Montreal, received a telephone call about 11:15 a.m. Tuesday.

"We are holding your wife captive," he was told. "Do as you're told or we'll kill her."

The anonymous caller demanded $50,000 for the safe return of Mrs. Guy and gave instructions for the transfer of the money.

Mr. Guy did as he was instructed within the 13-minute deadline given by the anonymous caller.

He returned to his bank and called the police and attempted to reach his wife at home.

After several calls he discovered his wife had been safe in the beauty parlor.

Not only had she not been kidnapped but the man claiming to be the kidnapper may not have got the money left on the subway.

About 10 or 15 minutes after he returned to his office Mr. Guy received another phone call from the anonymous kidnapper.

By this time the bank manager knew that his wife was safe and hung up.

Police said the briefcase containing the money was not found.

U.S. Auto Train Makes First Run

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — A sleek red and purple train whistled into central Florida Tuesday, 15 minutes ahead of schedule and pulling a load marking a new concept in United States rail travel.

The country's first Auto Train had completed its 15-hour, 900-mile maiden run from the Washington, D.C., area.

Some 95 passengers from the frigid North piled out of the 15-car train into the warm sunshine.

The train carried 28 automobiles and was 15 minutes late leaving Lorton, Va., Monday evening. On normal runs, it will carry 194 automobiles and as many as 400 passengers.

For a driver, his car and three other passengers, the trip is $150. A bedroom compartment is another $40.

WHA Offers Hull Million

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver Canucks were hard-pressed to defeat St. Louis Blues 3-1 Tuesday night, a day when most of the National Hockey League looked with concern at reports two of its established stars had been approached by the defiant World Hockey Association.

Goals by Fred Speck, his first of the season, and Dave Balon wiped out a 1-0 St. Louis lead in Vancouver in a relatively tame game in which Blues' goaltender Jim McLeod was the key figure.

McLeod, a 34-year-old rookie familiar to Vancouver fans for his heroics in the Western Hockey League when that city was a member of the circuit, faced 40 Canuck shots and kept the Blues in respectable contention.

Which was more than could be said for some of the financial figures voiced in the reports that Bobby Hull, the Golden Jet of Chicago Black Hawks and flamboyant Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins had been talking with spokesmen for franchises in the WHA, which begins operations next October.

Ben Hatskin, owner of Winnipeg Jets franchise in the fledgling league, said Tuesday he has the WHA rights to Hull and spoke with the Hawks winger in Vancouver last weekend.

Hatskin said he offered the 32-year-old superstar a $1 million five-year contract to break his NHL ties. He said there would be further discussions in Toronto this weekend when the Black Hawks play the Maple Leafs.

Hull's agent in Chicago, Harvey Weinberg, said after hearing the report he was unaware of any meetings "and if Bobby had received such an offer I assume he would have spoken to me about it."

Hull was unavailable for comment.

Sanderson, however, who has expressed disenchantment with the lengthy NHL schedule and talked earlier in the season of retirement, was ready to discuss the WHA's efforts to lure him to the Miami franchise.

"A fellow from Miami called me and made me an interesting offer," said Sanderson of the Monday phone call. He declined to give a definite figure, but said the offer was "a lot more" than $250,000 on a two-year contract.

The WHA plans to start with 10 teams, recruiting many of its players from the 144-team NHL which has announced expansion plans of its own, with new franchises earmarked for Long Island, N.Y., and Atlanta next year.

"Boston and the Bruins have been good to me," said Sanderson. "I don't want to leave.

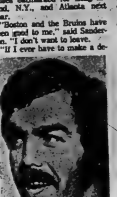
"If I ever have to make a decision, I'd go first to Weston Adams Sr. (chairman of the board of Bruins) and talk it over with him. After all, he's been my boss since' I was a kid in junior hockey (at Niagara Falls)."

Hatskin explained the WHA's draft system, saying that each of the 10 clubs placed four established NHLers on their negotiation lists at a meeting 10 days ago.

He said he wouldn't disclose who the other three players on his list were. He added that the full WHA draft next month will work the same as the NHL's junior draft, giving each club rights to certain players and preventing other league teams from interfering with those players.

Detroit winger Guy Charron was to undergo surgery today to correct a facial bone fracture that Red Wing doctors said was not healing properly.

Charron, suffered the injury Nov. 28 in a game against Montreal Canadiens who were also hurting.



Yvan Cournoyer was listed as a doubtful starter against the Whigs, to a fight. The speedy winger suffered bruised ribs a week ago against Los Angeles.

Cournoyer, who missed Saturday's game against Vancouver, tried to skate Tuesday but had to leave after a short turn.

Other games tonight have Minnesota North Stars invading Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, New York Rangers at Chicago Black Hawks, Los Angles visiting Boston Bruins and California Golden Seals at Pittsburgh Penguins.

Wilkins Separated

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defenceman Barry Wilkins of Vancouver Canucks suffered a shoulder separation in Vancouver's 2-1 National Hockey League win over St. Louis Blues, coach Hal Laycoe said today.

The 24-year-old Toronto-born Wilkins was carted to the dressing room just before the final whistle after crashing into the boards in the Vancouver end, with a little help from St. Louis forward Jack Egers.

He is expected to be out of the lineup for at least six weeks.

There was no penalty on the incident, but Wilkins didn't blame anybody but himself. He said he was just trying to hit his man and "I hit him the wrong way."

There was no word from Laycoe about a replacement for Wilkins. Vancouver general manager Bud Poile, who was in Boston Tuesday night to watch the Canucks' Rochester farm club, is expected back in Vancouver Thursday.

All Eyes on Award

Golfer Lee Trevino is all eyes as he looks at his "Player of the Year" award which was awarded to him by the publisher of Golf Magazine during a reception at New York's Rainbow Room Tuesday. Gump Likes Blanda's Style

Blanda, 44, was the top story of the 1970 National Football League regular season when he rallied Oakland Raiders to victory after victory with his field goals and backup quarterbacking.

Worsley is big news in the 1971-72 National Hockey League season for the surprising North Stars, who have exploded into a three-point lead in the West Division over the Chicago Black Hawks.

"It wasn't a big to-do they made over Blanda last year," said Worsley. "It was recognition and he deserved it. I don't care if he was 21 or 41, he would have received the tribute for what he did."

How would Worsley compare his job of stopping pucks that can travel at more than 100 miles per hour with that of Blanda's?

"His job is tougher than mine," said Worsley. "When I play, I play the whole game. What he did was come off the bench late in the game and win—it's tough to sit there and then go in cold."

Worsley has been far from cold this year. He will start his 12th game in goal for the North Stars tonight in the Maple Leaf Garden after winning seven, tying one and losing three with the NHL's best goals-against average of 2.63.

The North Stars acquired Worsley, a veteran of 21 professional seasons, from Montreal toward the end of the 1969-70 season after he got into a dispute with the Canadiens, partly based on the Gump's fear of flying for jet travel.

Minnesota officials have solved that, Worsley often gets to ride in the pilot's cabin to see what's going on.

Worsley and Cesare Maniago, who has worked 15 games with a goals-against average of 1.80, are leading other goaltenders in the starts' race for the Vezina Trophy, which goes to the goalie or goalies who allow the fewest pucks in their nets during a season.

The North Stars have already a league best of 62 goals, followed by Chicago's 46.

Braves Step Ahead

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nova Scotia Voyageurs continue winning a losing battle.

The Voyageurs blasted Hershey Bears 7-6 in American Hockey League action Tuesday night but failed to make any progress in their effort to overtake Boston Braves, Eastern Division leaders.

The first-year Braves hung on to an eight-point lead over the Halifax-based Voyageurs, trailing Rochester Americans 5-1 in the only other game. Baltimore Clippers, powered by Pete LaFramboise's four goals, stagged Providence Reds 6-1.

The Voyageurs, who operated out of Montreal last year, have been winning consistently of late but have had the misfortune to be in the same division as the high-powered Braves. Boston has suffered only three losses this season.

Veteran defenceman Noel Price set the pace at Halifax. The onetime National Hockey League player speerheaded a Voyageur defence that allowed only 17 shots at goaltender Michel Plasse, just four of them in the first period.

Vikings Hope Detroit Lions Not Too Hungry for Playoffs

"This is what we've been working for since training camp," said coach Bud Grant. "It'll should be a spirited, pressure-type game. The Lions know that by winning their last couple of games, they still stand a good chance to make the playoffs.

"All of us know what this involves'.

However, the Lions must win their final two games of the season against the Vikings Saturday and Dec. 19 in San Francisco—to make the playoffs.

The Vikings 8-3 and atop the Central Division of the National Conference, need only a tie in either of their last two games against Detroit and at Chicago—to advance into the playoffs for a fourth straight season, Detroit has a 7-4-1 record.

If the Lions win their last two games and the Vikings tied the Bears, the teams would tie for the Central championship.

But the Vikings would make the playoffs because they have a better record against teams in the NFC. Minnesota has only two losses against NFC teams while Detroit's four losses and a tie were against teams in their own division.

Those four defeats and a tie also could cost the Lions a playoff spot as the best second-place team in the division.

Those four defeats and a tie also could cost the Lions a playoff spot as the best second place team in the division. The leading contender for the spot is Washington, at 8-3-1 with one of its losses against the AFC Kansas City Chiefs.

The Vikings can still lose both games, and the playoff spot if the Lions drop their final game. Grant, at any rate, expects a rugged game against the Lions, who have lost seven straight games to the Vikings including the season opener 16-13.

"We have felt all do feel they are one of the premier teams," said Grant. "But we are a different image from three or four years ago when they were known mostly for their defence.

Their offence has big names now like Greg Landry, Charlie Sanders and Steve Owens and they are scoring a lots of points.

"That's not taking anything away from their defence either. They have a great set of linebackers."

The Lions have posted 304 points, third highest in the entire NFL and second in the NFC behind the Rams while allowing 236. Minnesota has scored 185 points and allowed but 113—second lowest in the NFL behind Baltimore's 116.

The Vikings hold the record for fewest points allowed in a season, 133.

The Vikings report no serious injuries from the stunning 30-14 loss at San Diego Sunday.

Rice Gets Angel Reins

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Del Rice, a major league baseball catcher and coach for 21 years, was named manager Tuesday of California Angels. He was rewarded for leading three Angels' farm teams to pennants in consecutive seasons.

The appointment of the 49-year-old Rice for a one year term ended a five-week search by Harry Dalton, the new general manager of the American League team.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Francisco Warriors' 1967 suit over the status of Rick Barry, who jumped to Oakland of the fledgling American Basketball Association, was settled today by the parties.

The Warriors, now known as Golden State Warriors and based in Oakland, filed a $4.5-million suit against Oakland Oaks after Barry, an all-pro forward and the National Basketball Association's leading scorer in the 1966-67 season, signed with the Oaks for 1967-68.

The suit accused the Oaks, who later changed owners and locations and now are called Virginia Squires, of inducing Barry to violate his $30,000-a-year contract with the Warriors. His three-year pact with Oakland totalled $225,000 plus fringe benefits.

After Barry sat out the 1967-68 season under court order, he joined Oakland, moved to Washington, D.C., and now is playing for New York Nets of the ABA.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus' triumph beat out Jimmy World Open brought his total golf money-winnings for the year to a record $244,490. It was announced today by the PGA Tournament Players Division.

Nicklaus' triumph beat out Lee Trevino for top honors. Trevino finished second with $231,200. Third place on the money list went to Arnold Palmer, with $209,603.

CFL All-Stars

McQuay's Choice Nearly Unanimous

Leon McQuay proved to be a breakaway threat in the halfbacks as well as on the football field as the Toronto, Argonaut rookie halfback gathered 46 of a possible 47 CFL all-Star votes.

McQuay's point total was the closest to a unanimous selection on the entire squad with Wayne Harris' 42 votes coming closest to the Toronto speed-ster.

Naturally, the Grey Cup contestants paced the balloting with the Argos placing six players on the all-league team and the Calgary Stampeders five. The re-vamped Winnipeg Blue Bombers also named five team members to the all-star ranks.

The Blue Bombers spear-headed the Western Conference to a 9-3 edge in offensive positions, while the East held a 7-5 margin on defence.

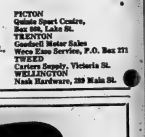
Love Hits Chicago

They love Bob Love in Chicago.

It was not love at first sight, but the slender 6-foot-8 forward has won the hearts of Chicago Bulls' fans over the last three National Basketball Association seasons.

Love wowed the Chicago patrons Tuesday night, pumping in 40 points and leading the Bulls to a 115-99 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Portland Trailblazers outlasted Detroit Pistons 131-130 in overtime, Boston Celtics whipped New York Knicks 105-97, Milwaukee Bucks overwhelmed Seattle Supersonics 116-83, Buffalo Braves trounced Cincinnati Royals 115-91, and Atlanta Hawks edged Golden State Warriors 116-113.



Love, a benchwarmer in his early NBA days with Cincinnati and Milwaukee and in his first half season with Chicago, finally earned a starting job in the 1969-70 season and averaged 29 points a game.

Watch The Birdie!

Previous winners of a "B" tournament lose the right to enter future competitions in that category, but are able to advance into "A" and open classifications instead.

Over 100 players will be attempting to move up in ranks this Saturday when the "B" tourney will be held at Centennial Secondary School.

Clubs from Kingston, Trenton, Cobourg, Oshawa, Whitby, Peterborough, Napanee, and Picton will be sending representatives to the event, while the local Belleville Badminton Club will field 28 entries.

Play will be exclusively doubles, with competition taking place in men's, women's and mixed categories.

While last year's winners from Trenton are not eligible for further "B" play the other three semi-finalist teams will be competing, assuring the event of some first class competition.

Action on Centennial's six courts will begin at 8.30 a.m. and run through continuously until about 7 p.m. There will be a dance at Tops Motor Hotel after the tournament is completed.

Philip Ancherll of the Belleville Badminton Club returns a lofted smash in weekly club action at Centennial Secondary School. A total of 28 members of the local shuttlecock contingent will be hoping to accomplish the same thing when they take part in the Central Ontario Badminton "B" Tournament at Centennial this Saturday. Over 100 competitors will be taking part in the one day tourney.

Jim's Take Biggest Gas House Step

Stewart Warner took their first winning step while Jim's Pizzeria and Maud Johnson were taking big winning steps in Gas House Hockey League action Tuesday.

Stewart Warner edged Connolly Electric 4-3 for their first win in five starts this season, while Jim's moved into first place with a 5-1 win over The Intell and Meads tripped the Teachers 3-1 to climb into second. In the other game played Rollins Lumber downed the Mustangs 5-2.

Bill Lynch fired two goals to lead Stewart Warner to their win, getting scoring support from Pat Scollard and Brian McQuaid. Fee-Cassidy's Dunn, Belsaw and Thompson were the scorers.

Status Racket Is Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A university professor said Tuesday that universities and professions have worked out a "sweetheart deal" to preserve a conspiracy of status which costs taxpayers needless money and costs students extra time in school.

Dr. John Ellis, professor of education at Simon Fraser University in suburban Burnaby, told a service club that the professions are making their courses longer and more difficult, with the co-operation of the colleges.

"This works out fine for the universities, because they get more grants for more students, and higher grants for higher degrees," he said.

It makes professions more difficult to enter, and gives them more prestige. But this makes it more difficult for the students studying for a profession.

As an example, Prof. Ellis said, the University of British Columbia now is requiring two years of study, after the Bachelor of Arts degree, for a library degree. Until this year, just one extra year was required. The library graduate now will have the degree of Master of Library Science.

"So the status of the librarian has increased, but the time and cost have also increased and there's no real evidence that it produces better librarians.

"UBC profits handsomely because the university grant formula pays a great deal more for a master's than a bachelor's degree."

Opposing Theories Advanced

TORONTO (CP) — Two opposing educational policies were considered by city school officials Tuesday—a proposal for a strict discipline institution and another for an open school with no tests, little competition and free expression.

The committee requested specific proposals from the group espousing the old fashioned public school for further consideration.

The rigid school has the backing of two groups, the Parent Action League and the Committee Against Moral Pollution in the Schools. P.A.L. is a group pushing against child-centred curriculum that neglect the three Rs. C.A.M.P.S. is against sex instruction in schools.

The management committee gave its approval, subject to the consent of the boards of education, to the group that wants to start a free public school run by parents and teachers.

This group, calling itself ALPHA, A LA of People Hoping for an Alternative, wants a school that will emphasize freedom of expression and play down competition.

Metro Board Approves Junior Kindergartens

TORONTO (CP) — The Metropolitan Toronto school board Tuesday made it possible for any school to establish junior kindergartens or equivalent education programs for four year-olds in the next school year.

Previously, the program was confined to those schools in "lower socio-economic areas" with a high percentage of non-English-speaking residents. There now are 180 such junior-city programs in the 470 Metro public schools.

A provincial committee is studying preschool education in Ontario and expects to report to the Ontario cabinet in the new year.

It is estimated that 70,000 four-year-olds in the province attend schools and 30,000 do not.

Mayor on CBC

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott is becoming a regular performer of the CBC airwaves.

Two weeks ago Mayor Scott was a guest on the program "The Mayor Speaks" at which time he discussed Great Lakes pollution.

Yesterday Mayor Scott appeared on the same program with two and three year election terms for municipal office as his topic.

And again on Thursday he will be heard on CBC at 1:15 p.m. when he will talk on pressure groups.

Mrs. Kenney, who shops for three, is a regular Loblaws customer. She says, "I used to run around from store to store picking up the specials but now I only come to Loblaws because I've found that, overall, I can't do better anywhere else. I read the ads and check the prices and I know that Loblaws prices are reasonable on the things I buy. And Loblaws quality is better than most stores. I like the produce section especially—it's one of the main reasons I come here. The produce I buy here looks and tastes nicer than what I've had from other stores and Loblaws prices aren't any higher. And the meat—Loblaws meat is very good and there's always lots of variety".

More Tax Bill Trouble

Senators May Revolt

OTTAWA (CP) — An alarmed and rebellious Senate learned Tuesday night that the government's 367-page tax bill, now lumbering through the Commons, may not get to the Upper House before Dec. 17.

Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate, said it may have to sit through the weekend before Christmas, including a Sunday, to pass the bill by Dec. 23.

Senator Martin, and the government, say the bill must be passed by Parliament by Jan. 1 —raising the possibility of sessions between Christmas and New Year's.

But government and opposition members in the Senate, showing signs of revolt, indicated they might force adjournment of the chamber until January.

The taxation year begins Jan. 1 and every tax-paying business and individual in the country could face a tangled situation if the bill isn't effective on that date.

Another disruptive aspect loomed as some senators indicated that amendments to the four-inch-thick bill, on which the Commons has spent more than two months, may be sought.

The Senate's right to make substantial changes in a tax bill has never been admitted by the Commons and a constitutional showdown could result, a government source said.

Senate amendments to tax legislation have been accepted in the past, with the reservation that they don't represent a confidence. But if this happens now, the session is almost certain to continue through the holidays—since the Commons will have to sit to debate and vote on the Senate amendments.

In the Commons, the guillotine falls today—the 9th day on debate in committee-of-the-whole with dozens of clauses untouched.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said it may take two to three hours just to read off the clauses and subclauses, plus more than 125 amendments, for automatic passage.

The Conservatives plan to force a vote on some to register their disapproval, New Democrat and Social Credit members may do the same.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen invoked Rule 75-C last week to close the debate today and is expected to use it early next week to set a limit on third-reading debate, which is to begin Friday.

Senator Martin advised the Senate he has been told by Mr. MacEachen that the bill is unlikely to get to the Senate before Friday, Dec. 17.

Senator Martin said the Senate could sit Friday night, Saturday and possibly Sunday, then weekdays until Dec. 23, to get the bill past.

The former external affairs minister said diplomatically that a Christmas Day session is "something I hope we would avoid."

Youth Program Praised

OTTAWA (CP) — A private assessment of government says that the Opportunities for Youth program—within the limits of its $94.3-million budget and its late start last winter—"succeeded well" in providing summer jobs and income to students.

The assessment by Systems Research Group Inc., described as experts in evaluating public programs, was tabled Tuesday in the Commons by Hugh Faulkner (L—Peterborough), parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Gerard Pelletier.

Mr. Pelletier said earlier the government will decide by Dec. 15 whether to repeat the experimental program next summer.

Planning began a year ago when prospects for the summer of 1971 indicated sluggish economic conditions and "serious student unemployment." As it turned out, unemployment among students ran about 11 per cent, the same figure as in the summer of 1970.

The assessment says that questionnaires sent to project participants, agency professionals and project clients drew responses that showed "strong support . . . for continuation of the program."

It provided 27,831 jobs—21,216 to post-secondary students and 6,615 to secondary students.

"Inevitably there were both weak projects and some which aroused controversy," the report says. "The vast majority operated successfully."

However, "successful as it has been, the program was only one aspect of private and public efforts to provide summer jobs for students.

Of the 1.3 million who sought jobs, 972,000 found them—85 per cent in the private sector and eight per cent in provincial and municipal government.

The Opportunities-for-Youth program had drawn 13,000 applications, despite the March 15 announcement that was considered late—with students finishing classes in April and going into the job market in May.

Of the 2,313 grants made, 886 went to Ontario and provided 6,077 jobs at an average cost of $895.

Library Corner

By A.D.

Collections of old local history books are a special interest to many and your library has a good and growing collection. Among the popular volumes in the reference collection are the following.

PIONEER LIFE AMONG THE LOYALISTS IN UPPER CANADA — Herrington, W.S.

This slender volume presents an excellent picture of the early settlements of Ontario and the daily life of the pioneers. Details of their lives such as: buildings and furnishings, teachers and preachers; and courts and elections are given their everyday familiarity.

THE PIONEERS OF OLD ONTARIO — W. L. Smith

Published as a supplement to the Makers of Canada series this book commemorates the unknown makers of Canada — the many pioneers who went into Canadian wilderness and made out of it the Canada of our country.

THE ROMANCE OF CANADIAN HISTORY — edited from the writings of Francis Parkman

A survey of Canadian history from early discoveries and the founding of New France to mid-eighteenth century based on the masterly volumes of a great historian.

A HISTORY OF THE CANADIAN WEST TO 1870-71 — Arthur S. Morton

"Being a history of Rupert's land (The Hudson's Bay Company's territory) and of the Northwest territory (including the Pacific Slope)." A thorough and competent study of that part of Canada north of Lower Canada and north and west of Upper Canada — like fur trade forms the centre of the narrative.

HISTORY OF THE SETTLEMENT OF UPPER CANADA — William Canniff

A fascinating account of Ontario's history, written in 1872. Details include: Battles of the French and Indians; the settlement of the country by United Empire Loyalists; the trials and hardships incident to pioneer life and "thrilling narratives of adventures with Indians and wild beasts."

And in the realm of local histories there are many good accounts.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — HISTORY by W. C. Mikel

Published in 1913, Mikel's history outlines the origins of the City of Belleville, lists city fathers and relates history of schools, clubs and military groups.

MEMO OF BELLEVILLE — by N. and H. Mika

A picture tour of history which makes vivid many of Belleville's outstanding people and buildings.

HISTORIC HASTINGS — G. E. Boyce

Hastings County development from its early settlement to present day. A history which was prepared for Centennial year.

Objector Satisfied With 'To A Point'

PICTON (Staff) — Mrs. Mervin Haight, a Wesbburn Street resident who has strenuously opposed the construction of sectional houses on Simcoe Street near her home, last night told town council she is "satisfied to a point" with the latest progress in the housing development.

Mrs. Haight, during a meeting of the planning and development committee last week, requested confirmation in writing that any new houses constructed on Simcoe Street would be built with a brick veneer and would be comparable in cost to the houses already built in the subdivision.

Chairman William Lane told Mrs. Haight that the commission she sought was between the terms of reference of its committee and that such confirmation could be obtained only from the subdivider.

"I did not get what I asked, but I realize Mr. Wahrsvelt is not in a position to give me what I asked for," declared Mrs. Haight at the close of last night's council session.

She referred to councillor Torrey Wahrsvelt, a real estate broker connected with the sub-division's sectional homes on Simcoe Street.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: When are the 1972 licence plates for my car and trailer on sale, and what do they cost this year?

ANSWER: Licence plates for car and trailer went on sale December 1st this year. Other years you had to wait until March 1st to buy your trailer licence plates.

Licence plates for 4 cylinder cars — $20; 6 cylinder cars — $27.50; 8 cylinder cars — $35.

Trailer licence plates cost $5. Ontario will switch to permanent licence plates next year. You'll buy just a vinyl renewal sticker each year and stick it on. Government officials said they hope the new plates, made of heavier metal, will last up to 5 years before rust and salt get them.

When snow and ice cover our streets and highways, driving skills are taxed to the maximum. The Ontario Motor League recommends the following winter driving tips:

While driving on ice and snow, remember that any sudden movement can cause a skid. Don't speed up, turn or brake sharply on slippery roads. Slow down and keep plenty of distance back from the car ahead. Never shift to a lower gear while moving rapidly on an icy surface.

Keep your car pulling steadily. Abrupt turns, lane changing and sudden acceleration or deceleration can cause bad skids on ice and snow. Anticipate turns or speed changes and make them slowly and gradually. Don't jam on the brakes, pump them.

Should you find yourself skidding, release the accelerator and steer in the direction in which the rear of the car is sliding. Don't brake. The front wheels of the car must be kept rolling in order to steer. As the car responds, straighten out the front wheels.

Allow a greater distance when following a car. A vehicle ahead may stop just beyond an icy area, and use extra distance will enable the driver behind it to brake before reaching the ice.

Learn the temperature traps. Ice and snow last longer on overpasses and bridges. Be extra cautious in such places. Roadways on these structures may be iced over, even though highways generally are bone dry because winds blowing beneath bridges quickly cool the steel and concrete while the soil beneath adjacent roadways acts as a heat pad. And, beware of "warm or wet" ice. Ice and snow are twice as slippery at 30 degrees as they are at 0 degrees. So be on guard when the temperature is just about freezing.

Any trip under unfavorable wintertime conditions takes longer. In winter, always allow extra time to complete a trip. When you drive too fast for conditions, you reduce your chances of avoiding an accident. When weather or traffic conditions are hazardous, reduce your speed according-ly.

Keep the gas tank half-full during the cool weather. A full tank checks condensation, and that means less risk of water in the gas, with possible tie-up. If a bit of it freezes in the lines.

Any step a driver takes to "see and be seen" during a snowstorm is a safety measure. Keep all windows and lights clean and clear of snow. Pretty use lights — you may not see better but the other driver will see you sooner.

Throughout the winter, make a habit of removing all snow from all windows, and from as much of your car as possible. Snow left on the hood can blow back against the windshield when you are moving along. Snow on your car's roof can be blown off and may hit another car.

Remember to remove accumulated slush and snow from under the car fenders before the maps freeze and affects steering.

Drivers must take positive steps to avoid carbon monoxide poisoning. Drive at a safe distance from the vehicle ahead to prevent heavy fumes through windows, heaters and air vents. Keep the automobile's tailpipe free of snow or ice. While driving, always keep a window partially open.

As an added measure against a snow emergency, assemble these items and make sure they're available in your car during the cold months: candle, one-lb. can, small snow shovel, ice scraper and snow brush, dry cloth, windshield washer antifreeze and a flashlight.

ANAF News

Yes sir, this coming Thursday is a very important date to those who have the interests of the club at heart. Besides a transcript of the happenings and the financial statements of the past year, it is up to you to nominate the comrades who you think are best able to carry on the business, and it has become big business, of us unit. It is hoped that a good number will stand for office. It shows a lack of interest or perfect trust in the present members now in office if their offices are acclaimed. Let there be a contest for every seat in a truly democratic fashion — the more the merrier — and ensure that, in the opinion of the voters, the best men get in to run the affairs of the club to the best of their ability.

Another fine evening of entertainment last Friday with another big night coming up this next Friday with Marg Flett and her new look. During the ceremonies there will be breaks for turkey rolls with plenty of prizes waiting to be won. Come on in and win your share.

There was a big crowd attending the Santa Claus parade and everyone was unanimous in their praise for it being about the best ever seen in Belleville. Although no afternoon darts were held because of the crowd, the old spindle, wheel went round and round with squeals of delight from the lucky winners who received plenty of worthwhile prizes. Only two more weekends left in which to get your share; so don't miss it.

The Mr. and Mrs. Darts matches resumed again Saturday night with an even bigger turnout. There were many hard - contested battles fought with a short break around 11 p.m. to renew the inner man then on with the strife once more. When the dust of battle had settled, the Woodhouses, Ruth and George stood out of the Brookses, June and Bob, to capture the top spot for the evening and, despite a valient battle, the latter couple had to be satisfied with the runner up spot. The last Mr. and Mrs. Darts until after the New Year will be Saturday Dec. 18. Be seeing you. Ladies high three darts was thrown by Mary Young with 83. George Woodhouse was top for the men with 128.

With Cdr. A. Tuck in the Kingston General Hospital and Cdr. R. Forbes still under medical care in Toronto, the sick list is the shortest for some weeks and the chairman of the sick committee certainly hopes that all the comrades are able to enjoy the Yuletide festivities in their own homes and the sick board remain blank.

Be sure to attend the nomination of officers Thursday, Dec. 9 at 8 p.m.

Tweed

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harkness spent the past weekend visiting in Brockville, with Mr. Harkness' daughter and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Murvey LeClaire and Lorraena.

The congregation of St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed, enjoyed a delicious pot-luck dinner following the service on Sunday, December 5, in the church hall.

Amos Hughes, of Arden fell on the ice and broke two ribs.

The total snowfall for the month of November in Tweed was 14.58 inches whereas the normal or average snowfall is 7.27 inches for that period.

The glass panel on the front door of the Bank of Montreal, Tweed, was broken during a recent weekend, but apparently the building was not entered. A week earlier, the window of the Avon Flavour Company in Tweed business office was broken, and again, the building evidently was not entered. Police here are continuing the investigation.

Mrs. Howard Horner of Ardoch, is a patient in St. Francis Hospital, Scaths Falls, Ontario.

A number from Marlbank attended the recent UCW dinner and tea held in the Sunday school room on Wednesday.

Payment Said Illegal

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission has been unsuccessful in its attempts to reimburse a West Street resident for damage incurred Aug. 14, when power lines fell on her property.

At their Oct. 18 meeting, the PUC received requests from four residents claiming more than $2,000 in damages sustained during the mishap.

Commissioners at that time felt responsibility should rest with Ontario Hydro, but the board agreed to investigate.

"We tried to bend a little, for the hardship incurred, but found it was illegal," for the PUC to reimburse T. S. Smylie, of 176 West Street, for damage to his television set, said Mr. O'Connor.

E. L. Barnham, PUC general manager, believed other claims to have been taken care of by insurance adjustments.

Home and School Said Floundering

Two years ago, the Hastings County Board of Education followed in the footsteps of provincial legislation and created a body of parents to serve on the Association of School Groups, "Advisory Committees.

It is the opinion of the Hastings County Home and School Association that the eight county advisory committees are floundering and have proven almost ineffective.

At the same time: it is proving increasingly more difficult to create parent interest in what their children are doing at school and what they are absorbing.

John Welch, in his membership committee report to the Home and School association Monday, said he could see the value of such small working groups.

"However," he added, "unless the problems can be transferred to the public or to a general meeting, I can see no value of the ASG groups."

Mr. Welch predicted a cleansing of group ranks might solve the problem. He spoke of recruiting "the right people." Willard such improvements, the Home and School Association's entire hope, he said, would be to "give them a little rope to hang themselves".

The whole concept of this program, as well as home and school itself has "slipped badly" according to association president John W. Stephens.

Speaking on a first person level, he said, "If you don't have children in school you find it hard to get interested in ASG."

George Botting added, "But these are still people having to pay taxes for schools."

The advisory committees of which there are eight . . . one even almost secondary school in Hastings County . . . were formed to act as liason between schools and parents. Members of Home and School serve on these committees, as well as students, if they so wish.

Tripp Resigns

PICTON (Staff) — Pictan building inspector Leonard Tripp has resigned his job, claiming that his duties conflict too much with his position as fire chief.

Mr. Tripp, who has agreed to continue as building inspector until his successor can be appointed, last night received a vote of thanks from town council for his many years on the job.

At the same time, of the 62 possible associations within the county, only 17 are active.

Even interest in their own entity seems to have broken down in several cases. The Ontario headquarters recently requested return of any association charters which have become dormant because of defunct organizations.

When the various schools were contacted, only L. H. Connor school in Tweed could return their charter. The others couldn't find theirs. A school in Fankford reported the board, wouldn't even acknowledge the letter sent to them.

And in the other schools, with "active organizations", "the majority of charters can't be found," reports Mr. Welch. "The schools don't know where they are."

When the central association contacted several parent-groups, they found "loss of them wanted it, but nobody wanted to work for . . . the same old thing," said Mrs. Patricia March.

The board agreed formation of branch-associations rests in the lap of school principals.

Mr. Welch stated "they see this new system as an easy way out"; they only have to involve one or two people."

Trudeau Interprets Hands-off-Canada Pledge as New Doctrine

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is interpreting a hands-off-Canada pledge from President Nixon as a newly-affirmed basic doctrine of U.S. foreign policy.

The language Mr. Trudeau is using publicly and privately to describe Mr. Nixon's assurance underlines the prime minister's view that the White House statement is of major importance for Canada.

In the Commons Tuesday, reporting on his Washington meeting of the day before, Mr. Trudeau characterized the Nixon pledge as "a fundamental tenet of the foreign policies of the United States."

At a news conference before leaving Washington, he cited an assurance from the president that the U.S. recognizes and supports Canada's right to assert its independence economically, as well as politically.

"This to me was a fantastic new statement to have come out of the mouth of a president of the United States.

"And it was said with the utmost simplicity and not at all in a gunpoint way—you know: 'If you don't want our capital, you won't get it and look after yourself,' instead.

Instead, he said, it was: "Take what you want. If we can help you with our capital and if you want less, take less."

"And for Canadians, I think this is the ideal position."

Mr. Trudeau has placed the president's declaration in the context both of Canadian concern about U.S. protectionist measures imposed in August and of the longer-term anxiety about heavy U.S. ownership of Canadian industry.

He said he asked President Nixon whether the Aug. 15 measures—designed to force correction of a chronic U.S. international trade deficit—was based on the view that the U.S. had a perennial right to a surplus in trade with Canada.

"We are a distinct country, we are a distinct people and our remaining free and safe, I was assured, in the interests of the United States and is a fundamental tenet of the foreign policies of that country as explained by the Nixon administration."

By that statement, Mr. Trudeau elevated the Nixon assurance into the category of a major U.S. policy statement—on a par, in Canada's eyes, with the Monroe Doctrine of 1823 and the Truman Doctrine of 1947.

The doctrine proclaimed by President James Monroe said the U.S. would not tolerate colonial European interventions in the Western Hemisphere. President Harry S. Truman's doctrine said much the same about interventions by Soviet communism in Communist Europe.

Bowel Does Not Accumulate Poisons If Not Cleaned Out

By C. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Being a married man of 38, I have no claims to being an expert on feminine hygiene; however, I don't believe my wife and her mother are, either.

My wife has been "taught" that the female body must be cleaned out about four times a year, so she submits to a series of soapsuds enemas until the fluid returned is clear.

I feel that such a practice is not only unwise but unhealthy. Also, the diet, or even days-like, she knows her mother is coming to give her these enemas, she becomes quite tense and irritated. Incidentally, she claims her mother is right and all the pain (with all the commotion there could be pain) is worth it.

I believe this procedure is quite unnecessary and should be stopped before something serious happens. What is your opinion?—J.T.

You are entirely right, and your mother-in-law is, to be as circumspect as possible, misguided. I guess that your wife probably realizes it.

But having been brought up that way, she can't find any way to get out of the ordeal, so she submits to it.

The bowel doesn't, as some people still insist, accumulate "poisons." It merely—and normally—eliminates waste matter, fat, undigested food, soapsuds enemas. The human bowel operates successfully long before the human race had invented either soapsuds or enemas.

As a matter of fact, physiologically the bowel does not empty itself until it receives the stimulus of having enough material in it to cause a movement.

So, when someone undergoes such a marital series of enemas as you describe, the bowel is left entirely empty. It tends to get very lazy at last, and perhaps more, before enough material has accumulated to cause another movement. To some people who have the "yearly cleaning" out there are such people—this lapse is interpreted as meaning that they are "constipated," so they then resort to another enema, and go through the whole lamentable cycle over again.

Skepticism also is based on the thought that Mr. Trudeau is trying to scuttle complaints in Canadian quarters that this government has been encouraging deterioration in the Canada-U.S. - Canada relationship.

Such repeated enemas can upset the bowel action to such an extent that it can take a long time for it to return to normal.

I can also cause an "irritated colon," especially if suppositories are used, because they are an irritant. Didn't you ever get soap in your eye?

Finally, there's the possibility that, in addition to all that, the tube tip can perforate or otherwise damage the bowel.

I might add, and probably should, that the pattern of a mother subjecting a child, and sometimes a grown-up one, to enemas is a pattern not totally unknown in psychiatrists. Because, unhappily, it is, or may be, a symptom of a disturbed emotional attitude.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would cause a boy, 3, to drool from the mouth? He has no speech defect that I can detect, but I have to remind him to swallow all day. He is intelligent for his age.—H.D.

I'm generally inclined to look for the most obvious cause first. You don't say how long this problem has been present, but the most probability is teething. Sometimes tooth eruption can be quite uncomfortable and cause excess flow of saliva. If that is the case, it will subside shortly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is a ketosis skin cancer? If not, could it become malignant?—Mrs. J.D.

It is not cancer; but it sometimes can become malignant.

Marmora

MARMORA — Mr. Vincent Lynch returned home on Sunday from St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough where he has been a patient since his accidental fall.

Mrs. Manley Lavender left on Sunday to spend the winter with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kelly of Ontario, California. While there, she will be doing substitute church work for Mr. Hugh P. MacMillan, Bataan officer for the department of archives and records.

Rev. John Peters attended two worship services on the Bay of Quinte United Hymnary in St. James' Anglican Church, Kingston on Sunday afternoon and Chalmers United Church in the evening. Mrs. Peters and children visited friends in Kingston for the day.

What the Stars Say

By CONSTELLA

Wednesday, December 8

Aries (March 21-April 19). Co-workers are not to be had from accurate sources. It's a relief to find out that the business venture they've painted isn't as black as you feared.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Don't try to force a good time if neither you nor the others are really in the mood. It would be best really if you postponed plans until everyone's feeling sociable.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). You can tell some people for weeks that they're not, but it takes a direct exposure to the results of their follies for them to agree with you.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Errors on the job won't be so glaring as you fear. A day-dreaming co-workers steals the critical spotlight from you with an even worse boo-boo.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). It may be your sad duty to break the news to loved ones that some belt-tightening is now in order. Everyone at home will have to make a few sacrifices to maintain security.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It looks like you're stuck for the duration, insofar as your job is concerned. Don't try to quit or transfer dissolve, so grin and bear it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). You may clearly know, deep in your heart, that what you're hoping for won't work out. Still, partners don't have to keep telling you over and over.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). A close tie may put a severe optimism about the money situation. In fact, it's beginning to look like you won't be smiling over it much longer yourself.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You've hoodwinked partners so often that they honestly won't believe you when you tell them the truth now. If you can get an expert to back you, it may help.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). A long-term cycle of unreliability from helpers, subordinates is highlighted now when you least are able to cope with snafus. Better work alone.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19). The keen-conscience-all theme that suitors are playing won't heal the wounds you received in your last nonsatic tangle. You're very wary.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Equal opportunity, women's lib and all, don't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. Don't think you can make it in a field that requires special qualifications.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—Major changes in partnerships, career, even personal appearance are yours as you get going your spiritual house in order by next July. Remember all things happen for the best.

Thursday, December 9

Aries (March 21-April 19). By this week-end, you reckless Rams will be plunging headong into every available alliance, for once with the most blessed of outcomes. Take a chance.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). It takes a startling opportunities, such as those that are presented to you today and tomorrow, to remind you that you've got a guardian angel somewhere. Working Taureans are hapless.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). The subtle manoeuvres, of Fate put you in the right place at the right time today and bring you one destined to play a lasting role in your life.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Unsettled home conditions can have you projecting the worst possible scenario. Don't believe it's hopeless—a miracle solution is just about to appear.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Romance that's been getting nowhere fast can suddenly take on a wholly different aspect. Strange, but happy, events allow the two of you to finally discuss basics.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your precise handling of finances will help you hold on to a fortune, but those misfunds are no one's way responsible for the pot of gold dumped in your lap shortly. You're in luck.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). It's been a slow process of picking your innermost thoughts apart to find your real failures, but the New You that debuts now can surprise 'em all. You change completely.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov 21). Born under the secret sign, Scorpios have got to be particularly confidential about their finances, mouthed about are the ones that pay off now.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The last two months haven't been easy, particularly the emotional up, and downs. On the home column, though, today's mood surpasses previous highs.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Quiet talks with those in high places can provide some sudden changes in status and remuneration. It's best not to tell too many people about it yet.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19). Your blissful outlook is largely due to some terrific success that comes to someone very close. You'll be pleased with the limelight with partners.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). All is not lost. Pisces. One old dream is reborn in greater form and promises. Fate has definitely been saving you for something better.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—Superb aspects light your way this year, sheltering you from harm that easily befalls even closest partners. Early August close to mid-year can be a very low time.

Retailers Forecast Christmas Sales Increases

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A high risk of unemployment and a somewhat gloomy economic outlook across Canada do not appear to be diminishing Canadians' Christmas spirit or Christmas spending.

Retailers across the country are predicting sales increases this Christmas season over a year ago or anywhere from five to 20 per cent.

Crowds of early shoppers in some parts of the country forced some merchants to reorder from wholesalers before the end of November. The demand has been particularly heavy for such major items as color television sets and snowblowers.

Demand varies from province to province. In Prince Edward Island, sales of women's fashions are slow, while in New Brunswick, retailers report exceptional increases.

Predictions of sales increases vary. In Nova Scotia, merchants expect volume to increase by five to 15 per cent. In Ontario, increases may be as much as 15 per cent. And a spokesman for Canadian Tire Corp. Ltd., which has more than 250 associate stores between Manitoba and the East Coast, says his firm expects to be "at least 20 per cent ahead of last Christmas" in sales.

"There's a lot of money around, and people seem to be going for more expensive, quality merchandise," says one retailer in Western Canada.

In Ottawa, retailers say sales this year are without precedent and expected to improve when federal civil servants receive their last pay cheques before Christmas.

The weather over most of the country has been unseasonably warm, allowing retailers of Christmas trees to get into the woods and plantations sooner than are generally in good supply.

About 80 per cent of Newfoundland's area is Crown owned wilderness and trees are free for the taking. On the Prairies, a charge of 25 to 50 cents is usually made. In some parts of Ontario, landowners are charging $1.50 to city dwellers for their own trees.

Ballot Results Unknown

Conservatives' Policy Discussions Don't Mean Thing Says MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservatives closed their two-day policy convention Tuesday with the hoots of pre-election optimism and the election of a new executive overriding the policy talks themselves.

But, as a western MP put it, the hours of poorly-attended policy discussions Monday, and the 270 resolutions voted on Tuesday did not "mean a damned thing."

Most of the resolutions were written by a headquarters committee headed by Thomas Symons, chancellor of Trent University, and which included Mr. Stanfield.

The rest were added after committee debates Monday.

Results of the balloting—which may not be known until February—will not be binding on the party's Commons caucus.

The resolutions ranged over the whole field of public policy, including foreign investment, legalization of marijuana and the right of any province to self-determination.

But the delegates were able to take home a fresh dose of optimism and solidarity.

Jack Horner, MP for Crowfoot and leader of western Tories [illegible] was minister John Diefenbaker whom Mr. [illegible] in 1967—assured a rush meeting before the convention that "Mr. Stanfield is my leader and I'm supporting him."

Mr. Diefenbaker visited the convention twice, moving through corridors and greeting old friends, but never entering the meeting rooms.

The other crease in party optimism involved Quebec. Less than a third of the 499 delegates to which Quebec was entitled appeared.

Imported Car Models Deceiving

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford was asked Tuesday to investigate charges that imported-car dealers "steal thousands of dollars" from customers by trade representing the date of a vehicle's manufacture.

Barry Mather (NDP—White Rock) sent Mr. Basford a letter he had received from the Automobile Protection Association alleging dealers update the advertised model year of cars left in stock each September.

The association, a three-year-old group affiliated with consumer advocate Ralph Nader, says "last-year" models are illegally represented as current model-year cars and sold at substantially-higher price of new models.

The customers, says the association, "only discover they have been tricked when they return to their dealer the next year and discover that their car has been depreciated by two years—almost 50 per cent, rather than the expected one year—38 per cent."

The letter quotes a recent Nissan Company ... statement that purchasers of Mr. Datsun automobiles know of the retailing practice.

"When we followed the ... practice, we have been expected our dealers to explain to their customers about this practice to import sales to avoid any possible misunderstanding."

The consumer group rejected the company statement.

"Obviously by the number of people complaining to the Automobile Protection Association, the customers are not being told the truth."

Other companies included in the association charges were Ford, British Leyland, Fiat, Volvo and Renault.

The association called for legislation to end the updating practice and creation of a rebate system to refund to the dealer part of the cost of expired-model-year cars. This manufacturer's refund would be passed on to purchasers of the old models.

In addition, the association wanted, "a complete reimbursement for all valid consumer claims equal to the monetary difference between the real and fictional age of the vehicle."

Indians Ask Judge Be Fired

SUDBURY (CP) — The federal department of justice will be asked to remove Judge George Collins from the bench because of recent critical remarks he made concerning Indians.

The Nickel Belt Indian Club passed resolutions at a meeting here to ask the department to require the resignation and a "national apology."

The federal human rights commission is asked to prohibit judges from making any comments pertaining to race or religion.

Bernie Palaisgoose of the Whitefish Lake Reserve said most chiefs of North Shore reserves are in favor of the judge's dismissal.

Don Whiteside, chairman of the human rights division of the department of the secretary of state, was to attend the meeting but his plans was grounded because of poor weather conditions.

London-area Men Arrested

FRANKFORD (Staff) — Bail for two London area men arrested in an early Tuesday raid by Ontario Provincial Police here has been set at $5,000.

Acting on information received from a Frankford resident, Constables Wayne Adams and Lynn Acres swooped down on two men found in the possession of approximately $1,800 in goods removed from Moore's Furniture Store at 23 Mill Street.

The officers discovered the men in possession of three portable color television sets and one black and white set.

Arrested and charged with break, enter and theft are George Wilkes, Miller, 26, and Gustave Behrens, 37, both of the London area, but with no fixed address.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♥	Pass	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

One effect of playing weak two bids is that it may excite the opponents into biking off more than they can chew. Like all preemptive bids, weak twos present a challenge of sorts to the enemy, who will often overreach themselves because one player or the other becomes befuddled with the idea that the preemptor is trying to talk him out of a possible game or slam.

Consider this hand from a team match. At the first table the bidding went as shown and North-South wound up playing the hand at three notrump, though they had only 22 highcard points.

But declarer made the contract when West selected the queen of hearts as his opening shot and it also turned out that East had the king of spades. Declarer finished with nine tricks consisting of a heart, three spades and five diamonds, as the effect of West's two bid was that South made a vulnerable game he would probably not have reached but for the nuisance bid.

Strangely enough, the bidding went the same way at the second table but here the outcome was different and North-South paid a heavy penalty for their bidding.

West came forth with the inspired lead of a club and the defence proceeded to chop South to bits. East won the club with the jack and returned a heart, won by West with the jack.

West led another club to East's queen an d East returned still another heart. As a result, East-West scored six hearts and three clubs to put South down five—300 points—a terrible penalty to pay for a reasonable but adventurous contract.

Maybe the lesson of the hand lies not so much in demonstrating the efficacy of weak two bids as it does in the fine judgment displayed by the second West in choosing his opening lead.

Children Can Rate Parents

TORONTO (CP) — A test designed for the Scarborough board of education would give students a chance to rate their parents, for the teacher's information, on such things as methods of discipline and financial generosity.

The test was part of a report presented to the board this week on positive ways of dealing with disinterested and problem students.

A secondary school student would be asked to rate his father from "very often" to "never" on such statements as:

"He has outbursts of temper."

"He is critical of me."

The students' critique of his mother is along somewhat different lines:

"She makes me feel that she would like me to be a different sort of person."

"She complains about the problems of being a mother."

"When annoyed she is unkind to me."

The introduction to the test recommends that parents be alerted to it and that after the students participate, the results be reviewed with the parents tactfully.

Bruce Whitehouse, the board's senior psychologist, says the test has not yet been used in Toronto.

Orphanage Bombed, 150 Children Killed

Foreign Ships Hit by Bombs

By REUTER

Indian warships sank four Pakistani gunboats trying to break out of beleaguered East Pakistan today, All-India radio reported, while Indian troops were taking the river port of Chandpur.

The capture of Chandpur, about 40 miles south of Dacca, opened the way for the advance on the East Pakistan capital, the radio said.

While the Indian ring closed on the beleaguered East Pakistan garrison, Indian aircraft were stepping up their air attacks on Karachi, the commercial capital of West Pakistan.

More than 30 civilians were killed in a heavy raid Wednesday night. Radio Pakistan said, Western military sources in the city said three foreign merchant ships were hit by missiles of the Soviet Osa type, apparently fired from a gunboat.

Oil storage tanks in the Karachi port area also were set on fire and were still burning furiously today.

Indian air attacks have made Dacca airport unusable and trapped several hundred foreign nationals who have been waiting for five days for evacuation by air from the East Pakistan capital.

Hostilities between India and Pakistan ranged far and wide on the seventh day of the war today.

On the ground, the war raged on in both East and West Pakistan, with the Indians reporting that their forces were closing in on the East Pakistan capital of Dacca. They were said to be about 20 miles from the city.

In West Pakistan, separated from the eastern half by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, heavy fighting continued and India said its troops had thrown back most of the large Pakistani force which had made gains in the last few days.

Indian Planes Miss Airport

From REUTER - AP

DACCA, East Pakistan (CP) — Indian bombers made a direct hit on a Dacca orphanage early today and at least 150 children are believed to have been killed, police said.

Four bombs from high-flying Indian planes gouged huge craters in the main school building and sleeping quarters of the Mother Mission orphanage, which is about one mile southeast of the airport.

The orphanage has 400 children—100 girls, all of whom are safe, and 300 boys, aged seven to 16, few of whom are at present accounted for.

A staff of doctors and missionaries also lived on the premises.

The founder of the orphanage, Mohammed Rahman, who said he had been an associate of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's grandfather in Calcutta, said the bombs landed at 2:15 a.m.:

"I heard a sound and thought it was a helicopter," he said.

...Then suddenly the explosions came one, two, three, four . . . children were screaming. It was dark and we couldn't see them in the mud and under the wreckage.

"The girls were safe because they were in a building at the back. But many boys are missing.

"We can't have a roll call because our registers were destroyed."

...The bombs blasted craters more than 20 feet deep and more than 20 feet wide.

The orphanage is about a mile from the Dacca airport which has been under frequent Indian air attack since Saturday.

Sabres Turn Up In War

OTTAWA (CP) — A number of Canadian-made Sabre jets are operating with the Pakistan Air Force in the Indo-Pakistan war, government sources said Wednesday.

They are part of a 225-plane order built under licence for the German Luftwaffe by Canadair of Montreal in 1957.

Ninety of the fighters were subsequently sold by West Germany to Iran, with Canadian approval. Such approval was necessary under a control provision governing sales to third countries.

However, an upcoming sale when it was discovered that the F-86 Sabres had been transferred from Iran to Pakistan. That was in 1966, a year after the last Indo-Pakistan conflict.

The transaction appeared to contradict the Canadian government policy forbidding sale of Canadian arms to areas of tension.

The explanation given by the Iranian government was that the jets had been sent to Pakistan for repairs.

Canada's external affairs department, however, confirms that the Sabres were returned to Iran, said Wednesday that a "certain number" apparently are still in Pakistan.

However, it was not known how many were in operation in the present hostilities.

Sabres have been involved in the air war between India and Pakistan since the outbreak of hostilities two weeks ago.

Lewis Speaks

Economic Siege Will Grow

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Wednesday night that "the daily economic siege" of Canada by the United States is going to get worse instead of better.

His remarks were prompted by an Ontario government interdepartmental committee report on economic nationalism made public at a news conference at Toronto Wednesday.

He said figures reveal there is more foreign investment control in Canada than in all the Western European countries combined.

"If we're going to put up with so much foreign investment, then you'd think we should at least benefit from it but the report proves there are no benefits.

"In a 15-nation study of productivity levels in the next 10 years it was found Canada will stand 13th.

Planes Awaiting Ceasefire

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has been unable to obtain temporary cessation in either East or West Pakistan so that Canadians can be flown out of the danger areas.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday he has made a personal appeal to India to arrange a ceasefire so that some 270 refugees can be evacuated from Karachi. Immediate action is in West Pakistan by a Canadian Forces plane.

The plane is waiting at Tehran, Iran.

Another armed forces plane is at Bangkok, Thailand, after making two unsuccessful attempts to land at Dacca in East Pakistan to evacuate 40 Canadians and other nationals.

Little Dunkerque Attempted

CALCUTTA (AP) A "little Dunkerque" operation is under way in East Pakistan today.

Thousands of Pakistani troops, threatened with encirclement by Indian soldiers, are trying to reach safety in an armada of sampans, launches and river steamers, the commander of India's eastern front reported today.

Indian air force jets bombed and strafed the Pakistanis as they fled, including more than 100 sorties during the day, said Lt.-Gen. Jagjit Singh Aurora.

The Indians now have complete mastery of the skies over East Pakistan. The last enemy fighter planes in East Pakistan was shot down, claimed Aurora.

"The air force had a field day," the general said a press briefing.

Aurora said his forces, making swift advances across country, were isolating the Pakistani defenders who now were attempting to get back for a last stand around the provincial capital of Dacca and the port of Chittagong.

At Daudkandi on the River Meghna, Indian tanks hit a 946 river steamer loaded with some 500 Pakistani troops, Aurora said.

Then the planes went in and set it on fire.

Other Pakistani troops withdrawing southward from Jessore were commandeering ships and rivercraft in a bid to escape along a maze of waterways to the Bay of Bengal and from there to Chittagong, said Aurora. Many have their families with them.

"Only the River Meghna lies between our troops and Dacca, the capital of Bengali Desh, which is only 40 kilometres (25 miles) away," reported an official communique.

Eight Pakistani battalions—some seven thousand men—meanwhile were trying to get across the broad Padma River from the west after fighting a losing six-day battle with Indian forces.

NDP Fights Expensive Furnishings

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party will force recorded Commons votes tonight to protest government expenditures on expensive new furnishings, including $75,000 for tropical plants, in the finance department.

"We are protesting extravagance on such exotic furnishings at a time of high unemployment," Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, said today in an interview.

Price Index Climbs

OTTAWA (CP) — The chill winds of November brought higher prices for winter clothing, housing and hockey sticks, Statistics Canada reported today.

The consumer price index rose to 132.4 last month from 134.9 in October, meaning that goods and services which cost $99 in 1961 sold for $33.54. The previous peak for the index was 135.9 in August. . . . .

Although clothing and housing costs were the main components in the November increase, housing and transportation showed the greatest price increases over the 12 months ending with November. Clothing costs showed the lowest increase over the 12 months.

The food index remained steady at 133.0. It had fallen in September and October because of the fall harvest reaching the marketplace.

In percentage terms, prices in general rose four-tenths of one per cent in November and 3.9 per cent over the 12 months ending with November.

The Economic Council of Canada has said price increases should average no more than two per cent a year if reasonable price stability is to be attained.

The 12-month percentage increases for components of the price index were: Food 4.3; housing 4.7; clothing 2.9; transportation 4.1; health and personal care 2.1; recreation and reading 3.3; tobacco and alcohol 2.8.

Catholic Member of Ulster Militia Shot Down in Front of Children

BELFAST (CP) — A Roman Catholic member of Northern Ireland's part-time defence regiment was murdered in front of his five children Wednesday night in what police described as an "execution" by the Irish Republican Army.

Sean Russell, 32, was watching television with his children when several gunmen burst into his home, asked his name and then shot him, police said.

One officer said "this killing has all the hallmarks of an IRA execution."

Police said one gunman walked up to Russell and asked: "Are you Sean?"

"Yes," said the startled militiaman.

Two shots rang out. Russell fell dead with a bullet in the head. His daughter Geraldine, 18, collapsed crying with a leg wound.

CBC Broadcaster Addresses AOTS

STIRLING (Special) — "Serve to give service to your neighbor" was the message given to members of the St. Paul's United Church AOTS club last night by Fred Bonisteel, host of the CBC's Man Alive program. Mr. Bonisteel was introduced at the annual AOTS father and son Christmas banquet by Jack Bush, member of the club.

Mr. Bonisteel knew many of the members of the club as he had attended Stirling High School for two years. After high school Mr. Bonisteel worked as an announcer at CJBQ radio and then went on to radio work in St. Catharines. Under the banner, the United Church, the Anglican Church, and the Roman Catholic Church, he worked with radio and TV religious programming in Vancouver.

In 1967 Mr. Bonisteel became host of the CBC's Man Alive program. He moved to Toronto when he started with the CBC and in May of this year he moved back into his home area, near Glen Miller.

Mr. Bonisteel began his work in religious broadcasting after he had become interested in a youth group to be started in his St. Catharines church. He moved to Vancouver and started his radio-TV broadcasting.

Even though Man Alive has received high ratings and has been placed in the Monday night prime time spot, Canadians do not watch public affairs shows" he said. The church and the society need to face up to the problems they see and have confidence in the media, Mr. Bonisteel said. He said that people feel helpless in seeing bad news, but that there is no separation between bad and good news.

In speaking about church attendance, Mr. Bonisteel said that membership has gone down consistently in the last 10 years. He felt the changes in the church were too slow and not big enough to reverse the number of clerics who are leaving the church and how the churches are becoming multi-racial.

He said the church has hit some pretty rocky times and that it is the men's clubs, such as the AOTS that are suffering. "We are into a breakdown in the community, and a communication breakdown in the church," he stressed.

Mr. Bonisteel spoke of his filming excursion to Belfast where he spoke with a Catholic and a Protestant family separately for five days and later how he brought them together. They found they had problems and concerns in common.

Mr. Bonisteel said there was a need for joint action in any community. He said that fellowship plays a large part in an AOTS group.

But he stressed that "if fellowship was the only reason for your existence, your club will fail". He said that a club in a church, such as the AOTS, needs to serve the community. "Serve to give service to your neighbor," he said.

In order that the club may serve the community, it needs to be aware, to care, and have the courage to stand up and express its concern.

"I have little hope for a church living in the 1971's, trying to relive the 1950s over again," he said.

Mr. Bonisteel said an individual can't help that much in changing things, but a group effort.

The float entered in last Saturday's Santa Claus parade by Holy Rosary was inadvertantly omitted from The Intelligencer's list of school floats.

Theme of Holy Rosary pupils' float was Christmas in Mexico and the other school floats, it was entirely the product of the children's imagination and construction skill.

The Intelligencer regrets the oversight.

Trenton to Get Service Centre

TRENTON (Staff) — A major oil company is discussing with council here its plans to build a $250,000 service centre and car wash at a prominent east side location.

The service centre will employ at least 10 people when it opens in the spring of 1972. Formal announcement of the project is expected within the next two weeks.

Plan Nearly Ready

PICTON (Staff) — Picton reeve Albert Piroth, town council's representative to the Prince Edward County planning board, said Monday that he hopes the official plan will be put out within the next three or four months."

He referred to it as "rather a lengthy document" and said he would like councillors to examine it in caucus after the new year.

A representative of the department of municipal affairs, E. A. Gomme, addressed the November meeting of planning board members and some of them that he felt progress has been made. He expressed satisfaction with what has been accomplished but warned that he was not suggesting his department would approve the draft to be presented by the county. Mr. Gomme cautioned planning board members not to become alarmed if some recommendations were made following their "shoulders and tears."

He advised that as soon as the draft plan is revised by consultation between the planning board and consultants, to a point where it appeared reasonably acceptable, it should receive wider publication.

Mr. Gomme said this should be arranged through public meetings in a number of centres with the consultants present and with referral to the individual municipal councils.

Amendments might prove necessary based on the reaction received and the plan could be presented to county council for approval before submission to the minister.

Mr. Gomme stressed the danger of uncontrolled development without "land use" bylaws in the separate municipalities.

He confirmed to board members that they were aware of any intention of forced plan and says area that does not implement its own plan.

Over-all planning in a regional context is largely determining his department's view of the type of development that should take place in the area.

Mr. Gomme emphasized that the planning board should ensure that the basic objects of the plan are those which the board agrees are reasonable and attainable since it would be pointless to prepare (if not impossible) to obtain permission for major objects counter to such objects at a later date.

The speaker advised that in terms of the Planning Act, the board is not required to incorporate body which prepares the official plan into its general for it by the designated municipality (county council), but may make recommendations, records, and makes its own distributions.

He noted that in many cases questions of fact, sometimes reasons these functions are handled by county council staff subject to approved by the board.

Safety Clinic Friday

Because of the large amount of controversy on the safety of snow machines, safety clinics are being held in the city to better acquaint the users.

Ro-In Speed and Custom, with some sponsorship from Molson Breweries Limited, and the Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association will be holding a safety clinic in the Sun Valley Motor Hotel Friday night.

"Because the sport is so new, no one has all the answers to the problems connected with it," said Dave Molson of the speed and custom shop. "We are holding the show in the Sun Valley Hotel tomorrow night so that all the family can come and feel free to ask questions of the representatives of the trade, the Ontario Provincial Police, Belleville City Police and representatives of insurance companies will address the audience, outlining changes that are occurring in the sport this winter.

"A key area of interest will be the substantial raise in insurance premiums for the snowmobiler," said Mr. Molson.

Over the past year, rates for insurance have increased from $30 a year to $45 a year. "These rates will likely be more likely become even more excessive next year," said Mr. Roper.

Both police departments will be taking part in the clinic in legislation governing the use of the machine and Molsons will be showing safety and tune-up films.

There is no admission and the whole family is invited to attend the meeting which will start at 6 p.m. tomorrow in the Sun Valley Hotel.

MPP Issues Warning

AMELIASBURG (Special) — James Taylor, MPP for warned county and township officials to watch the "professionals" who are not familiar with the rural areas they plan for. The successor at Queen's Park to the riding's veteran Conservative representative, Norris Whitney, was the guest speaker at the township annual appreciation dinner attended by 60 here on the weekend.

Mr. Taylor advised careful study of official plans prepared for them to approve and implement. Look for "rubber stamp" proposals that have been devised for other communities that appear to fit your needs, he suggested, in stressing the importance of planning from a practical viewpoint with particular consideration for the people of the area coming under the planning process.

In attendance was County Warden and Mrs. Allen Anderson of Bloomfield.

Snowmobile Complaints Registered

STIRLING (Special) — People in Stirling have no recourse to a law enforcement officer travelling the streets or crossing their property except to telephone the nearest police.

This was the reply Monday night to a query from Frank Brockema, bylaw officer, who has had numerous complaints from residents. Reeve Robert Fodervaro said he has had the same problem.

There is no legislation to prevent the machines from travelling on the streets, and people are investigating on private property is a difficult matter. The reeve said about the only law that would really do any good would be to ban the machines from the village, and he would hate to see that happen.

It was said that he had attended a recent meeting of the local snowmobile club, and these members appear to know the rules of safety and have cautioned users.

"But like anything else, there are those who don't regard those rules, and they are the few who cause the trouble," he said.

Councillors agreed that if snowmobilers would come into town and go straight home, people would not really be bothered by them. They urged residents to be patient until "first-rush" is over and then things will more or less return to normal.

Tenders Awarded

PICTON (Staff) — Tenders unopened by the public works committee until Monday's monthly session of town council represented "more work on council than is necessary," according to councillor Ross Crookwright.

Councillor Crookwright added that tenders for reconstruction of Hill Street, fuel oil, tree removal and construction of the Bridge Street sanitary sewer could have been discussed by the public works committee and recommendations prepared prior to the council meeting.

It's second the public works committee is putting more work on council than is necessary," he observed.

Councillors spent more than an hour reviewing tenders and discussing bids on Monday night.

Hepburn Brothers Ltd., Picton, were awarded the tender for 10,000 gallons of furnace oil with a low bid of 17.95 cents per gallon. Two other tenders were submitted.

A, tender for tree removal services was received by Milton Bowerman RR 3, Picton, pending fulfillment of tender forms. The tender bid was stated at $5.35.

A contract for reconstruction of Hill Street was awarded to the H. J. McFarland Construction Company with a low bid of $78,200, pending final confirmation by the town's engineering firm.

Tatham Construction Company Ltd., Rossmore, was awarded the tender for construction of the Bridge Street sanitary sewer subject to a detailed study by consulting engineers. The company's low bid for the construction job was $39,475.68. Six other companies tendered for the contract.

Picton Council Seeks To Dispense with Vote

PICTON (Staff) — Town councillors have agreed to seek an order from the Ontario Municipal Board to dispense with an electoral vote required by legislation for renovations totalling $76,000 to the former Mary Street school to provide police offices.

A letter received by council from the OMB last month states that if a vote has not been held, an order to dispense with it is required and council must forward a resolution requesting it.

Picton deputy - reeve James Bird reminded councillors that once again they were faced "with another prospect of delay on one of our projects."

He observed that an electoral vote would cost from $2,000 to $3,000, and said that with all the publicity which earlier surrounded the renovation plans, an order to dispense with the vote seemed the most practical course.

William Lane, chairman of the planning and development committee, noted that "the heat is off" concerning a deadline for use of the cells at the former county jail. He supported the need for an order to dispense with the vote, however, to prepare for the proposed renovations to the old school.

Picton reeve Albert Piroth agreed that the urgency for a police lockup might not be as pressing as it was earlier this year, but added that if the registry office is relocated at the former jail, continued use of the cells will become a dubious matter.

He remarked that Picton is one of the few communities without its own municipal offices and reminded councillors that the present police office does not meet with the approval of an inspector from the Ontario Police Commission.

Reeve Piroth said other services in Picton also should be considered in planning. He stressed the need to expedite the renovation project in order to become eligible for much government assistance as possible.

Tree Lights Disappear

FRANKFORD (Staff) — Elmer Coon of 40 King Street, had been enjoying the brightly lit-Christmas tree at the front of his house since setting up the lights four days ago.

Last night, however, he noticed something strange about the tree. When he investigated he found lights from two strings had been systematically stolen, one by one.

County Council Starts Meeting

Hastings county council this morning convened for its final session of the year, the two-day meeting being scheduled to hear committee reports and consider a number of out - of - county resolutions.

Desks Ransacked

Three desks were ransacked. Approximately $25 was reported stolen, plus a petty cash box. The break-in occurred some time between 5:30 and 8:05 p.m. Tuesday.

One of the resolutions is from the county of Victoria asking the minister of the department of Lands and Forests to review the provincial camp sites rates at provincial parks.

Another is from Leeds and Grenville asking that the Federal and Provincial Departments of Food and Drugs to prevent the legalizing of the sale of soft drugs in Canada.

The session will also see appointment of three members to the seven - member Hastings county land division committee. Three committee members, Vincent Farrell, Hungerford; Blair Bronson, Bancroft, and Donald Rodgers, Stirling, are retiring this year and council will consider either replacing or reappointing these members.

Gas Substations Concern Jeffrey

Natural gas pressure regulating stations in Belleville must meet the requirements of the Ontario Department of Labor but that doesn't mean Alderman Jeffrey is happy about either their appearance or safety.

The alderman enquired about the regulating stations some weeks ago asking whether the exposed pipes met all safety requirements. The stations asked about were at College and Sidney; Bridge and Sidney; Palmer Road and Bridge Street and at the Haig sideroad.

This week Council received a reply from the department of labor stating the installations met the requirements of the Energy Act.

"I am still not happy, but apparently they do meet requirements," Alderman Jeffrey said.

The alderman felt that for safety reasons and for appearance sake the stations should be below grade.

Mayor J. Russell Scott noted that placement of the stations underground was not required by the city at the time they were constructed.

This, however, could be made a requirement for the future, he said.

Planning Board

Quinte Planning Board has approved expenditure of $107 to join the Community Planning Association of Canada for 1972.

This is the first year that the board has had a chance to join, since their formation in the early part of 1971. The now-dissolved Belleville and Suburban Planning Board held membership in the organization, which provides material on planning trends across the country.

The $107 will allow all members of the board to receive material.

Raise Approved

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's three police commissioners were granted a $300-a-year salary increase by town council Monday night.

The commissioners, Mayor Margaret Ackerman, Judge Wilfred Lane and Jesse Mason will now receive $500 annually.

"The time has come to see what we can do for the people we are serving instead of going for the maximum," he observed.

The police commissioners' request for the $200 raise was contained in the report of the finance and administration committee and the motion for the proposed salary increase had been seconded by Mayor Margaret Ackerman who sits on the commission.

Mr. Piroth pointed out that Mayor Ackerman was voting an increase in her own salary and suggested this was "surely not deliberate."

A resolution forwarded by police commissioners Margaret Ackerman, Judge Wilfred Lane and Jesse Mason termed the $300 annual salary now received "an insult."

Acting mayor Piroth added that he considered it an insult when the $300 salary was suggested as an insult.

He said he would be interested in learning more and how often members of the police commission meet and if a $500 stipend should be awarded.

Mr. Piroth predicted a marked increase in the mill rate if the town should start to pay out salaries on the basis of what each employee may deem he is worth, since each is likely to opt for a raise.

Man Faces Multiple Charges

A 25-year-old Belleville youth arrested and charged with possession of approximately $200 in stolen loni - play records Tuesday will face further and more serious charges.

Stephen Dunning, 263½ Fosbrooke Avenue, had been charged with robbery with violence. He was charged with robbing Bud St. Louis, 51 Orchard Drive, of an undisclosed amount of money.

He also faces charges of possession of a sawed-off shotgun, a second charge of possession of stolen goods in the same incident reported missing from Griffin's Sport and Gun Shop Monday. A spokesman for the store reported four hunting rifles stolen during a weekend break-in. The shotgun was not discovered missing until Tuesday.

More on P M's Visit

Whatever Prime Minister Trudeau plans to tell Parliament on the subject of his meeting with President Nixon the tone of his observations at a Washington news conference after the talks was certainly jubilant.

Mr. Nixon, he indicated, had made the "fantastically new statement" that the United States respects Canada's political and economic identity."

Also from Mr. Nixon, as the Prime Minister understood him: "We don't want to gobble you up." And this: "We don't necessarily feel that there has to be a surplus with Canada."

All that and more. Such tangibles for instance as the hope expressed by Mr. Trudeau that the U.S. will remove its 10 per cent surcharge on imports after the December 17 meeting in Washington of the so-called Group of Ten nations.

Best of all though may be such intangibles as the new warmth in Canadian-U.S. relations which may be expected to stem from this meeting. It seems to us that for too long Canada and the United States have been slipping imperceptibly apart through a failure of communications. Each has been taking the other too much for granted, because of our very proximity, like friends who see too much of each other. Moreover it takes more than a spark to restore interest, to rejuvenate the partnership. The Trudeau-Nixon meeting has done just that.

Mr. Trudeau in fact has discovered that the United States honestly and truly desires continuing friendship with its northern neighbor, and is more than a little incredulous at the notion that it has any designs on our sovereignty. Shades of the mysterious 'Henry Gablinger,' supposedly a Nixon advisor who recently and allegedly spoke of United States claims on Canada. An item so woman assured us she had heard a man make this claim on a television program; be that as it may 'Mr. Gablinger' and his ideas on taking over Canada and its resources by force remain very shadowy indeed.

Our parliamentary Opposition of course see things differently. Opposition leader Robert Stanfield makes a valid point when he says that, without doubting President Nixon's sincerity, his words must be judged on the basis of 'specifics.' This is a realistic view, and it sees Canadian-U.S. relations improving in proportion to such benefits as removal of the surcharge and so on. NDP leader Lewis on the other hand shows a customarily abrasive edge when he views Mr. Trudeau's expressions of regard for the President's attitude with cynicism — reminding him of 'a little boy' coming home with good news. But then this is the same reaction from Mr. Lewis as any credibility is wearing a little thin. In fact Mr. Trudeau seems to have done all right in Washington.

Inscrutable Chinese

It could be because Australia is only incidental to the general Communist objective of subverting the free democratic world, that recognition by Canada for example, and admittance to the United Nations are much more desirable plums in this context. With bases in Ottawa and New York the Chinese are now well placed to monitor the political pulse of this continent, to indulge in espionage and encourage subversive groups like the Maoists and countless other front organizations.

A Canberra report says China has broken off negotiations to establish diplomatic ties with Australia because of what Prime Minister William McMahon had to say about this development: "We thought we were on the way to some sort of success. But the Chinese act in their inscrutable way and suddenly they cut off without rhyme or reason and we do not know when they are likely to resume."

Meanwhile, in London, the Chinese legation there is readying an attempt by decadent fashion types to brighten up Chinese wearing apparel. They want to get them out of those dull Mao uniforms and into knit pantsuit outfits. The 'new look' design suggestions from the Design and Development Centre in Leicester, copying photographs of wall posters in Shanghai.

Slogans include Joy through Work and Joy to the Workers and they look pretty snazzy. However, Peking's diplomatic representatives in London think otherwise; they said they thought the usage was trivialization of Chairman Mao's thoughts." So it is back to the old wall poster and Dullsville Chinese-style.

Loses Argument...Now Job May Be on the Line

Citizenship Judge's Queries About U.K. 'Aliens' Backfires

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — A prolonged and fascinating clash of wills and administrative opinions within the Secretary of State Department over a key section of the Citizenship Act has been resolved.

On one side there has been former Liberal MP O. J. "Ossie" Cipkin who presides over a citizenship court with jurisdiction from Perry Sound to Sault Ste. Marie in Northern Ontario. On the other, the Citizenship Branch of the State Department.

"Mr. Godin," as the department refers to its judge, has been investigating, or at least questioning the department's interpretation of the Citizenship Act in its application to British subjects.

Mr. Godin, reveals the department in a document submitted to the House of Commons, "has urged that certain sections of the Act give preferential treatment to British subjects" over other "aliens".

And he has made five or more trips from Sudbury to Ottawa, to discuss the department, to debate the issue with State Secretary Pelletier's senior officials.

The department, standing by the Citizenship Act, confirmed that its courts have no jurisdiction in the application of British subjects unless Mr. Pelletier refers specific cases to them.

The law, says the State Secretary, citing the Act, "does permit British subjects to make application for citizenship directly to the department instead of through the court."

Which means, save in exceptional circumstances, Britons in Mr. Godin's far flung section of Northern Ontario may bypass his court and go directly to the State Secretary's Citizenship Branch to bestow a Canadian.

While this may or may not be "preferential treatment" as Mr. Godin views it, that is the way Mr. Pelletier sees it.

"The Act," he adds without qualification in his report to the Commons, "is being administered according to its provisions."

And this has been the way it has been all along, except that the clash of opinion between Mr. Godin and Mr. Pelletier, confirmed within the court of the department, has forced the attention of Parliament.

But now, no longer.

A third party entered the argument by bringing it to public resolution in Parliament.

Robert Coates, a Maritime Conservative MP, productive of what he calls "The British Treatment" in Canada, put to Mr. Pelletier a series of seven searching questions about Mr. Godin.

Mr. Coates, a 16-year MP, intended he is a "researcher," sensitive to "any impairment of the image of the Crown or evasion of the rights of the Queen's subjects."

The suggestion that Britons are like any other "aliens" to Mr. Coates is the same sort of affront as removing the Queen's portrait from currency and stamps, the discarding of "Dominion" from federal vocabulary and what he sees as the "continued downgrading" by the government of "the British heritage".

The main thrust of the Coates' questions was to establish that the citizenship legislation as passed by Parliament — and not the interpretation of it by a court — was and remains the law.

Among other points made through Mr. Coates' questions and Mr. Pelletier's answers:

Of the "14 or 15" citizenship judges, Mr. Godin is the only "challenged" the application of the Act.

But while challenging it, Mr. Godin "as far as it is possible to determine" has not contravened it.

Mr. Godin has been officially informed in a number of "conversations" and "briefings" with the State Secretary's Department in Ottawa that the law was what the Act said it was, and not what some court might like it to be.

Mr. Cipkin for seven years, Mr. Godin, a year after his defeat in 1965. Was appointed to the citizenship court at a starting annual $14,000 plus expenses.

The salary since has risen to between $16,000 and $18,000, the latest increase effective March 31 running $1,143 for the year with five trips made to Ottawa at a cost of $968.81.

His staff, numbering five, includes a payroll reportedly between $29,516 and $33,962.

His term of seven years expires March 4, 1973.

What purposes has the service served?

Well, as Mr. Coates sees it, questions in Parliament about poor public service serve to alert him that "the House of Commons is watching".

And that "only Parliament makes and is the law".

What now?

Questions as to how Mr. Godin's term his annual $16,000 to $18,200 plus expenses . . . how many days a week and weeks a year does the court sit . . . hearing what number of cases? . . . for starters.

Snowmobiling Boom: Its Merits and Demerits

TRAVEL IN ONTARIO

Snowmobiling is no longer a craze but a way of life in Ontario where in just six years its popularity has grown 20 fold — from about 5,000 vehicle owners in March 1965 to 100,661 last winter.

Moreover, in a study just completed by the Travel Research Branch of the Department of Tourism and Information covering the 1969-70 season it was indicated that an average of 3.4 persons per family included in the pastime, bringing to roughly 340,000 the number of devotees during that period.

Snowmobiling is big business now and the provincial economy is feeling its explosive impact, with even greater gains predicted for this upcoming season.

On the average, the Ontario snowmobiler pays about $1,200 for his vehicle and other equipment. Collectively they spend $12.7 millions on vehicle operation, which includes licenses, gas, oil, repairs and storage. They also spend $200,000 on park and club entrance fees, $500,000 for commercial accommodation, $1,100,000 for meals on snowmobile safaris, and $800,000 on other sundry expenses, such as suitable outdoor attire.

It all fits into the pattern of the Department's current aim to make the province a four-season tourist destination. Since the advent of snowmobiling many Ontario resort operators keep their establishments open all winter which, in turn, has created more needed winter jobs in rural areas.

The 97-page booklet which, on request, can be purchased for $3 per copy from the Queen's Printer at 18S Bloor St. E., or at the Ontario Government Book Store, 880 Bay St., Toronto delves deeply into the Ontario snowmobiling craze.

For example, of all respondents in the survey, 78.3 per cent indicated snowmobiling for pleasure was their main reason for buying a snow vehicle. About 13.2 per cent of respondents want them for hunting, ice fishing, transportation to ski areas, snowmobile racing, and other recreational activities.

Low on the snowmobile totem pole were those who buy vehicles for non-recreational purposes, such as transportation in to formidable areas — just 6.9 per cent.

Executive business types own about 11 per cent of Ontario snow vehicles. 9 per cent are owned by professional people. And, surprisingly, only 4 per cent of farmers in this province own a snowmobile.

Reflected in the study, too, are the detriments of snowmobiling. In the 1970-71 season, some 40 persons in Ontario were killed or injured in 39 snowmobile mishaps.

Noise is another problem. So is destruction of property. And, what is worrying Lands and Forests officials at the moment, is the snowmobile's widespread disturbance on wildlife — chasing down deer until they drop dead from exhaustion.

Big Power Duplicity Over India-Pakistan Conflict

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Seldom has the United Nations witnessed such blatant examples of speaking with a forked tongue as in the current Security Council's debate on the India-Pakistan situation.

In fact much is happening here that would encourage the cynic who downgrades the UN. It shows up the fact that the weakness of the United Nations is not so much the world organization itself but the members that make it up.

Cases of the forked tongues are:

The Soviet Union has blocked any attempt by anyone to get the UN behind a call for withdrawal of Indian troops from Pakistan. Nothing could be more contrary to the basic Soviet view in another area—that Israel must withdraw from captured Arab land before any progress can be made toward peace. The Soviet Union has angered the Arab countries with its complete backing of the Indian incursions.

The People's Republic of China says it is unalterably opposed to the division of countries. But it wants Pakistan, a state created by the UN, dismembered and handed back to the Pakistanis.

China is standing on firm ground as far as most small and developing countries are concerned, however. For many of them the greatest threat is the ever-present threat. Few countries supported the Bolshevik when they wanted to secede from Nigeria not long ago.

The United States has demanded in the strongest terms the withdrawal of Indian troops as part of a ceasefire package. In 1967 during the Middle East war it was calling for ceasefire first and talk of withdrawal second.

There is another curious thing about the United States. It was on its initiative that the council meeting on the Indo-Pakistan situation was called and such countries as Britain and France, seeing little hope of achieving a solution, went along reluctantly.

When the meeting was called there was virtually no hope of agreement on anything and extreme doubt that India would heed a ceasefire call from any source.

Why then would a country where the greatest criticism of the UN has been heard in recent months call a meeting that has little hope of success?

Especially why call a meeting when you know you are putting the very prestige of the world organization as a peacekeeping institution in international affairs on the line?

There are several possible explanations. One is the fact that the U.S. hopes to turn the force of world opinion against the Soviet Union and India, not necessarily through a vote in the council but in the private deliberations during which the Soviets already have used the veto; and that President Nixon is attempting to show the people at home that he is doing something about the dispute.

Meanwhile the U.S. has been able to sit back avoiding the onus of being cast in the role of the villain.

The Joys and Sorrows Of Membership of Legislature

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — The 35 freshman members of this legislature have been quick to learn and get sworn in by chief clerk Roderick Lewis.

Although this is a simple ceremony, to them it is a great occasion. It is the crest of their lives to date.

They have won an election, for many the first. In their home communities they have been receiving congratulations and they are legal men.

It is an event to be savored. And for some particularly so. Because there will be these to whom it will be a pinnacle they will never again be quite so on top.

And for all it is an occasion to be milked for all the satisfaction it can crop. For all then will be swallowing quite a bit of spit for a while.

A new member faces a disillusioning time when he first occupies his chair in the legislature. A time which is worse for some than others.

The expectations of the new men would vary in prospective glory, but none could anticipate the lowliness of the reality.

If he is a government supporter, he finds the lake of all, in that he finds there is practically nothing he can do. Except listen.

The party will have a first caucus, and then others irregularly after that. And he will find he is expected to listen.

He will take his seat in the main chamber and find himself surrounded by other government supporters. And all of them, except for the ministers, have nothing much to do but listen.

Opposition members have it better.

Their caucuses are smaller and they can speak up. And slowly they get a chance to do more in the House, particularly in the question period.

Then when the committees of the legislature start, and this probably won't be much before mid-winter at the earliest, they do get a chance to actually participate in their free and easy deliberations.

But it really is a lowering experience for all.

Not as bad as it used to be, however.

Back in 1945 when the late Nelson Roberts was first elected he was in to see the then clerk, Major Alec Lewis, within a couple of days.

Where was his office, he asked Major Lewis. It was explained that members didn't have offices. Then "where is" — only one big room for PC members. And nothing for the opposition.

"What about when the prime minister wants to get me?" Mr. Roberts asked.

"Oh I imagine he will phone you down-town," Mr. Lewis replied, dourly.

Now members all have offices. They can take care of riding business and dictate to their secretaries.

But not many will get calls from the prime minister. Not many ever do.

Enforcing Law Needs Firmness

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Lunching alone in a Front St. restaurant recently, I overheard four teenagers at an adjoining table discussing the sentencing of petty crime. These young people felt a great deal of the trouble stems from those who neither tear nor respect the police. They were concerned, too, that a few troublemakers were allowed to give all young people a public "black eye" by irresponsible behavior and to shield themselves with the anonymity of "youth"!

And they are right . . . most teens are law - abiding, but many fail to view all youth with a jaundiced eye, classing them in the same category with the social misfits.

Often courts and law-officers are berated in general for the youth of the offenders. Many prefer to teach respect rather than fear of law. This is ideal, but crime is increasing so apparently the soft approach is not the answer. Justice of course need not be brutal, but it must be swift and sure.

When young people themselves have begun to lose respect for the police and to resent "easy" law enforcement, when they actively solicit their objection in order to avoid the stigma attached to being a "square," perhaps it is time to not only "walk softly" but also to "carry a big stick!"

NATO Meet Opens

BRUSSELS (CP) — The foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization opened their annual winter meeting today with the proposed conference with the Soviets on security and co-operation in Europe at the top of their agenda.

The East-West parley Moscow wants seems unlikely before 1973. The Western powers have made plain they would not start to prepare for a meeting until the new Berlin agreements are firmly nailed down, but Moscow refuses to sign the supplementary Berlin agreements East and West Germany are now working out until West Germany ratifies its 1970 non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union.

The West German parliament is unlikely to complete this before next summer. If preparations for the security conference don't start until then, the conference probably could not begin until the next year.

Authoritative sources said the NATO ministers, in their usual conference communique Friday, would strike an optimistic note on the situation in Germany and the idea of a conference with the Russians. But on the subject of mutual reduction of armed forces in Europe, they have less ground for optimism.

There still has been no Soviet invitation to exploratory talks two months after NATO appointed former secretary-general Manlio Brosio of Italy to represent it. The communique is expected to remind Moscow that the alliance is still interested in mutual, balanced force reductions and is ready to start talking.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald of Canada said Wednesday he is disappointed that Brosio has not yet been admitted to the Soviet Union.

The minister talked to reporters after a meeting of the NATO defence planning committee at which he outlined Canada's white paper on defence.

"We are disappointed that the Soviet Union is not accepting Signor Brosio," Macdonald said. "On his mission we could hope to get the basis for a mutual balanced reduction of forces."

"It seems now that mutual balanced reduction of forces is the best way of getting us into a European security conference," he added.

All Three Quebec Opposition Parties Want Law on Language Choice Changed

QUEBEC (CP) — All three opposition parties in the Quebec national assembly Wednesday called for repeal of or changes in a 1969 law guaranteeing Quebec parents a choice of English or French as the language of school instruction for their children.

They took the stand in an education committee discussion of Bill 28, the government's proposal to reduce the 33 Roman Catholic and Protestant, French and English school boards on Montreal Island to 11 "neutral" unified boards.

Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre said he was determined to have the bill, which passed second reading Tuesday, become law before Christmas.

Jean-Noel Tremblay of the Unite-Quebec party said that before Bill 28 is applied, perhaps in 1975, the government should prepare legislation making French a working language in the province and giving it priority status.

He said that existing legislation on the language of school instruction should be repealed.

That legislation, known as Bill 63, was passed two years ago by the Union Nationale government after a heated language and education dispute in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard.

The Union Nationale changed its name to Unite-Quebec last October.

The Parti Quebecois, meanwhile, held a news conference Wednesday to announce it would introduce an amendment to Bill 28 removing the right of Montreal Island parents to have their freedom to choose their children's language of instruction.

Under its amendment, children already studying in English and children whose maternal language is English would be free to attend English-language schools if their parents wished. But future immigrant children would have to attend French schools.

Party Leader Rene Leveseque told reporters the amendment would encourage the integration of immigrants into the French Canadian community while respecting the "acquired rights" of English Quebecers.

Creditiste spokesman Yves Brochu said his party supports the stand of the Parti Quebecois. Immigrants should conform to the majority in the choice of language and the law should be changed to recognize this principle.

Mr. Tremblay said that many groups had voiced concern over the language issue in briefs before the education committee.

Opposition parties appeared based their demands on Mr. Saint-Pierre's recent statement that immigrant parents are free choosing English schools if their children over French schools in a ratio of nine to one.

The immigrant trend, combined with the province's declining birth rate, is seen as a long-term threat to the status of the French-speaking majority in Quebec.

173 Ocean Ships in Lakes

Chill Winds of Winter Blow Down Seamen's Necks

DETROIT (Reuter) — The chill winds of winter are breathing down the necks of 173 sea captains and their crews as they try to sail their ocean-going ships out of the Great Lakes before freeze-up.

The number of vessels now in fresh water above Montreal has set an all-time record for the end of the navigation season.

All the skippers are worried because they know that only two freezing days in Montreal will lock them in the lakes until spring.

Docks are crowded in a dozen Great Lakes ports, including Detroit where some salt water ships are riding at anchor in the middle of the Detroit River every day, waiting their turn at the Gentry cranes.

In most ports where loading and unloading are done outside, rain and snow have slowed the job and delayed ship movements.

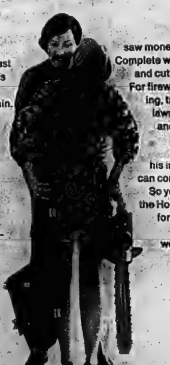
Because of the East Coast dock strike, many of the ships were diverted to the Great Lakes, and because of this, the number of vessels still in the lakes Dec. 1 is double that of most years.

Of the 173 ships in the Great Lakes, 135 were in the Welland canal between Lakes Ontario and Erie or above them, none of them as far north or west as Duluth, Minn.

The theoretical deadline for the closing of the Great Lakes system is Dec. 12—the day on which the St. Lambert lock in the St. Lawrence canal west of Montreal is scheduled to close until spring.

Ice forms in the St. Lawrence canal system far sooner than it does in the Sault Ste. Marie locks which are much further north. Cold water from the Ottawa River flowing into the St. Lawrence accelerates ice formation there.

Sky Limit for Links With Japanese Firms



TORONTO (CP) — The sky is the limit when it comes to the involvement in Canadian business opportunities sought by the giant Mitsui group of Japan.

The giant parent company in Japan wants him to expand Mitsui interests in Canada, which have so far concentrated on export and import trade.

He has been told there is no ceiling on the Japanese venture capital available through him, he said in an interview.

Mackasey Assures Labor Law's Teeth to Remain

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress was at pains Wednesday not to mutt a soft pitch from Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey for strong, if not unqualified, support for proposed changes in federal labor law.

Fresh from their annual deliberations, CLC executives from across the country crowded into a Commons committee room to meet Mr. Mackasey and labor department officials.

Donald MacDonald, president of the 1.7-million-member labor body, urged the minister not to give in to "crude pressures to which you have been subjected by the corporate community" for elimination of the section of the bill dealing with technological changes.

As currently drafted, the section would give unions a limited right to strike in the event of disagreement with management over the adverse effects of technological innovations in their industry.

Mr. Mackasey told the labor leaders that changes to be made in the bill before it is re-introduced in the next session of Parliament will not strike out the principle that unions must be consulted over innovations.

While expressing general approval of the bill, Mr. MacDonald attacked the restrictions the bill would place on picketing in industrial disputes. Only members and officers of a union involved in a dispute would be permitted to picket a work site and secondary picketts at other locations would be prohibited.

Heath and Trudeau Likely To Renew Call for Ceasefire

LONDON (CP) — The Indo-Pakistan war may reach a crucial stage by the time Prime Minister Trudeau and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain discuss the issue at Ottawa, and for that reason authorities here feel their expected renewed call for a ceasefire may have more impact than current pleas.

The view in British quarters is that in fact neither India nor Pakistan really desire a ceasefire at this moment, with India hoping shortly to solidify its hold on East Pakistan, particularly Dacca, while Pakistan expects to increase its share of Kashmir.

By the time the Anglo-Canadian summit takes place Friday, Dec. 17, the situation could be changed.

There is hope that a joint plea for a ceasefire coming from within the Commonwealth may stir a stronger response, especially if both sides feel their lines of communication and supplies have been stretched and their troops exhausted in the battles.

But the Asian conflict may play only a small part in the Trudeau-Heath conversations. The main issue appears to be on the economic front, within the transatlantic sphere.

Heath will want to hear Trudeau's report on his Washington talks with President Richard Nixon before the Anglo-American summit takes place in Bermuda Dec. 20-21.

Trudeau may find there is greater need for strengthening his relations with Heath, not only as a balance against Washington pressures but more so in view of Britain's projected entry into the European Common Market in January, 1972.

Game Delayed

One of Montreal's most important hockey games was delayed 10 minutes the other day. Donald Belanger had to stay and clean up his room. It was another game, like others played after school every fall on streets, in alleyways and deserted school yards across the country. Hobking horns instead of whistles signal stoppages in play but street hockey is as alive as ever. (CP Photo)

Doctors Prescribing Methadone May Be Disciplined

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities are studying disciplinary action against doctors who irresponsibly prescribe the addictive drug methadone, including limits on their prescribing privileges, Health Minister John Munro indicated Wednesday night.

He told reporters he will discuss possible action with provincial health ministers at a meeting here Dec. 16 and 17.

At the same time, he will seek agreement from the provinces for a series of federal initiatives to cope with growing use of heroin.

Mr. Munro said the recent report of a committee of federal government and medical officials had prompted the study of disciplinary action with respect to methadone prescribing.

Methadone is an addictive drug that has been used in the treatment of heroin addicts. The committee report said a small number of doctors were prescribing it irresponsibly.

Alkenbrack Says UIC Pay Slow

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday 8,000 public servants now are working for the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

He was replying in the Commons to Douglas Alkenbrack (PC—Frontenac-Lennox and Addington), who asked for a speed-up in the processing of unemployment insurance claims.

Mr. Alkenbrack said some claims are so slow being processed that unemployed persons have to rely on local welfare payments.

Mr. Mackasey said Mr. Alkenbrack was being unfair to civil servants.

Mr. Alkenbrack said he wasn't. They were doing their best but there was a large number of claims and present efficiency wasn't good enough.

Senators Are Roaring Their Indignation Over Another Insufferable Affront by House

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate, often dismissed in parliamentary procedure as a paper tiger, is roaring its displeasure at what it regards as an another insufferable affront by the House of Commons.

The Senate, 102 members appointed by government, is angry with the 264-member elected Commons over the time it will get to discuss a certain bill.

The bill is a huge one, revising tax structures for most Canadians as a result of studies launched in 1963 and finally introduced into Parliament June 18.

The quarrel?

The Senate often has complained that legislation large and small has been dumped on it—the so-called chamber of sober second thought—at the last minute.

On this issue, with constitutional overtones, it may have to settle for delaying the bill by debate—over its planned Christmas recess—rather than making any substantial changes.

Signs now are that the bill will clear the Commons only by Friday, Dec. 17, and that the Senate will be asked to give the bill only brief attention at the expense of at least some of its Christmas recess.

Senators have threatened to fight a situation which has occurred at previous Christmas breaks and end-of-session drives.

The anger has come from the thin Senate opposition of 19 Conservatives and from among the 64 Liberals—there are 15 vacancies, two independents, one Social Creditor and one independent Liberal.

Senator Sabior Hayden, Toronto Liberal and chairman of the Senate banking committee which conducted its own independent and unsympathetic study of the tax bill, deplored the legislative time table.

Senator Hayden, whose collection of company directorships has been extensive, said: "We should not permit them (the House of Commons) to dictate to us."

One question is whether the Senate has any constitutional right to alter a bill that deals with taxes.

Under the British North America Act, it cannot introduce a money bill or make amendments increasing taxation or changing the impact of taxation.

But constitutional experts disagree on whether the Senate can amend a tax bill that does not increase tax charges or decrease the numbers of citizens on whom the tax falls.

Wednesday night, the tax-change bill finally passed one phase of Commons debate, the cussion in committee of the whole.

It did so when the Liberal majority decided after 32 days of debate to impose a new strait-lined form of closure on the hotly-contested 707 pages of tax-change regulations, plus about 140 amendments.

The government plans to use the same rule, dubbed a guillotine, Dec. 17, to end Commons debate on the third and final reading of the bill.

When that happens, the bill has to go to the Senate for study. Once the Senate passes it, there is royal assent and it becomes law. The legislation is based on taking effect Jan. 1.

The Senate apparently feels that once again it is being used as a perfunctory step in the Commons legislative process—that it should have a decent interval to debate the bill instead of being thrust up against the deadline of the Christmas recess.

Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate, suggested Tuesday that the Senate could deal with the bill in four or five days, completing consideration by Dec. 23 and getting everybody home in good time for Christmas.

Senator Ernest Manning (SC Alberta), a former Alberta premier, said it is ridiculous to suggest the Senate can deal with the bill in less than a few weeks.

Senator Gratton O'Leary (PC —Ontario) said if the Senate did not give the bill the consideration it deserved, it would be belittering the arguments of "every political illiterate in this country who says the Senate should be abolished."

Senator Eugene Forsey (L—Ontario), constitutional expert who has espoused various political parties, said the time has come to take a stand against "Christmas closure."

There is a chance, he said, that the Senate will pass amendments to the tax bill which must be sent back to the Commons for approval.

The House of Commons has accepted such amendments in the past, but always with the proviso that they set no precedent and that it is not relinquishing its claim that the Senate really has no right to add any kind of amendments to a money bill.

Senate Opposition Leader Jacques Flynn (Quebec) said the Conservatives would not oppose a motion to alter normal Senate rules in order to proceed with the bill quickly "unless it comes to us under circumstances that it is really impossible to meet."

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.

Let's say you're East, defending against four hearts, and partner leads a diamond. You cash the A-Q, last what would you play next?

It's not easy to find the right play—even if you see all four hands—but there is little doubt about the right move at this point if you consider the matter thoroughly.

You should play another diamond at trick three!

This may be regarded by some as a shocking play, for it has been dinned into all of us that a defender must never deliberately give declarer a ruff and discard.

But "never" is a long, long time, and any player worth his salt eventually learns that words like never and always don't mean precisely what they say, and that what is really meant by them is almost never and almost always.

Thus, in the present case, it should be evious—from looking at dummy and considering the bidding—that there is no chance of beating the contract unless declarer is saddled with a four-card trump suit.

Acting on this assumption, you should shove your defense accordingly. If you "play safe" and return a spade, a heart or a club, declarer will force out your ace of trumps and easily score the rest of the tricks.

But, if you return a diamond, South cannot make the contract whatever he does. He can ruff in either hand and lead two rounds of trumps—both of which you would refuse to win—but he would then find himself up a tree.

You would be in control of trumps, instead of him, and whatever he played next you would either then or eventually score two trump tricks to put the contract down one.

Tomorrow: The response.

Ottawa Will Allow Provincial Broadcasts

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government is about to reverse its long-held policy against allowing provinces into the broadcasting field.

The newspaper, in an Ottawa dispatch, says Ottawa, "faced with the demands of some provinces, notably Quebec, Ontario and Alberta, that are staking out claims in the field of telecommunications," is proposing a deal that would allow provincial agencies to own and operate stations for broadcasting educational TV under the regulating power of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The dispatch quotes State Secretary Gerard Pelletier as saying:

"I received the mandate from the cabinet to negotiate along these lines and then report to the cabinet." He termed it a "hypothesis" until negotiations are concluded and the federal cabinet has approved the terms.

Wife-kidnapper Fails To Make Another Haul

MONTREAL (CP) — The phantom kidnapper struck again Wednesday.

It was the third time in two days, and for the second time he was laughed off.

The manager of a west-end branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank received an anonymous call Wednesday demanding $50,000 for the safe return of his wife. He laughed at the caller, although he phoned his wife to make sure she was safe.

Meanwhile, $48,000 in ransom money is still missing as the result of a call that wasn't laughed off Tuesday by F. J. Guy, manager of a branch of the Bank of Montreal. In answer to a phone call that his wife was kidnapped and would be killed, he left the money in a briefcase on a subway train.

All the while, Mrs. Guy was in a beauty parlor.

The money apparently wasn't even picked up by the caller, who phoned Mr. Guy a second time with his ransom demand. But by then the bank manager had located his wife.

A similar kidnap ransom hoax was tried on another bank manager earlier Tuesday, police said, but was ignored.

Benn Returned

The remaining successful candidates were incumbent Floyd Marriselle, former councillor Claude McArthur and incumbent Arnold Miller.

Bouchard Breaks Ice, But Pays for It Later

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pierre Bouchard scored his first National Hockey League goal Wednesday night in his 75th game. That leaves him just 48 goals and 710 games behind his illustrious father.

The elated youngster of Butch Bouchard, long-time NHL all-star defenceman with Montreal Canadiens, could recall every second of the momentous occasion.

The goal padded the lead for the Canadiens to 2-0 en route to a 4-3 victory over the troublesome Detroit Red Wings and kept Montreal in a second-place tie with Boston Bruins in the East, one point behind division-leading New York Rangers.

The Rangers were held to a 2-2 standoff by Chicago Black Hawks while Boston Bruins broke out in the third period for a 5-3 win over Los Angeles Kings.

Tonight the Rangers meet the Flyers at Philadelphia and Buffalo Sabres are at home to Chicago.

"I was moving into the Detroit end to check Mickey Redmond," recalled Bouchard later in the dressing room, "when the puck came to me off the boards.

"I had plenty of time to take the shot and though I backhanded it I had quite a lot behind it."

While the score ended Bouchard's career-long drought, it ended a somewhat frustrating year for another Canadien defenceman, all-star J. C. Tremblay.

The skilful Canadiens' blueliner, held scoreless throughout the season, opened the scoring, then notched the winner near the end of the second period after scores by Detroit's Doug Volmar and Frank Mahovlich evened the count at 2-2.

Bouchard was used interchangeably by Montreal last year and probably would have seen even less action this term had not Serge Savard been sidelined with a recurring broken leg that has plagued his career.

Given the opportunity to play, 23-year-old Bouchard has developed into a competent performer. But Wednesday night's goal proved costly, financially.

Tremblay, as pleased with his productive evening—"I hadn't been too worried"—fingered his young team-mate with the feed bill for the Canadiens when they celebrated later in the evening at Bouchard's newly-opened steakhouse.

Ratelle, who also set up the opening score by the third member of the Hot Line, Rod Gilbert, drew rave notices after the game from Chicago players who tabbed his recent performances as the key to the New York line's prolific scoring ventures this year.

"He seems to be getting stronger," said Hawk centre Pit Martin, who had given the Hawks a 2-1 margin moments before Hadfield's goal.

"Time was when you could give him a shove and move him. But not any more."

Another centre, Boston's Phil Esposito, the league's other 30-goal scorer, didn't hit against the Kings but padded his points' lead to 47, one ahead of Ratelle, with three assists.

The Bruins were held in check by the surprisingly aggressive Kings until goals by Wayne Cashman,Dallas Smith and Fred Stanfield during a three-minute spate in the third period sent them into a 5-3 lead.

Boston's Derek Sanderson faced a possible three-game suspension and fines totalling $150 after a third-period confrontation with referee Bryan Lewis.

Sanderson disputed a tripping call in the second period and his profanity earned him a 10-min-ute misconduct. No contest, the high-spirited centre took exception to the additional penalty charged from the penalty box in Lewis's direction.

He was restrained by teammates, but not before Lewis tacked on the game penalty which calls for an automatic $100 fine.

Sanderson said later in the dressing room he expected he'd be dealt with more severely than others in the league because of his past history.

"We seem to be able to turn it on when we need to against the Kings," he observed, noting the Bruins' 3-3-1 won-lost-tied mark against the expansion club.

Leaf coach Johnny McLellan was just as pleased with his club's performance against the rugged North Stars who, while losing their second straight they went down 3-1 to lowly Buffalo Sunday—still maintained their two-point hold over Chicago atop the West Division.

"It was a hell of an effort, probably our best game of the season," said McLellan, "It had to be because we beat the best team in hockey; at least that's what everyone has been telling me."

The Leafs, who skated tenderly early in the game as if recovering from the hard-hitting Minnesotans on physical terms, got in a few beefy hits of their own as the game progressed under the somewhat lenient officiating of referee Bruce Hood.

"The game finally got out of hand late in the third period when Minnesota's rookie defenceman Dennis O'Brien and Leaf winger Garry Monahan engaged in a slugfest.

McLellan's animosity was directed at Hood who allowed several obvious misdemeanors to go unbothered, one of which was a high stick by Star defenceman Ted Harris that shattered winger Paul Henderson's nose in the first period.

"Hood is the most stuff go than I've seen in my life," responded McLellan. "It was ridiculous what they (Minnesota) got away with."

Espo Back on Top

Phil Esposito of Boston regained sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League scoring, collecting three assists in the Bruins' 5-3 victory Wednesday night over Los Angeles Kings.

Esposito now has 20 goals and 27 assists for 47 points.

Minor Hockey Buffs

Proceeds from the official opening of the Dundas St. West Esso Car Wash didn't go down the drain, instead they went to boost minor hockey. Co-owner Roland Belanger presents a cheque to Belleville Minor Hockey Association president Don Gavey. The new enterprise also sponsors the Esso Car Wash peewee minor all-stars. Belanger and partner Jack Ellis realized $201.75 from the official opening, with opening day customers paying 25c a car wash. On hand to witness proceedings are Danny Duffy, manager Norm Harris, Gary McInroy, assistant coach Bob Cocic and coach Gord McInroy. The first peewee all-star performances in an otherwise sloppy game.

90-day Countdown
Skaters Have Hectic Times

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian figure-skating championships are in London, Ont., Jan. 14-16; the Olympic Games are in Sapporo, Japan, Feb. 3-13, and the world championships are in Calgary, March 8-13.

So it's going to be a busy 90 days for Canada's medal hopefuls.

On Sunday she works out from 7:15 to 11:30 a.m. with coach Linda Brasckmann; then it's home for studies in poetry, kinesiology, political science and history, which she hope will lead to a bachelor of arts degree at Simon Fraser University.

After study, she goes for an all-out run for 10 or 15 minutes up and down the slopes of the North Shore. At 5 p.m., she's back home cooking supper for the family. Bedtime is 8 p.m., if not earlier.

On Monday, the 19-year-old is up at 8 a.m. for a hearty breakfast and is on the ice at 8:45. She quits at 9 a.m. and is out to SFU by 9:30 where she takes classes until 3 p.m., without lunch.

At three, she heads back to the rink where it's skating until 6 p.m. and a swift return to cook supper, then homework, then bed.

Wednesday and Thursday follow the Monday pattern. Tuesday and Friday there are no classes, so it's skating from 7:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday evening she takes a ballet class from 8:30 to 10:30; Friday she takes modern jazz and ballet, 6:30 to 8:30.

Friday night, for a couple of hours, there's time for a show with the boy friend.

Saturday is all hers, except for an afternoon workout at SFU, and more housework and some shopping.

The schedule includes 25 hours a week of skating alone.

Four days a week she gets together with Dr. Eric Bannister, head of the department of kinesiology at SFU, football coach Tom Walker and other medical observers for sessions which most adults would find exercitiating.

Under careful supervision, she subjects herself to the maximum in athletic exercise and exertion.

"In technical terms, her body has the maximum capacity to use 47.6 millilitres of oxygen per kilogram of body weight per minute.

"That puts her up there with the very best. The average girl college student would record about 35 on the scale. Karen registers with the top Olympic athletes in comparable sports."

Crown Tarnished

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Pele, sometimes called the King of Soccer, is having his worst season ever, and even his own team seems to be down on him.

The sports newspaper Jornal do Sports reported today that directors of the Santos Club hold Pele directly responsible for the team's failure to make the finals in this year's Brazilian national pro tournament.

The paper said club officials and even some teammates feel Pele takes too long to make passes and that this is why Santos has trouble setting up effective scoring plays.

Hockey's Money War Self-contradictory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First there was the report quoting centre Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League as rejecting an offer of $250,000 for two years' employment with the Miami entry in the World Hockey Association.

Then came a report that the Winnipeg franchise in the WHA would part with $1 million for Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks—not a multi-year contract, of course.

Still later came the story out of Minneapolis that at least four members of the North Stars had been approached by someone attached to the WHA.

"Somebody has been having pipe dreams," retorts Hull.

. . . No offers were made and no agreements were entered into," says Bob Woolf, lawyer for Sanderson, among others.

The WHA hopes to begin operating next October with club franchises in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Alberta, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Miami, Los Angeles, Dayton, Ohio, St. Paul, Minn., and New England.

Woolf claims Sanderson did not receive an offer to reject.

"A man from the WHA, Herb Martin of Miami, phoned me the other day to talk about Derek and mentioned that fig ure ($250,000)," Woolf said.

"I mentioned it to Derek and I guess he mentioned it to some newspaper men and now the whole thing has been blown way out of proportion. But no offers were made and no agreements entered into."

He said Martin and others will phone Sanderson Dec. 18 for talks and "I owe it to all my clients to listen."

Hull, responding to reports that Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg had made the $1-million, five-year offer, said:

"Somebody has been having pipe dreams. I don't know anything about it and I've never been approached."

Hatskin was reported as backing up Hull's claim.

"What I said was that I would give a million dollars to have Hull, but I have not made any direct offer to him or talked to him about any deal."

On the other hand, Goldsworthy, Jude Drouin, Cesare Maniago and Barry Gibbs, all of the North Stars, were reported as saying they have been approached by the WHA.

"If the money is right and if I could get a three-or-four-year contract with the money in escrow, why not?" said Goldsworthy.

He is reported to have said he had been approached by three WHA clubs.

Drouin was reported as saying he and Gabriel Bourque met St. Paul WHA officials three weeks ago and was quoted as saying:

"If that's the money, I'll go.

Maniago said, "No comment."

Is there any fire at all behind all this smoke?

"All I know now is that many of the WHA people are behind start the American Basketball Association," Woolf said.

Hatskin is reported to have said:

"What we all did was make a list of players we would like to have but it wasn't a draft or anything like it. And I won't tell you if Hull was on my list.

"That stuff isn't for publication."

St. Paul Owner Denies Stars' Claim

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Jim Adams, president of the St. Paul franchise of the World Hockey Association, says his club has not contacted any players with Montreal of the National Hockey League.

North Stars Bill Goldsworthy, Cesare Maniago, Jude Drouin and Barry Gibbs were reported to have been approached by the WHA. Drouin and Goldsworthy had reported that they were contacted by the St. Paul franchise.

"I think a lot of National Hockey League players are going to claim they've been approached just to help their own bargaining power with their clubs," Adams said. "If we've approached any North Stars, it's news to me."

The WHA plans to start operations next fall with a 12-team league, including the St. Paul franchise, and franchises in Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg and Hamilton.

Lakers Streak To Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

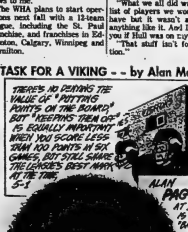
"As we win more games, we become more confident, more work harder and hopefully play better," said Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman.

If Sharman's philosophy is correct, the Lakers have to be supremely confident.

The ramp-aging Lakers tied the second-longest winning streak in National Basketball Association history, bolting off the surprisingly stubborn Houston Rockets 135-130 Wednesday night for their 18th consecutive victory.

The triumph enabled Los Angeles to equal the 18-game winning skein compiled by New York Knicks two seasons ago and put the Lakers within two of the NBA record of 20 set last season by Milwaukee Bucks.

The Lakers can move within one victory of tying the Bucks' mark by beting Golden State tonight at Oakland. The Warriors were the last team to beat Los Angeles, edging the Lakers 100-105 on Oct. 31.



Elsewhere, Boston Celtics whipped Cleveland Cavaliers 116-107, Philadelphia 76'ers downed Cincinnati Royals 115-109 and Baltimore Bullets walloped Portland Trail Blazers 115-97.

The Rockets, whose 6-22 record is the second worst in the NBA, led 105-104 with 7:36 remaining and were not beaten until the Lakers' Jerry West hit six free throws in the final two minutes.

West finished with 33 points, but yielded game-scoring honors to team-mate Gail Goodrich, who poured in 42 points.

John Hardeck's 26 points, 12 in the first quarter, and Jo Jo White's 27 paced Boston's victory and moved the Celtics 2½ games in front of the idle Knicks in the Atlantic Division.

Goal-A-Game No Guarantee

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Scoring at a goal-a-game clip in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series doesn't guarantee top spot in the scoring race.

Don Lever of Niagara Falls Flyers, with 25 goals and 21 assists in 25 games has to share top honors with London Knights' Dennis Ververgaert. Ververgaert has 18 goals and 30 assists.

And Brian McSheffrey of Ottawa 67s, who has 25 goals in 23 games, is locked in a seventh-place tie with London's Reg Thomas, each with 41 points.

Ververgaert collected four assists and one goal this week to pull into the tie with Lever who managed only one goal and one assist.

Randy Osborne of the Knights, who was in third place last week behind Ververgaert, advanced to third with 47 points on 21 goals and 26 assists.

Steve Shutt of Toronto Marlboros, with 24 goals and 22 assists, and Ottawa's Wayne Merrick, with 17 goals and 29 assists, share fourth spot with 46 points each.

Ottawa's Michel Larocque has the best goals-against average — 3.09—followed by Toronto's Kevin Neville, who has a 3.85 average. Both have two shutouts.

Northern Players Honored

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — A seven-ton stainless steel monument to 25 National Hockey League players who call this Northern Ontario mining community their home was unveiled Wednesday.

On hand for the unveiling of the monument, donated by the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., were former Montreal Canadiens general manager Frank Selke Sr. and Letty Reid, curator of the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Several hundred townspeople braved near-zero weather to attend the unveiling of the monument which has bronze plaques attached to its front bearing the names of the 25 players.

Names on the plaques include: Bill Durnan, a goaltender with Montreal Canadiens from 1943 to 1950; Ted Lindsay, left-winger on the Detroit "Production Line" with Sid Abel and Gordie Howe, who played with the Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks from 1944 to 1965; and Floyd Curry, who played with Montreal from 1947 to 1958.

Names of active NHL players on the plaques include: Mike Walton of Boston Bruins; the Plager brothers—Bob, Barclay and Bill—of St. Louis Blues; Randy Backstrom of Los Angeles Kings; and Mickey Redmond of Detroit, and his brother Dick of California Golden Seals.

Also on the monument is the name of Dick Duff, who retired recently after 17 seasons in the NHL.

Seniors Know Somebody Likes Them

At times during the past couple of weeks, members of the Quinte's senior hockey team may have wondered if anybody out there lifted them.

At a Wednesday night practice, players were pleased to learn they can count on one fan for sure.

Ross Parks, of Plane's Concrete donated the cost of last Friday's club bus trip to Oakville, which resulted in a 6-1 Belleville win, first in six years by the city seniors on Oakville ice.

"It was a real boost to the players," Lionel Boily remarked after hearing of the donation.

Since losing the sponsorship of hotel owner Kenneth Murray last week, the team has been playing on a co-operative basis, and players have not received any salary since left to financially fend for themselves.

Despite suffering a seven-game losing skid as well as the loss of their sponsor, the picture is not as bleak as it could be.

Going into a Friday night home game with Woodstock Regals, the Quintes have an 8-13 record which leaves them sitting in the eight-team league's sixth and final playoff spot at the halfway mark of the 26-game schedule.

Belleville's 16 points are four more than Kingston and seven more than last - place Cowan Sound Crescents, whom the Quintes visit Saturday night.

Woodstock and Oakville are only two points ahead, although both enjoy games in hand over the Quintes.

And although the Quintes have lost the services of a number of players, including promising rookie Paul Fersen and defenceman Pete Steinkeberg to name but two, those that remain appear capable of taking up the slack.

Club point leader George Godson, for example, has nine goals among his 18-point total, matching his scoring output for all last year's regular schedule.

And Al Ferguson's 16 goals in 18 games make the Trenton winger one of the OHA Senior A league's leaders in that department. Ferguson scored 18 goals in 39 games last season.

In off-ice activity, player representatives were to meet with their former sponsor today to discuss official acquisition of the club's franchise from Mr. Murphy.

Next week, Gord Renwick, one of the authors of Galt's perennial senior hockey success story, will be in town to offer advice on how the Belleville operation might be spruced up.

Finley Under Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — Some major league baseball executives are maneuvering to help Charles O. Finley break his long-term lease on the Oakland, Calif., Coliseum and move his baseball and hockey teams to Washington D.C., says the Chicago Sun-Times.

The newspaper Wednesday quoted a "highly-placed National League executive" as saying that the league is anxious to relocate Oakland because "it's obvious that the Bay area can't support two major league baseball teams."

Robert T. Nahas, president of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum board, said Finley has "a firm" contract to keep his Athletics at the stadium for another 16 years. He said Finley's California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League have a contract running another three years.

The Sun-Times however, said "some major league baseball moguls in both the American and National leagues already have begun behind-the-scenes discussions of ways and means to help Finley break his long-term baseball lease."

The paper did not identify any of the executives of owners.

McLain on Other Side of Record Book

BOSTON (AP) — If you want to know about the funny bounces a baseball can take, you might try talking with Denny McLain.

In 1968, McLain won 31 games for Detroit Tigers. No baseball player had won that many games in 36 years.

Three years later, McLain, now with Washington Senators in once again in the American League record books. This time, though, it is for the most consecutive losses in 1971—nine. The dubious achievement, along with other highs and lows, was announced Wednesday by the American League office.

Dave McNally of Baltimore Orioles had the most consecutive victories, 13, while Vida Blue of the Oakland Athletics led the league with eight shutouts and also struck out the most players in a game, 17 in 11 innings against California Angels. Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians and Mickey Lolich and Joe Coleman, both of the Tigers, were tied for most strikeouts in a nine-inning game, 14.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal judge tossed out a lawsuit Wednesday challenging the television blackout of the Jan. 16 Super Bowl game over a 75-mile area. John Campo, a New Orleans motel owner, maintained that the blackout violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and that his business would suffer because visitors who could not get tickets would leave the city to see the game beyond the 75-mile blackout area.

Black Brothers Annoy Presidential Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new book titled The Stokes Years sailed across Room 133 of the House of Representatives office building and dropped in a crumpled heap to the floor.

"That . . . Carl Stokes" snapped Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm.

The first black woman to run for United States president was reacting to a reminder that former mayor Carl Stokes of Cleveland had publicly accused her of deserting the cause because she had not supported another black woman for a powerful Democratic party job.

"They don't understand power," said Mrs. Chisholm of Stokes and other black politicians who had chided her, "God gave me a brain and I'm using it. A number of black brothers with their eyes [illegible] are moving behind me."

For Mrs. Chisholm, a veteran of more than 20 years of chipping away at white-dominated Democratic clubhouse politics in Brooklyn, her not-too-well-hidden dispute with Stokes was just one of a dozen touchy situations since she announced six months ago that she wanted to run for president.

While other black politicians were holding caucuses throughout the country, trying to decide whether a black candidate should run, her all-but-formally-announced campaign is already off the ground.

While other black politicians advocate building black political organizations, she talks of "coalition politics . . . black people, red people, yellow people, brown people, young people, and women" uniting to win their goals through the major parties.

"While they're rapping and snapping, I'm mapping," Mrs. Chisholm said.

A prominent figure in women's liberation—she is a founding member of the National Women's Political Caucus

Eight Guards Face Trial

NAPANEE (CP) — Eight Millhaven penitentiary guards face trial in county court here Thursday on charges of assaulting prisoners following last April's riot at Kingston penitentiary.

The guards face 11 charges of assault involving six Kingston convicts, who claimed they were beaten while being transferred from Kingston penitentiary to Millhaven after the four - day rebellion ended.

Charges with assaulting the prisoners are: Peter Hinch and Albert Sweet, both of Napanee; Paul Joseph Cote and Bernard William Evans, both of Kingston; Robert Earl Goodwin of Corbyville, Lester Earl Landtre of Odessa, Grant Soldier of Harrowsmith and William Craig Orser of Gananoque

Tuesday, a seven-man Lennox and Addington County grand jury found there was enough evidence to order the eight guards to stand trial. The guards have pleaded not guilty.

About 500 Kingston convicts took six guards hostage last April and held the main cellblock for four days, surrounded by prison personnel and heavily armed Canadian forces troops.

When the rebellion ended, two convicts were found dead and a dozen others were found severely beaten by fellow prisoners. Thirteen prisoners pleaded guilty last month to manslaughter and assault charges arising from the deaths and beatings.

The six guards taken hostage were released unharmed.

Meanwhile, in Kingston, spokesmen for the Public Service Alliance of Canada said the federal solicitor-general's department will cover legal costs incurred by the guards, expected to run as high as $20,000.

The spokesman said it is departmental policy to pay legal costs for all employees involved in criminal or civil cases arising directly from their work.

Court Ruling Is Due Soon

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld (CP) — The outcome of the Oct. 28 Newfoundland election remains uncertain although a provincial supreme court decision expected within days could ease the way for another round of voting in a disputed district—or add further confusion.

Mr. Justice H. G. Puddester said Wednesday he would announce soon a decision on a Progressive Conservative application to confirm that a PC candidate won St. Barbe South.

Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberals, who won 20 seats, have filed a separate petition with the court asking that St. Barbe South be declared vacant.

The petition, which may not be settled until after Christmas, says the seat was left vacant when a recount could not be completed because 105 ballots were missing.

If the petition is upheld a byelection will be called.

The Conservatives have said the official count should stand in the absence of ballots to complete a recount.

Mr. Justice Puddester said he would base his decision on the "paramount ground." He did not elaborate at the end of Wednesday's hearing on the PC application.

Lawyers for both sides said they believed the judge would consider whether the best means of settling the dispute was through the PC application or by Election Act sections providing for petitions similar to that filed by the Liberals.

Approval of the PC application would give Mr. Moores control of 22 of the legislature's 42 seats, including Labrador West, won by Tom Burgess, New Labrador Party leader who has promised to support the Conservatives.

If the application is turned down the situation will remain unclear until the Liberal petition is dealt with.

Should the Liberals win their court case and a subsequent byelection the house would be evenly divided.

Awards Are Made To Plazas

OTTAWA (CP) — Plazas, malls and parks in 12 Canadian cities received an official stamp of excellence Wednesday with presentation of the first series of Vincent Massey awards for urban development.

The awards went to projects in Saint John, N.B., Quebec City, Trois-Rivieres, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver, North Vancouver and Victoria. Six others were given special mention.

The five-member jury said Ottawa's Sparks Street Mall is "the classic example" of a pedestrian place.

The Toronto city hall square also won an award. Lothian Mews, off Bloor Street, was also honored as a small, surprising and intimate place, a popular and sociable place often packed with people.

The awards, co-sponsored by the Canada Council and the Massey Foundation, were made on the basis of excellence from 93 submissions.

Prisoners Making Toys

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, Alta. (CP) — "You might not expect to find a branch of Santa's workshop in a prison. But at the Fort Saskatchewan correctional institute, 20 miles northeast of Edmonton, the prisoners are as busy working on toys as the elves at the North Pole.

"We've got three large rooms filled, with toys—a couple of thousand toys, at least," said Warden Ernest Neel.

"A lot of the toys will go to the families of the prisoners. But the surplus will be sent to needy families in Alberta—especially to some on the Indian reserves."

Group Papers Spread

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Keith Davey said Wednesday that if the federal government does not do something soon about group takeovers of newspapers, there will be no independently-owned papers left in Canada.

The chairman of the now-disbanded special Senate committee on the mass media said that recent acquisitions by two groups show that the trend to chain control of newspapers remains strong.

The senator was speaking to students at Dawson College on his impressions of the Canadian media a year after the Senate committee released its report.

The report recommended the creation of a press ownership review board to examine proposed sales and decide whether they should be prevented in terms of community interest.

He told the students that "we need a preventive solution before the fact, not after a sale" because current combines' laws "haven't worked anyway."

When his report was released last December, 69 per cent of Canadian dailies were group-controlled, he said.

With the purchase of the Belleville Intelligencer and Cape Breton Post by Thomson Newspapers Ltd. and the Windsor Star and Brantford Expositor by Southam Press Ltd., the figure was up to 66 per cent.

The board could have reviewed any of these sales as well as the Toronto Star's purchase of the Toronto Telegram's subscription lists for $16 million, Senator Davey said.

There had been a "modest improvement" in Canadian media since the report but generally the papers that have taken the report's recommendations seriously were the better ones.

Newspaper Monopoly Is Charged

BURTON, N.B. (CP) — Charges that K. C. Irving Ltd. and three New Brunswick publishing companies formed a monopoly in the English-language newspaper field in the province were laid in provincial court Wednesday under the Federal Combines Act.

Four charges dealing with monopoly and merger were presented before provincial court Judge Charles Tweedale pending K. C. Irving Ltd., New Brunswick Publishing Co. Ltd. of Saint John, Moncton Publishing Co. Ltd. and the University Press of New Brunswick Ltd. in Fredericton.

The three companies publish the only five English-language dailies in the province. All the papers are owned by interests of Saint John industrialist K. C. Irving.

The Telegraph-Journal and Times-Globe in Saint John are published by New Brunswick Publishing, The Daily Gleaner in Fredericton by University Press and The Times and Transcript by Moncton Publishing.

Fredericton lawyer William Hoyt represented the government during the brief court appearance. Mr. Hoyt said the next court appearance before Judge Tweedale was set for Dec. 22. Pleas are expected to be entered at that time. There were no defence lawyers in the courtroom Wednesday.

That court appearance followed searches of the three newspaper offices in 1969 and in April, 1971, by RCMP and federal combines investigators.

Newsprint Price Attacked

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers Association says the price structure being sought by newsprint producers "utterly fails to meet the needs of either the newspaper publishers or the self-interest of the manufacturers themselves."

Richard H. Blackledge, publisher of the Kokomo, Ind., Tribune, said in a statement issued by the association Wednesday that the price schedules being sought by some manufacturers are "highly discriminatory" and "of questionable legality."

Blackledge said some newsprint producers had announced price increases of $5.25 a ton for Southern states but had raised prices $8 a ton for Canadian-made paper sold to Northern state newspapers.

"Only the $5.25 increase had been judged to be justified by the Price Commission," Blackledge said. "Publishers should accept that judgment. They cannot be expected to accept a discriminatory addition of another $2.75 a ton increase just because the paper is made in Canada."

Building Violation Approved

Building lot surveying errors resulting in numerous applications to the committee of adjustment for front and side yard variances, are rousing the ire of city council members.

Several such applications for variances are on the agenda for the next committee meeting this week, with city council last night asked to express its view.

One of the applications is from Winal Properties, now constructing low rental townhouse accommodation west of Sidney Street and north of Tracey Street. The buildings are now half built.

Alderman Ben Corke, however, feels that council should make up its mind some time to object to such variances. He asked how builders could make such errors.

But Alderman Gerald Joyce came to the support of the developers who, he said, were not at fault.

"It is not the fault of the developer," said the alderman. "In this case it was an error on the part of the surveyor."

As a result, the Winal Properties buildings have been located too close to both the side yard limit and without sufficient setback from Hope street.

Village To Honor Burnside

The village of Madoc will honor former Reeve Thomas Burnside with a testimonial dinner Saturday evening in appreciation of his 17 years service to municipal life.

The dinner and dance will be held at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre commencing at 7 p.m.

Mr. Burnside retired from the reeve's office earlier this fall to accept a position as inspector with the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

Local Office Shut Down

The Dept. of Municipal Affairs area office — co-ordination centre for assessment offices in east-central Ontario — has been closed.

Shutdown of the office — which co-ordinated the field work of regional assessment centres from Frontenac to Victoria counties — has apparently been caused by department centralization.

A spokesman at the regional assessment office in Trenton said three of seven such area centres in the province have been closed.

The Trenton office now reports to an area office in Ottawa, said Leighton Thompson, commissioner for the Hastings and Prince Edward counties region.

Last month, Robert Craig, manager of the Belleville area office confirmed such reorganization was under consideration but said no decision had been reached to close his office at that time.

Mr. Thompson believed the eight-member Belleville staff had been placed in other jobs with the assessment branch — either in Trenton, Ottawa or Toronto.

Dog Fashions To Be Shown

Something different in fashion shows will be presented at Queen Elizabeth School this Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Four grade 7 girls are organizing the event, which will also feature a display of animals from the Quinte branch of the Humane Society and a refreshment stand.

Purpose of the school event is to raise money for the local Humane Society. Admission is 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children under 13.

Ann Landers

Reader Resents Generalization

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you had a letter in your column from a man who said: "Too bad I didn't have the good sense to look at my wife's mother when I was courting her. I would have known what a fat girl was in for breeding."

I bitterly resent that generalization. If it were true no boy in his right mind would come within 50 feet of me. And I wouldn't blame him. My mother is insensitive, crude and thoughtless. She makes me ashamed to be a human being. My mother is carefree, happy-go-lucky, and I'm a nervous wreck. She doesn't cook, she opens cans and defrosts. She cares nothing about being a homemaker, a wife or a mother. I made up my mind years ago that I would be nothing like her. I hope I have succeeded.

If a boy wants to see what I am not going to be like in 20 years he should look at my mother. I don't need any advice. I just want to see this in the paper.—Puka Puka

Dear Puka: Here's the advice you didn't ask for: In striving to be better than your mother, I hope you will develop a little compassion and understanding. You can use both.

Dear Ann Landers: In our otherwise lovely city we have a group of sportsmen who belong to a gun club. Their idea of fun is to round up a large number of tame pigeons, pull out their tail feathers and then release loose for target practice. Great numbers of these birds are maimed and left to die in agony. Some fall prey to cats because they are unable to fly.

Those of us who live on the outskirts of town near the gun club have been picking up these crippled birds and treating them. If they are so badly injured that recovery is impossible, we put them out of their misery.

I would appreciate some advice on what should be done about this cruel practice. Not only is this a sick way to have fun but it sets a poor example for the children in our community.—Lafayette, Louisiana

Dear L.L.: Have you contacted the local Humane Society? They should be interested in your story.

Dear Ann Landers: Is something wrong with a 14-year-old girl who is terrified of getting old? Sometimes I lie awake nights picturing myself as a wrinkled old woman and it scares me to death. Lately it's been worse.

One of my problems is that I love the water, and I spend every minute swimming. I use gobs of lotion and sunlamp oil but still my skin takes a lot of punishment because I am in the sun so much. I am very healthy and figure conscious—I eat the right foods, get plenty of exercise and lots of sleep. But what can I do to keep the wrinkles of age away? I keep reading that sun is damaging to the skin and it worries me to death because I am a sun worshipper. Do you have any advice that will help me stay young looking?—An Eye To The Future

Dear Eye: The texture and durability of a woman's skin is primarily a matter of inheritance. If your mother had wrinkle-free skin, your skin has a better chance of holding up. Exposure to the elements can make a big difference, however. You need not give up swimming but you should give up sun bathing. Today's beautiful tan is tomorrow's wrinkled face.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Does every employee want a raise?

TRY to tell a boss otherwise, and your observation will have you down in his books as "some kind of nut." Yet not everyone who accuses for a raise will be happier because his demands were met or perhaps exceeded. Sometimes a person who believes he is being underpaid for what he does will derive more satisfaction from thinking the boss is taking advantage of him than he would be if he thought he was being fairly treated.

Have child experts spurred juvenile revolt?

NO, although many parents blame the child experts for the unrest among the young. Teeth rebellion has been around, of course, since there have been parents with developing children. Most child experts do try to help both parents and children to understand their differences. When parents fail and young people call for real social changes, there is a general outcry against the tendency to open the door and "knock" the child.

NOT if that is his true nature; a wife or anyone can rarely effect a change in someone else's character. A wife can take another look at the problem, however. Perhaps she will find that her husband isn't as selfish as she thinks. In fact, she may discover that she is more selfish than he. She may realize she calls him selfish simply because she feels that he is considering himself when she thinks he ought only to consider her.

Poem on Canada Is Available to Readers

By DORIS CLARK

HOW PROUD O Canada we are to say
That we're Canadians today
We came upon your shores so bright
We saw you in the dead of night.
Help us, O God that we may be Found worthy of your land, your sea
Help us to keep them clean and clear
Ever thankful to live here.
Now on a mountain top I see
A light upon a Christmas tree!
All that is asked is that we share
What God has placed within our care.

Don Backrell (A Reader)

Dear Don: I have quoted here three verses of your poem started in Centennial year, and completed in 1970 by the addition of the last two verses given here, making reference, subtly, to the happenings in Quebec and our pollution problem.

Thank you for permission to share these verses. I will be glad to send complete copies of this six-verse poem to anyone writing in, enclosing 25 cents and a self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Dear Doris: I shall make a resolution to be more prompt in my letter writing since I column where you said letter writing is a disappearing art and it keeps friendships alive. That is so true.

I have had many pen pals from all over the world and sometimes there was a real effort to sit down when I was ill or 11 and answer their letters.

I'm glad my parents encouraged me because had I neglected them from that time I wouldn't still have pen pals from various parts of the world today.— Mary Lou, The Cleaner

Dear Mary Lou: Something tells me there isn't too much wrong with your letter-writing will power. Your pen pals are lucky to have you. And I'll just bet I'll be getting letters from others who enjoy your idea of making friends in the corners of the world by mail.

I can send addresses of pen pal clubs to anyone, asking: Remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Dear Doris: Recently I discovered that the boy who has been taking me out has a girl friend, and that the two of them have an "understanding". However, I continued to go out with him because he assured me that he and the other girl had agreed to date other people. Why then has he not told her about me?

I date other guys (with his knowledge) and the whole situation is very casual, but something just doesn't "smell" right. I enjoy his company very much but should I continue to date him under these circumstances? How could I tactfully suggest to him that he mention me to this other girl, just so I know the situation is perfectly honest? — Above Board?

Dear Above: Has the cat got your tongue? I can't for the life of me guess why you don't ask him to tell his Understanding Friend about you, and where they belong.

Could it be he is saving her feelings? Or does he have a excess date that she is the girl for him, and plans to find out in his own special way? Either way, I still calls for some air clearing — and I guess you're the one to do it. Tactfully, yes — but do it.

To know all is to forgive all. Let Doris help you to understand and live happily with those you care about.

300 Million Calls For Correct Time

LONDON (AP) — Pat Simmons talks more than any woman in Britain and she'd never wrong.

She's the precise, dulcet voice that gives the correct time. All you have to do is to dial 1-2-3.

Nearly 2.5 billion times her recorded voice has said a timely version of, "At the third stroke, it will be seven o'clock, three minutes, 20 seconds."

About 300 million calls for the recorded time come in each year.

New clocks are being installed to keep up with technology.

But the voice of Miss Simmons will go on. Fresh recordings will be made from the master tape cut by the neo - professional golden voice age of Pat Simmons in 1963.

Until then she was an anonymous voice in London's vast telephone system.

The same year she immortalized her voice, Miss Simmons jumped from the switchboard to representing the telephone system in the Skywester area, north of Hyde Park. Today she spends her time telling business executives how best to use their office switchboards and train their switchboard operators.

Some Keep Maiden Names

Mary Margaret Gaye, 21, is one of them. She is finding that as a student teacher of Grade 6 children, and being six months pregnant, it is not all that easy.

Her students have their idea, said Miss Gaye. Although introduced by her single name, at the end of the week she found herself being called Mrs. Gaye.

The whole idea is perfectly legal. But the Vital Statistics Act says a legitimate child must have the father's name, so Mary Margaret's baby will have the surname of her husband Doug Halverson.

Mr. Halverson doesn't seem to mind his wife's decision, but 17-year-old Carol Hornish said her husband is not entirely happy about it.

Bruce, 25, a teacher who didn't want his surname used, said he feels that Carol should take his name, but she said it is only a custom which can easily be changed.

"I wanted a more equal marriage, not one with male-female roles," she said. "And keeping my name allowed me to keep my independence."

Carol, too, is having problems.

When she registered for the Ottawa Teachers' College this fall, she was told her certificate would have to be issued in her husband's surname. It took a legal battle before it was discovered there is no law which says a woman must change her name.

"Even when we explained the circumstances and showed him the marriage certificate, he was still thoroughly convinced we were living in sin and couldn't understand why we wanted to advertise it," Carol said.

Carol had originally been classed as dependent under Bruce's medical insurance plan but rather than be classified as "Mrs." she took out her own policy.

"It shouldn't be considered an honor or a goal to be Mrs.," Carol said.

SID Chapter Organized

EL CAJON, Calif. (Reuter) — An El Cajon woman is trying to organize a local chapter of the national foundation for Sudden Infant Death, the mysterious killer of babies.

Sally Saltstein and her husband Sydney, a doctor at the University of California at San Diego, lost their infant son in 1966. She left the apparently healthy child one minute and found it dead minutes later.

No one knows anything about the disease. There are no symptoms. A mother goes out of the room to cook dinner and returns to find her baby dead.

Doctors refer to the disease as the "unexplained death syndrome." It often leaves mothers and fathers with an unbearable feeling of guilt.

"Our main concern is education and by this to ease the guilt felt by mothers losing a child to SID," Mrs. Saltstein said. "The impact of such a loss is almost unbelievable. Many families never recover."

She said she knew of one mother who ended up in a mental institution. Another case ended in divorce and another in which the mother was ostracized by friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Saltstein said the main message of the foundation is that SID is a disease, just like mumps or diphtheria, and that parents should not feel guilty.

SID claims an estimated 10,000 to 15,000 infants in the U.S. annually.

The foundation says SID probably has existed in all parts of the world for thousands of years. Excess crib suffocation have been used to explain the unexplainable. Then about 10 years ago doctors began to suspect something strange was afoot because a baby — and so many babies who died suddenly showed no real cause of death.

It now is estimated that about 85 per cent of all "crib deaths" can be attributed to SID.

One-woman Shoemaker Shop

OTTAWA (CP) — Josipa Jadan is Ottawa's one-woman shoemaker. A Yugoslav-born Canadian who arrived in 1957 and began forever designing and shoemaking.

With four school-age sons to support, and her husband ill, she needs long hours.

"I deal with everybody," she says. "Some people have trouble with arch support; others have a very wide or short foot and they cannot buy in the stores."

Many customers need individual design for their shoes. Area hospitals recommend her to people for orthopedic work. So does the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Because of the quality of leather involved, as well as the amount of work entailed, her shoes are expensive.

Despite the high price tag, though, Josipa Jadan says it is not hard to collect the money.

"To deal with Canadians is delightful. You tell them the price, they pay you. They never complain."

The shoemaker says she can copy any design from a picture, or make her own creations, and her clients know that if the shoe needs adjusting, she will do it at their convenience.

Although she loves Canada, Mrs. Jadan says she dislikes the inequality of women here as far as jobs and pay are concerned. She says her native country has the right idea of equality, where women and men fought side by side during the Second World War.

When she began her business, Mrs. Jadan received male customers, expecting a male shoemaker, would come in and then run out. The women did no such thing.

UCW MEETINGS

QUEENSBORO UCW

QUEENSBORO — The general meeting of the United Church Women of St. Andrew's Queensboro was held in the church on Monday evening with the president Mrs. Allen Franks in charge.

Prayer was in charge of the devotional with Mrs. Gordon Holmes as leader assisted by Mrs. Fred Bailey and Mrs. Alex Clarke.

Mrs. Franks conducted a short business period. It was decided to send the president, secretary and treasurer and the unit leaders to the annual meeting in Belleville in January as delegates.

The program was on the Christmas theme beginning with a solo by Mrs. Fred Bailey and readings by Miss Roberta Sager, Mrs. Burnside, Mrs. Franks, Mrs. Wanless and Mrs. McMurray.

Lunch was served by unit 2, the hostess group.

Woman Enjoys Delivering Milk

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Beverley Himes likes people and the outdoors so what better job could she find than delivering milk for a dairy.

Mrs. Himes, 29, said she would stagnate if she was "put behind a desk and told to add but files." She drove a dry-cleaning firm's truck in Thunder Bay, Ont. for three years before returning here in 1969.

She says that as a married woman with two school-age children delivering milk is almost the perfect job.

She starts work at 4:30 a.m., an hour she hates, but finishes about 1:30 p.m., so is home in time to greet her children after school and prepare the evening meal.

Mrs. Himes loads her own truck and is treated the same as the men on the job. She is the only woman delivering milk here.

Paul Morash, sales manager for Twin Cities Cooperative Dairy Ltd., where she works, says he would expect a woman to be better in the dairy business because she is dealing with housewives and knows dairy products and their uses.

The wife of a bread delivery man, Mrs. Himes says if a woman doesn't apply for a job because she is afraid she might be accepted, "that's got no business being in the business world."

The Experts Say

Rules to Follow in Wrapping Gifts

TORONTO (CP) — If you always feel a little fumble-thumbed when it's time to wrap presents, there are a few rules that help.

In the first place, says Olive Kugler, you should approach the problem with time to spend, patience to work step by step and with a little bit of love.

Mrs. Kugler spends much of her time teaching people how to make Christmas decorations and produce beautifully packaged gifts.

"When you wrap boxes, use no more paper than is necessary, and look at the paper that will be on top to be sure you make the best use of the pattern.

"Cut the width so you have an overlap of about 1½ inches and the length so that the paper comes up about three-quarters of the way on the ends.

"Instead of putting strips of tape on the outside of the paper, make small rings of tape with the sticky side out, and put them under the overlapping edges of the wrapping paper so it closes with no tape showing.

"When you are ready to do the ends of the package, run your hand down the side firmly to take bubbles out and crease the paper at the edge of the box. Fold the bottom edges first, put the reversible tape ring on, then overlap the top of the paper. When you look at the end you should have a straight line and two inverted Vs.

"If you want to wrap the lid and bottom separately, measure paper and the length of the box. You want to turn the edges almost an inch on the inside of the lid. Then tape it on the inside of the box and begin the same technique to fold the ends. You can work the plant of paper into the corner. Then tape it all with colored tape to give it a finished look.

You can trim a package with more things than bows. Mrs. Kugler glues ribbon in stand-up loops for a chain effect or in the shape of a Christmas tree.

Wooden spoons and popsicle sticks painted gold can be glued together, layer on layer, to make the shape of an angel or a tree or bell.

You can make Christmas card hangers out of felt, on backlap or cardboard with cutout decorations glued or sewn on.

Mrs. Kugler puts together silhouettes with poster board, twine and foil.

"Use poster board as your base, and draw the shape of a figure, a bell, a star or a candle. Then draw in a few interior paints and details, such as the fold of a gown, a cat's whiskers, the outline of a beard or crown.

"Cut out the figure and along the detail lines give heavy berths.

"Take heavy foil the length plus a half of your figure plus a bit more for folding over. Crush it. Put glue on the paste-board figure, then press the foil on, pressing gently along the cord to glue the foil to it and bring out the lines the cord makes. Turn the figure over and glue the back about a half an inch.

"You can't use paper-backed foil for this because it doesn't give enough. Use colored foil if you like, or if you use plain aluminum, you can "antique" it. Put black enamel on it, then blot most of it off to get an antiqued effect."

If you are good at this sort of thing, you can make three-dimensional figures and shapes with the foil and board.

Blakeney Thinks Dave Steuart Will Be Chosen to Oppose Him

REGINA (CP) — "If you're a betting man," says Premier Allan Blakeney, "then I would say Dave Steuart is a good horse to back."

Although the New Democratic Party leader won't give odds, he figures Mr. Steuart, the 55-year-old acting leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal party, is almost a certain winner in the party leadership race that begins Friday in Saskatoon.

Mr. Steuart, a plain-talked and crusty political veteran, is running against former welfare minister Cy MacDonald and George Leith, a legislature member defeated in the June 23 general election that saw the Liberals swept from power by the NDP.

Whether Mr. Blakeney's suggestion is wishful thinking — hope for a Liberal leader he is familiar with — isn't really known but observers say he'd prefer Mr. Steuart or Mr. MacDonald over Mr. Leith, a relatively unknown factor.

It was Premier Thatcher's death July 12 — exactly a month after their disaster at the polls, that prompted the leadership contest.

Mr. MacDonald a 43-year-old former teacher who projects a young image, is openly soliciting the youth vote while Mr. Leith, 44, offers himself mainly as a "viable alternative" to the other two.

All three have been actively campaigning for Saturday night when an estimated 900 constituency representatives cast their ballots.

The campaign was climaxed by a series of six public meetings featuring the three candidates.

From the questions asked, it has been evident the party rank-and-file is worried about the future of the Liberals in Saskatchewan.

At a public meeting in Regina Monday night, Mr. Steuart admitted the party is facing a fearsome opposition.

"The NDP have lots of money. On top of that, they also have the power of government and we know hety won't hesitate to use it.

"We are actually fighting one of the most formidable political machines in North America and we're doing it with one hand tied behind our backs."

Mr. Steuart was believed to be referring to low party finances.

He appealed for more contributions to the party coffers saying the Liberals' main weakness is financial.

Saskatchewan NDP Wields Wicked Axe

REGINA (CP) — The cartoon showed the late Ross Thatcher gilding at a grindstone, sharpening his axe in preparation for the reshaping of Saskatchewan early in 1965.

The caption under the cartoon, published in The Commonwealth, official organ of the provincial New Democratic Party, read:

"After being in and out of politics for 20 years and always in opposition, I have to admit it is nice to be on the constructive side of things."

It's now almost seven years later and Mr. Thatcher is dead, the victim of a heart attack a month after his Liberal government was toppled by Allan Blakeney's NDP in a June 23 general election.

The axe, however, is still around, only now it's wielded by the NDP on the civil service to eliminate what have been called "federal party hacks."

Before Mr. Thatcher died, he was loudly critical of the "fairly widespread witch hunt" and the Regina Leader-Post said in an editorial the government "appears to be guilty of quite irregular practices in its treatment of some civil servants."

Among those chopped soon after the NDP swept 45 of the 60 seats in the legislature, leaving the other 15 to the Liberals, was Jack Harrington, Saskatchewan's chief electoral officer.

Mr. Harrington, now employed by Acting Liberal Leader D. G. Steuart, said he was called into Mr. Blakeney's office in September and told his services were "no longer required" — effective immediately.

Others who either resigned or were dismissed were J. E. Weymark, deputy minister of natural resources, again with no notice; M. A. McLean, director of government information services; F. Scott Calder, the legislature's sergeant-at-arms; William T. Bradley, management adviser for the department of co-operatives; and the chairman and two directors of the board of the $18-million South Saskatchewan Hospital Centre scheduled to open in Regina next December.

Mr. Bradley said he was informed of his dismissal by letter and the reason given was that he did not have sufficient knowledge and training in the field in which he was employed.

He had held the post since 1963.

The department of education has been the scene of numerous changes. At least three supervisory positions have been eliminated, a number of civil servants have been fired and more changes are in the offing.

Mr. Blakeney, meanwhile, said changes in the civil service will continue.

When 100,000 civil servants are involved, he said, a government is bound to come across persons who "don't fit."

Mr. Steuart has described Mr. Blakeney's statements as "utterly irresponsible."

"Dozens of responsible and competent civil servants have already been fired or forced to resign and it now appears that dozens more will be forced out," he said.

"In effect, the new premier is telling every potential civil servant to buy an NDP membership card and swear an oath of loyalty to the premier or risk being fired."

More Power to Thurlow

Thurlow township residents now experiencing deficiencies in electrical power will soon receive a much needed boost.

Ontario Hydro announced plans Tuesday to construct a 5,000 kilowatt distributing station near Lehta which will service the township's needs for the next seven years.

At present, power comes from the 2,000 kilowatt station at Shannonville which will barely meet requirements this winter.

The new station, scheduled to begin operation in November, 1972, will be fully landscaped and maintained by Ontario Hydro. Locally grown trees and shrubs will be planted around the site to detract from the maze of machinery.

To be located on concession 7, lot 25, the plant will take a 44,000 volt line from Belleville's transmitting station and step it down to 8,000 volts.

Representatives from Ontario Hydro assure local residents that the new facilities known as Plainfield station, will not interfere with television or radio reception.

The Shannonville plant is capable of handling a maximum load of 8,000 kilowatts and last winter was required to take on 3,400 kilowatts during peak periods. Lorne Peddle of Ontario Hydro estimates that this winter's peak will be 3800 kilowatts with the figure reaching 5,300 in 1973-74, or 165 per cent of the plant's capacity.

The Belleville station is also expected to require relief by 1974.

Hydro has purchased 22 such sites in eastern Ontario this year to meet growing electrical demands.

"The way that area is now, the station will only add to it," said Borden Forsythe, deputy reeve of Thurlow township, commenting on the proposed site.

The new station is not expected to restrict plans for future subdividing of the area.

Wider Road Sought

Farmers living on the ninth concession of Sidney township west between Stirling and Ivanhoe will give up land if their request for a widened road is granted.

About 25 landowners on both sides of the road agreed to donate 13 feet each if Sidney council will broaden the three-mile stretch of road to 66 feet.

Dave Harry who plans to build a house on lot 15 next spring campaigned among property owners for a week before making a presentation to Monday night's council meeting.

"I don't like driving the road," he said, commenting that school buses which travel the route daily are often scraped by snow mounds on both sides during the winter.

Traffic has increased five times since Island Park opened two summers ago directly west of Stirling he said.

The park, located on Anderson's Island in the Trent River, caters to snowmobilers in the winter months and wedding parties during the summer.

At present, the road has a maximum width of 40 feet but becomes much narrower over some hills.

Council praised Mr. Harry for his efforts in obtaining the property owners' co-operation and appointed deputy reeve Gordon Willman to secure signatures for a formal agreement on the construction of fences and gates.

Reeve Jack Bush informed Mr. Harry that although the 1972 roads program has yet to be set out, preliminary plans toward a definite plan will be undertaken by the beginning of the new year.

Mayor Ill

Mayor Ackerman is convalescing from a brief illness and is expected to return soon to her municipal duties.

Underground Wiring Favored

Belleville Public Utilities Commission Monday morning agreed to call a meeting with the Quinte Homebuilders Association some time in the near future.

The meeting, says PUC chairman Gerry O'Connor, will be held to discuss use of underground electrical circuits for future subdivisions in the city.

He spoke of the "beauty and attractiveness" of burying electrical lines underground.

City council requested a policy report on underground electric services from the PUC.

Licence Warning Issued

Fourteen Thurlow township residents have been handed summonses and fines under the dog-licensing bylaw for failure to purchase licences.

More charges are pending according to Constable Jim Logue. The number of unlicensed dogs still loose is unknown but the township will continue to levy $13.50 fines until the situation is remedied.

The 14 owners charged so far have been given until December 20 to settle out of court.

Mr. Logue reported that township dog catcher Clifford Cassidy has met considerable interference since Thurlow council instructed him to apprehend dog owners who were breaking the law.

"He doesn't have to put up with this when he's doing his job," said Mr. Logue.

Council recently gave third reading to a new licensing bylaw, expected to be more effective, which supercedes the current bylaw January 1.

Owners will have until June 30 to pay fees of $3 for each male or spayed female dog, $5 for each female and $25 for a kennel licence. An additional $2 will be required for late payment.

In return, the owner will receive a metal plate bearing the word Thurlow and figures indicating the year and registration number. The tag, to be affixed to the dog's collar, can be removed only if the dog is being lawfully used for hunting in the bush.

Deputy reeve Borden Forsythe said he hoped the updated bylaw would finally put an end to livestock losses.

"That's the reason the tags were originated in the first place," he said.

Moderate Nationalism Urged

Ontario Study Says Investment Policy Threatens Independence

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government study made public Wednesday warns that continuation of an "open door" policy on foreign investment threatens Canada's economic independence and "cultural distinctiveness."

The report of an interdepartmental committee of government economists proposes that Ontario pursue a policy of a moderate Canadian nationalism, rather than "radical measures" which may lead to an "investment crisis."

"In our opinion, a continued open-door policy involves incipient threats to this country's continued economic independence and its cultural distinctiveness. Moderate economic nationalism holds the promise of a gradual reversal of present trends without at the same time endangering economic stability."

Premier William Davis, who released the report at a news conference, said it does not represent government policy.

"The report is intended to be more of a diagnosis than a recommendation of government policy," Mr. Davis said. "It is not a blueprint for action."

Mr. Davis said he hopes to set [illegible] legislature, before which the public would be invited to appear, to consider implications of the report. The committee will probably be formed early next year, he said.

The committee of six economists, headed by C. Peter Honey, was formed last year to propose alternatives for consideration of the provincial cabinet.

Mr. Davis said the problem of foreign investment is basically a federal one but provinces should contribute to evolving national policy.

In answer to a question, he said he is not as much concerned about whether Ottawa will release the Gray report on foreign investment as much as knowing the direction of federal policy.

The report by Revenue Minister Herbert Gray is being kept secret, by the federal cabinet, although excerpts have been leaked to the public through magazine and newspaper reports.

Mr. Davis told reporters his government has already made moves to preserve Canada's identity and economic independence.

Among these are legislation to ensure that minerals mined in Ontario are processed in Canada, and measures to limit foreign control in the book publishing industry, and trust and loan companies.

The 35-page report suggests that a long-term advantage could be expected by dividing the country's economic sectors into areas where foreign ownership is prohibited, where it is allowed up to 25 per cent of equity, where it is allowed up to 49 per cent of equity, and where foreign ownership is allowed without limitations.

Such a policy, which might be called a policy of enlightened national self-interest, stands a fair chance of success if implemented gradually over time and in a fairplay atmosphere via avis the foreign multinational corporations."

National Policy First--Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Wednesday the Ontario government will not adopt a general policy toward foreign investment in the province unless a national policy is adopted by the federal government.

"There's no point in Ontario's moving ahead in some policy area which might give some greater degree of Canadian control if a foreign country continues to locate in a sister province and sells goods here."

Conga Line Raids Shops

TORONTO (CP) — A gang of 10 to 15 youths has been conga-lining its way through Yorkville for the last two days looting boutiques, owners report.

Mrs. John Daugherty, one of the owners, said a line of youths came through the door of her shop in "single file," marched to the back and began passing articles from the rear of the line to their pals at the front door.

"It's an assembly line bliks," she said. "They walk right by you and take you by surprise while denuding the racks."

Militant Group Denied Aid

HAMILTON (CP) — John Munro, federal minister of health and welfare, has cancelled a $55,900-a-year grant to a local welfare rights group because it is too militant, an organizer of the group said Wednesday night.

William Freeman, a New Democratic Party candidate in the Oct. 21 provincial election and one of the 400-member group's two paid organizers, said in a telephone interview from Toronto the decision was politically motivated.

The group, the Hamilton Welfare Rights Organization, is in Mr. Munro's federal riding of Hamilton East.

It was to receive $53,000 a year for three-years but in a letter dated Dec. 1, Mr. Munro stated the grant would be cut off Dec. 31, the end of the first year.

"He said in the letter that the group was too militant and he cut us off," Mr. Freeman said. "That was his only reason."

"He's received a helluva lot of flack because we've made a lot of people uptight in this town. He made that decision on the basis of that political flack."

A meeting of group officials and the health minister has been scheduled here Saturday.

Mr. Freeman said the prime purpose of the organization was to deal with grievances of welfare recipients and those who felt they were entitled to welfare.

The group first came to public attention when it staged a sit-in at the Hamilton welfare office because city officials would not allow it to set up a card table and distribute leaflets in the waiting room.

MPs May Have Brief Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Christmas holidays may be short for MPs.

In fact, it was learned that Liberal members were told Wednesday the government may call the House back Dec. 27 to finish items the government wants cleared from the order paper before starting a new parliamentary session in January.

Assuming that parliamentarians go home by Dec. 22, they would have only a four-day holiday if the government goes ahead with the idea of resuming the session Dec. 27.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen has said that the government wants the Commons to deal with a number of bills that are at the report stage —the next-to-last Commons phase.

Kraft Boycott Spreads to U.S.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Farmers Union boycott of products of Kraft Foods Ltd. will be supported by the 20,000 members of the United Farm Workers in the United States, Jessica Govea said Wednesday.

Miss Govea of Keene, Calif., assistant to UFW president Cesar Chavez, told about 500 delegates at the NFU annual convention that their assistance in helping farm workers in boycotting U.S. grapes and lettuce proved a great help and those workers would in turn help the Canadians in their struggle.

The NFU initiated the boycott in Ontario last August in an effort to force Kraft to remedy the "unbelievably low prices" paid by the company to milk producers.

Can Thoughts Travel Through Space?

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

They're leaving in Belleville it may be possible to take a trip around the universe — without rockets.

That may be an over-simplified description of the actual experience: an astral trip, whereby the spirit leaves the body and embarks on its own journey.

For a group of Bellevillians, who met last night for the first time, the universe starts within themselves and moves out from there.

And it's a big, baffling place, this universe, although somewhere out there someone loves you — on an astral trip.

In a way, it has to do with the duality of human nature — the fact that man may have a psychic side — or psyche — as well as a physical being. It's the psychic or spiritual, or mental, slice of human nature that has been a perpetual sig in man's thought through the ages.

But such mysteries may not long remain unsolved for the Belleville initiates if they continue their course — the second and fourth Wednesday of each month.

It all has to do with ESP — extra sensory perception — the first class for which registered last night at Queen Alexandra School. Some 15 people turned out, from young to middle aged, the latest group in a growing cross-Canada venture in things psychic known as PSI

It's not the first such venture of its kind in the Belleville area. Arrangements for the Queen Elizabeth sessions are in the hands of Norma Hunt, who already has a similar group now in regular session in the Madoc-Tweed area. It's all part of a growing movement known as PSI a derivative of the psychic.

Norma explains the theory of such studies this way:

"The idea eventually is to get a balance (for the student) with their physical (side) and the psyche. So many people are overbalanced in the physical side (of their nature) and are then unhappy in the sense of not being able to cope as our society gets more and more technical."

The course is an "evolution of the mind — a mind development course where you're using your mental energies to the best purpose."

What a student gets out of the course depends on the participant and what they feel they need to emphasize most within themselves.

"You usually get an extra sensory perception in the field you need most," says Norma. "As weel as being able to teach you deep relaxation, and improving your personal relationships with others. . .

"Because as you start to understand the different things and different influences that constitute yourself, you start to understand better on a deeper, personal level."

Norma, a keen and obviously enthusiastic worker in its cause, feels ESP is "for everyone" and freely desires to investigate the field with an open mind.

"Every person has - ESP," she says with conviction. "It's the same way of developing it — like a muscle, not used can lie."

But isn't this an age where people are turning to a confusion of cults, from evangelism to gurus to drug trips while the less initiated revive religious groups often seem in dogmatic disarray?

Norma Hunt challenges the suggestion that hence, ESP might be just another evidence manifestation of the times, as humans search out spiritual values in a technological world.

For one thing, science seems seriously interested in it, she says. The "experts" are "seriously" experimenting with it. And after all, didn't the Russian experience lead to an ESP experiment with one of their astronauts aboard a moon trip?

"It's no longer in the field of the dark ages. It's a field of knowledge with a grin, she herself has been called "a demon of the dark."

It's acceptance may be a matter of culture.

In India, she believes it was a common occurrence to be able to talk to people with mental telepathy.

Now, with a better educated world, ESP has been rid of its "dark ages" connotations.

It also, she adds gives one a different outlook and "you start about to see the whole of life after death. And you start investigating this with more of a scientific background, rather than superstition."

Life after death brings up the question of ghosts. But this may be too crude a term for what ESP may unravel for the student that advances that far.

Albeit, Norma refuses to be trapped into such an easy topic as ghosts and hauntings.

"You have to be careful about what you believe in because you can't superimpose this on people, (Students) . . . must have their own experience. don't want to say we believe in this because it would be dogma."

However, she concedes: "We do go into ghosts and personality survival after death."

At this level, scientific philosophic and religious concepts are tied in, since not all disciplines may be totally correct in this sphere. Hence the emerger.

The mind-over-matter intelligence is one way of recharging the human batteries that make people tick.

More. It can include the experience where people are taught to control their physical functions — like high blood pressure, for instance says Norma.

By tuning in to different mental dimensions and meditation changes, even healing has been accomplished.

There are cures on record, she claims: For arthritis and nervous diseases caused by excess tension and unresolved inner conflicts that cause ulcers, for instance.

There have never been complaints against the claims by any professional medical group she says.

As for PSI she's also anxious it be taken legitimately.

It was chartered in 1967 as a non-profit organization, she says.

"It's a definite organization by law. We want people's trust. It isn't a fly-by-night deal."

If the students so desire they can develop their interest further into the deeper significances of which PSI is claimed a part — astral projection — where the psyche leaves the body and takes off on its own. In other words where you leave yourself and talk a trip on another dimension.

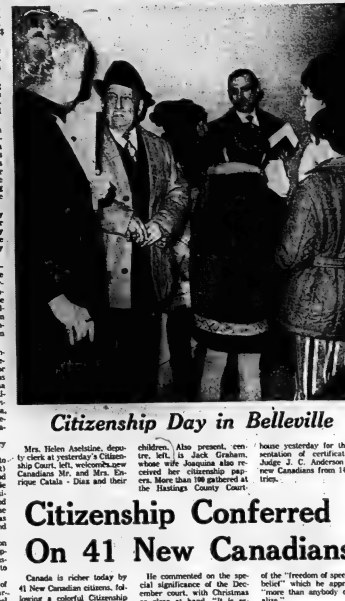
It was just such experiences that started Norma's interest in ESP. Once an Ottawa office worker she says she began having strange dreams where she was travelling outside her body.

"I wasn't going far," it was walking around the room. but I could see my body and I knew I wasn't in it. It's hard to explain and hard to put in words.

Also, she began seeing auras around people. In an Ottawa newspaper she read an advertisement about a local ESP group, joined it, and before she found her explanations for her experiences.

Now, she's a teacher with the ESP group, organizing its regional offer which culminates in what was an art centre. The location was chosen because — among other reasons — it was central for organizing branches like the one planned for Belleville.

From the centre she organized the first Quinte-area ESP group — about 16 people, representing a cross-section of the community, she says.



ESP, she says attracts people of any educational intelligence level.

But, she admit while its appeal may be wide-ranging, it also has its detractors.

However, says Norma "Personally, I feel it's the answer to the world's problems."

But will the world accept it?

"Yes, eh, she answers quickly. "They're now finding out scientifically it's no longer Utopian. There's a definite mental force and an aura of the mind."

Citizenship Day in Belleville

Citizenship Conferred On 41 New Canadians

At 2 p.m. Judge J. C. Anderson formally bestowed citizenship on an international group of ares residents from 14 different countries.

Following receipt of fishlet, presented by Monsignor J. P. Sullivan, representing the Roman Catholic Church and Canon R. B. D. Wright, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, the new citizens officially renounced all allegiance to foreign nationalities and lawi before the judge.

The new Canadians were then issued with their citizenship papers by Mrs. Helen Aselstine, deputy clerk, and commented on their representatives of the International Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

Judge Anderson referred to the proceedings as a "solemn act".

"These people today are coming into our midst from 14 different countries, with varied backgrounds. They have lived among us for five years before achieving Canadian citizenship."

His honor then invited various guests to tender greetings.

Monsignor Sullivan spoke of Canada as "a place of promise, free of discrimination. In the past, we unfortunately were guilty of discrimination against immigrants but I assure you this is not the case today.

"We Canadians believe Canada is a land of opportunity and promise . . . but I don't have to tell this idea to those here today."

Canon Wright said it is "significant that in this court, the Holy Bible is one of the central objects of Canadian justice. Much of our laws and civil liberties are based on this.

"Our country was founded on the basis of Christian principles — justice and freedom for all.

He commented on the special significance of the December court, with Christmas so close at hand. "It is especially thought provoking now with the Christmas theme of peace on earth and to all men and women, good will."

Mrs. Doris Whittemore, regent of the St. Julien chapter of the IODE, expressed regrets that for once, the Argyl and St. Julien chapters could not entertain the new citizens at their welcoming tea.

Because of the recent fire in the Officers' Mess at the Belleville Armouries, where receptions in the past have been held, the welcoming tea had to be cancelled.

However, all 41 citizens yesterday, were invited to the June reception.

"This is just a small way of welcoming you to the country and we wanted to be the first to entertain you as Canadians," she said.

Hastings County School Board vice - chairman Everett Fairman tendered best wishes on behalf of the education system. He invited any and all to partake of evening classes held at various schools throughout the county, especially language courses.

"We make an extra effort to make the schools available for new Canadians."

Belleville resident Arthur Duncan spoke of the five years of work involved in becoming a citizen. "Many of you have left homes in many parts of the world to live in this land of peace."

Peter Ticktin, a native of the Bronx section of New York, said he didn't have the misfortune of coming from an oppressed country, as several of his fellow citizens have done, but he did draw attention to the dangerous streets of his home city.

"When you walk down the streets of New York, all you can see are brown buildings, grey sky and dirty streets.

"When I was in school, I used to sing America the Beautiful. I didn't know what beautiful meant until I came to Canada seven years ago."

Dracula Today

Director Alan Gibson rehearses a scene from Dracula Today a modern horror story, with Marsha Hunt, Christopher Neame and Christopher Lee. The story is set in contemporary Chelsea. Gibson, a Canadian, says the difference with this version of Dracula is that it's set partly in a modern context to make the fear psychological and more intense. (CP Photo)

To Your Good Health

When Cough Hangs on Months Cause Should Be Discovered

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 7½-year-old son has a cough all winter long, day and night, never stopping. It never like whooping cough but it continued all last year and now is starting again.

I went to three doctors. They said it was a flu virus, but penicillin and cough medicine did not help.

I don't know what to do. Please, can you tell me why or what or where can I take him? —Mrs. M.M.

There are plenty of good pediatricians in your city—that is, physicians who specialize in caring for children. You can find one by calling the medical society, the children's hospital, or one of the general hospitals and asking for the names of pediatricians in your part of the city.

Passing it off as "a flu virus" makes no sense when a cough continues that long. In any event, penicillin is designed to combat bacterial infections, but has no effect on viruses.

Here are some suggestions to investigate. The boy should have a chest x-ray to determine whether some foreign body or other condition is present in the lung tissues.

Next I would suspect an allergy, or some relationship to the heating in your home. Since the cough occurs in winter, and if you have hot-air heat in your house, he might be allergic to dust or other particles in the hot-air ducts.

It also is possible—especially with hot-air heat, but not impossible with other types of heating —for the air to become too dry. This lack of humidity can bother some people, so add moisture to the air. Most hot-air furnaces have water containers which should be kept filled to prevent the air from becoming too dry.

It is also possible to use flat water pans on top of radiators, so the evaporation keeps the air reasonably moist.

You make no mention of the boy having a fever. If he had, that would imply some germ being involved. Lack of fever makes one lean toward the probability of allergy.

When he was a baby, were there any signs of allergy—eczema, hay fever, hives, wheezing? Any of these would be significant and suggest that allergy could be the cause of his cough.

If your doctor cannot handle allergy problems, then take the boy to a specialist who can. Obviously a cough that lasts all winter long mustn't be allowed to continue without thorough investigation to find the cause and correct it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A relative, almost 70 and retired, sleeps almost constantly. Is this a disease? I have heard that it should be treated by a neurosurgeon. Can you give me any information?—Mrs. J.C.

It could be a form of narcolepsy, or abnormal urge to sleep. However, there are other possibilities. Faulty thyroid functions, anemia, a little stroke, faulty nutrition.

I would suggest a thorough physical examination by your regular physician or internist before considering a neurologist or neurosurgeon.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is cod liver oil good for arthritis if taken on an empty stomach at night? Would it bypass the liver and go to his joints? I was told it would.—D.C.

The fiction about cod liver oil being "good for arthritis" and "lubricating the joints" is stubborn, long-lived notion, but it just doesn't work. In the first place, the cod liver oil is digested in the intestine, hence never can "bypass the liver" or reach the joints.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrial issues edged fractionally lower as prices on the Toronto stock market recorded small losses in most major sectors in active mid-morning trading today.

The decline interrupts 10 consecutive advancing sessions.

Industrial issues were off .59 to 173.74 and golds .17 to 148.79. Base metals were up .13 to 72.53 and western oils .77 to 204.81.

Schreyer Says Farms Need $300 Million 'Shot'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The injection of $300 million into Canada's farm economy is needed immediately to avert the social disaster which will result when 1 predicted 85 per cent of the country's population live in four large cities by the year 2000, Premier Ed Schreyer said Wednesday.

The premier, in a speech to the National Farmers Union annual convention, was critical of national farm policies that have for many years been "unfair and unequitable."

Later, following the banquet which ended the third day of the four-day meeting, NFU President Roy Atkinson said Mr. Schreyer was a "practical politician" who had given an "intellectual expose" of the farm problem.

Mr. Schreyer said the policies have resulted in rising costs of production while the return to farm producers has remained static or even dropped.

"In cold economic terms this just doesn't make sense and more and more people are realizing that this can't go on forever," the premier said.

"I really believe there is a widespread feeling across this country of uneasiness and dissatisfaction in both rural and urban areas with farm policies."

Mr. Schreyer said many farm families were existing on less than what they could receive on welfare and "we're painting ourselves into a corner "when a person receives less take-home pay than he would get through social assistance.

Part of the answer lies in a minimum wage policy and a farm support program of the same kind, he said, adding that in most cases provincial governments are powerless to effect the policies needed to correct the inequality.

The United States has recognized the problem of agriculture not having equitable power in the market place and provided support programs, but there has never been anything like them in Canada.

A farm debt of about $6 billion, four times that of 10 years ago, underlines the problem, he said. As well, the average per-capita income of Canadians in 1970 was $3,700 compared with $770 for farmers.

Mr. Schreyer said much more was needed in addition to the small farms development program announced in Ottawa Monday.

"This policy may be of help to the older farmers who want to get out of farming but nobody can expect the program to deal with the heart of the problem—low farm income."

He suggested an immediate injection of $150 million into western agriculture and a similar amount into Eastern Canada.

"I'll bet there are those who will say that I'm baying at the moon, but that amount represents only two-to-three per cent of Canada's total annual budget and in relative terms—is not much at all."

Ten Years in Making, Tax Bill Survives First Commons Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The 707-page government tax bill, the biggest piece of legislation in Canadian history, survived its first Commons vote Wednesday after 10 years of preparation.

The vote came when the first use of the 1969 guillotine rule stopped debate at 5:45 p.m.—the end of 22 days of clause-by-clause study and an earlier 12 days of second-reading debate.

It took three hours and 25 minutes for MPs to vote on 253 clauses and amendments.

After a day of third-reading debate Friday, the government is expected to poise the guillotine blade again Monday, dropping it the day after to kill Commons debate by Friday, Dec. 17.

Senators, already angered at being rushed through their scrutiny of the bill, may have to sit almost until Christmas to pass the law in time for the Jan. 1 government target for implementation.

The bill, introduced June 18, is the culmination of a decade of tax review, which involved lengthy study, a report, by a royal commission set up in 1962 and a two-year public debate on the government's 1969 white paper preceding the bill.

But since September, the government has introduced more than 100 changes to the bill, some for technical reasons, others as a result of requests from MPs and public groups. So the legislation has been in almost constant flux, a situation that lent weight to opposition arguments that the government should not have used a time limit to choke off the debate.

The latest amendments, for example, radically changed tax treatment of co-operatives and credit unions, in line with complaints from opposition MPs, and a few Liberals, for several weeks.

But there were some gut issues that made the bill tough to fight from the opposition standpoint.

One was the government contention that it would remove 300,000 Canadians from tax rolles and reduce the bite for many who are salaried.

There was the capital gains tax, hitting those stock market coups which the little guy sees as being the escape valve for the tycoon.

Other sections of the bill repeal the federal estate and gift taxes—the idea being that capital gains tax is a day-by-day substitute—and revise the corporation tax system.

In the first of 29 standing votes Wednesday, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield's last request in the debate—to delay imposition of most of the bill—was defeated 149 to 54, with Liberals and New Democrats siding against the Conservatives and Social Creditors.

Mr. Stanfield sought an amendment to split the bill—implementing increased personal tax exemptions immediately and delaying other provisions, such as the capital gains tax, until further debate in the new year.

The government already had rejected that suggestion, calling it technically impractical and a cause for uncertainty for businessmen.

Two Wednesday amendments proposed by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) also were defeated.

One would have applied the capital gains tax to all such gains by a taxpayer, not just 50 per cent as provided by the bill.

The other would have exempted Time and Reader's Digest from the so-called Canadian periodicals in which advertisements are a tax-deductible expense for businesses.

Roland Godin (SC—Portneuf) proposed an amendment—also defeated—removing the $100 ceiling on work-related expenses that employees would be able to deduct under the bill.

Mr. Godin said the law should allow any expenses the taxpayer could prove as legitimate.

Today, the House debates a New Democrat motion calling on the government to bring in policies to stop expansion of foreign control over the economy and regain Canadian control to assure independence and jobs for Canadian workers.

Arguing to split the bill, Mr. Stanfield said both the provinces and businessmen need more time to understand the legislation. It should also be changed to account for unemployment and recent U.S. protectionist policies.

He agreed with Finance Minister E. J. Benson that delay could cause uncertainty, but he said the complicated bill already has led to confusion.

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin added that the government amendments showed that it had been hypocritical and fraudulent, or stupid and incompetent, or both.

Mr. Stanfield said the government refusal to meet provincial government requests for delay of implementation, especially repeal of estate taxes in which several provinces share revenue, could lead governments and taxpayers into a tax jungle.

Marcel Lambert, Conservative finance critic, accused the government of demanding that the provinces come to heel and change their tax laws.

The government was ignoring the equal rights of the provinces in the tax field.

The hours of voting, studded by opposition cries of government arrogance and other sins, began after Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton Centre) rose to show, "on behalf of all taxpayers in Canada . . . what I think of what is happening here with respect to this bill."

What the Stars Say

By CONSTELLA

Friday, December 10

Aries (March 21-April 19). Yesterday's understandings with mate are firmly sealed today. For single Arians, this could mean marriage or engagement. Those wed know they're loved.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Yesterday's proposals, business or financial, are not just idle chatter, as today's results will prove. Plan and work things out for a big reward.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Loved ones don't just want you for now, but for always. This could be quite an adjustment for you, after you've convinced yourself you're no one's favorite.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). The key to domestic problems lies in your job situation. Though you're generally one who dislikes upheavals, it may be a transfer or new position that reunites the family.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). After a long period of feeling your natural sentiments have been misunderstood or coolly received, loved ones suddenly and strongly respond in turn.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A fortunate turn of events in finances is possibly linked with property, family holdings. It's important to hold on to what you receive, rather than liquidate for a fast profit.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). As the natural sign of partnership, you should be most willing to spread your joy around to others at home and abroad. Tell everyone what's just happened to you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Blue chip money deals are providing extra cash quickly now. This additional source of income is going to be a steady one for quite a while.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There's nothing to stop you now from grabbing for everything you've ever wanted. Your ticket to success looks back at you from the mirror.

Capricorn (Dec 22-Jan. 19). There can be even a few emotional, mental benefits that accrue from public successes now. These doubts and fears that have kept self confidence to a minimum are finally eliminated.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Happy endings, far beyond your dreams, are very possible under certain aspects. You've picked out the one you want — all the other party has of do is say yes.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Pisceans are duc for considerable recognition, now regardless of profession. Praise and glory come from outside your working environment, perhaps even from competitors.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—The first six months of your new year are definitely better, so try hard to transform opportunities into solid accomplishments. After July, others just aren't as receptive to your moves.

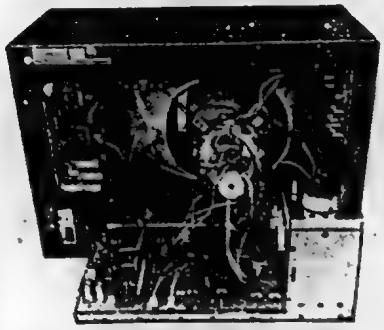
PHILIPS



At last a color set you can relax with

The New Philips

MODULAR 4

What Is Modular 4?

Modular 4 is what we came up with after completely building the Philips Color TV from the inside out. We re-designed the circuitry, to give you a more efficient more reliable operation. We eliminated the old spaghetti-type wiring systems by condensing them into units that can better stand up to continual, full-time viewing. And since each circuit panel stands on its own, if something goes wrong, it can be replaced within minutes right in your home. Of course, such an efficient operation just naturally results in a great color picture.

Five-Year Warranty

THE LUCERNE

MODEL CC60 26"

The beauty of contemporary design is admirably captured in this full console model. Same solidly built cabinet. Philips utilizes modern techniques in cabinet construction and controls every operation in its own design studio as well as its own cabinet factory. This cabinet has been hand-rubbed to a fine furniture finish of natural walnut. This beautiful cabinet also houses the powerful new Philips Modular 4 chassis.

Christmas Truce Is Spurned by IRA

Yuletime Offensive Is Feared in Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla gunmen shot dead two part-time soldiers today as they drove to their civilian jobs in the County Tyrone village of Clady.

They died as a result of a campaign by the outlawed Irish Republican Army to shatter morale of the 8,000-strong Ulster defence regiment.

Their deaths were certain to set off an outcry among the embattled Protestant majority, whose leaders claim Northern Ireland is fast approaching anarchy.

Bombings and shootings in the last six days have cost 21 lives, four of the UDR members. The total toll in 28 months of violence is 190 dead and thousands injured.

Security forces now expect the IRA to step up its campaign in a Christmas offensive designed to break civilian morale. The organization already has spurned pleas from the Irish Republic's Premier Jack Lynch for a Christmas truce.

The civilian population already is highly intimidated, veteran observers say, by the IRA increasingly veering toward them, away from military objectives.

"I'm not surprised in the upsurge of attacks on civilians," said an army source. "It's easier, more costly to the community, more spectacular.

Maj.Gen. Robert Ford, commander of British land forces in Northern Ireland, was quoted in a London newspaper today as saying: "Our strategy of attrition is losing. But as it bites so the IRA are becoming more desperate."

The IRA is on record as proclaiming it intends to destroy the city centre by Christmas. Terrorists frequently stroll into crowded stores with impunity to implant their bombs, carried about in shopping bags or baskets.

Women shoppers ran screaming when two bombs exploded in the centre of Belfast Thursday. Several were slashed by flying glass, but none seriously.

The blasts, each from 10 pounds of gelignite, shattered stores in Royal Avenue, the main shopping street, and an employment agency office. Since Saturday there have been 12 major explosions in the capital.

British troops came under intensive attack from nail bombs and machine-guns in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, early today.

In Belfast, a rebel raider blasted the military wing of a hospital with machine-gun fire. No one was hit and the gunman escaped.

The mounting rage of Northern Ireland's one million Protestants—who outnumber Catholics two to one—was voiced in the Belfast Parliament by the militant evangelist, Rev. Ian Paisley.

He told Premier Brian Faulkner: "The people here are getting sick of the present situation where a man can be murdered in front of his own children—a murder for which you and your government must bear full responsibility.

"We're not going to have much more of it, and you can interpret that any way you like."

Harry Mulhall

AS THE OLD SAYING GOES it's lovely weather . . . for ducks. For people, so far it's meant leaden, rain-loaded skies. So when you feed a duck outside — as Edward Lang and eight-year-old daughter Claire are doing — you bring an umbrella. The duck came with their recently-purchased home. Boeing Packed In Hop To Iran

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Packed with the biggest single load of passengers in Canadian military aviation history a 437 Squadron 707 left Karachi early today taking 241 evacuees to safety in Iran.

By one report 29 people stood during the three-hour flight to Tehran, while those seated had only about half the usual legroom allotted to passengers on the Air Transport Command jet.

The plane had 65 Canadians, 59 Germans and 31 Americans on its bloated passenger list.

The Trenton-based transport made the run into the desert airfield of the West Pakistan metropolis without being fired on. There was no trouble during the 18 minutes it was on the ground.

During the same period today five RAF Hercules also took advantage of the Karachi cease fire to bring out planeloads of British nationals from the port city. They were flown to Masirah Island, south of Muscat and Oman in the Persian Gulf, and then to Cyprus by RAF VC-10.

About 600 Britons are still in the vicinity of Karachi and more British planes are standing by for possibility of a further airlift Saturday.

Pakistani Situation Hopeless

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pakistani army is in a hopeless situation in East Pakistan and cannot hold out much longer than a few days with the long-term outlook no better in West Pakistan, U.S. government sources say.

State department experts also say there is no chance of the Pakistani forces, which numbered 70,000 at the outset of the war, pulling off a Dunkerque-like evacuation in the east.

They note that Indian forces, said to include 12 divisions, already hold one East Pakistani port and have the main harbor at Chittagong under a tight naval blockade. Further, the Pakistani air force in the east is destroyed and a sea evacuation would be impossible without effective air cover.

The Indian air supremacy also rules out any chance for an air evacuation, particularly since the main airport at Dacca has been severely damaged.

The situation in the western sector is no more promising, at least in the long run, the U.S. experts say, although the Pakistanis are in a position to force a more extended war and even carry out limited offences into India.

An obvious difference between the two war theatres is that the outnumbered and outgunned Pakistani army in the east is more than 1,000 miles from its supply bases and is operating in a hostile territory.

The main body of the 365,000-man Pakistani army is in the west, and although the Indians are capable of numerical superiority in that area, Pakistan can provide the logistic and supply support to maintain a fighting ability.

U.S., Germany Agree on Cost Of Defence

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and West Germany reached a new agreement today for West German financing to offset the cost of keeping 200,000 American troops in West Germany.

How much West Germany will contribute was not announced, but the total was reported to be somewhat less than the $1.2 billion a year the United States wanted for a two-year period beginning July 1.

The West German contribution will include loans to the United States, purchase of arms and planes and an outright grant for renovation of U.S. troops' barracks in Germany.

News Briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public Works Minister Arthur Laing will not seek re-election to the House of Commons, the president of the Vancouver South Liberal Association said Thursday night.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul has "accepted and confirmed" the documents of the Roman Catholic synod of bishops, in particular the stand against optional celibacy for priests. He indicated, however, that he might study a proposal by a synod minority to allow married men to become priests in certain circumstances.

DISC Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congress has sent to President Nixon a bill cutting taxes for businesses and individuals by $15.8 billion during the next three years and giving incentives to businesses seeking to export more goods. He is expected to sign it quickly.

The Senate passed the compromise version of the legislation by a 71-to-6 vote Thursday soon after the House of Representatives cleared it, 339 to 74.

The bill includes authority for U.S. companies to set up domestic international sales corporations, known as the DISC plan, and receive tax deferral on 50 per cent of export sales handled by such corporations.

The DISC proposal has caused concern in Canada where it is feared it would give U.S. companies an incentive to invest and expand plants in the United States rather than in Canada or other foreign countries and would reduce competitiveness of Canadian-manufactured goods in the U.S.

Rain, Rain Don't Go Away Who Wants 3 Below Today?

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Where were the snows of yesterday?

Turned to rain, that's where.

At the week's start, weather forecasters for the Belleville-Trenton area had warned of snow Thursday. Instead, the weather office at CFB Trenton recorded a rainfall of .38 — a failed, but briskly sweet, city streets during the afternoon.

More rain — moderate to heavy — may fall this afternoon and evening.

Yesterday's high recorded at Trenton was 44 degrees — compared to a normal maximum of 34. Last night's low was 35 — against a norm of 19.

However, it's been warmer — and colder — in other years, since they started keeping records at Trenton back in the early 1920s.

All - time high for this day was 50 degrees in 1932; record low for this time was three below in 1933.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis. Warm air covers all Ontario except those regions north of Lake Superior. A disturbance moving southeastward toward the lower lakes will spread rain into Southern Ontario today with showers Saturday. Mid-afternoon temperatures today will be in the 40s in Southern Ontario and in the 30s in northern areas. Cooler air will spread eastward across the province Saturday and by evening will cover all but the extreme eastern parts of the province.

Turner Won't Delay Bail Reform Action

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner said Thursday the government has no intention of delaying implementation of the Bail Reform Act despite a request by the Ontario Police Commission.

Mr. Turner said in an interview he was annoyed by the commission's request which asked that implementation be put off for six months.

"The bill has been public for two years now," he said, "it has been law for six months. The provincial attorneys-general all agreed through their deputies at a conference some time ago that Jan. 3 was a suitable date for proclaiming the law."

The new law gives police the power to let people charged with a wide variety of crimes go free pending their trials unless it's feared they might harm someone or not show in court.

The commission said police departments have not completed programs familiarizing police with the contents of the legislation.

Police also say repeated offenders will use their freedom while awaiting trial to commit further offences.

From AP-REUTER

India reported fighting with Pakistani troops all along its western front today and claimed more steady advances by Indian forces in East Pakistan, centred Dacca, the provincial capital.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi brushed aside the United Nations call for an immediate ceasefire and declared that India could "take all steps" to achieve the independence of East Pakistan.

The Associated Press said she "rejected" a ceasefire at this time. Reuters said she neither rejected or accepted it and quoted her as saying only that it was "under consideration."

Pakistan said it accepted the ceasefire appeal provided that UN observers were stationed on both sides of the border, a condition previously rejected by India.

There were no reports on military action from Pakistan since the government radio declared Thursday night that "Indian invasion forces have been blasted on all fronts in East Pakistan and they have been dealt heavy

An Indian government spokesman in New Delhi said there was no new major action in the Chhamb sector in southwestern Kashmir, the area of greatest Pakistani penetration, "but probing attacks by troops on both sides are taking place all along the border" in Punjab and Rajasthan states.

He also reported that an Indian naval force bombarded a 200-mile stretch of West Pakistani coastline Thursday night from Gwadar to Karachi, sinking four warships and destroying the huge oil installation at Karachi.

"We now effectively control the sea off Karachi," he declared. The spokesman said the Indian warships met little resistance and had no losses.

In East Pakistan, India claimed her troops were advancing swiftly toward Dacca, with some forward elements within 20 miles of the capital.

A dispatch from Dacca said thousands of residents were fleeing the city, taking what possessions they could in handcarts. The dispatch also reported that India continued strafing attacks on the city's airfield and military headquarters Thursday, but India said its planes stayed clear of the city for four hours today to permit evacuation of foreigners.

Grain Storage Silos Would Assist Farmers

Bishop Seeds Ltd. of Belleville is seeking ARDA financial assistance to establish an elevator facility in Thurlow township for mass handling of Quinte - grown wheat, white beans and corn.

The planned facility would have an initial capacity of more than 80,000 bushels and with future expansion, would be capable of handling in excess of half a million bushels annually.

The request for financial assistance from ARDA has already been placed before the provincial body and Thursday Hastings county council endorsed a request from the county ARDA committee supporting the request.

Included in the planned installation would be facilities for receiving, drying, shelling and shipping the grain. The plant would be located near the intersection of Highway 37 and the third concession of Thurlow.

The county ARDA committee said the facility would be of a tremendous benefit to the farmers in Hastings and neighboring counties because since the canning industry has declined such a cash market has been sorely needed.

Jesus Christ Superstar Among Rock Selections

An 11-piece rock group called Celebration and about 15 singers will appear in concert on BCI's stage Saturday.

The Canadian Rock Theatre's production will feature selections from Jesus Christ Superstar and Godspell, as well as original material written by the group. The concert here is a preview of a record soon to be released by the Company.

A spokesman for Good Time Entertainment, the Toronto booking agency handling the Canadian Rock Theatre, said from Toronto yesterday that the all-Canadian cast had played one performance this December in Varsity Stadium before leaving for an American tour.

The show is being brought here by two high school alumni, Paul Barber and Robert Clement, who have been in BCI's department of the standard fee for a profit-making enterprise and $8, and $5 an hour for each hour of use.

The Youth Dance Committee, a group comprising representatives from all secondary school Students' Councils in the city had originally intended to bring the international production of the rock opera, Jesus Christ Superstar, to BCI. But the student organization was deterred by the $1,000 bond demanded by the opera company that played in Toronto recently.

Glenn Vani of Moira Secondary, his school's representative on the Central Dance Committee said today that the Committee is not connected with Saturday's dance and evening productions of the Canadian Rock Theatre.

Door Smashed, Whisky Stolen

There was more than one way touch to liquor store break-in in Belleville last night.

Thieves caused $100 damage when they kicked in the glass front door at the Station Street Liquor Control Board store, said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Governor's House Becomes Offices

The former governor's house at the old Hastings county jail is being renovated as office accommodation for the county department of social services.

County council was told Thursday that a local contractor had been engaged to carry out renovations to the old residence at a cost of approximately $24,000. Renovations will include electric heating, a new entrance way, carpeting, new panelling, ceilings, windows and two new washrooms.

The county department of social services will pay a rental of $500 a month with the space currently occupied by the department to be made available to the county planning board and county land division committee.

Trailer Camp Site Sought

A special advisory committee to the Parks Board committee met last night and made preliminary decisions on the type and preferable location of a trailer and tenting area for the city.

Lloyd Syer of the Parks Board department, and the Chamber of Commerce, working individually on the possibility of a trailer and tent area, met through the Parks Board Committee and as a result the advisory committee includes representation of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Syer, the Parks Board Committee and a camper association.

Farley Parnell, representing the trailer club said, "there are two kinds of trailer parks that are conceivable for the city. There is either the recreational ground or the all-year-round park for the city.

"In the latter, there would be a minimum of services and it would be a place to park for the duration of the campers' stay, which probably would not exceed three or four nights.

"As the committee saw the situation, it was agreed that probably 25 to 30 sites maximum in a 5-acre site would be sufficient.

Because most trailers are self-contained, members of the committee suggested that even recreational was not a great need for the park.

Priority was given to a boating task.

"If people do not have a place to dump their holding tank, then they are not going to come here at all", said Dick Lumbers, representing the chamber. "Perhaps too, there could be a small playground area in the site, possibly containing swings and such for the younger fry".

Add. Robin Jeffrey, representing the Parks Board committee suggested, "If we begin with an overnight area, it is possible that as the city needs grows, so can the size and facilities in the park until it becomes a complete recreational area for the camper."

Ald. "Jeffrey warned "We are on a crisis course. This facility must be here by June in some shape or form."

Discussion stemmed from what the camper would like most. The come down through the business section of the city, pulling a trailer to the waterfront, or would it be better to place the park in land adjacent to Highway 401.

Ald. Paul Russell, chairman of the Parks Board Committee reminded the group, "It's great that we find a good location, but it may be not other thing to be able to fit it into a budget."

It was decided that members of the committee would make a field trip this coming week to visit three areas in and around the city that it would lend themselves to the project. These three being a parcel of land on the Cannifton Road (directly across from Riverside Park) which is currently owned by the industrial commission, Carleton Cote and land just to the north of the 401 owned by a Cliff Oil station.

Emphasis was placed on the Golf site because of its proximity to the 401.

The committee agreed that a member would approach the ad company to seek co-operation.

No date was set for the next meeting, but it will be until at least late next week when results come back from the trip.

Trenton Boeing Packed

uation is expected to fly to Islamabad Sunday to evacuate Britons in the northern territories of West Pakistan.

Canadians evacuated to Tehran this morning have been advised arrangements are afoot to fly them to Canada in the next few days but first the 707 is preparing for a mission into Islamabad itself. This flight may come as early as tonight if cease fire plans can be made.

Foreign department of national defence sources say it appears likely the 707 will make an attempt to get to Islamabad under cover of the same ceasefire the British are trying to achieve for Sunday.

If a brief cessation of hostilities there cannot be achieved and safe conduct granted to the aircraft, a contingency plan will be launched shortly by which foreign nationals wishing for evacuation will form a convoy and motor to Kabul, Afghanistan (about four hours by road) whence they will be airlifted out to Tehran and Copenhagen.

Refugees are being assembled by the thousands and are being flights to Canada. It is expected the 707 now waiting for the Islamabad ceasefire will return to Canada no later than Monday night, arriving in Eastern Canada some time Tuesday. There are 100-120 Canadians in the Islamabad area.

There were 312 fixed seats on today's 707 flight out of Karachi. said one source this morning. Other seats were stuck up to the chest for a lot of people." Normally 'a seat occupies 35 inches along the aisle including leg room but this was reduced to only 20 inches for the record breaking Karachi-Tehran run.

Meanwhile, a Trenton Herald's staff writer at Rawalpindi waiting for safe-conduct to the besieged East Pakistani capital of Dacca. He has two rescue attempts by the 435 Squadron plane into Dacca already aborted, likelihood of a third bid appeared to dwindle with word that the airport there — bad at the worst of times — has been object of concerted Indian air attacks.

County Roadwork Progressing Well

Hastings county roads and bridges department is keeping up with the modern day electronic - communications age.

The county has purchased a two-way mobile radio system at an installed cost of $11,674 and application has been made to the federal government for frequency assignment.

The equipment is expected to be in full use by the end of the winter.

Until frequency assignment is received the local telephone answering service equipment will be arranged for to provide partial equipment use for winter, road operations.

Council was told that other local municipalities within the limits of the county system would be able to tie in with the county department.

The roads committee report read by chairman reeve Russell Sills reviewed county road operations for the year, noting that the road equivalent is November 30 including development and projects were $1,280,879.

Progress on pre-engineering for the reconstruction of County Road 12 from Highway 7 to Queensborough was said to be favorable with all 22 property owners from whom widening is required having given written permission for the county to proceed with construction, although compensation has not yet been agreed upon.

Tenders for the reconstruction have been called and it is hoped the successful bidder will undertake clearing and some rock work this winter.

Because of the heavy expenditure this right-of-way acquisition and pre-engineering this year, only minor construction undertaken under the regular expenditure by line was the completion of grading on County Road 9 from Highway 37 easterly to Crooston.

This section of county road, 2.3 miles in length, was removed Road Program with a bituminous surface of 18' on 200 per mile and received an asphalt prime coat. Paving of this section is next year.

All other road construction was carried out under County Total of $440,912 being spent to date.

County road 5 from Foxboro to Highway 37 was completed with the total project (much of the work being done last year) being $373,128.

The grading contract for county road 13 from Highway 62 to Stone has progressed rapidly with the hope it will be completed this year. Included in the contract was the replacement of the bridge over the west branch of the Moira, the road being closed while the bridge was under construction. The road was re-opened Nov. 23.

Total construction cost of the project, not including the surface to be placed next year, is $205,456.

Barn Levelled, Piglets Burned

CHATTERTON (Staff) — Fire completely destroyed a barn situated on a 100 acre farm on the 7th of Sidney near Chatterton, Thursday morning.

The barn, owned by Ernest Jones of 43 Smith Crescent, Belleville, burnt into flames around 6:30 a.m. The fire was quickly reduced the structure to ashes.

"It was gone when we got there," Sidney Township Fire Department chief Harold Jack Rushnell told The Intelligencer. After the fire, a tree trucks and eight volunteer firemen arrived on the scene at 10:00.

"All that was left were some beams," he added.

In a telephone interview with Mr. Jones, it was learned that only five, eight-week-old piglets had been lost in the blaze which he estimated at $10,000 for the barn and $1,000 for contents of hay, straw, and grain.

Only partially insured, Mr. Jones said he "decided" yet whether he will replace the building.

Captain Rushnell explained cause of the fire: "Apparently it was an extension cord going to a heat lamp, from what he (Mr. Jones) said."

The farm owner agreed. "It was electrical wiring, I think," in no time were any buildings other than the barn in danger. However Captain Rushnell said a pig pen was "pretty close to get warm, but it didn't catch fire".

Hastings Manor Full

On the other hand, Centennial Manor has 156 residents in with a total bed count of 168. Here there are 16 empty beds in the special care wing and seven in the normal care section.

The homes for the aged report submitted yesterday to county council by Thurlow Deputy Reeve Borden Forrester, chairman of the county was continually receiving applications from people outside the county, but because of

Quinte Sea Cadets Are Nation's Best

Following years of formation, trial and error, they were presented with the Navy League of Canada's national award for the best corps with less than 75 in the company.

Tangible proof of their success came in the form of Nelson's Column . . . a two-foot silver replica of the famous statue which dominates Trafalgar Square in London, England, and a ceremonial officers' dress sword. Nelson's Column, presented in 1969 by the Navy League of Britain to the Navy League of Canada to be awarded to the most proficient corps in the country, will be forwarded to the 1972 winners.

Brig.-Gen. G. R. Coffin, following his inspection tour on Jude 5 of this year, said the corps had done an "excellent job of work with their accommodation and their boats. They have no drill space to speak of and do not concentrate on this aspect.

"Their drill, however, is adequate.

"Dress and appearance of the cadets was very good. The sailing program and the band appear to be outstanding both as regard extent of involvement by the cadets and calibre of performance.

"While I am not a good judge of this, I suspect that this corps may have the best brass and reed band of any Sea Cadet Corps in Canada."

R. J. Ord, chairman of the United Community Services, of which the cadets are a member agency, spoke highly of the corps when he presented the trophy.

"I think, then that the fact we can carry on and be an efficient company, is something to be proud of."

Mayor J. Russell Scott, who presented a second award . . . the Hartley Hall Award for the most proficient corps in Ontario, said "all citizens of the area should be proud. It is really something to be sea cadets and something else to be known across the province."

Barry Bevan, commanding officer of RCSCC Quinte, recalling the hundreds of former Quinte cadets, remarked "in a way, they've all helped towards this.

"They have done something few other corps can do. There have been only four other cadet corps who have taken this award away from maritime corps."

Activities include fall and spring sailing programs, winter camping, boater and driver safety, and pilots' courses.

Dog vs. Car: $300 Damage

Even collision with a dog can be costly these days.

Last night Shirley Wickea, Frankford, was driving her 1971 model south of Highway 14, a mile south of Frankford when a dog ran across the road. The driver didn't swerve, say police.

OPP's estimate of damage: $300.

Buyers Negotiating For Salmon Pt. Land

By MARGARET HAVLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Negotiations for the purchase of more than 800 acres of farm land near Salmon Point now are under way through a local real estate company on behalf of an unknown buyer or buyers who may plan to develop a trailer camp.

Mrs. F. L. McConnell, whose husband has agreed to sell 259 acres of waterfront property through Frank Real Estate Ltd., said yesterday that a trailer camp was mentioned in papers signed in the sale agreement.

She added that the land parcel sold by her husband included 1,250 feet of shoreline property. Other acreage is which the real estate company has displayed interest has a marshy front suitable for the location of a marina.

Mrs. McConnell explained that sale of the property is now in progress but down payments will not be received until February.

Mrs. H. McCaulay said Wednesday that her husband had received an offer from a real estate company for a parcel of land but he has not agreed to sell until more particulars are known concerning mention of recreation in the purchase agreement.

A third Salmon Point farmer's wife confirmed that she and her husband have agreed to sell land to a real estate firm.

One municipal official who preferred to remain anonymous said yesterday that there is "not any doubt that it (the land sale) is for a trailer camp".

He observed that at least one Prince Edward fuel oil supplier has been asked to quote his prices for "considerable quantities of fuel oil" to be used in heating small buildings. Mention also was made in the request of a possible 1,500 trailers later to be located at the site.

A telephone line also has been connected to a local switchboard to answer a large number of expected queries according to the municipal official.

He added that he does not know if the trailers would provide year-round residences or simply be mobile summer homes for visiting tourists.

"It will be the sort of place with a few more amenities than pulling in to a piece of ground," he predicted.

Maladjusted Society

Problem youth and problem parents came through with startling clarity during a discussion by interested parties in Belleville the other day. Our report of the proceedings indicated that troubled youngsters and maladjusted parents are to be found across the whole spectrum of society — involving "the people who live in the houses at the top of the hill as well as those at the bottom," as Bruce Kerr, director of the Family and Children's Services for Hastings County put it.

One thing that is clear, aside from the fact that no concrete solutions to these various social difficulties were arrived at, is the extent of the problems facing counselling personnel. Police Chief Crosbie pointed out that the two after-care workers responsible for follow-ups on children discharged from training schools have a case load of 60 to 70 each "and can't give adequate care."

Chief Crosbie had a suggestion that has merit; send such youngsters to a co-operative living centre in another community and bring theirs to Belleville. If they all end up at home base again, well they may have gained something from the experience.

But of course there are no easy answers. For the authorities are dealing with young-sters in many cases who are psychologically-mixed-up that little can be done for them.

Meanwhile the anti-social aspects of such behavior manifest themselves in such idiocy as the damage wrought by vandals to Christmas parade equipment at a Bleecker auditorium. Such is the measure also of the damage to young minds in our midst.

Community Interests

Whenever someone is heard speaking of "the best interests of the community" it should be remembered that such interests vary from person to person and group to group.

Only by the full working out of the democratic process, preferably involving not only the views of municipal councils but the public at large, can we arrive at a proper distillation of just what these "best interests" are. This is the essence of participatory democracy as it has come to be called.

Belleville currently is undergoing a period of healthy growth and it is a time for public awareness of community needs. Housing, including apartment construction, is one issue which has been to the fore of late. Industrial progress, and recreational and cultural needs are other areas of discussion. We see, for example, that council has given tentative approval to the library extension. Final sanction is conditional on availability of funds but city manager Reynolds believes that with next year's increase in assessment from Ontario Municipal Board approval of the necessary increased capital works quota will be forthcoming.

In all these matters we need public awareness and increased preparedness of individuals to make their views known.

Deseronto Vote

Mrs. Dorothy McCullough of Deseronto lent some needed sparkle to the municipal vote in that town by running against incumbent Mayor James Sharpe. The latter won handsomely, with 470 votes to his opponent's 134 but we're sure that with Mrs. McCullough's reason for running.

"Democracy," said Mrs. McCullough, "is not served by acclamation. I was happy to offer the electors an alternative. . ." Moreover Mrs. McCullough, a three-year veteran of council, is a person who takes a lively interest in events both at home and abroad, as witness her statement that she was somewhat like Mrs. Golda Meir in a cartoon receiving a toy airplane from President Nixon. She was looking for something a little bigger votewise.

Nevertheless Mayor Sharpe retained his office convincingly. This is indicative not only of his popularity but of the confidence the voters of Deseronto have in him and in his administrative ability. Deseronto is in good hands.

Princess' Award

Princess Anne, bouffant hairdo shining and earrings sparkling, looked understandably pleased after being named Sportswoman of the Year by the British Writers Association. A big smile framed her face as she clutched her trophy — a horse and rider on a stand — at the ceremony in London.

The award doubtless means a lot to this young woman who is a princess by birth but also a person of determination and character who wants to be known for other reasons besides her royal blood. The award should also enhance her chances of representing Britain in the Olympics.

Washington Endangers Its Claims to Neutrality

India Claims U.S. Biased in Favor of Pakistan

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's administration, entering something of a foreign policy honeymoon since it started opening windows to the East, has now begun encountering serious opposition at home to its posture on the India-Pakistan war.

The criticism has developed an increasingly angry tone in recent days, as administration spokesmen have consistently singled out India for particular blame in the escalating war.

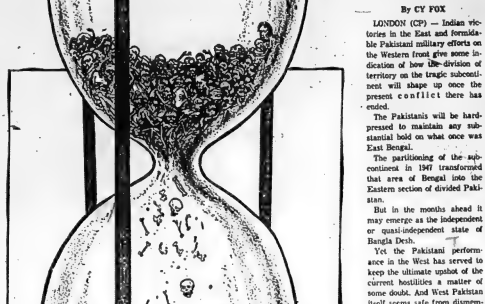
But the United States decision, first, to halt all munitions and arms sales to India and, later, to suspend nearly $80 million in general economic aid are being widely viewed as a continuation of a favoritism to Pakistan which has been alleged since trouble began in East Pakistan nine months ago.

The criticism is coming from quarters which have traditionally viewed President Nixon's basic philosophy on foreign affairs with suspicion.

Their opposition had been effectively disarmed when the president, in a series of bold initiatives, created the way separating the U.S. and China while at the same time expanding negotiations designed to lower hostility between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.



In both cases, Nixon put behind him a tradition of unbending anti-Communism and adopted policies advocated by his opponents.

The administration's stance on South Asia has been expounded mainly by press spokesmen. In an apparent attempt to get the American message across without directly involving the president or his senior advisers.

The state department's press spokesman began the criticism by saying India bears a "major responsibility" for the war with Pakistan. The president's spokesman was followed up with similar comments, including Monday's remark that the administration regrets that India is "using force against the sovereign territory of a neighbor."

Among the administration's opponents here, one view seems dominant—that India is blameless in the dispute, but that to assign blame to India alone is to oversimplify a complex issue.

Critics contend that the Nixon position will drive India into even further reliance on the Soviet Union, with whom the Indians recently concluded a mutual-aid agreement.

Territorial Changes Anticipated From India-Pakistan Hostilities

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Indian victories in the East and formidable Pakistani military efforts on the Western front give some indication of how the division of territory on the single subcontinent will shape up once the present conflict there has ended.

The Pakistanis will be hard-pressed to maintain any substantial hold on what once was East Bengal.

The partitioning of the subcontinent in 1947 transformed that area of Bengal into the Eastern section of divided Pakistan.

But in the months ahead it may emerge as the independent or quasi-independent state of Bangla Desh.

Yet the Pakistani performance in the West has served to keep the ultimate status of the current hostilities a matter of some doubt. And West Pakistan itself seems safe from dismemberment.

Faced with the general situation, one British military expert declined to say that the Indians would definitely win the current war. But he added that it was hard to see them actually losing to Pakistan, when the military scene as a whole was taken into consideration.

The Indian strategy seems to involve an attempt at scoring a total triumph on the Eastern front before concentrating prime attention on the situation in the West.

In any case, the entire crisis has been handled badly on the United Nations, which has managed little more than a General Assembly resolution calling for a ceasefire.

Many observers have been thinking back to the 1940s and 1950s for a comparable state of stalemate at the UN in the face of a menacing world crisis.

At that time, the Russian veto was much in evidence when big international problems turned up on the Security Council agenda.

The veto remains a big feature of the council's deliberations, with the Russians ruthlessly bringing it to bear on the bitter word battles generated by the Indo-Pakistani hostilities.

The difference is that now the main forum for the council chamber is between Peking and Moscow rather than, as of old, between Russia and the United States.

Government and Auto Insurance

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Government automobile insurance has never been as potentially close in Ontario as it is at this time.

The Canadian Underwriters Association has announced that rates are expected to increase an average 8.5 per cent and up to as high as 10 per cent in the province.

This comes soon after a much-publicized CBC survey which found that 68 per cent of Canadians would favor government auto insurance.

No matter what its inclination, any government will find it hard to resist the arguments and pressures that these developments will breed.

If the consequence should be a government plan in Ontario you will have to say one of two things about it.

Either that it is the proper course for government. Or the insurance industry has been broken badly in presenting its case.

There can be no question that if it has a case the industry has done a poor job of putting it across.

There is really only one question that is of material significance in the public versus private insurance question.

This is that apparently much more of the dollar goes out in overhead in private insurance than in public programs.

Figures one gets differ. The variation seems to be better than 80 per cent of premium dollars paid out in public plans, such as Saskatchewan's, against under 70 per cent in Ontario's private plans.

And the insurance industry never seems to try and tackle this problem.

It fights public insurance with attacks on "socialism," by trying to show that the boys really doesn't get as much in public plans and by strenuous electioneering.

But never, at least to our observer's knowledge, has it tried to reply to the apparent fact that its overhead is much higher.

The insurance people might learn something from the forest industry in the province.

The industry also has been under public pressure as we all know. Professionals have attacked it and much public sympathy was against it.

But it has responded intelligently by putting forward good spokesmen who have not argued with emotions and presented reasoned positions of their side of the case.

As an example J. W. McNair, a company president from Nova Scotia Pulp in a Kitchener speech talked about shore line protection.

He didn't argue that shore lines shouldn't be protected. But he did point out that trees eventually die. And if they aren't cutlled, if there is absolutely no cutting, then eventually the shore line is worse than if there were no protection.

And it is a type of public defence, that hasn't been evident in the insurance industry.

Presidential Politics

The Times

Can we credit the whole series of meetings to a grand design on President Nixon's part? That would be too flattering. Political necessity rather than carefully considered choice has more often dictated events. These last four months — since President Nixon announced that he would be going to Peking — have revealed deep shiftings of forces in the world that remove America from the political eminence it was assumed and was readily acknowledged ten years ago and more. The same government of forces, as countries grew in new strength and as new groupings are formed, disturb the parallel belief — once fashionable — that the two superpowers essentially control the world. Diplomacy has become a three-sided affair. There was talk of a general "settlement" or at least it was thought by many that Russia and America could reach a "solution" of their common problems. Such a bipolar view seems to have gone forever. Main power fields of power remain. What there will rather be, among all the powers, is an unending process of diplomacy with many parties and centres of policy, perhaps several new surprises and some shifts of alignment from time to time. That is the picture that has emerged more clearly since President Nixon sprang his surprise.

Multi-Million Dollar Great Lakes Program

Snags Remain in Way of Anti-Pollution Agreement

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The agreement was to be, in the words of a Canadian cabinet minister, "a model for other countries."

It may live up to that advance billing eventually. Meanwhile, more than five months later, it has also begun to look like a model of a different sort—demonstrating the pitfalls other nations can expect in tackling the thorny new question of international pollution.

Environment Minister Jack Davis's prophetic words described a multi-billion-dollar program involving Canada and the United States, designed to save the Great Lakes from a cancerous growth of pollution.

They were uttered in Washington last June 10, after a year of preliminary work and a day of cabinet-level talks, the agreement lacked only some fine-point details before it would be ready for signing.

It still had them in might be completed by early autumn, or at the latest by year's end. But autumn has passed without agreement and sources close to the negotiations speak increasingly of the possible need for several more months of work.

Technical difficulties and the problems of financing are both said to be behind the unexpected delay.

The decision by Canada and the United States to make a wide-ranging and concerted effort to clean up the Great Lakes was not after conclusions between the governments and after the International Joint Commission investigated urgent measures to halt a drastic deterioration in the quality of Lakes Erie and Ontario.

The delay comes despite unrelenting pressure from Ottawa to conclude an agreement. The Trudeau government apparently feels an accord would ease some of the criticism it has been under at home about deteriorating relations with the United States.

As a result, American negotiators have become particularly insistent that the U.S. government is still firmly committed to realizing agreement and that branches involved in the negotiations are working hard to see it through.

"It is definitely American government policy to conclude an agreement," one U.S. negotiator said. "It may appear that we're dragging our feet, but that's not our intention."

He volunteered the information that American officials working on technical details of the accord are "under considerable flack" to complete their work because of pressure from Canada and, to a lesser degree, from Nixon administration officials who are also anxious to see the political rewards of a pioneering agreement.

—Final agreement is all but complete on a preamble to the accord, setting out the broad principles the two nations endorse, as well as on a number of annexes which outline specific sources of pollution and methods to control them.

—One annex governing control of phosphates has encountered formidable obstacles—with the United States changing its tune from a ban on phosphate-bearing laundry detergents and being in simultaneously with strict new budgetary controls which strike particularly hard at its new policy.

—Two other annexes dealing with the discharge of wastes from lake ships and construction standards for such vessels have proven to be far more complicated than was originally foreseen and negotiators are still trying to produce workable controls.

—Treasury side seems discouraged, however.

One source who keeps a close watching brief on negotiations said the two countries "have given themselves a tremendously complicated than was originally foreseen and negotiators are still trying to produce workable controls.

—Treasury side seems discouraged, however.

One source who keeps a close watching brief on negotiations said the two countries "have given themselves a tremendously complicated job in getting a solid agreement."

Informed sources say the final agreement seems likely to contain a number of "escape" clauses.

The two sides will probably agree on certain standards of water quality, with Canada insisting on a ban on phosphates and the U.S. on phosphate-free detergents. Thoroughly-treated sewage-treatment facilities which remove phosphates.

Having decided on this approach, however, the American side was entrenched by the pure-handing Office of Management and Budget to produce detailed estimates of the additional cost Canada is insisting on an almost total ban on phosphates in detergents, a position recommended by the International Joint Commission a year ago and not altered since.

But American authorities recently reversed their previous qualified opposition to phosphates and recommended instead that phosphates be used in detergents until a safe alternative is discovered. A ban, they argued, the U.S. island, several American states and countries plan to introduce.

Informed sources say the final agreement seems likely to contain a number of "escape" clauses.

Having decided on this approach, however, the American side was entrenched by the pure-handing Office of Management and Budget to produce detailed estimates of the additional cost involved—which could reach hundreds of millions of dollars.

The result has apparently been a nightmare for the U.S. environmental protection administration, whose employees are saddled with the job, and for the politicians on the international level.

Difficulties surrounding controls over sewage-treating plants and recommended installation of phosphate-free detergents until a safe alternative is discovered. A ban, they argued, the U.S. island, several American states and countries plan to introduce.

Still another consideration is that Canada has to do with the circumstances under which the final agreement will be signed.

President Nixon is scheduled to visit Peking next spring—no date has been set—and the signing would be the sort of "historic" occasion he likes.

However, there is apparently pressure from some departments on both sides to get the agreement signed as soon as possible, so the long-overdue battle to save the lakes can get moving without further delay.

Rink Remains Open

Mysterious Illnesses Baffle Gas Experts

Officials of the Industrial Hygiene Branch of the Ontario health department in Toronto will investigate the rink the first of next week, and in the meantime all doors in the building have been ordered left open while the rink is in use.

Only people using the ice surface have been affected, says recreation director Lorne Williams. Five complaints have reached his office.

Board of Education officials say no complaints have come to them from the bulloods of school children using the arena for skating as part of the physical education program in local schools.

First complaint reached the recreation committee Tuesday morning when a city physician reported that he had become ill while skating in the west end arena. He said he detected an odor and his complaint led to an immediate investigation for leaking gas.

On Tuesday, a minor hockey referee fainted during a game and three players reported feeling ill. The last report of illness was received about 7 p.m. Tuesday night and since then a number of officials have gone over the arena looking for possible sources of the alleged odors.

The smells in the arena have been described as everything from raw concrete odor to rubber, fibreglass and coal gas.

Recreation committee officials immediately called in city engineer Wilbur Purcell, the air management branch of the provincial department of the environment, Lakeland Natural Gas Company, the city fire department with their gas detecting gear, and the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

No gas was detected and no reason was found for closing the building to the public.

The arena equipment is operated by electricity and ammonia is used in the refrigeration system .No ammonia odor has been detected.

County Employees To Get Raises

Non-union employees of the county of Hastings are to receive an average 7.6 per cent increase in their salaries.

The increase for department heads, clerical staff, registered nurses, supervisory personnel and maintenance staffs was approved yesterday by county council as the report of the personnel committee was approved.

To a question from a council member, committee chairman reeve George Lyons of Deseronto said the increases were not 7.6 per cent across the board but was the percentage total of the pay raises.

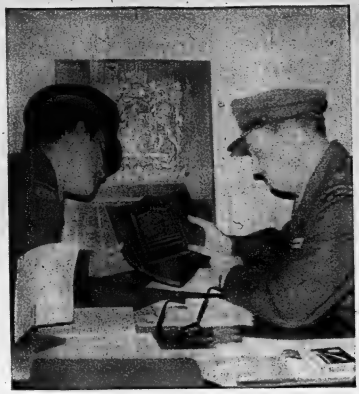
Taken into consideration were promotions not previously recognized, merit increases and cost of living increases.

As a result, some employees had received more, and others less.

Gas Rate Decision Imminent

TORONTO (Special) — An Ontario Energy Board decision on an application by Northern and Central Gas Corporation for rate raises is expected in a week to 10 days, says A. B. Jackson, vice-chairman of the board.

Northern and Central Gas applied Monday for board approval of new rates which show slight increases for industrial and commercial users and holds the line for most residential users.



Industrial and commercial firm service for small operations such as shops, beauty parlors, and motels will increase up to 3.5 per cent. Residential rates in the Eastern Ontario service area reflect a three per cent increase because of billing changes. The company told the board it has eliminated the summer rates and added a $2.00 monthly minimum on the standardize billing.

Residential rates in Northern Ontario in the northern and western regions remain unchanged.

Peter F. Scully, of Toronto, counsel for the company told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer the rates are in line with the decision of the energy board to allow additional earnings of $150,000.

The company asked for additional earnings exceeding $1 million in its original application last year. The earnings were to come from a seven per cent residential rate increase in Northern Ontario and a three per cent increase in Eastern Ontario.

Opposition to the rate increase came from more than 30 municipalities. There was no opposition to the revised rates presented this week.

What It's Like to Be the Best

Ducks Came with House

It's something worth looking at when you're presented with a trophy saying you are a member of the best army cadet corps in the province. Cadet Lt. Steven Bone (left) and Major A. A. Cunningham are shown here looking and thinking just that. The Strathcona Shield was presented to the corps last week by Major F. T. Nesbitt of CFB Trenton.

But maybe not everyone would want the bonus given the Edward Langs — three ducks.

The ducks were on the Redersville Road property containing the roomy ranch-style house purchased by the Langs when they moved to the Belleville area from British Columbia last summer.

Mr. Lang — an installer with a city glass company — says that watching the ducks during summer months wadding around the property and wading in the two farm ponds — provides the family with much amusement.

"We got a real charge out of them," says Mrs. Lang.

At first, after the house purchase they were expecting the former owner to return and pick them up.

"We weren't looking forward to the day when he would," she says — and the owner didn't.

"They (the ducks) are real characters. They're quite interesting to watch. They have a communications system all their own."

Winter is a slightly different story. The ducks must be taken indoors. They're given shelter in the garage attached to the home.

The Langs also have christened their unexpected household pets: Winkin, Blinkin and Nod.

It is taking a while, however for the ducks to accustom themselves to their new owners.

Mr. Lang describes their friendly relationships as "half and half".

Hasty Pee Cadets Tops in Province

The Hastings and Prince Edward Cadet Corps has been honored as the outstanding cadet corps of its size in the province of Ontario.

The Strathcona Shield, instituted in 1967, was presented to the corps last week in an exercise presided over by Major F. T. Nesbitt of CFB Trenton.

The recipient of the Strathcona shield is in competition with every other corps in the province on a point basis. The most points that can be amassed over the year by each corps is 1,300.

Through strong attendance, administration, extra social functions handled by the corps, they were able to acquire 91.4 per cent of the possible points.

There are four such shields of which two go to high school cadet corps and the other two are awarded to public groups.

This was the first such win for the Belleville corps, and the shield (valued at $600) will remain the property of the corps until next year.

Unique Map Finds Home

MARMORA (Special) — A rare map, believed to be the only one of its kind in existence, has found its way into the public archives in Toronto.

The provincial government's new acquisition came into its possession in part through the Marmora Herald and a Smiths Falls man who-good of the map in this village's weekly newspaper.

The map, dated 1866 and showing the Village of Marmora in large letters, was owned by Mrs. Manley Lavender of Marmora. It came into her possession on the death of an uncle, James Wilson of British Columbia.

The authenticity of the map was verified by officials of the archives in Ottawa and an article and picture of the find appeared in the Marmora Herald.

A Smiths Falls man read the story and notified Hugh F. MacMillan, liaison officer for the department of records and archives in Toronto. Mrs. Lavender said him the map for a nominal sum so that it could be preserved for the benefit of everyone.

Mr. MacMillan travels thousands of miles every year searching for significant old letters and documents descriptive of their period.

He travelled 1,200 miles in Britain last year collecting Canadiana and plans to return this year.

Mr. MacMillan has asked the people of Marmora to be on the lookout for valuable documents and to notify him or say find. He hopes to return to Marmora in the spring to address a gathering of historically minded people.

Mowat Blasts Canada Council

Dressed to "kill" for his appearance before the Ontario royal commission on book publishing in Toronto Thursday, author Farley Mowat describ-ed the Canadi Council as a secretive, bureaucratic, ingrown club dispensing "spare rib" assistance to incompetents, dilettantes and "tourists looking for holidays abroad".

His attack, made "as viciously as I know how" at a special hearing of the Ontario royal commission on book publishing, drew both support and criticism from a group of 10 other Canadian writers attending.

Al Purdy Disagrees

Mowat 'Vicious' with Canada Council

TORONTO (CP) — Author Farley Mowat described the Canada Council Thursday as a secretive, bureaucratic, ingrown club dispensing "spare rib" assistance to incompetents, dilettantes and "tourists looking for holidays abroad."

His attack, made "as viciously as I know how" at a special hearing of the Ontario royal commission on book publishing, drew both support and criticism from a group of 10 other Canadian writers attending.

"In my mind," said writer Jack Grey, "the Canada Council is perhaps the most enlightened, the fairest and one of the best groups of its type in the world."

Mr. Mowat recommended the council's governing and selective body be "fired in total" and replaced primarily by working writers and artists, plus a few creative critics.

Drawing a mixed response from the audience of about 150, he said that under the council's system of distributing grants even a Newfoundland dog could qualify with three letters of reference.

The author prefaced his remarks by saying he had never received a Canada Council grant, does not want one and was "absolutely certain" he would never receive one after voicing his criticism.

He said the council should be divided into two distinct branches, creative arts and academic, should be given more funds and should open its operations to the public.

Poet Al Purdy, a past recipient of council grants, disagreed sharply with Mr. Mowat, suggesting the author was ill-informed on council operations. Author Hugh Garner also disagreed. Writer Max Braithwaite agreed "almost entirely" with Mr. Mowat.

Numerous suggestions for improvement in the Canadian writing climate were put forward at the hearing, one a suggestion by Mr. Braithwaite that a Canadian publishing Corporation be established and operated similar to the CBC.

"This is a drastic solution," he said. "But we have a drastic problem. I think we may be the only country in the world that depends on another country for its culture."

"If I were a young writer today," said Mr. Mowat, "I think I would get drunk, cut my throat or join IBM. All three are about equal in value."

The three-member commission, headed by Richard Robinson, sat quietly through the 1½-hour hearing as the authors made their comments.

Convict Who Started Kingston Riot Says Guards Hit Him at Millhaven

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — William Knight, a Millhaven penitentiary convict, told a county court jury Thursday that he triggered the four-day riot last April at Kingston penitentiary.

He said he seized guard Terrance Decker, punched him once, and held him.

Lawyer Stuart Willoughby of Kingston, representing Mr. Decker, asked Knight: "Did you have guards Grant Snider and Bernard Evans, asked Knight:

"It was you who grabbed the first hostage?"

Knight replied. "That's right, sir."

Mr. Willoughby continued: "So you started that riot at Kingston penitentiary?"

Knight repeated: "That's right, sir."

He also testified that prisoner guard Snider struck him on the head with a black jack when he was being transferred to Millhaven from Kingston penitentiary.

Knight said that when he and other prisoners arrived at Millhaven and got out of a bus, they were shot at the loading dock by Snider.

Snider struck him, Knight said, causing his head to bleed.

Knight testified that after being struck, he was forced to run the gauntlet of 10 to 15 guards lining a prison corridor while the guards struck him.

When he had run the gauntlet, he was met by Evans, the other accused guard, who grabbed him by the shirt, knocked him against the wall and on to the floor, he testified.

The other prisoners involved are Jean Hagen, Brian Beauchage, Norman McCaud, Chico Santiano and William Crosby.

All eight guards, still employed by the penitentiary service but assigned to jobs away from prisoners, pleaded not guilty to the charges before Judge Gerald F. Smith of Napanee.

Crown Attorney Clayton Powell of Toronto, who will prosecute at each of the trials, said the first trial will last until the end of next week.

The other trials will not be under way until January.

Unemployed Can Assign Cheques

OTTAWA (CP) — Beginning next month, unemployment insurance recipients will be permitted to assign their cheques to welfare offices, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Thursday.

Assignment of cheques would mean that unemployed persons could get welfare office assistance even if unemployment cheques were delayed.

The unemployed person for the first time would be allowed to make an assignment in advance that his cheque would go to the welfare office rather than being delivered to him personally. The welfare office, knowing that it would receive the cheque in due time even if there was a delay, thus would be ready to advance food or other aid immediately.

The unemployed person thus would not have to undergo any hardship while awaiting arrival of his cheque.

Women's Lib Wins Points Among Lords

LONDON (CP) — Women's lib reached the august precincts of the House of Lords this week and the result was a small victory—in principle, anyway—for equality of the sexes in some male-dominated sections of Britain's civil service.

Opening a debate on the employment of women in the civil service, Lord Shackleton, son of the famous Antarctic explorer Sir Ernest Shackleton, spoke from the Labor benches against old-fashioned prejudices which, he said, kept women out of too many jobs.

"While I am not going to be drawn into discussion of women's lib, I am bound to say it is a great mistake for anyone to write off the underlying case which has been put forward by Germaine Greer and others," said Lord Shackleton, referring to an Australian-born writer and university lecturer now working in Britain.

Lord Shackleton, supporting a proposal to open all civil service jobs to both men and women, said industry had been far too slow to recognize the "undoubted case for changes in attitude" and although the civil service was ahead of most organizations in this respect, there was still an old-fashioned view.

From the Conservative side, Lord Jellicoe, leader of the House and lord privy seal, said the government is accepting a report from the civil service department recommending that all jobs in the non-industrial civil service should be open to both sexes.

This means, he indicated, that such hitherto exclusively-male posts as deputy receiver of wrecks and trainbearer to the lord chancellor may well be open to women, though in practice they are more likely to seek other opportunities, such as becoming cartographic surveyors.

Lord Jellicoe, son of the First World War admiral who commanded the British fleet at the Battle of Jutland, said he hoped discussions going on with the civil service unions on the recommendations would be agreed shortly and that the report itself would become "something of a national landmark in our national attitude towards the employment of women."

As well as removing sex barriers, Lord Jellicoe said, the government would adopt another proposal in the report—to grant married women unpaid leave of up to three years.

A third recommendation is for civil service departments to use wide discretion in granting paid and unpaid special leave for urgent domestic affairs.

Lord Jellicoe said the government is exploring departments to discover providing more full-time jobs for women —"Meanwhile we must try to provide part-time jobs for those whose domestic responsibilities prevent them from working fulltime."

Baroness Summerskill, a former Labor minister and a noted fighter for female rights long before the cause acquired its present impetus, remarked to the assembled peers and peeresses: "Women's lib might well be proud of you all today."

Monetary Experts Seen Using Patch Repairs

By KEVIN DOYLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Scrambling to restore order in the international system of trade and finance, world monetary experts appear to have set aside earlier plans for fundamental reforms in favor of quick-if temporary-solutions.

Many officials, including Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau, now expect a possible realignment of major currencies and removal of the troublesome United States import surcharge before Christmas.

Trudeau said after a recent Washington meeting with President Nixon he hoped for such a realignement at a meeting next week of the 10 leading non-Communist industrial countries, the Group of Ten.

But many observers argue that solutions which seem to be taking shape will do little to promote lasting stability in the world economy.

The current problems arose when the U.S. imposed the 10-per-cent surcharge and suspended the dollar's gold convertibility Aug. 15 in an attempt to alleviate a chronic balance of-payments deficit.

The Group of Ten met in London within weeks of the U.S. move amid countless statements by finance ministers that long-term settlements must be sought to correct the U.S. imbalance, a stable currency transactions and eliminate similar problems in future.

But at a September meeting in Washington and a Rome conference earlier this month, the ministers appeared to have abandoned, for the time being at least, their earlier long-term efforts.

Some experts, including several prominent economists, now say the vague outlines of a possible solution which appears to be taking shape offer no indication of any fundamental reforms in the system.

They believe any settlement which may merge from a meeting of the group in Washington next week is likely to contain the following points:

—The Japanese yen would be revalued by 16 per cent or more, the West German mark by at least 12 per cent and the French franc, the Italian lira and the British pound sterling by about five per cent.

—The Canadian dollar would likely continue to float in relation to that of the U.S.

—The U.S. would not object to International Monetary Fund declaring—as it has the authority to do—that the new rates have the practical effect of increasing the dollar price of gold by about five per cent.

—Consequently, the franc, sterling and the lira would not change their price against gold since their revaluation would be offset by the effective devaluation of the dollar.

—Thus, the lira, franc and sterling would be called "pivotal currencies" and the devaluation of the dollar could be referred to in terms of these currencies without any reference to gold.

This plan would have the effect of bringing about an effective devaluation of the dollar which the U.S. has said it is willing to consider, while avoiding a congressional debate on the contentious gold question.

The U.S. has also insisted on a reduction of trade barriers and a greater sharing of European defence costs in return for elimination of the surcharge.

Rothschild Sees Great Euromart

QUEBEC (CP) — With its friends in the European Common Market, Great Britain will constitute part of a union which will rival the United States and any other commercial forces in the world, Baron Edmund de Rothchild said Thursday.

The British financier said his country's entry into the Common Market would bring about numerous changes.

"But whatever the changes are, our trade with other countries of the world will increase," he told members of the Quebec Chamber de Commerce.

The president of the Rothschild Bank of London said Canada will be trading with a more prosperous Britain. Everything would be better for everybody than had been the case with a less prosperous Britain outside the Common Market.

Modelling Is Fun!

Janet Kerr, modelling a black velvet hostess gown gets admiring and appreciative looks from a group of men at the luncheon fashion show held on Thursday afternoon at the Four Seasons Hotel. The show, a new concept in Belleville, was geared largely to a male audience and the styles were meant to be Christmas gift suggestions for their wives and friends.

Fashions for Christmas Giving Are Modelled At Men's Luncheon

Setting a precedent in Belleville was the luncheon fashion show meant mostly for men (though women were not unwelcome) held on Thursday afternoon at the Four Seasons Hotel. The dining room and buffet room were packed with large groups of men and a small sprinkling of women who enjoyed drinks, lunches and the sight of four glamorous models parading across the two rooms, weaving in and out among the tables and displaying a wide range of fashions.

The models were Sandra Saunders, directress and now owner of the London of England Modelling Academy and three of her students, Janet Kerr, Sue Morrison and Laverne Goulet. Commentator Pam Jackson, PRO for Four Seasons, pointed out that though these business men's luncheon shows were popular in Toronto, they were altogether a new concept in Belleville. She added that this was a painless way of Christmas shopping for all the men present as all the clothes, sheer, wigs and jewellery displayed were specifically meant to be gift suggestions for the women in their lives. At one stage, a model went from table to table with a tray filled with bottles of perfume, so that guests could have further ideas to please their women in their Christmas gift lists.

All the fashions displayed were glamorous, ultra-feminine and elegant, with no element of the weird and the way out. They ranged from glamorous cocktail dresses and loungewear from McNabbs luxurious fur coats and stoles from Ashley furriers, elegant footwear from Freedelles, jewellery from Coles and Ron Keel and wigs from Bali-Hi hair dressing salon. The perfumes were provided by Shopper's Drug Mart.

One of the highlights of the show at least from the point of view of the audience was a sleek black cat suit worn by Sandra Saunders as a dramatic background for a glittering array of jewellery she displayed.

Talking to the models after the show, it was evident that they were tremendously pleased with the audience reaction. "Shows like this are fun," said Sandra Saunders as she took off her make-up in the dressing room. The other models remarked that many men had asked them questions about the prices of the attire where available and what sizes they came in as they paraded close to the tables. Another of these shows will be held on Dec. 16.

Festive Wear

Spring Clothes More Feminine

Two designers at the American Designer Showings on Tuesday reassured customers that their clothes are not shockers.

Adele Simpson's day costumes were said to have "calm straight lines," presumably for the clam, straight woman. Small-print silk dresses were matched with coats. This year, everything matches something.

For evening, the bareback Oriental print dresses are matched with modest cover up shawls. There were pastel taffeta evening skirts with chiffon shirts. Taffeta was billed as the new fashion love of The Beautiful People.

Miss Simpson designs her clothes so a woman can step into them — they don't have to be pulled over the head. They go front or back.

Horticulturists Enjoy Yule Meeting

The recent meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society was held in the form of a potluck supper in St. Thomas' parish hall. Master of ceremonies at the event was Al Gardiner.

Special guest for the evening was Phil Dodds, president of the 45,000 member Ontario Horticultural Society who was introduced in humorous vein by the local president, Larry Johnson.

Mr. Dodds dealt in particular with the annual convention which is to be held in June at Queens which 1,000 delegates are expected to attend. He stressed the role the Belleville Society could play and told of the program arranged. He urged participation from as many members as possible and congratulated the society for showing a membership in excess of 200, but felt this number could be doubled by diligent campaigning.

District director Bob Patterson was introduced by the chairman and expressed thanks for being re-elected to lead the district clubs in hosting the convention.

Miss Helen Sulman contributed a Christmas selection and Mrs. Betty Gardiner led in the singing of Christmas carols with piano accompaniment by Cecil Becker. This was interspersed by the reading of passages from the Christmas story taken from the Bible.

It was noted that the annual meeting would be held January 18 with the election of officers.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can fears be headed off before they 'take'?

YES, and it is worth every effort to prevent fears from taking hold, if that is possible. Fear of darkness in a child, for instance, may be suffocated by his parents, who can then take steps to avoid it. As Sherwood L. Washburn, one of the well-known anthropologists contributing to "Anthropological Perspective Education" (Basic Books), says: "Fears are easily learned and hard to extinguish."

Is romance a good cure for boredom?

THERE'S nothing like romance for excitement. It puts spring in a person's step and it can change his or her entire outlook. Yet romance doesn't do it all by itself. The person must help by being willing to be caught up in the spirit of a romantic moment. It is asking too much of romance, though, to expect it to cure a chronic case of boredom, since the bored person is unlikely to attract anyone that would be romantically interested in him

Does recognizing guilt ease the conscience?

RARELY; and that seems to be the crux of the problem when guilt interferes with an individual's ability to function properly. Once he admits he has been guilty of some variation or combination in behavior, a person then has trouble trying to "even the score." Too many times, just to be on the safe side, he will over-compensate for his guilt, and then he will feel even guiltier because he may believe that he has now made a fool of himself

Family Cooking

Fill the Cookie Jar with Holiday Goodies

By ALICE DENBOFF

This is the time of year when many of us go rummaging through the catch-all kitchen drawer looking for those oh-so-good recipes for spiced cookies that we copied on a piece of pink paper (or was it yellow?) or clipped from the newspaper's food columns.

Well, in case you haven't such a treasure trove or are not for something new, here are recipes for delightful cookies, all smelling deliciously spicy.

Cream the spices with the shortening-sugar mixture when making cookies or cakes so that the lovely aroma will be distributed evenly throughout the mixture.

For best results, the holiday baker should go over the spice shelf and throw out any spices that have lost their aroma and flavor. Spices are inexpensive and their flavor—or lack of it—can make or break a dish into which you have placed your time, energy and costly ingredients.

One more reminder—keep spice containers tightly covered and away from direct sunlight and heat of the stove.

JELLIED FILLED CUTOUT COOKIES

1¾ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
¾ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1 egg
Flavored jelly for filling

Sift together flour, salt and baking powder.

In a large bowl, cream together butter, sugar and nutmeg. Beat in vanilla and egg. Gradually stir in flour mixture.

On a lightly floured board, roll dough one-eighth inch thick. Cut with 1¼-inch round cookie cutter. In centre of half the cookies, cut a hole half-inch in diameter.

Place cookies on lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 degrees F. seven minutes or until lightly browned around edges. Spread jelly on cookies without hole in centre; top with remaining cookies. About 36 cookies in all.

SPICED ORANGE MERINGUE SQUARES

1½ cups cake flour, sifted
¾ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
½ teaspoon ground mace
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg, divided
1½ cups sugar, divided
2 eggs, separated
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
2/3 cup orange juice
1-18 teaspoon salt

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt.

In large mixing bowl, cream butter, mace and one-eighth teaspoon of the nutmeg, creaming until light and fluffy. Gradually add three-quarter cup of the sugar. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add orange peel. Alternately, add sifted dry ingredients and orange juice, beating smooth after each addition. Turn into two greased 8 x 8-inch pans.

In a small bowl, add salt to egg whites and beat until foamy. Gradually add remaining one-half cup sugar and remaining one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg and beat until stiff peaks are formed. Spread evenly on cake batter. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 25 minutes. Turn out on racks to cool. Cut into 33 two-inch squares.

NUTMEG WALNUT COOKIES

2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; set aside.

In large mixing bowl, cream butter; gradually add sugar and nutmeg, beating well. Add next three ingredients; beat until blended. Gradually add sifted dry ingredients; mix well. Press into a ball.

On lightly floured board knead until smooth. Wrap dough in foil or waxed paper. Chill for 30 minutes. Shape into walnut-sized balls. Roll in chopped nuts, coating well. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Flatten slightly with a fork. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until done. Recipe yields three to 3½ dozen delicious cookies.

APRICOT NUTMEG BALLS

1 package (8 ounces) dried apricots, ground
2 cups shredded coconut
2-3 cups sweetened condensed milk
½ cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg

Combine apricots and coconut in large mixing bowl. Stir in milk, blending well. Shape mixture into 1¼-inch balls.

Combine sugar and nutmeg. Roll balls into spiced sugar. Let stand until firm. Makes about 32 balls.

Ann Landers

New Approach To Adoption Rules

Dear Ann Landers I've grown up reading your column and have accepted your basic ideas as guidelines. I wouldn't say I have never disagreed with you, but when I follow your advice things turn out better. Now a problem has come up and I need to know what to do.

My husband and I have been notified by an adoption agency that we will be getting our baby within the month. You have stated in your column repeatedly that it's best to tell the adopted child he was "chosen" so he will grow up with that knowledge.

A close friend says there is a new and better approach by a psychiatrist in Chicago. He has written a book on the subject—the central theme being that the child need not be told he is adopted. Such information, according to the doctor, could cause serious trauma and emotional upheaval.

Do you know of the new approach? Has it altered your previous stand? Please let us know.—Ready To Listen

Dear Ready I do know of the "new approach" but I do not agree with it. The chances for an adopted child to grow into adulthood and not learn the truth about his parentage are small and the risk is large. The trauma caused by an outsider who passes the word can be infinitely more damaging than if the parents had told the child, in a loving way, that he was special to them because they chose him.

The child who hears from someone other than his parents that he is adopted often feels betrayed. This feeling of betrayal can create a wound which never heals. This is not theoretical. I have seen it happen—and the results are devastating.

Dear Ann Landers Four years ago I fell in love and married a bachelor, 38 years old. He was a divorcee four years his senior. I wanted to get married but he said we must live together on a trial basis to learn if we were suited for one another. He said he'd marry me in a year or so if we were compatible.

Now I have learned that he is seeing a much younger woman behind my back. I consider this man my husband even though we do not have that piece of paper which makes it legal. Should I go to the woman and tell her about us? Or should I sit quietly and hope he comes to his senses and realizes he has a moral obligation to me? Please advise.—Biding My Time In Virginia

Dear Va. You aren't biding your time, you're wasting it. In this man is cheating on you now, what makes you think he'll behave any better if you were married to him? Forget Romeo, pack up and leave. A woman who wants marriage should settle for a light-housekeeping arrangement for openers.

Dear Ann Landers Everyone in my card club disagreed with the wife who wanted her husband to be buried with his glasses on because she said death is like sleep, and people don't sleep with their glasses on.

If her reasoning is to be taken seriously, people should also be buried in their pajamas and nightgowns. Please print this for the benefit of those who might have taken her seriously.—Ashes To Ashes

Dear Ashes Here's your letter and I agree.

Who Does the Talking Here?

By DORIS CLARK

Jean said to Patsy, "You know, when you come over to our place the talk is always about what you are doing. I'm interested and I want to know.

"But I often think after you leave that not one single question was asked about any of these things that concern me. If anybody were to ask you how our boy is getting on or even whether Joe had a job you couldn't for the life of you bring them up to date.

"Sometimes I think you just use me for a sounding board. Oh, I know we're old pals and you care about me — but don't you ever want to know what I've been doing?"

Patsy was taken aback. She thought a minute and then said:

"Well, maybe it's because I feel as if I'm prying when I ask about something. And remember, when I ask "How are you?" Your invariable answer is, 'Oh, I'm fine.' And that's the end of it."

It was Jean's turn to stop and think. "Well, I guess I don't like complaining. And Joe is one who hates to tell anybody his business. Anyway, I guess I've come to think that you don't really care anyway. These two nearly broke up a long friendship — but not quite.

Because next time they were together, Patsy boldly asked the questions which showed her concern for her friend; and Jean deliberately opened up a little, in spite of old habits.

Moral: Communicate — but help the other fellow to do the same!

Dear Doris: During the past few months, a friend and I have become interested in joining an organization such as the American Peace Corps.

However, we would rather join a similar Canadian organization such as CUSO or CANSAVE, but know very little about either of these.

We are both 21 and would like to work overseas for a few years. I am completing a BA and my friend has had extensive training in the paramedical field, especially Casualty Care. — Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: Couldn't think of a better way for you to look around and see how the other half lives. And Canada is doing a good share of sharing both know-how and materials to the have-nots.

CUSO has workers in many countries now, and they are not there to make money, believe me! They get enough to keep body and soul together from the country where they work. The same goes for CANSAVE.

CUSO looks for volunteers with some needed skill or graduation from a college or technical school. The address is: Canadian University Service Overseas, 151 Slater Street, Ottawa 4, Ontario.

CANSAVE keeps in touch with many countries and needy people and things where they are most needed. The address is: The Canadian Save The Children Fund, 70 Hayter St., Toronto 2, Ontario.

Confidential to Bobsy: Love is a bigger word than that. Think of all the people you love: your mother, dad, sister — even that teasing brother of yours! Then come all the friends you are fond of.

We get fond of our helpers, teachers, doctors. And when we get the pitch — we love the Christ.

Our job is not to reject our feelings or to refuse them expression, but to channel them in the ways that are constructive and healthful. And not to catch ourselves being duped into mistaking physical excitement for the Real Thing.

Fashion Show By Rome Club

A trip to Rome is the goal of the Rome Club of Nicholson Catholic College. To raise funds for this club the members held a fashion show on December 7 at St. Michael's auditorium.

Kathy Ryan introduced the models Liz Sprinkle, Colleen Clancy, Susan Keith, Patty Hickey, Debbie DeGenova, Louise Cassidy, Karen Frazer and Michelle Doucette who displayed fashions ranging from hot pants and knickers to stylish midi coats and evening wear.

The show was sponsored by Fermina, Maher's Shoe Store and Geen's drug store. A door prize was donated and presented to the winner by Sister Mary Joan. A special message of thanks were extended by the Rome Club to all who had aided in the evening's success.

Indian Leader Made Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — An Indian leader and two former provincial cabinet ministers were named to the Senate Thursday by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Williams, born in Kitimat, B.C., and a member of the Kitimat Band, has been president for 12 years of the Native Brotherhood, one of the oldest Indian organizations in Canada.

Mr. Williams became a fisherman after leaving school at Grade 9, working his way up to one of the top ten men in the B.C. salmon fishery. He began working with the Native Brotherhood 38 years ago; an association that represents Indians in the West Coast fishery.

He retired from the fishery in 1958.

Auto Pact Deal Said In Works

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will get a two-per-cent devaluation against the United States dollar in return for granting the United States a permanent exemption in the auto pact, a Boston presidential adviser predicted Thursday.

Pierre A. Rinfret, a Canadian-born financial consultant, told an Empire Club meeting that details of auto pact changes might be worked out next year.

He said international meetings starting Dec. 17 will realign world currency temporarily, bringing about a five-per-cent rise in the price of gold. The U.S. dollar would remain the basic currency.

Dr. Rinfret said President Richard Nixon's Aug. 15 economic measures reflect a far more critical U.S. emergency in foreign relations than was generally realized.

The measures included a 10 per-cent supplementary duty on some imports.

The domestic economy is beginning to move ahead, he said, but internationally, the U.S. is "broke."

He said the nation was faced with such a colossal imbalance of payments and gold withdrawals Aug. 12, that if the country were a corporation, it would have had to declare bankruptcy.

STINGING RECEPTION

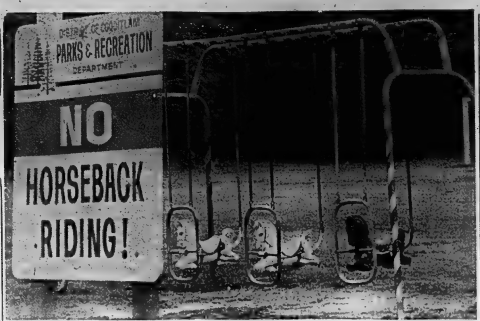
Aircraft Bounces Off Truck

HOUSTON (Reuter) — A private jet aircraft bounced on the cab roof of a moving tank truck Wednesday night as it came in to land in fog and rain—but both pilot and truck driver survived the freak mishap.

Police said the jet clipped the truck as it made an instrument approach to Hobby Airport, mostly used by private aircraft.

Truck driver Cecil Brown, 36, who had just delivered his cargo of naphtha, suffered cuts and abrasions from the shattered windshield and was reported in satisfactory condition. He may need surgery to remove glass from an eye.



The plane went on to land safely on the rain-slickened runway.

Fugitive Delivered To Prison

SYDNEY (Reuter) — A 25-year-old prisoner escaped from a Sydney jail in a bread van Thursday only to discover he had been delivered to another prison just four miles away.

The prisoner, in custody on a charge of theft, climbed under the hood of a prison delivery van loading bread in the minimum-security section of Parramatta jail and remained undetected as the van left the prison.

But when the van stopped, the prisoner climbed out from under the hood to find himself inside nearby Silverwater prison.

Quebec Won't Allow Sale of Insurance Firms

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government will introduce legislation during the next legislature session to prevent sale of life insurance companies to foreign interests, Premier Robert Bourassa said Thursday.

In the meantime, the premier told reporters, the government is prepared to prevent sale of La Prevoyance insurance company to United States interests.

He would not say, however, what steps the government might take to prevent the sale, which has been the subject of rumors since Nov. 24.

He said there has not yet been a concrete offer to the company, which sells both general and life insurance and has assets of more than $46 million.

But his government had decided at a cabinet meeting Wednesday night that sale of La Prevoyance to foreign interests could not be permitted.

In reply to reporters' questions, the premier would not say what other financial institutions—such as provincially-chartered banks and trust companies—might be included in legislation next year to prevent sale to foreign interests.

There was already a federal law preventing sale of life insurance companies to foreign interests—which are federally-chartered companies.

In sectors like life insurance, the premier said, "we must protect what we (as Quebecers) already have, given that these sectors involve the savings accumulated by Quebecers."

Plan to Divert Three Rivers

TORONTO (CP) — Gary Perly, chairman of the Canadian Liberation Movement, told a news conference Thursday that Canada and the United States have a secret plan to divert three northwestern Ontario rivers into the Great Lakes.

The news conference was called by New Canada, a left-wing publication. Speakers included Mr. Perly, chairman of the CLM, an independent socialist group with a strong nationalist bent, and four others.

They said the three rivers are the Albany, Winisik and Attawapiskat, which drain into Hudson Bay.

They produced photographs which they said are of potential dam sites, now seen as clearings with signs of drill holes on the riverbanks.

However, a spokesman for the Ontario Water Resources Commission said Thursday there are no plans for new diversions but that researchers are doing some slashing and drilling as part of a Northern Ontario water inventory begun five years ago and slated to be finished in 1974.

Mr. Perly said the land clearings corresponded with a map of dam sites sent to Prof. Ken Dawson of Lakehead University by an unnamed source in Ottawa. The map pinpoints about 40 dam sites.

Harry Acmee-pineskum, an Objibwa from Ogoki, an Indian reserve about 250 miles north of Thunder Bay, said his people have been asked to move to higher land because water was going to be diverted.

FAMILY SEDAN

LODI, Italy (AP) — Two traffic policemen in this town south of Milan stopped an automobile for a routine check. Inside, they said, were the driver, his wife, their eight children, two friends and five pigs.

Tank Range Dangerous

MEAFORD, Ont. (CP) — A defence department munitions expert told local officials Thursday that a disused 17,000-acre tank range planned be returned to public use because of the danger of unexploded shells.

Cmdr. Gordon Spergel of Ottawa told a news conference the tank range near this community, 20 miles east of Owen Sound, contains at least 684 unexploded shells.

He said the property, expropriated by the defence department in 1942 but not used since last year, could cost between $100 million and $150 million to rehabilitate.

Cmdr. Spergel said it would take at least five generations before the property became safe for public use.

Tragic Accident

But What Action Does He Recommend?

Herb Gray Speaks on NDP Resolution on Control of Economy

OTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Herb Gray stole the spotlight from the Commons opposition Thursday with a speech on foreign investment.

But when he was finished, the country still was in the dark about concrete measures contained in the government foreign investment policy statement, scheduled to be released around Christmas.

Mr. Gray, speaking on an opposition day motion put forward by New Democrat Leader David Lewis calling on the government to regain control of the Canadian economy, outlined three areas in which the government can act on foreign investment:

—Encouragement of Canadian entrepreneurship to support innovation, technological development and greater efficiency in capital markets;

—Improvement of the industrial structure "with small internationally-competitive firms, whether they are Canadian or foreign-owned";

—Direct dealing with foreign investment, recognizing Canada's need for it in some areas and taking into account that there are both costs and benefits associated with it.

The latter area would include such measures as the screening agency proposed to control foreign investment in a study prepared under Mr. Gray's direction for the cabinet. A version of it was leaked to a Toronto magazine last month.

But the minister gave no indication whether a decision had been taken to go ahead with the screening agency.

He didn't offer any specifics on the policy statement, which the government has said is completed and awaiting only printing of studies on which it was based.

Outside the House Mr. Gray concentrated mainly, and cautiously, on the second item, saying that under the current Canadian industrial structure capital needed for investment is not always available at the right place at the right time.

In the House, he said Canadian aggregate savings now are large enough to finance, by themselves, a fairly rapid rate of economic growth.

To reporters he indicated, through a small negative comment, that the government intends to get tighe savings to Canadian investors and reduce reliance on outside investors and money markets.

"If it's improvements," he said, "there may still be financing abroad."

But he did not elaborate on his phrasing in the House, that such improvements could deal with small internationally-competitive firms, either Canadian or foreign-owned.

The suggestion to be taken from that seemed to be that the government is less worried about who owns firms in Canada than it is about whether large, foreign-owned multinational corporations predominate in the economic mosaic.

In the House, Mr. Gray said such firms pose a challenge to small businesses and to the authority of the federal government itself. Foreign control in general made it difficult for Canada to implement its economic priorities and develop a distinctive Canadian culture and identity.

Under Commons rules, there was no vote on the Lewis motion.

The NDP leader said it is clear Canada must retain close and friendly relations with the U.S. But Canadians were in rereasingly realizing that every aspect of their lives is invaded by foreign domination.

He suggested the government get to work on the problem, even though it couldn't be solved overnight.

A screening agency, at least as strong as that recommended in the leaked study, should be established to limit foreign takeovers and investigate foreign industrial practices.

He advocated strengthening the recently-created Canadian Development Corp. by putting it directly under the control of the government, instead of opening it up to public investment, and control.

The corporation should invest in new industrial development, buy jobs existing multinational corporations, invest heavily in research and development and expand the publicly-owned sector of the economy.

Further, Mr. Lewis said, a government export trade agency should be established with power to ensure that all corporations in Canada promote trade in accordance with Canadian laws.

There should be standards of resource planning and development established in co-operation with the provinces to ensure more processing of raw materials in Canada.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said it appeared Mr. Lewis wanted to halt foreign investment in Canada. That investment, he said, is important to western and northern Canada, as well as other sections of the country.

He did not rule out a screening process against foreign investment that would bring about distortion in Canada's economic priorities.

"We should be willing to consider these possibilities."

That statement prompted Colin Gibson (L—Hamilton-Wentworth) to say Mr. Stanfield appeared to be changing his mind on the screening agency concept as a result of his party's annual convention last week, where there was a strong contingent in favor of taking a stand against foreign economic domination.

When the Gray draft recommending such an agency was first leaked, Mr. Stanfield took a firm stand against it, Mr. Gibson said.

Mr. Stanfield elaborated, saying that bureaucratic monstrosities should not be created with arbitrary powers over the economy under the pretext of serving Canadian independence.

He also reiterated his call for guides between Ottawa and Washington to govern the behavior of the two countries towards each other.

He said such guides would prevent unilateral announcements such as the surtax on imports imposed by President Nixon Aug. 15 which have a harmful effect on Canada.

Mr. Stanfield said he expects the government to go off half-cocked again because it has failed to develop any general economic strategy.

York River Reservoir Scheme Hopes Dimmed

Any hopes entertained for early commencement on the proposed York River reservoir in North Hastings have been dimmed for proponents of the project.

At least this seemed indicated from the tone of a government department letter read Thursday at Hastings county council.

At the September session council endorsed a York River Development Committee resolution asking ARDA to carry out the long-talked-of reservoir project which would cover approximately 25,000 acres.

Yesterday, however, a letter from Herb Crown, director of the ARDA branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food said the department would continue to acquire property in the area as it becomes available and at a reasonable price.

But it was pointed out that ARDA has no powers of expropriation and because of the large numbers of private properties needed to complete the reservoir project, it was said entirely likely that at some time expropriation would be needed.

But Monteagle reeve S. J. Carr, as one of the executive officers of the York River Development Committee was something less than satisfied.

He said at the rate of property purchase indicated by ARDA, the necessary land for the reservoir would not be acquired in 100 years.

The idea, he said, was to create employment and if the development was carried out as a crash program, big contractors would get it all.

Faraglay reeve Jack McKenzie said, however, that any reservoir project had to be completed within a reasonable time as areas cleared would only grow up again unless flooded.

Reeve Forsythe said he was aware of this but his idea was that some property might be cleared and flooded each year.

However, Herschel reeve Frank Peever said this was not feasible. "Dams don't work that way," he said.

Reeve Carr said that since the September proposal his committee had recommended that sufficient property be purchased to provide a 300-foot-border around the proposed flooded area.

This, he said, would allow for a public area completely around the reservoir in which no cottages would be permitted.

He said Arda would be approached to determine if it would accept the latest proposal.

Post Office Is Expecting Heavy Load

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Christmas is coming and the mail is growing fat.

Simultaneously lines are less lean for some.

For this is the time of year the post office hires casual help to reinforce a workforce which grows daily more hard-pressed as the peak seasonal mail period nears. This year it'll be heavier than ever, say officials.

And this year, they're hiring more casual help than usual at Belleville post office — an important sub-terminal in Ontario mail distribution — says Postmaster Roy Wainwright.

Granted, the increase isn't that big, but it means nine more extra jobs for Christmas for some Bellevillians.

He expects to have about 170 temporary extras helping out the 70 year-round regulars as the post office moves to keep the mail flowing on deadline at the busiest time of year.

Hired through Canada Manpower, many of them are veterans of Christmas rushes past. The reinforcements — ranging from high school students to housewives — hourly earn $1.70 for inside work, $3 on the outside. The rates are not as high as those paid the regular postal workforce, with its experience and faster work pace.

Students do much of the night work — and draw a bonus in the form of on-the-spot work experience, Mr. Wainwright believes.

As with any other job, capability counts.

First to be chosen from the Manpower screening process are those who've worked the rush in other years.

But, points out the postmaster, if persons just aren't doing the job they're not rehired.

"We have an awful lot of mail to get out in a very short while and we can't afford to have people that are not interested or capable. It's just the same as any other job. Some can handle it. Some can't," says Mr. Wainwright, himself busier than ever as he faces the fourth Belleville Christmas rush.

(Last July he was appointed to a new post office role — area postmaster — with administrative responsibility for 57 offices in the Quinte area ranging from one-man rural centres to a terminal like Belleville.)

With such temporary help, Mr. Wainwright anticipates no problems in keeping the massive volume of mail under control.

Among major factors for this is: (1) the Belleville post office is the despatch and receiving centre for Unemployment Insurance Commission mail — the UIC regional office for all Ontario is in Belleville and its computers process all unemployment claims; (2) Peterborough has been eliminated as a sub-terminal and all breakdown of mail once done there has been transferred to the Belleville postal centre.

There also is the natural growth factor as populations increase — the more people, the more seasonal cards and packages.

At its height, the volume is up to 18 times the normal daily mail flow, says the postmaster.

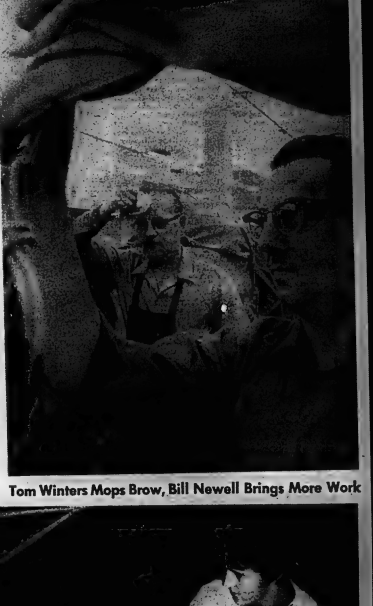
The peak lasts 10-12 days — Dec. 16-21,22. Its zenith is about Dec. 17-18, figures Mr. Wainwright.

Naturally, he'd find it convenient if people mailed as early as possible.

Christmas 1970 was such a time.



"We were able to get everything out on time. There were very few delays," he adds.

First -class mail is not affected, and the big buildup of Christmas cards can move at the same time, if mail is flowing in smoothly.

"It's when it comes at us all at once that there may be difficulties," admits the postmaster. "There's just not enough space — enough (holding) cases to putting enough sorters to work."

"Nothing ever, sits more than 24 hours," he says.

Clearing Track

CP Rail cranes and crews here yesterday afternoon to clear the stretch of track just north of CFB Trenton where 11 cars of a Toronto - bound freight jumped the rails earlier in the day. A broken wheel on an iron ore hopper is blamed for the mishap that blocked train traffic for 10 hours.

Derailment Ties Up CP Line

TRENTON (Staff) — CP Rail's two Toronto - Montreal lines were blocked for much of yesterday following derailment in late morning of 11 cars of a Toronto - bound freight.

A broken wheel on an ore hopper is blamed by railway officials for causing a ten - hour blockage just east of the CFB Road and north of CFB Trenton's Dept. of Maintenance Development Unit.

Liverpool from Napanee to Port Hope worked through the rain Thursday to clear the line as rail traffic backed up all along the CP lines in Eastern Ontario. Two flatcar-mounted cranes lifted the derailed hoppers out of the way.

No attempt was made yesterday to replace the more than 20 isolated lengths of 39-foot track and scores of ruined ties.

CP traffic resumed, last night through the local bottleneck where only one of the two lines are now in use. The second line will not be rebuilt and in use until early next week.

Contract Awarded For Second Phase

The contract was the lowest of five initially received, and will cost $8,900 per unit, or a total of $106,800 for the second 12 units. The first 12 will cost about $95,000.

Second in the bidding, and only $30 per unit higher was Maurice Bailey Construction. Highest tender was from the present builder, Jack Law Construction of Peterborough. His price was about $1,500 per unit higher than the accepted tender.

The original tender called by Ontario Housing Corporation was for either a separate or joined building with the present building. After closer study of the five bids submitted, it was decided by OHC that a joined building would be more feasible. The bidders were given an additional week to prepare new submissions.

Principal reason for the change in plan was that the relocation of some laundry facilities on the second floor, as well as minor changes in the garbage collection system, would make the joined building more efficient and better suited to the tenants. Also changed were the parking spaces, which will now be located at the front of the building.

This was done to save visitors the long walk from the back of the building to the common room.

It was mentioned that the successful bidder proposed a joined building in his initial bid and also that balcony arrangements, brick coloring and finishing details will perfectly match under the new proposal.

The only objection raised by council was that the six proposed parking spaces would not conform to the proposed zoning bylaw's requirement of 1.1 spaces per living unit. It was announced by the OHC representative that such senior citizen housing requires only about 25 per cent unit parking, which the six proposed spaces provide. He also said that if there were further parking problems after completion, OHC would study the situation, and if necessary put in more parking.

OHC agreed to seek an amendment to the zoning bylaw through the committee of adjustment to conform with the regulations.

Application Rejected

PICTON (Staff)—An application for a full-time resources manager for 1972 registered by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority has been rejected.

A letter read at a full meeting of the authority this week stated that a lack of qualified staff in the department makes the request impossible to meet.

Application for a full - time manager was made by the authority in line with its proposed 1972 budget.

The PEC Region Authority and the Napanee River Authority are managed on a split basis by Kenneth Manclow.

MONEY TALKS, or at least its very slimsily persuasive. Ask Lorne "Gump" Worsley, currently co-defender of the Minnesota North Stars' National Hockey League net.

The veteran of 13 seasons of the NHL wars despite retiring to join the overwhelming majority of his puck-stopping colleagues and don a mask, Worsley is equally not bashful about discussing salary.

It's no secret, for instance, that Worsley commanded an annual stipend of some $37,-500 from the expansionist Stars for allowing himself to be purchased from Montreal, where he shared two Vezina Trophies, and played on four Stanley Cup teams in only six full seasons.

But what caught even the brash Gumpsy off his guard was the disclosure this week that he has bound the Stars to an exceptionally lucrative bonus agreement.

THE TEAMS involve a reported $1,000 for each Minnesota win in which he wears goal, $500 for every tie, and $100 per shutout.

In 13 starts for the North Stars, the 43-year-old Worsley has won seven, tied three, with Wednesday's 3-1 loss in Toronto only his second personal setback of the season.

Add that up and it spells $8,500 in bonus money already.

"That's damn close," Worsley told an inspiring reporter "Jackie Gordon asked me about it the other day but I told him I told no one nothing. The guy who wrote it in Minneapolis said he got it from management.

"Cheese Maniago? Nope. If he's got a complaint, he's said nothing. And he's my roomie."

Hotelmen Sink Dozen

Belvedere Hotelmen proved to be the deadly dozen Thursday night, trouncing Central Taxi 12-0. Skinner's Construction came close to matching leaders' output as they recorded an 11-5 win over Reid's Dairy.

Belvedere scored almost at will against a disorganized Central Taxi team, who were minus the services of regular netminder Ken Genereaux.

The Francis brothers continued their high scoring ways for Belvedere with Jack firing three goals and two assists and Gene notching a goal and three helpers.

Bill Goodfellow added three tallies to the Hotelmen blitz while Gerry Jones had two goals and Larry Marshall, Bob Henderson and Elmer Cain one each.

The winners were assessed four of the 10 penalties for poor penalties.

Ted Waite paced the point parade with four goals and four assists with Rick Rosebush getting three goals and three assists and Dave Akey a goal. Doug Jodoin rounded out the scoring attack for the winners by potting three goals of his own and helping on five more tallies.

The winners drew seven penalties, two more than the Dairymen.

In any event the North Stars can afford such extravagances. Today they are tied with Chicago Black Hawks aside the NHL's west division with a game in hand, and Worsley's goals - against average and that of Maniago (1.80), ten years his junior, make them the best goal-keeping tandem in the league.

LIMELIGHT is something weightlifters usually have to provide for themselves, since they compete against such formidable spectator attractions as hockey.

Saturday, 64 youngsters from seven Ontario communities will make their own special try to steal it at Sir Macdonnie Bowell School, in the last-attended edition in the 17-year history of the Eastern Ontario Teenage Christmas Contest.

Included in the competition, which begins with the 60-pound paperweights at 10 a.m., are 13 boys from the Northern Ontario community of Elliott Lake, who began their car journey this morning.

Fourteen of the contestants will be from coach Ken Overbrain's Apollo Barbell Club, including Arthur Wall, who will be competing for the last time as a teenager and could threaten a number of Commonwealth junior middle - heavyweight (198 - pound) records. Wall, a gold medalist for Ontario at the first Canada Winter Games held in February, turns 20 Dec. 23.

ANOTHER CANADA GAMES standout, Chris Darby of London, will be the one super-heavyweight competitor in tomorrow's 4-year-long contest. Darby, who won a silver medal at the Canada Winter Games, will be presented with a trophy as the most improved weightlifter in the province.

The event is open to the public and those who have still not been made believers in the sport might bear in mind that eight weightlifters are among the 11 persons being honored at next Tuesday's annual City Honors and Awards Committee banquet for outstanding athletic achievement. The remaining three are coaches.

Last year's banquet featured eight weightlifters and one high school wrestler.

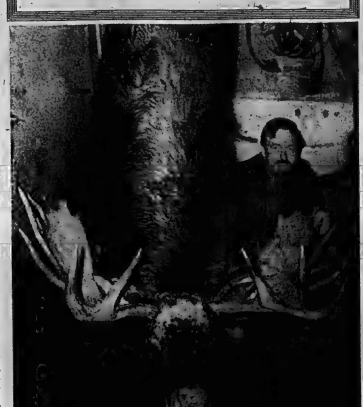
Dave Brown's Rink Among Curling Early Birds

HAMILTON (CP—Staff) — Thirty-two of Ontario's top rinks plan to do a lot of curling this weekend in order to avoid doing a lot more curling before.



Beginning at 9 a.m. today and continuing until Sunday night, they are competing in the Ontario Curling Association challenge round, a double-knockout event that offers the last two entrants a trip to Ottawa from which the winner will be the province's representative in the Canadian championships. But first they will have to beat everyone in their own club, then win their district playdowns and finally defeat another division winner.

Two Quinte area rinks are in the running for the qualifying positions won last year by Alfie Phillips Jr. and Bruce Mauro, both of Toronto.

Earl Jesse's Trenton rink, which represented Ontario in the Dominion Legion curling championships at Charlottetown, PEI last year was slated to meet Rich Vasey's Oshawa rink in first round action this morning.

Another familiar curling face to local followers will be that of Kingston's Ted Brown, who locked horns with Cam Lewis rink of St. Catharines in opening round play.

Biggest Moose Got Away

Like any devout hunter or fisherman Bob Nadeau is still talking about "the one that got away".

Of course he doesn't really have any complaints about one that didn't . . . a 1,200 pound bull moose that he killed last week. We were moving out of the bush when an even BIGGER moose than this one walked out. I missed him, but when I shot this one I jumped up out of his bed and I got him," the Roslin hunter recalled.

Nadeau was on a week long hunting expedition at Smooth Rock Falls, in the Cochrane area of Northern Ontario.

"There were very few hunters where we were because most of them stay around the roads and don't get right back in the bush," Nadeau and his hunting partner Dr. D. C. McVicar of Napanee along with their guide Floreen Thomas jeeped 70 miles into a wilderness area to find a suitable hunting location.

The party collected a smaller bull in addition to the giant animal taken by the Roslin hunter. The bull had a greater than the average rack taken in that area.

"We've had ten or 11 moose hanging here so far this year and this has been the biggest," informed Sam Dean of Dean and McCamon Abbattoir which is processing the animal. "It's beautifully proportioned as well," he noted of the bull which will dress out between 600-700 pounds.

The animal was killed with one shot in the head from a 30-06 BSA rifle. It was the fourth moose killed by Nadeau, but as he noted "It was the biggest . . . by far."

BELLEVILLE MEMORIAL ARENA

Quintes' View of Royals Different from Year Ago

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville Quintes find themselves on opposite sides of the fence with the Ontario Hockey Association's Woodstock Royals, compared to the positions the two Senior hockey teams occupied last summer.

The new-look Royals, in town for a 9 p.m. Memorial Arena game tonight, are currently two points ahead of Belleville, tied with Oakville Oaks for fourth spot in the eight-team league. Last year the Woodstock entry got a bottom view of league action then-through the 40-game schedule, finishing with a dismal total of only four wins.

To date this year, the Royals hold a 2-1 margin in the win-less column against the Quintes, with both teams winning their home ice fixtures.

More astonishing is the fact Woodstock has two players — esteran Don Mahoney and Steve Degurse — in the top 10 of the senior league's individual point leaders with 29 points each.

The QUINTES' top producer to date is centre Georg. Godson, who has 28 points made him the only Belleville player whose name appears in the league's top 20 list of scorers.

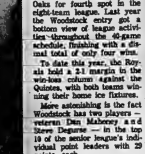
In off-ice activity, the Belleville Quintes Hockey Co-op became an official registered partnership Thursday when steering committee spokesmen Gordon Robko, Ian Brady, Dr. Harold F. Williams, and player representative Lionel Roby secured a transfer of the team's franchise from former owner - sponsor Kenneth Murphy, who, a group spokesman said, "was most co-operative".

The transfer involves team equipment, programs, and players' cards, and the team's $2,500 performance bond.

Spokesman Ian Brady, acting as the group's legal advisor, said the new partnership was an interim measure, with the next step being the establishment of the Belleville Quintes' Hockey Foundation, an incorporated non - profit organization to promote hockey in the district.

Official incorporation of the foundation would likely come after an information meeting scheduled next Wednesday between club steering committee members and Gord Renwick, president of the successful Galt franchise.

Foundation directors would be members of the existing steering committee, formed last week when Mr. Murphy announced he was withdrawing his financial support for local senior hockey.



In addition to Mr. Robko, Dr. Williamson, solicitor Brady, and player Roby, the steering committee currently consists of Gerry O'Connor, booster club president Bob Lloyd, city industrial commissioner Frederick Bemis, and team captain Ralph Plese.

Committees of the foundation would handle such chores as recruiting players, finding them jobs locally, establishing a formula for players salaries, and coming up with promotional schemes, Mr. Brady explained.

"We don't want to get a poor sister-image — going around just asking for handouts," he added. "The foundation would also solve legal problems of identity. Contributors to the foundation would be eligible for tax exemptions.

"We're looking for grass-roots support from hockey fans in the area," Mr. Brady summed up.

An idea of what lies in store for him and other members of the steering committee should come in today's 2nd attendance total at the Memorial Arena.

Hadfield's Humor Lost on Other Teams

By IAN MacLAIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A comic he might be in New York, but Vic Hadfield's sense of humor diminishes elsewhere in the National Hockey League.

The rugged Ranger forward, elevated to captain this year with the departure of Rob Nevin, has suddenly become the league's most productive scorer, which isn't the best grooming for ideal relations with the rest of the league.

The 31-year-old Oakville, Ont., native scored twice Thursday night on power-play efforts, launching the New Yorkers towards a 5-0 shellacking of the Flyers in a rough-house match at Philadelphia's Spectrum.

In the only other scheduled games, veteran centre Dan Maki's two goals sparked Chicago Black Hawks' return to the forefront of the West Division in a 3-1 victory over Buffalo Sabres. Tonight's lone game has St. Louis Blues visiting California's Golden Seals at Oakland.

Long one of the league's respected tradesmen, Hadfield's major form was his ability to dissuade attack units from carrying the puck deliberately into the Ranger zone without fear of reprisals.

But his action off the ice have labelled him the NHL's court jester, a title few opponents hold dear as they battle while skating against the six-foot 185-pounder.

The two goals Thursday night were Hadfield's 21st and 22nd in 27 games, equalling his total output in 63 games last year. His season high, during 1968-69, was 26, leaving him well within reach of that mark within the next few games.

The Rangers-Flyers game was enlivened by a second-period donnybrook, initiated by New York centre Walt Tkaczuk and Flyers defenceman Dale Foley.

New York's Glen Sather and Brad Park and Bill Lesuk of Philadelphia joined in and when the debris was cleared, Park and Park drew game misconducts.

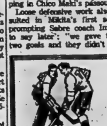
Early in the third period, ill feelings again emerged with Ranger defenceman Dale Rolfe and Philadelphia's Pierre Plante exchanging blows.

But Hadfield, who led the league in penalties with 151 minutes last year in his career, stuck to the business of keeping the Rangers atop the East Division and his team-mates in stitches.

One oft-repeated story once had him calling Bernie Geoffrion, then Ranger coach, on the pretext he was a New York reporter interested on writing about the Rangers.

Geoffrion was taken in, giving the journalist a run-down on the New York players, including Hadfield whose disguised voice carried the other end of the conversation.

Another time, a young fan kept interrupting Geoffrion during a Ranger workout, insisting he had been given permission to break into the practice session. Later, it was learned permission had been granted by Hadfield.



Geoffrion, upset by the intrusion, came to appreciate Hadfield's sense of humor and was later quoted as saying: "I wish I had 10 Vic Hadfields on my team." Boom-Boom, as Geoffrion was thrown from his playing days with Montreal Canadiens, eventually had to forsake the Ranger job because of a stomach disorder.

Punch Imlach's hapless Sabres entered deeper into the East cellar once Pit Martin put the Hawks in front midway through the first period.

The Chicago centre was left unguarded in Buffalo goaltender Roger Crozier's open side of the net and had little trouble rapping in Chico Maki's pleaser.

Loose defensive work also resulted in Mikita's first score, prompting Sabre coach Imlach to say later: "we gave them two goals and they didn't give us any. That was the difference."

Rookie Richard Martin's 19th score of the season late in the game-slid little to pacify Imlach since the Hawks held a 3-0 lead at that point.

Webster's Hockey Future in Doubt

OAKLAND (AP) — California Golden Seals placed right-winger Tom Webster on the disabled list Thursday and said his future as a hockey player "is very questionable" because of congenital spinal condition that requires surgery.

Webster, 23, played in only a handful of games for the Seals after being acquired from Detroit Red Wings early in the National Hockey League season.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the Seals, said a medical examination here disclosed Webster had been suffering for more than a year from the condition not related to any injury.

Webster, who had 36 goals and 37 assists for Detroit last season, was in hospital for almost a month here before being released this week. He will return to his home in Niagara Falls, Ont., next week.

Finley said Webster's convalescence after the operation will be at least six months.

Sport Briefs

Los Angeles Lakers have the whole town talking . . . and the other National Basketball Association teams talking to themselves.

Los Angeles now is one short of the NBA record for consecutive victories and get a chance to tie Milwaukee Bucks' mark tonight in contest against Phoenix Suns.

The Suns' current eight-game winning streak has been achieved in all the fuss over the amazing Lakers' drive—but they continued to play hot ball with a 135-115 triumph over Atlanta Hawks Thursday night.

In American Basketball Association action, it was Virginia 115, New York 114 in overtime; Kentucky 103, Indiana 101 and Pittsburgh 124, Dallas 113.

For the second night in a row, the Lakers' backboard scored more than 70 points. Jerry West scored 28 and Gail Goodrich had 26 to help the Los Angeles cause.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Johnny Bench, Cincinnati Reds' catcher, said Thursday he is reluctantly complying with a request by Bob Hope to shave off and drop two of his business ventures.

Bench, in Tulsa for the annual Oklahoma Athletic Hall of Fame meeting, said the Reds have suggested he get down to 200 pounds and divest himself of an automobile agency in Dayton and a bowling alley in Cincinnati.

The requests came after Bench, the 109 Most Valuable Player in the National League with 45 home runs, 140 runs batted in and a .293 average, hit only .238 with 27 homers and 61 RBI last season.

NEW YORK (CP) — Some time during next Sunday's National Football League game at Green Bay, rookie running back John Brockington will likely rush for his 1,000th yard of the season to become the fourth rookie ever to reach that plateau in United States professional ranks.

The NFL's weekly statistics released today show the Packers' rusher with 969 yards going into the 13th game against Chicago Bears Sunday.

Other rookies who have made the 1,000 mark were Beattie Feathers, 1,004 in 1934 for Chicago; Cookie Gilchrist, 1,096 for Buffalo Bills in 1962, and Paul Robinson, 1,023 for Cincinnati Bengals in 1970.

In the American Conference, Floyd Little of Denver Broncos has 956 yards and Larry Csonka of Miami Dolphins has 932. Thus, there is a strong possibility that this weekend's NFL action may result in five players reaching the 1,000 yard mark.

Not far from the 1,000 mark, but perhaps too far off to make it in the two remaining games is Vic Washington of San Francisco 49ers, former star with Ottawa Rough Riders in the Canadian Football League.

Washington has climbed to fifth spot among the NFC rushers with 740 yards gained in 164 carries. In conference rushing and pass receiving, however, the NFL rookie has already gained 1,039 yards.

Vic Hadfield, also of the Rangers, scored a pair of goals to take the lead in that department with 22. Esposito has 20 goals and 27 assists. Hadfield is in third place.

Kingston Meet in Home Stretch

KINGSTON — Racing at Frontenac Downs has passed the midway point and now there's a winter racing at Ontario's newest race track.

A total of 35 race days have been held to date and there are still a great number of cards to be raced as the Downs has now switched to weekend racing. There's action every Saturday and Sunday afternoon from now until April 9. Post times both days is 1:45 p.m.

As the drivers pass the halfway mark of the lengthy season three drivers share the race for the top awards.

Bob Sleeth of Kingston leads the death race with 21 wins to date. Hugh Wemp of Centreville is second with 20. Wemp and Sleeth had lengthy leads over their nearest competitors at one time, but, now Guy LaRush (18 wins), Bernie Corcoran (17 wins) and Ben Wemp (17 wins also) are breathing down their necks.

LaRush, of Havelock, continues to lead the leading percentage driver race with a large lead over Kingston's Orval Sleeth. LaRush has 18 wins, four seconds and three thirds in 45 starts for a mark of .402. Sleeth has .406, while Tweed's Bernie Hunt and Brockville's Orley Coville follow with .396 and .383 respectively.

Centreville's Hugh Wemp leads the money winners, as he has for the past two months with earnings of $1,958. Bernie Corcoran has $5,033 and Bob Sleeth $4,778.

Averages for the 35 dates show an average mutuel handle of $37,100 and an average crowd of 1,536.

Italy Lacks Leader

ROME (AP) — Socialist Deputy Premier Francesco de Martino picked up six more votes in the third ballot of the Italian presidential election today for a total of 404, but still fell far short of the required two-thirds majority.

Senate President Amintore Fanfani, the Christian Democratic candidate, again ran second in the electoral college voting with 384. Other candidates trailed far behind.

The parties plunged into negotiations in an effort to break the deadlock before the fourth ballot Saturday afternoon, when only a simple majority of 505 votes will be required for election. But there was no expectation that a winner would emerge then.

On the first two ballots Thursday de Martino, candidate of a leftist coalition including the Communists, got 397 and 398 votes. Although the Christian Democrats have 431 electors, Fanfani got only 384 and 368 votes on the first ballots.

Political sources said Fanfani's candidacy had been seriously weakened by the defections, and the party could turn to another of standard-bearer, such as Foreign Minister Aldo Moro.

De Martino, however, also suffered from 15 to 20 defections on the three ballots. Some observers said this indicated some leftists were displeased with him and might be ready to support another Socialist or even a left-wing Christian Democrat like Moro.

Circulation Maladies Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government was told Thursday that death and disability from heart attacks, strokes and other blood-vessel maladies have reached epidemic proportions in the United States.

A major new national program of research and education —costing $295 million for the first two years alone—is needed to try to alleviate the scourge, an advisory scientific group said.

At a news conference marking release of its formal report, the group said that if the recommendations are carried out, there could be some reduction in these attacks and strokeswrecks rates in the next two or three years and possibly as much as a 50-per-cent reduction in the indefinite future.

Great improvement might be attained if the American people would keep their blood pressures normal, quit cigarette smoking and be wary of fats in their diets.

It noted, however, that high blood pressure, high-cholesterol diets and cigarette smoking have not been scientifically determined to be critical factors contributing to the maladies.

Arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries is by far the major factor, the group said.

Doctor Says Aide Beaten

TORONTO (CP) — A doctor on duty at a Maple Leaf Gardens rock concert said Friday he dragged his assistant down a hall by the arm after the latter got an incident involving one of the 8,000 people who attended.

"They pulled some of it (this Rain) out," said Dr. William Pavlak, hired by Cynba Productions to oversee medical services at the concert. "I have it here in my pocket."

He said the incident happened during a lull when a youth ran out of the crowd followed by two policemen and a group of people.

"The cops had him on the floor at the end of a hall and they were beating him—kicking and smashing him. I saw it myself."

He said his assistant, Ambrose Martin, 21, went to the aid of the youth, "then all of a sudden he was dragged on him (Martin)."

He said Mr. Jartin fainted after he was hauled about 50 feet and then down the hall by the officers.

Police said both Martin and Michael Ditta, 19, were arrested on charges of assaulting a police officer. A spokesman said the arrests were made after a constable on duty encountered "fellows who were blocking the aisle and wouldn't get into their seats."

Think metric

Metre Maid

She's a perfect 914 610 914 in any man's language. But in the world of inches and feet, the figures — they're millimetres — sound a bit strange even if they do mean she's 36-24-36. Canada and the U.S.C. are the only major industrial countries in the world still using inches and pounds and eventual adoption of the metric system seems a certainty. (CP Photo)

Quebec Plans Dental Care

QUEBEC (CP) — Free dental care in Quebec for children up to age seven could begin by Feb. 1, Claude Castonguay, social affairs minister, said Thursday.

He told the national assembly that some progress had been made in negotiations with the Association of Dental Surgeons that would allow extension of medical care insurance coverage to include dental care for young children.

But in Montreal Dr. Hubert Laliberte, association president, said agreement seemed impossible in time to have such care in effect by Feb. 1.

Mr. Castonguay said agreement was needed by Dec. 30 to give the Quebec Health Insurance Board the necessary six weeks to set up administrative structures to operate a dental care program.

"We haven't even begun negotiating (ees yet," Dr. Laliberte said, estimating that it would be at least March or April before free dental care is available.

The Quebec government passed legislation last June extending the province's medicare plan to cover free dental care for children up to seven years old and free drugs for social welfare recipients and old age pensioners. At the time it was hoped to have both extensions operating Jan. 1.

Earlier Thursday, Mr. Castonguay said an Ottawa-Quebec misunderstanding might find Quebec footing the entire bill for the extensions.

When the legislation was passed, he told a news conference, the provincial government assumed that costs would be shared with the federal government under public assistance legislation passed in 1966.

"But the federal government gave us a negative response a few days ago and now we cannot foresee at the moment when it will be possible to put this part of the legislation into application," he told reporters.

NFU Would License Farmers

Farmers Union Fights to Change Canada's Economic System

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Farmers Union has served notice it intends to become the sole voice for agriculture and will intensify its fight to change Canada's economic system, which it says has exploited the rural population.

Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, elected to his third term as president of the union which was formed 28 months ago, said more understanding among farmers was leading to a feeling of more concern for the other fellow and "forging a strong bond of unity."

He told the four-day convention attended by more than 600 delegates from the Maritimes, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia that Canada's present economic system creates forces leading to the exploitation of people for the benefit of a few—a policy that must be changed before significant improvement can be made.

Delegates approved a move to set up a "farmers' task force" to study the policies needed to revitalize the economically-sagging agriculture industry.

Present and past federal agriculture policies have not attacked the fundamental and basic problem of improving the earning ability of farmers, the delegates said as they approved a policy statement designed to intensify their goal of signing collective bargaining agreements not only for the produce they sell but also for the goods and services they need.

Delegates said farming should be classed a profession and only bona fide farmers should be licensed.

They agreed to seek to have the NFU established as the sole licensing authority for farmers, recognizing such a move would be a long, hard battle.

"The implementation of the proposed policy, hinges on the strength of the organization in bringing power to bear upon governments to react favorably to requests for co-operation."

In the same context, delegates said they wanted to have no part of other farm organizations and that the NFU was the only group that could speak for the farm community.

The NFU also voiced opposition to the proposed new farm organization in Saskatchewan involving a merger of the Saskatchewan Federation of Agriculture and the provincial associations of rural municipalities.

Mr. Atkinson voiced a strong plea for a concentrated membership campaign to obtain 10,000 new members before Jan. 1.

"It is one of, my top priorities," he told the closing session of the convention which approved Ashley statement on collective bargaining, grains, dairy, fruits and vegetables.

But many of the 135 resolutions on those topics failed to reach the convention floor as the sessions lagged far behind schedule. They finally were referred to the directors for disposition.

Support in the battle for an improved economic status was voiced during the convention by two labor leaders, one from the United States and one representing Canadian fishermen.

Bob Howey, Stephenville, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union in Vancouver, and Jessica Govea of Keene, Calif., assistant to Cesar Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers of America, pledged support for the NFU's grape boycott against Kraft Foods Ltd.

The boycott started last August when Ontario milk producers failed in their attempts to get more money for their product.

Having moved into Saskatchewan and Alberta, NFU workers will be distributing boycott pamphlets across Canada within seven months, said Don Knuckle, NFU boycott co-ordinator.

Mr. Stephens said fishermen have much in common and together they can win the battle for an improved economic status.

He said the NFU could depend "on us to work with you along with all the others who have been robbed of their birthright."

Miss Govea pledged the support of the 20,000 farm workers in the United States who had been helped in their fight by NFU members who boycotted California grapes and lettuce in Canada.

Competition Act Worries Newspapers

OTTAWA (CP) — A newspaper should not be called upon to verify that testimonials referred to in an advertisement have been approved, the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association said Thursday.

The Association made the statement in a brief, on the proposed Competition Act, presented to Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford by association general manager Clyde McDonald.

The brief says certain sections of the act tend to restrict legitimate operations of the daily newspapers and infringe upon the freedom of the press.

The bill is under revision after passing first reading and will be re-introduced in the next session of Parliament.

The 13-page brief draws attention to a number of sections including prices maintenance, misleading advertising, price discrimination and the proposed competition services tribunal.

This tribunal would be empowered to prohibit or dissolve mergers, a power which the CDNPA says is unwarranted interference with the freedom of the press. The association asks that the daily newspapers be removed from the jurisdiction of the tribunal in order to prevent the possibility that the bill be "capable of influencing the content and comment in newspapers."

In addition, the tribunal would be given the power to force a supplier of service to accept a person or persons as customers.

This, the brief says, might force a newspaper to accept advertising material which the publisher feels is in bad taste.

The CDNPA, whose 89 members constitute about 94 per cent of the total daily newspaper circulation in Canada, says the submission does not deal with business generally, but merely presents the position of the newspapers.

Mr. Basford flew to Vancouver Thursday night and was not available for comment.

Yeast, Wine, Cheese Harmful If Tranquilizers Are Used

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned yeast extract as contributing to high blood pressure. I take brewer's yeast in tablets along with my regular vitamins. Can I use it?

Is the use of an ounce or two of a dry wine permissible for one with high blood pressure? Some doctors claim that a little wine may even be beneficial for high blood pressure.—J.M.

My answer to you will be an answer to other readers who are concerned over their blood pressure. My reference to yeast extracts, by which I primarily meant brewer's yeast, was in relation to use at the same time, of certain tranquilizers that are commonly used to lower blood pressure.

In other words, I wasn't—and am not—saying that the yeast is going to cause high blood pressure, or the other items I mentioned (aged cheeses, too much wine) in a person whose pressure is within reasonable brackets to start with.

No, I mentioned them when taken by a person already under medication for high blood pressure. Whether the exact action is interference with the tranquilizer, I cannot say. Perhaps that's it. But when being medicated for high blood pressure, I would avoid those items.

So far as the brewer's yeast is concerned, I'd say it is hardly necessary, anyway, in addition to your regular vitamins.

Wine in large quantities also can bring the wrong kind of results if you are on blood pressure medication, but an ounce or two of dry wine would be quite permissible. It would do no appreciable harm; rather, its relaxant effect would be helpful.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Tests could have shown I have diabetes. The doctor said it's a mild case, and I am taking pills.—Mrs. B.

Patients who understand diabetes get along much better than those who don't.

The fluctuation in your sugar—sugar showing some days and not others—can be due to variations in what you eat, but also, the amount of physical activity can have a bearing on the matter. You have to keep the two factors balanced.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What could you recommend for eczema around the eyes, ears, nose and mouth?

Nothing—except seeing a dermatologist or your doctor. "Eczema" is such a broad term that it can cover any number of conditions. The first thing is to find out exactly what it is. Cosmetics could be a factor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife suggests that I drink one quart of water "as such" each day. I don't touch the stuff, but drink two quarts of liquid daily in the form of decaffeinated coffee. Is this satisfactory without the "as such"—or perhaps adding the kidneys to overwork filtering out the water?—J.C.A.

There's no "as such" for drinking water as such" if you prefer it flavored (with coffee, or anything else). It's important only that you get sufficient fluid regardless of the flavoring. It's possible to drink too much water, but it doesn't often happen. Just be guided by your thirst. It's a mighty dependable guide.

More People Will Plan Fewer Ontario Roads

HAMILTON (CP) — More people will be planning fewer roads in Ontario—and the roads they plan will be more expensive—Charles MacNaughton said Thursday night.

"Our priorities are changing," Mr. MacNaughton, minister of transportation and communications, told the Hamilton Traffic Club.

"highway expansion cannot continue playing the predominant role it has in the recent past," he added.

He said concern over highway damage and the need to find other means of transportation are the main factors in the increased costs.

Increased costs will come from greater planning and consultation procedures, the need to divert roads around fragile areas and rivers and other design changes to preserve the countryside.

Mr. MacNaughton said concern about the environment has already forced the government to make changes in highway construction around Hamilton. This was also in response to citizen reaction to proposed widening of highways 5 and 53 and cancellation of plans to develop Highway 99 through the Dundas Valley.

He said the provincial government is prepared to help Hamilton carry out a major transportation study of the area.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠Q9 ♥97 ♦863 ♣AKQT54
2. ♠Q9 ♥987 ♦83 ♣AKQT54
3. ♠T42 ♥QJ96 ♦AK93 ♣J5
4. ♠AKJ9 ♥KQJ52 ♦97 ♣Q63
5. ♠AK83 ♥852 ♦AQ94 ♣Q7

1. Two clubs. It may be tempting to respond three clubs, after passing originally, in order to show close to an opening bid, but the fact is that North's heart bid has depreciated the value of your hand rather than elevated it. It is true that North may pass two clubs, but at the same time it is also likely that you will not have lost a game if he does.

It may be helpful to remember that two clubs is an alternative bid showing 10 or more points, despite the previous pass, and North will invariably give full weight to this forward - going response.

2. Three clubs. Prospects for game are much better because this time you have three hearts instead of two. This one apparently insignificant factor adds greatly to the over-all value of the hand because game in hearts now looms as an additional possibility. If partner's response to three clubs is three notrump, you would correct to four hearts.

3. Three hearts. If you had not previously passed, the jump to three would be forcing to game—and for that reason you would not bid it. You would respond two diamonds, intending to give a single raise in hearts later (4♥.)

But three hearts is exactly right after your initial pass. North is not required to go with a shaky opening bid, and he is furthermore unlikely to make ten tricks if he elects to pass the jump raise. Note that it would be wrong to respond two diamonds, which is by no stretch of the imagination a forcing bid.

4. Four hearts. Here you must take the bull by the horns and bid game—without testing your luck to see whether or not partner would bid again over either a two spade or three heart response. Never trust partners in such situations. When you feel sure your side has a game, you must bid 'em right up.

5. Two notrump. This response, after passing originally, shows 11 to 13 points, stoppers in the three suits, and notrump distribution. That's what you have, so you bid two notrump and leave the rest to partner.

TOMORROW: Coast cut.

What the Stars Say

By CONSTELLA

Saturday, December 11

Aries (March 21-April 19). Today's excitement belongs strictly to the other guy, but you're involved there somehow. Maybe it's news of your doings that's leaving partners standing with mouths agape—who knows.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Like a kid after a big day at the circus, present happiness will be caught you by surprise can be causing tensions, aches and pains. You don't take well to the excitement.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Heavy emphasis is still being placed on heart interests, youngsters, creative projects. Today's developments are a surprise, but not a disappointment.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Whether home folks say yes or no to what you've planned, it's a surprise that their opposition works in your favor. You could get together for a chat.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). You could be inspired by a sudden proposal that you regarded with the first thing that comes into your head. Luckily, it's the right answer.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Sleeping with a close friend can lead you to some fine bargains. Associates can know exactly where to look for the best values. Purchases are unusual, attractive.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). At this point, you know what you want, with the final realization coming to you in a flash. Reading in gear hearing what experts say about your situation clinches it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Disappointments are lacking can almost make you believe that they know what's going, or despite your efforts to cover up. Someone at home may have a big secret.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It's a mistake to allow your thinking to go beyond your present situation, regardless of how well you're doing. It's important for a while with what you have.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). In testing your new authority over your experience, coupled with your eternal insecurity, can make you a bit heavy-handed. Temper your boss in diplomatic ways.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Trips, publishing, far-away sources continue to be instrumental in your progress for optimism. A quick decision now that you needed, urgent messages must be sent.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). It's just natural to bring the rest of your life up to par with new professional status. A larger home, bigger car, better things around are contemplated.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—Friends goeth before a fall is your year's byline, so don't become too inane with smooth success before August. Persistent attention to details and facts is most important.

Critic of Socreds

Dr. G. Subway Operator Perishes in Smoke After Two Montreal Trains Collide

MONTREAL (CP) — A subway operator was found dead today after he was trapped in a smoke-filled tunnel when two trains collided and fire broke out.

The seven-hour fire disrupted service on the subway's north-south line.

The operator, whose name was withheld, was trapped in the nine-car train after it collided with another nine-car train on a siding in a switching tunnel near the Henri-Bourassa station.

The train had just discharged its passengers in the station and was switching tracks when the collision occurred.

A fire department spokesman said the blaze, which broke out at 12:23 p.m., was probably started by a brake shoe which overheated after the crash and ignited a motor unit.

The firemen were hampered in their efforts by black, oily smoke that poured from the storage and shunting tunnel 300 feet beyond the station.

About 30 men, equipped with high pressure hoses, waited in the station while other firemen opened a ventilation shaft about 1,200 feet away. But once the shaft was opened, the thick smoke was forced through the tunnel and forced the firemen in the station to get out.

Smoke had accumulated to such an extent shortly after the mishap that firemen entered the tunnel from the station with ropes tied around their waists and with special breathing apparatus.

After their first efforts had failed, the firemen decided to enter the tunnel through the ventilation system and drive the smoke out through the station exits.

About 20 firemen and a subway technician were taken to hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

Police closed off Henri Bourassa street near the station Thursday night and it remained closed today as several of the 30 pieces of fire equipment stood by.

A spokesman for the Montreal Urban Community Transportation Commission, which operates the subway system, said today that service would be provided from the Rosemont station to the Bonaventure station, southern terminal of the eight-mile line, longest of the three-branch Metro system.

The Rosemont station is six stations south of the Henri-Bourassa terminal.

If You Smoke, You Wrinkle

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — If you smoke, you're more likely to wrinkle, says a physician who has studied the subject.

"The more you smoke, the more you wrinkle if you're over 30, adds Dr. Harry Daniell.

The non-smoking Redding internist reported on a questionnaire study of 1,104 smokers and non-smokers in the December issue of The Annals of Internal Medicine.

"The most heavily wrinkled class in each sex and age group was composed predominantly of smokers," Daniell said.

Drugs Don't Do Their Jobs If They Don't Invade Blood

MONTREAL (CP) — Some drugs on the market today are not doing their job because they do not get into the blood stream, a symposium on the bioavailability of drugs was told Thursday.

"Bioavailability simply means how much of a drug, per unit dose, is actually absorbed by the blood and used by" the body," Dr. Denys Cook, director of the Pharmaceutical Chemistry division of the Federal Food and Drug Directorate, told the symposium.

Many doctors, he said, assume that a tablet or capsule that contains the same amount of a drug must be therapeutically equivalent. But this is not necessarily true for some drugs.

The drug delivery system—whether it is in a tablet, hard capsule, a soft elastic capsule, an enteric coated tablet—and the additives, which add enough bulk so the drug can be put into the tablet form, all affect the absorption rate of the drug.

"Different manufacturers may be making the same basic drug, which is chemically pure and meets all FDD requirements, but the delivery system they use may alter the delivery rate and the amount delivered to the desired place in the body," he said.

"The FDD is now measuring the bioavailability for every manufactured brand of certain types of drugs," Dr. Cook said.

"Years ago, the fancy coating they put on vitamin tablets to make them taste better just wouldn't dissolve in the stomach and the vitamins couldn't get into the blood stream."

That problem has been solved for vitamins so those types of tablets are not being tested.

"But tests of bioavailability are done for many antibiotics, "time capsule" drugs, anti-inflamatory and anti-convulsant drugs.

"These are drugs that are known to be a problem because they don't dissolve readily in the stomach," Dr. Cook added.

The FFD now is testing a few new drugs and will be doing more as resources become available, Dr. Cook said.

"The names of the brands which pass our tests are published in a monthly bulletin which goes out to all medical personnel and druggists."

The two-day symposium here was conducted by the Canadian Association of Research in Toxicology.

The 125-member association groups scientists from industrial, academic and governmental bodies. The papers and symposium are financed by grants from government and industry.

Lacombe Museum

Albert Lacombe, an Oblate priest who became a legend during the taming of the Canadian West, was assigned the task of building the mission of St. Albert in 1861 and today his original church is a museum surrounded by another church, a home for the aged, a rectory-retreat house, a hospital and a home for retired priests. Today, St. Albert parish is not led by one man, but by a 10-member team of clergy which uses tape recorders, slide projectors, folk masses and believes in total involvement with all people no matter what their beliefs. Sea Snake and Starfish Pose Hazards for Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Pacific Ocean dwellers—a poisonous sea snake and coral-eating starfish—are posing serious biological obstacles to construction of a sea-level waterway to replace the Panama Canal.

Some fear the yellow-bellied sea snake would migrate into the Atlantic and slither up on coastal beaches from New Brunswick to Argentina, sending bathers scurrying in fright.

Others warn that the crown-of-thorns starfish could destroy protective reefs in the warm Atlantic waters.

The two species will be the subject of hearings today when Dr. John Weber and Dr. William A. Dunson of Pennsylvania State University, experts on starfish and sea snakes, respectively, appear before a House of Representatives subcommittee of canal affairs, said chairman John M. Murphy.

The environmental hazards are the latest of a series of obstacles facing proponents of the proposed canal. The canal would permit passage of vessels which are too big to negotiate the present canal.

Other problems include the $3 billion estimated cost and the Panamanian government's possible refusal to issue a construction permit because of its unhappiness over its present treaty with the U.S.

The sea snakes are deadly poisonous and experts say the predatory fish of the Atlantic might eat them—as one experiment showed—and bring disaster to fishing. The fish in the Pacific have lived with the snakes about five million years and have learned not to eat them.

An article in the current issue of the Smithsonian, the magazine of the Smithsonian museum, quotes Dr. John C. Briggs of South Florida University that a sea level canal would be "a potential biological catastrophe." Dr. Ira Rubinoff of the Smithsonian tropical research institute called it "an opportunity for the greatest biological experiment in man's history."

Cote Thinks Report Lacking in Objectivity

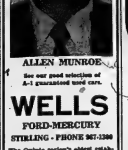
OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote questioned Thursday the objectivity of a report on post office labor relations prepared by Carleton University economist Richard Vanderberg.

The 35-page report, released earlier in the day, attacked the post office for what it termed "the destruction of the system of collective bargaining."

The report was described by an official of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada as an "objective" study of labor relations within the post office. It was commissioned by the union.

Mr. Cote said in an interview that Prof. Vanderberg had not interviewed post office officials during the preparation of his report.

As well, the validity of the report's analysis of the post office labor situation was questionable since it was paid for by the union.



In a news conference following release of the report, Prof. Vanderberg said he had based his research on whatever government documents and reports he could find.

Canal Polluted

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Many foreign ships are flushing untreated human waste into the Welland canal, says a report released Thursday by the Niagara regional health unit.

The report was compiled by the unit after its investigation into sanitary conditions aboard the Swedish freighter Birgit Ragne, from which six-year-old Helen Olsson was sent to hospital at Port Huron, Mich., last month, suffering from typhoid fever.

Gifts Help With Budget

MARMORA (Special) — Marmora Recreation Committee members learned at a recent meeting that its coffers had been enriched by a donation of $100 from Marmora and Lake township council and $10 from an interested citizen.

The money will be used to defray the extra costs of last summer's swimming program.

Power skating instruction is now going on in the arena and will continue for a four-week period.

The athletic commissioner with the Ontario department of labor held senior hockey equipment to the village, the committee learned.

Three young people will receive awards earned for participation, enthusiasm and cooperation in the competitive swimming program. They are Anne Doyle, Justin Hanley, and Shawn Doyle.

$75,000 Plant Bill Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Government expenditures amounting to almost $674 million, including $275,000 for tropical plants to adorn the finance department building, were approved by the Commons Thursday night.

In a gesture of protest against such "government extravagance . . . at a time of high unemployment," New Democratic Party MPs forced two votes on the spending program.

Tax Relief Is Sought For Natural Gas in Cars

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers' Gas Company has asked for tax relief from both the federal and Ontario governments when natural gas becomes common as a fuel for vehicles.

In a brief Wednesday to Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough, the company requested elimination of road taxes on natural gas as a fuel, relief from the five-per-cent Ontario sales tax on equipment to convert vehicles to natural-gas use and support to the company's effort to win federal exemption from customs duties and sales tax on such equipment.

A brief making the latter request was also presented to Finance Minister E. J. Benson.

The company said it compiled the brief's partially on the basis of tests which showed a significant decrease in pollution emission from natural gas vehicles.

Research work will be expanded if the governments act favorably on the briefs, the company said.

Dick Ellis Rink Problem Solved -- Ventilating System Needed

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Carbon monoxide gas in concentrations up to four times the amount considered dangerous by the department of health is responsible for the mysterious illnesses that have affected some hockey players at Richard Ellis Arena.

Readings of 200 parts of the gas per million parts of air were registered Friday morning by detecting apparatus brought to Belleville by two engineers of the industrial hygiene branch of the Ontario department of health.

Medical tests give 50 parts per million as the maximum amount of carbon monoxide for continuous (24-hour-a-day) inhalation by human beings.

Source of the colorless odorless potentially lethal gas is the exhaust from the tractor used to draw the arena's ice machine.

Because the new arena, whose ice surface was laid down only this October, is virtually air-tight and has no ventilation system, carbon monoxide built up to dangerous levels. Reports began reaching recreation director Lorne Williams this week of minor hockey players and officials suffering nausea, vomiting and loss of consciousness while playing in the rink.

The two department of health officials summoned to the city to investigate the trouble have recommended that the doors of the rink be kept open at all times when the ice surfaces in use, and portable heat be brought in to help circulate the air until

Cabinet To Be Shuffled

Berlin Wall Eased

BERLIN (AP) — Eastern and Western negotiators signed two long-sought agreements today providing and permitting West Berliners to cross the wall into East Berlin.

The agreements, reached after months of often bitter wrangling, are part of a package implementing the Sept. 3 accord among the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union over the status of Berlin.

The package brings the divided Germans a big—if tenuous—step closer together while giving the Communist regime in East Germany unprecedented, if still indirect, recognition in the West.

The agreement, however, still leaves the one million East Berliners shut in.

Published versions of the official text showed that while West Berliners will have permanent opportunity to visit the eastern portion of the city, the East Germans will exercise careful controls on travel to the west.

East and West Berliner may have 30 days a year of visits to East Berlin or other parts of East Germany. But he may not use his car when going to East Berlin or the East Germany unless he is travelling at least 62 miles into the countryside. Exceptions include families with children under three.

In cases of visits from relatives, East Germans must first notify authorities that relatives from West Germany are coming. Other visits are classified as tourist visits and may be directly applied for in the west.

Excluded from visiting East Germany are persons who have violated East German law, including all those persons who fled from East Germany after the Communists put up the wall in August, 1961.

Cabinet Changes

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the third interim report of the provincial committee on government productivity:

Creation of three full-time policy ministers with full cabinet status but no departmental ties.

Grouping of programs and activities into fewer ministries, reducing cabinet strength to 20 from 34.

Creation of seven new cabinet portfolios, slashing of 11 with 10 unchanged.

Two new ministeries, finance and intergovernmental affairs, revenue and government services.

Grouping of departments into three major policy fields —social development, environment and resources development, and justice.

Bombers Blow Up Store

BELFAST (AP) — Christmas shoppers screamed in terror and agony today as terrorist bombers blew up a crowded furniture store on Belfast's Protestant Shankill Road.

Police said two persons were killed but the death toll was expected to be higher.

Shoppers and pedestrians clawed at the rubble of the blasted building with their bare hands, searching for survivors. Ambulances carried the wounded—many with faces bleeding—to hospital.

Mechanical shovels and bulldozers were called in to search for trapped victims.

The noon-hour explosion came a week after a terror bomb in a Roman Catholic tavern killed 15 victims. British officers feared the blast in the Protestant-owned Balmoral Furnishing Co. shop could be a deadly revenge raid by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

First reports said at least 17 were injured in the explosion. One of the victims was a tiny child with its leg blown off.

"My God, this is just like the wartime blitz," moaned a British sergeant digging in the debris.

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Richard Nixon signed into law Friday a mammoth tax bill that includes $15.8 billion in reductions for American taxpayers and a number of headaches for Canada and other trading partners of the United States. Eliminated during House-Senate conference was the threat of a seven-per-cent excise tax on cars imported from Canada and elsewhere.

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles had a hair-raid and bravery seamen of the Royal Navy leaped into action to pick up the pieces.

Navy barber Bill Clark, who attacked the hair of the heir to the throne with scissors and comb, said Friday:

"As soon as I had finished there was a rush of sailors scrambling to pick up the bits of hair.

"In two minutes the lot had gone. But I managed to sneer away a lock as a souvenir for my family."

Charles was barbered — for the first time by the navy — aboard the destroyer Norfolk during his first voyage as an acting sub-lieutenant.

Turner Orders Retrial

OTTAWA (CP) — A new trial has been ordered for Ronald Shatford, 26, who is serving a jail sentence for a hold-up he says he did not commit.

A spokesman for Justice Minister John Turner said today the justice minister issued the order after considering a request from the Toronto man's lawyer for a new trial.

Shatford was sentenced to 15 years in penitentiary in May, 1970, for the armed robbery of a Toronto department store four years earlier.

Earlier this year, Toronto lawyer Ray McMurtry made public a letter from Richard Paul Anderson, an American sentenced to five years in jail for the same robbery.

Anderson said Shatford had nothing to do with the hold-up.

"The spokesman for Mr. Turner said the order was issued under a section of the Criminal Code which permits the justice minister to call a new trial if he receives a request.

Two men escaped with more than $7,000 after the robbery, Shatford was convicted mainly on an identification made by store employees from police photos and lineups.

Davis Okays Report

TORONTO (CP) — A wide-spread reshuffling of ministers, their departments, and the civil service is envisaged in proposals made public Friday, proposals described by Premier William Davis as the most comprehensive in Ontario's history.

Mr. Davis said the reorganization will not mean any reduction or expansion in the civil service staff of about 65,000.

The government had accepted the report of the 11-man committee on government productivity in principle but because of the magnitude of the task, it would take "some time" to effect the reforms.

Mr. Davis, unveiling the report at a news conference, said he anticipates appointment of three new policy ministers with full cabinet minister status for the opening of the legislature early next year.

The committee, headed by John B. Cronyn, a Toronto business executive, proposed grouping of departments into three policy fields, each served by a policy minister; creation of two new departments, and the elimination of 11 present departments.

In addition, it calls for appointment of three field secretariats to assist policy makers who would be "thinkers and actors of action, not doers." A new concept would be creation of a management board with a full time chairman with cabinet minister status, replacing the current treasury board.

The committee's third interim report—it was set up two years ago to inquire into ways of improving government efficiency—recommends an overall reduction in cabinet strength to 20 from 24. It makes no recommendations about the 10 ministers without portfolio appointed by Premier Davis when he shuffled his cabinet March 1.

Mr. Davis said he has reached no decisions about whether he will continue the posts.

Existing government programs will not be affected by the committee's report, he added, in an interview. He said the report "surprises" him the civil service, and would involve only a small number.

Mr. Davis suggested the outside experts brought in by the government would probably

THE HON. R. T. POTTER

Good Move: Potter

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Reorganization of the provincial government was hailed today by Quinte MPP Dr. R. T. Potter as "something I've been saying we must do for a long time".

The minister without portfolio in the Davis government said he was confident the reorganization is going to lead to "more involvement by members of the legislature and by the people".

"It will lead to more input by the people," he said of the plan to reduce the number of cabinet portfolios and the appointment of three ministers to be cabinet to supervise policy making.

The three policy ministers will co-ordinate the departments they are responsible for and prevent overlapping, Dr. Potter indicated.

"They will work with the other ministers in charge of departments and breakdown the overlapping," he said.

"These will be very interesting portfolios," said the Quinte MPP. "But there's no way a policy minister's responsibility will be nearly as great as a minister with a department. He will have very little to answer to in the legislature."

"It looks to me as though there will be no more ministers without portfolio," added Dr. Potter, who holds a minister without portfolio post, with responsibility for the committee on youth.

Dr. Potter noted that although the reorganization has been accepted in principle, it still has to go to the house for debate.

"Legislation has to be passed before this new organizational concept goes into effect," he said.

Subway Fire Finally Doused

MONTREAL (CP) — Relays of firemen extinguished an underground blaze in the city's subway system Friday after almost 36 hours of battling searing heat, dense smoke, acid flames and a threatened cave-in.

The body of Gerard Maccarone, 40-year-old subway motorman who apparently died in the fire that destroyed 38 subway cars, was believed to be in a train cab under eight feet of water early today.

Officials of the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission said they could not reach the body until pumps cleared the storage and switching tunnel at the subway system's northern terminus.

Millions of gallons of water were poured into the tunnel Friday afternoon to quell flames that broke out after a nine-car train, empty of passengers, smashed into a parked train Thursday night.

Fire spread quickly to two other stalsinge of trains nearby.

Intense heat and danger of the tunnel's remained walls caving in forced firemen, equipped with oxygen tasks, to work in 16-minute relays.

Lieut. Eugene Choquette of the fire department's investigation bureau said Friday evening his men had "gone through hell."

"It's impossible to stay down there any length of time," he said.

"It's too damn hot. It must have been 2,000 degrees at the heart of the blaze but it's down to 150 degrees now."

Hazards were compounded by the flooding as the water reached electrical wires from storage batteries in the tunnel.

At least 15 firemen were treated for smoke and gas poisoning. Twenty others were sent to hospital earlier in the day when they were overcome by noxious fumes from exploding nitrogen bottles aboard the burning subway cars.

Marien Saulnier, chairman of the Montreal Urban Community's executive committee, said the fire could cost "a few million dollars damage but it's too soon to tell with precision what damage was done and the exact extent of the damages."

All subway cars had one train ran into another and that is not supposed to happen."

Each train has an estimated Claude Blain, supervisor of subway operations, said there is a computerized braking network in the tracks to prevent one train from striking the last parked units.

However, the train operated by Mr. Maccarone collided with

Quinte Area Escapes Major Damage As Storm Sweeps Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A major storm, with occasional heavy rain and winds as strong as 70 miles an hour in gusts, ripped through Ontario Friday and Saturday today, causing heavy damage.

The high winds knocked down trees and signs, interrupted power and telephone service and in Hamilton, where the worst damage was reported, broke store windows, sent huge metal sheets sailing into traffic-filled streets, toppled trees on cars, knocked over signs and blacked out street lighting in large parts of city.

Local hydro and public works employees were kept hopping overnight, as trees and damaged poles were cleared from overhead wires. No major interruptions have been reported in the Quinte area, although the northern part of Madoc this morning remains temporarily without power.

The driving southerly winds which switched to westerly blasts early today amid falling temperatures, set record maximum temperatures for the day in most centres. Windsor reached 64 degrees by Friday afternoon while Toronto climbed to 61 by 8 p.m.

Gusts as high as 55 miles an hour were predicted today with the winds beginning to taper off by mid-day. Temperatures are expected to fall by tonight to the 30s and 30s.

In Wingham, 40 miles south of Owen Sound, the temperature went up to 59 degrees from 44 Friday night in three hours. However, the 50-to-60-mile-an-hour winds also blew down electrical lines, causing power failures.

The weather bureau said "significant" rainfalls accompanied the storm, generally one quarter to three quarter of an inch. But as much as 1¾ inches came down near the heart of the storm in the Sudbury region.

Despite the flying debris in Hamilton no serious injuries were reported. A Hamilton resident, Kenneth Turton, 34, his wife and 18-month-old son had the narrowest escape when a tree smashed down on the roof of his 1972 car. More than $2,000 damage was done to the car and Hazel Turton, 21, required treatment for an injured neck before being released from hospital.

Mr. Turton said he saw the tree falling but was powerless to move out of the way while there were cars blocking the road ahead.

Plate glass windows at several stores in the Greater Hamilton Shopping Centre were blown out by the high winds.

June Szeszlske, a 19-year-old clerk at Cole's Bookstore, suffered an injured thumb and cuts to her right arm when two plate glass windows shattered at the front of the store. Fragments of glass sliced through thick books on display near the window and one sliver had enough force to punch through the metal cash-ier's counter.

Jono Lukich, owner of the store, said it would cost $1,500 to replace the glass.

"Still nothing from Canada?"

At King and James Streets in downtown Hamilton, five 40-foot sections of corrugated steel were blown from the third and fourth stories of the unfinished Bank of Montreal Pavilion in Jackson Square.

No one was hurt when the first section coasted into James Street North, shortly before 8 p.m., bouncing off power and trolley lines and damaging two cars in the traffic-filled street. Neither driver was hurt.

The metal sections had been laid on the steel framework of the building and covered with plywood to form a reinforced floor.

Police re-routed traffic along King William Street for 90 minutes as crews lined the sidewalk on the east side of James Street, cheering whenever a metal strip fell into the street.

Two streetcars were also sent out of shape by the falling metal. At Park and Merrick Streets, a large billboard toppled over, pinning three cars parked beneath it.

The storm also swept into Syracuse, N.Y., where Mayor Lee Alexander ordered all stores and businesses closed in an area around the new Landmark Bank building under construction in the downtown section when brick, wood and scaffolding were blown off the 20-storey structure.

One elderly man in Syracuse was reported in serious condition after he was hit by a flying timber, and two others were in hospital in fair condition. There were no reports of reports of property damage.

Ventilation Needed

permanent ventilation equipment can be installed.

The recreation-arena committee, at a special emergency meeting convened Friday afternoon in the mezzanine room at the rink by chairman Donald M. Sositer, decided to hire a ventilation engineer to prepare specifications for a ventilation system.

In the meantime, air scavenging tests taken by Lloyd Ellenton, inspector with the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit proved that keeping the doors of the rink opened reduced the carbon monoxide level to zero.

Using equipment lent him by health department engineers, Mr. Ellenton left the meeting several times to take air readings and found that the carbon monoxide in the rink had dissipated by 3 p.m. Friday after the doors had been propped open for three hours.

First reports of trouble at the rink reached recreation director Williams early Tuesday morning, when city physician Dr. W. F. Bates reported becoming ill while playing hockey the night before. Dr. Bates' self-diagnosis was lack of oxygen in his blood.

Mr. Williams immediately began the investigation that continued until 10:30 p.m. Thursday night the rink doors were propped open.

The doors were closed Thursday night, in anticipation of the visit from health department engineers Friday.

The Intelligencer's hockey team played a game that evening behind closed doors, and there ice cleanings with the tractor drawn machine took place between the end of the game and the time the health department engineers appeared Friday morning.

On arrival, their equipment registered less than the maximum allowable content of carbon monoxide in the air.

After the ice machine was used once more, the carbon monoxide level had reached 260 parts per million.

No readings were taken in the dressing rooms, but the entrance tested out at 180 parts per million. No carbon monoxide seepage had reached the mezzanine room. The oxygen content of the air was normal.

"Although 50 parts per million of carbon monoxide is the maximum allowable during an 8-hour-a-day inhalation, with repeated exposure, brain cell destruction will occur," said Mr. Ellenton in his report to the committee.

Although the arena fitness appeared to strike only-able neck, a committee member testified that the effects of the lethal gas had been evident earlier.

Joe Ost, a minor hockey coach and committee member told the special meeting that five or six of his team had been affected "two weeks ago Wednesday".

"They began feeling nauseated and vomiting right up in the dressing room," he said. "With reports of flu all over town we thought nothing of it. We believed that the physical exertion had brought on mild- and violent symptoms among those afflicted."

When told that the windowless building was "practically air tight", Mr. Ost replied that perhaps the government should subsidize the building of its entrance and suitability as a fall-out shelter.

"Say that the building was too well constructed," commented Ald. Robin Jeffrey.

Mr. Ellenton said:

Air tight construction that resulted in condensation had concerned the committee since the rink opened, but building designer Richard Morden had been called in earlier for recommendations to correct the situation.

He told the committee that ventilation fans in the north wall of the building and louvered outlets in the east and west sides were the solution. They would also correct the carbon monoxide problem.

But the dressing rooms and mezzanine rooms are a separate problem. They are heated, and insomuch air should be pre-heated in that area of the building, said three plumbing and heating contractors called into consultation.

"I am tired of making engineering decisions. I'm not qualified to make," said Ald. Jean Smith, in calling for the services of a ventilation engineering firm to recommend equipment at the arena.

Top Salesman

Mrs. Mary Colling, 1971 president of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board recognized the contribution of Cecil Ruttan to the board's Multiple Listing System this year with a plaque. Mr. Ruttan made the highest number of listings and sales this year.

Real Estate Booming

First active woman real estate sales representative in the city and the board's first woman president, Mrs. Colling is starting her 16th year in real estate in 1972. Licensed as a broker in 1966, Mrs. Colling is now manager of the Bowes Realty Ltd., holds the title of vice-president and is the only woman broker in the company's staff.

"It is hard to believe that we had about eight real estate brokers and 30 salesmen when I began, and at the present time we have 23 brokers and 130 salesmen", served Mrs. Colling.

"Not only has the number of persons employed in the real estate industry grown, but with the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards and the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards setting standards for education, the sales people have become much better informed and much better prepared to do service to the public."

About 225 were in attendance at the Christmas party Thursday evening. Mrs. Colling presented the society's of the year award to Cecil Ruttan of Belleville, a Bowes and Co. Ltd. employee, who achieved the highest number of listings and sales for the year for the Board's Multiple Listing System.

Mrs. Eileen Hudson, RR 3, Picton, an employee of H. Keith Real Estate received a certificate of accreditation as a fellow of the Realtors Institute.

Five Candidates For Warden's Job

The contest for the office of Hastings county warden in 1972 will be a free-way battle, it was decided yesterday as county councillors wound up their two-day December session.

Tossing their hats into the ring for the honor of succeeding Ivor Wannamaker, Kenneth Smith, will be reeves Horace Casey of Thurlow, Clarence Gibson of Tyendinaga, Russell Sills of Huntingdon, Jack McKenzie of Tudor and Cashel and George Lyons of Deseronto.

Aspirants for the warden's chair made their announcements Friday noon at a dinner at the Sun Lock Gardens with Hastings MPP Charles Rollins as host.

"There are other reeves who had been rumored as possible candidates stated they would not seek the honor next year. They were Tweed Reeve Barney Allen, Jack Bush of Sidney township, and Albert Yeoler of Wollaston township.

Of the five municipalities whose reeves are in the running, the town of Deseronto has gone the longest without the honor of having a warden.

Reeve George Lyons said the last county warden from his town was in 1881.

And Reeve McKenzie said the last Warden from Faraday was 47 years ago.

The last warden from Huntingdon township was in 1956; from Tyendinaga in 1963 and from Thurlow in 1964.

Sun, at Last

The Quinte region did not come in for the extensive damage reported in many parts of the province experienced overnight, during a record warm-wave with thunderstorm.

While winds raged in the 70-mile-an-hour range in southern portions of Ontario Quinte residents basked in breezes no higher than 44 mph, the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton's weather office reports this morning.

A total of 32 inches of rain was the general precipitation in the area, although Intelligencer correspondent Rachael Spencer in Tweed reports .94 inches fell in that area.

Temperatures - reached a high of 55 degrees at midnight, tapering off to a mid-morning high of 43 degrees.

The duty forecaster reports winds will decrease to 29 mph with gusts of 40 mph during the afternoon, tapering off to westerly, 15 mph tonight.

Temperatures will drop off to the low 40s in the mid afternoon, with an overnight low of approximately 20 degrees expected. Outlook for Sunday is sunny and cool, with temperatures ranging in the mid 30s.

There is no forecast of rain.

Councillors Oppose Bell Rate Increase

Hastings county council has voted to oppose the application of Bell Telephone for a rate increase.

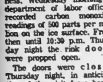
The action was taken Friday on a motion by Tweed Reeve Barney Allen that there be a spirited discussion on the need for improved telephone service in the northern part of the county.

George Thompson, area manager for Bell was present to explain the telephone company's position and to answer questions.

He said that at least 200 county people were asking for improved service and 50 were asking for service but installations would be delayed, while there was no promise for another 100 people in remote areas who were seeking service.

He said more than a million dollars had been spent in the area in the past year improving service and next year emphasis would be on improvement of service north of Highway 7.

Marmora township Reeve Ivan Wilson said that with new residential construction in the township areas it was getting difficult to find a pair years ago when there were 12 to 14 subscribers on a rural line.



Mr. Thompson said the goal was for 10 subscribers on a rural line.

The present rural exchanges and the short distances which could be called free between rural exchanges was another complaint of councillors.

Mr. Thompson replied that in several exchanges, including Stirling, subscribers were in agreement to higher rates for improvements and that capital was lacking for the necessary installations.

In a resolution of what the requested increase would be on the basic rate Ald. Thomp-

Students Give Sharing Program A Big Boost

Belleville high school students have put the Christmas Sharing Program well on the way to success.

Two students have taken on 80 of the 250 families requiring hampers this year.

"I can see the day when the entire Christmas Sharing Program will be run by the high schools," said a jubilant Selma Bochnek, chairman of the committee.

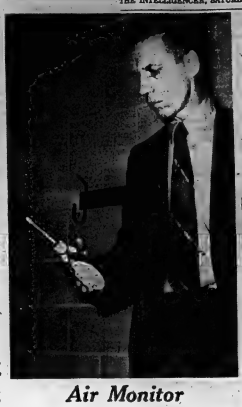
Centennial Secondary had earlier taken responsibility for providing and delivering 45 hampers to needy families. This week Quinte took over 35 families, and may provide for more before the end of the holiday season.

Quinte's Keyette Club and Assembly Committee is co-ordinating the school's contribution that is going on with the co-operation of the entire student body and staff.

Articles for the hampers will be collected during the next week in each of Quinte's form rooms and a Christmas carnival on the last day of school will raise the money to pay for a turkey or ham for each hamper. Senior students, Keyette Club members and teachers will deliver the hampers.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell's pupils have taken two families and the elementary school pupils are handling the packaging of the hampers themselves, with a teacher overseeing the project.

Since Quinte came through with its big contribution this week, Mrs. Bochnek has only about 10 families left unblanketed on her list.



"They are small families, singles or up to three members," said Mrs. Bochnek. "I am hoping enough donors will come forward in the next week to take care of everyone in the city needing a boost this holiday season."

All hamper recipients must be referred through one of the city's helping agencies or a church.

Although "ecstatic" about the contribution of the two secondary schools, Mrs. Bochnek said she was disappointed in business and industry's response this year.

"They aren't responding the way they used to," she said. In former years employees took up collections to buy hamper ingredients and management contributed the turkeys."

The secondary school students, Mrs. Bochnek noted, had asked specifically for the names of large families. She is confident that as a result of the schools' involvement no child will have a cheerless Christmas this year.

Students Pitch In

Chris Fulton, Centennial Secondary School's student council secretary, receives from Mrs. Selma Bochek the names of the 45 families the school will pack hampers for this Christmas. With Quinte Secondary taking a further 35 families, Mrs. Bochnek, chairman of the Christmas Sharing Committee, reports only about 50 families still not provided for.

Planning Board Wants More Public Involvement

The difficulty in getting public involvement in the planning process is a matter of concern to to Hastings county Planning Board.

This was indicated in the report of the planning board to Hastings county council this week when efforts to bring in a restricted area bylaw for the townships of McLure, Wicklow and Bangor were reviewed.

Prior to the formation of the county planning board, the firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki Associates had been retained by the area municipalities to bring in restricted area bylaws.

This was under preparation when the same firm was hired to do a county plan, which now bylaws for all municipalities.

The township bylaw was completed and presented to the township and passed on June 22.

But objections were received and several public meetings were held in the area with board members attempting to explain the purpose of the bylaw — apparently without success.

Board chairman reeve John Wilkes in his report to council said the township bylaw was meant mainly as a "holding bylaw" until such time as the county's official plan was completed and a new and more comprehensive bylaw prepared.

The township bylaw has yet to be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board and it is likely that a hearing will be held early in the new year to hear all objections.

"The reaction that was generated in Bangor, Wicklow and McClure points up what the board had known for some time and that is that it is a concern to the Hastings county involvement in the planning process until people are actually affected," the planning board report said.

The land division committee report included in the report of administrator Carl E. Robinson said the committee had been extremely busy with a total of 347 applications being dealt with since April 26.

The report said 241 applications had been approved with 57 turned down, and 20 deferred, awaiting replies from municipal councils.

City police have asked for public co-operation in locating 13-year-old Sherri Reid of 123 Victoria Avenue reported missing Nov. 15. Sherri, a student at BCI, was last reported wearing a brown suede jacket a mink sweater, brown corduroy slacks and black leather shoes. She is five feet, 1½ inches tall, weighs 105 pounds, has a fair complexion, brown eyes, long dark blonde hair and good teeth. Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reid of Maple Leaf, Ontario.

Car Ransacked

At 2.15 a.m.today, Earl Ward, of 89 Bay Drive, discovered thieves had broken into his parked car.

Approximately $25 in food store coupons was taken from the front seat. Both the car and glove compartment was unlocked.

Twelve appeals by applicants have been referred to by Planning Board.

Donald Rogers of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure; Blair Bronsoe, Bancroft and Vincent Farrell of Huntingford were re-appointed for another term on the land division committee.

Lloyd Ellerton, chief public heath inspector with the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, takes a reading in a Richard Ellis Arena dressing room after health department officials found a dangerous level of carbon monoxide in the new building. Periodic readings will be taken at the arena with the equipment lent to the unit by the provincial department of health.

Snowmobile Trespass Discussed

Two-county Hiking Trail Endorsed by Council

Hastings county council Friday gave its endorsation to the proposed recreational outdoor trail which would extend from Lake Ontario through Prince Edward and Hastings counties to Algonquin Park.

The outdoor trail project is the brainchild of the Canada Manpower office in Belleville which is now awaiting funds approval from senior governments.

Establishment of the trail would provide much employment and would also serve a much needed recreational facility in future years.

Details of the trail proposal were outlined to county councillors yesterday by project administrator Grant Harvey, who said the proposal was now before a screening board in Ottawa.

The proposed outdoor trail project touched off a discussion on snowmobile use and what might be done at the municipal level to protect private landowners against possible damage claims from snowmobilers who might be injured.

One county reeve said $40,000 damage action had been instituted following an accident last winter on private property.

Whether or not a judgment was obtained, the owner would have to retain a lawyer to fight the case, it was stated.

No one seemed to have the answer although it generally felt that to protect themselves farmers should have their properties properly posted.

Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins said he would attempt to get the required information and report at the next meeting.

Jacques Francoeur, public safety supervisor for the transit commission, said the trapped drivers talked for about 20 minutes to control officials before the fire cut his communication.

He told reporters his fireside lament, sending his train slamming into a stationary one just minutes after 500 passengers had disembarked at Henri Bourassa station. Transit officials would not confirm the conversation.

Another motorman who manned the back of the moving train managed to escape and scrambled out of the tunnel to report the accident which sparked flames at 10:33 p.m. Thursday. The blaze was not considered under control until 10:25 p.m. Friday, eight minutes short of 24 hours.

The collision and fire shut down the eight-mile north-south line between Henri Bourassa and Berri de-Montigny, the longest of the city's three-line $175-million subway system.

Late Friday service resumed as far north as the midway Beaubien station, the scene of the strain off extra buses trying to handle the 185,000 person the line normally carries to and from the downtown area every weekday.

Mr. Maccarone, who was to hope been married later this month, was the second subway employee to die in a work-related accident since the Metro opened five years ago.

A maintenance man was killed Aug. 17, 1967, when he was decapitated by a fan in a ventilation shaft.

Six other fires, none of which caused injuries more serious than smoke inhalation and a broken nose, have occurred in the system since it began operation.

About 15 persons have committed suicide by jumping in front of Metro trains and 12 workmen died during construction of the system.

Woman Bruised

A pedestrian, Mrs. Hilda Richardson, 52, of 80 Station Street, was struck by a car as she was crossing Station Street at 5.10 p.m. yesterday.

She appears to have stepped out into the path of an eastbound car, driven by Mrs. Kathleen Drouillard, 28, of 628 Sidney Street, city police report.

A spokesman for Belleville General Hospital said this morning she was treated for bruises and released.

County Engineer Resigns Position

Peter Anderson, roads engineer with the county of Hastings for the past six years has resigned to accept another position with a firm of engineering consultants.

The letter of resignation from Mr. Anderson, accepted by county council on Friday, said he would be joining the firm of Greer, Galway Associates of Peterborough, a firm which is shortly to open an office in Belleville.

Although the resignation is effective in one month, Mr. Anderson said his services would be available to the county until a replacement was hired. Before becoming county engineer six years ago, Mr. Anderson had been with the county for two years as assistant engineer.

Land of Contrasts

The kind of "music" emanating from Northern Ireland these days makes melancholy listening. It is a concert of the most strident and discordant character. Yet aside from the depredations of the wilder elements of society over there things can be quite peaceful, as a look at the delightful color pictures in the Ulster Annual of 1972 shows.

Cherry blossoms overlooking the Newry canal, forest and lake country in County Fermanagh, Portstewart's superb strand where you can drive right onto the beach, the sun setting off the Antrim coast at historic Dunluce Castle — all far from the madding crowd (even Newry seems to have been quiet of late).

And speaking of music the Ulster publication contains articles on some real musicians. Fascinatingly varied in their background and musical tastes they are too. First, Sir Hamilton Harty, who at the age of nine was assistant organist of the parish church (Anglican) in his native Hillsborough, and later went on to become one of Britain's leading composers and conductors. He died in 1941 at the age of 62.

Another article, reproduced from The Belfast News-Letter, tells of one of the best-loved hymns in the English language. "There is a green hill far away, without a city wall . . ." and its author Cecil Frances Alexander. The hymn was written 125 years ago in a house in Strabane, County Tyrone, and legend has it that the "green hill" which inspired Mrs. Alexander was a hill then visible from the Walls of Derry and now obscured by the new housing developments of strife-torn Bogside.

The writer of yet another celebrated hymn, incidentally, Fanny Frances Lyte, was educated at Portora Royal School in Enniskillen.

Now to a contemporary and very contrasting musician from Ulster, one with a strong influence on the sounds of our day — 25-year-old Van Morrison. Fascinated by music since he was a child, Morrison's public debut was at the age of ten when he sang and played guitar for a housewives' guild. At the age of 15 or so he wrote a piece called Gloria which has sold more than eight million copies. Some years ago he went to the United States where he has had phenomenal success. He has released ten single records there, all of them big hits. One of his songs, Cyprus Avenue, is about the street of that name in Belfast and a girl who lived there. Morrison's parents, who got fan mail for their son, still live in Belfast. Morrison himself lives in California with his wife and their two children.

A picture of the singer-composer in the Ulster Annual reveals the strong face of this footballer his parents thought he would become at one time, and he wears a check shirt and a sports jacket. Today the face on the back of his records has changed little, and there are the searching eyes of a poet, but the hair is longer and the clothing is in the contemporary manner.

In passing we might mention another Ulsterman, Jimmy Kennedy, who wrote Red Sails in the Sunset (said to have been inspired by a yacht with red sails off Portstewart) and South of the Border.

Woman Senator

Nowadays it is not easy to find a job without a piece of paper indicating you have been to university and earned a degree. Yet in the sphere of politics and amid the ranks of its practitioners there likely are many who did not go to university.

Non-university types moreover may take heart with the appointment of Renaude Lapointe as Canada's newest woman senator. Miss Lapointe who for the past 31 years had worked variously as a legal stenographer, as an editorial writer for La Presse, and as a member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations, recalled in an interview how she had to be pushed into her various jobs because she felt she was inadequate.

She said she could not believe it when Prime Minister Trudeau approached her. "I had to remind him I had no university education and that I was a very, very poor public speaker."

Often that is the way with writers — they can write but when on their feet, and expected to say something, they are dodos.

With practice though we should think Senator Lapointe will become as effective and persuasive an orator as she is a writer and UN representative.

Bureaucratic Theories in Question

Executives Jet to Ottawa for Talks with P.M.

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The air traffic controllers out at Ottawa International Airport must have been among the first to see the other side of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's private power circle — that the winds were shifting in more ways than atmospherically.

For all within a five - hour time-span they brought in and cleared out 15 executive aircraft.

And Ottawa International, while on the busy Montreal-Toronto air traffic triangle, is not so congested that 15 private jets crowding in and out in runway queues did not make an impression.

Something big must have been happening to bring in such an aerial fleet bearing, as was quickly established, 36 chief executives representing Canadian business and industrial interests worth an estimated $30 billion.

They were all presidents and board chairmen paying the first of a continuing series of hurry-up calls on the Prime Minister and the 19 senior members of the Trudeau Cabinet.

It is scarcely news now that they came, were heard, and will return after determining what their influence may have done in changing the attitude of government towards business.

What perhaps still has not been realized — for it yet has to be mentioned in the House of Commons — is that the government's position already has shifted.

It has been changing, under economic pressure, from hostility to at least neutrality towards business.

Hammered by unemployment, hurting from swollen social welfare costs and harried by growing American protectionism, it is taking less trustingly at its technocrats.

The bureaucracy, secured in the ivory tower of the senior civil service, comfortably insulated from the pressures of the stock-a-day world, failed to foresee these problems.

Or, if seeing them, not recognizing their threat to the life of the government.

These technocrats wrote the tax reform bill — are still rewriting it. Parliament puzzles its way through its incredible legislative maze — the new labor code and the competition bill.

All splendid technocratically. Excellent theoretically.

But impractical of application.

The government initially took the word of its bureaucrats that it was all in line with the new economic technology.

Only it did not work. Except in revenue gain.

At the crucial time the government was looking to business and industry to help get the economy moving, create jobs and restore confidence, its bureaucrats were busy with their technocratic pioneering in the ivory tower, making it all the more difficult.

Tax reform, the labor code and the competition act were all socially-motivated.

They squared, in social purpose, with the lower rate economic world.

Only the world, at the moment, is neither new nor brave, but beset by the same old jobless, inflation problems.

Between them, the "reformers" from the executive cabinet, Finance Minister Benson, Labor Minister Mackasey and Corporate Affairs Minister Basford, managed to antagonize the very people the government needed most.

Business, industry, and worst of all, the productive-type working taxpayers who keep it all in operation.

On balance, when all opinion had weighed in, the tax, labor and corporate legislation was both anti-business and anti-worker.

The bureaucrats managed to pull off this double-whammy of the government's sympathy by trying to do too much too quickly, putting too much faith in their own technology of good, if impractical intentions.

Now the government, facing business and taxpayer hostility from the executive suite right down the ranks to the blue-collar level, is backing off from the labor code, the competition act and the first undiluted chunk of tax reform.

The 36 executives in the 15 jets zipping in and out of Ottawa International knew of the backoff when they met the Prime Minister. But they will be back early in the new year to check, in new legislation, the extent of the turnabout of the country laid before them by the ivory tower and reentry into the more real working world of the un-technocrats.

Focus on $ Exchange on Eve of Talks

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States treasury department is openly skeptical about Ottawa's insistence that the Canadian dollar is being allowed to find its own value on foreign-exchange markets.

But the claims of both governments—Canada's of a "clean" float, Washington's of "unfair intervention at times in order to prevent jerky movements, but we are not trying to protect any given level of the dollar."

Later the same day, John Petty, assistant U.S. treasury secretary for international affairs, told a congressional committee that the Canadian dollar was getting a "fairly clean float."

His slight reservations in public about the float have since been carried a step further by another senior treasury official, in private.

Commenting on Canadian reports that the Bank of Canada is only intervening to "smooth out the bumps" of speculative trading on foreign-exchange markets, the official told a reporter: "When a bull dozer goes also, smoothing out bumps, it also tends to press the ground down."

In other words, he said, all the Bank of Canada's smoothing-out seems to have been done to keep the Canadian dollar from climbing too high.

And all the pressures on the Canadian dollar appear to be upward ones, he added, citing the benefits to Canada which could be expected if the U.S. import surcharge were removed, if other currencies were revalued upward and if European and Japanese trade barriers were dropped at a result of current negotiations.

Trudeau has said the U.S. wants Canada to do more to adjust the value of the Canadian dollar upward. He says Canada wants to let its currency continue to float freely.

There have been unofficial indications the U.S. would like to see the Canadian dollar trading at a premium of a few cents above the U.S. dollar, whatever level is finally decided for American currency.

Working Youngsters Benefit

Richard Needham in
The Globe and Mail

The luckiest kids in Toronto, I sometimes think, are the Jewish and Italian and Chinese ones whose parents run a small grocery or restaurant or laundry or whatever. The kids work in it as soon as they're big enough, not full-time of course, but evenings and Saturdays and Sundays and during the holidays.

Some of these kids, I imagine, get paid for their work: some don't. That doesn't matter: they're getting something much more important, even than money. It's the feeling of being wanted and needed, of doing hard work and seeing the results of that work. They're growing up into the real world and already, at seven or eight, are part of that world.

Such are the conditions under which children should be allowed to grow up, and still do in the farming areas and in the small communities under which most kids grow up if most present-day

Science Tales Theme in Class On Religion

Father Gibson said in an interview that the course aims at a fresh understanding of God and man by a detailed examination of some of the best in science fiction writing.

He has assigned his 200 students a list of seven classics in the field, by such writers as Isaac Asimov, A. E. Van Vogt and Robert A. Heinlein.

"Each book wrestles with some religious problem without using the traditional God-talk," said Father Gibson.

"Take, for example, Isaac Asimov's Foundation trilogy: Asimov is dealing with the question of free will and predestination, just as profoundly as St. Augustine did, but much more readably."

Father Gibson said his students come from all over the university. The class includes five engineering students, six from architecture and a number from the various sciences as well as those from general arts.

At the end of the term each student must produce a 2,500-word science fiction story of his own built around some similar religious issue. Already they are "The theologian doesn't think about God in a vacuum—he has to take account of the insights and ways of communicating that belong to the world around him.

"Here at St. Michael's we're trying to make use of all the media, from mass media of communication."

Father Gibson defines science fiction as a story that brings into the very centre of the plot some kind of reality or experience that lies, as yet, entirely in the future.

"It's not just a question of rockets or far-fetched mechanical gadgetry as many people think: it could be related to extra-sensory perception, psychology, mathematics, genetics, or what have you," Father Gibson said.

"You have to distinguish between the Buck Rogers variety and those (stories) with real point, of course. Like anything else, there's a lot of junk too."

Scholarly Rabbi Serves Movie Set

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rabbi Max Nussbaum thumbs through Variety occasionally, watches TV and movies to spot members of his congregation and has been the counselor involved in some versions of several celebrities to Judaism.

The white-haired scholarly Nussbaum is rabbi to many members of the movie set.

Many Jewish entertainers and movie executives go to him when they're considering divorce or marriage.

Sometimes I'm even called in to counsel non-Jews in the industry with marital troubles," he says.

He has guided some of the most publicized conversions of Christian entertainers to Judaism. Elizabeth Taylor, Sammy Davis Jr., Davis's former wife, Mai Britt, and most recently actress Martha Hyer have become Jews after study with Nussbaum.

Nussbaum, head of Temple Israel of Hollywood, an unpreten-tious edifice on Hollywood Boulevard a few blocks from Grauman's Chinese Theatre, claims it's the religion—not he—that attracts celebrities. But others say that's not the whole story.

"He attracts people in the industry because he understands the fallibility of people," says Lester Ziffren, president of the congregation and lawyer for movie figures.

The temple is affiliated with the reform branch of Judaism, the most liberal wing than the orthodox or conservative branches.

Reformed Judaism eliminates such traditional accoutrements as skullcaps and prayer shawls; the services are briefer and mostly in English.

Abortion Repeal Group In Toronto Kept Busy

TORONTO (CP) — An abortion repeal group has talked to about 50 women a month since it set up its office in an old house in midtown Toronto in May.

All the women were pregnant or thought they were. They came to the volunteer counsellors at the Association for the Repeal of Canadian Abortion Laws (ARCAL) in search of information about possible abortions.

Statistics kept on the first 175 women to visit ARCAL—five of whom were not pregnant—showed they had little in common, aside from wanting information on abortions. Their ages ranged from 16 to more than 40, with the largest number between 21 and 25.

Single women made up the majority of those seeking abortions—115—while 44 were married and the remainder were separated, divorced or living with a man without being married.

Of the 175 women, 137 had had previous abortions and 95 had no children. The majority had high school education.

Eighty-nine of the original 175 cases were followed up and they showed that 19 women decided against an abortion and five of the 19 kept their decision.

Of the 79 who had abortions, 29 went to the United States for the procedure.

The counsellors at ARCAL usually refer the women to Canadian doctors and clinics; but if a woman is near her 12th week of pregnancy, when surgical procedures become more complicated, she is usually told about New York state facilities if she can afford them.

"Otherwise," said counsellor Ruth Evans, "we refer her to a gynecologist who does abortions after 12 weeks."

ARCAL's counsellors—they're housewives, nurses, secretaries, professional women and technicians who have had some training from the association—don't automatically recommend abortion for every woman.

"We try to assess the feelings of the woman towards her pregnancy," Mrs. Evans said, "and we always try to find out what the prospective father thinks about it." (Some of the men involved attend the interviews.)

"We try to find out what pressures there are on the woman and we always ask whether she's thought of continuing her pregnancy."

Also ARCAL tries to find out whether the woman has tried to induce abortion herself and how, Mrs. Evans said.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HOWARD BOOTH

Booth – Sage

A candlelight wedding ceremony was solemnized in St. Elizabeth Roman Catholic Church, Tecumseh, Michigan, U.S.A., on Saturday, Dec. 4, 1971, when Melissa Jane Sage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Sage of Tecumseh was united in marriage to John Howard Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard K. Booth of Belleville.

Rev. Gordon J. Horst of Cleveland, Ohio and Rev. Robert J. Handley of Tecumseh officiated at the ceremony and organ music was rendered by Mrs. Donald Johnson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length Victorian gown of white fantastique crepe styled with fitted bodice and full sleeves with cuffs detailed in a French eyelet lace. The softly gathered bias skirt flowed from a natural waistline. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses, stephanotis and violets with matching stephanotis intertwined in her hair.

The wedding ceremony was witnessed by relatives and friends.

was united in marriage to Peter Riddell of Ottawa while the ushers were Paul Coughlan, the bride's brother, and Gary Riddell, the bridegroom's brother.

At the reception held afterwards guests were greeted by the bride's mother in a dress of deep violet wool crimp with a corsage of pink and white feathered carnations.

Upon return the couple will reside in Ottawa.

WEDDINGS

RIDDELL — COUGHLAN

Southminster United Church, Ottawa, was the setting for a recent wedding ceremony when Jane Elizabeth Coughlan of Ottawa, daughter of Mrs and Mrs. Douglas M. Coughlan of Belleville was united in marriages to Jerry Owen Riddell of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen J. Riddell of Belleville. Rev. S. A. Wootten conducted the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin while shell crochet gown in an A-line style with long fitted sleeves and a scooped neckline. Her veil was a waist length mantilla of double silk illusion and guipure lace. She carried a white Bible adorned with red roses and rosebuds tied to cascading lace ribbons.

The maid of honor, Miss Judy McDonald of Brantford, wore a deep red velvet two-piece dress and carried red and white peppermint feathered carnations on a white velvet muff. Her hairdress was a large white velvet bow.

The best man was Peter Riddell of Ottawa while the ushers were Paul Coughlan, the bride's brother, and Gary Riddell, the bridegroom's brother.

At the reception held afterwards guests were greeted by the bride's mother in a dress of deep violet wool crimp with a corsage of pink and white feathered carnations.

Upon return the couple will reside in Ottawa.

Many New Fabrics In Slacks Suits

NEW YORK (AP) — Hot pants may be dead and knickers passe but the slicked-up slacks suit has survived.

It is becoming more important, especially in such lush fabrics as cashmere, designer Halton said after his spring showing Tuesday.

"All the chic ladies wear slacks," he said, and he has tried hard to please his long list of chic clients.

For a while many designers got bored with the original slacks suit. When it reached everyone from stewardesses to nurses, they figured it was time for something new. They've shown pants in every possible length and just about every material.

Halston, known for his simple, elegant styles, sticks to one length in slacks — long. He gives them high waists or flared cuffs and concentrates on some dramatic tops.

Neatness for Spring Wear

NEW YORK (CP) — Uncluttered is the word for spring-fashion accessories. The over-all effect is neatness.

There are bows, too. But the pussycat bows that add a dash to neat little suits are crisp.

Neat white collars and cuffs appeared in practically every collection at fashion showings this week.

A few scarves have returned for neckline accent. Several designers have added a large fringed triangle scarf to cover a bare back until the dress and the woman make an entrance.

Skirt lengths are almost accessories with some evening dresses. Malcolm Starr has large playing cards appliqued on several gowns. Magnified daffodils and other felt flowers were on several dresses in the Suzy Perette collection.

Stretch sweaters, real or fake, still are daytime accents and even showed up in a red sequinned style.

Belts tend to be a matching wear part of the costume with not too much an accent on their own.

The chunky look seems to be reserved for necklaces. Kenneth Lane likes several pendants, especially with Chinese motifs as a dragon, worn one and then the other.

Big dramatic earrings are being shown with the new bare-back evening dresses, with no other jewelry.

Hats are mostly big for spring, with rolled off-the-face brims.

One cannot stress too much the polka-dot interest. They dot the scene from complete costumes to neckline bows or ties. But small crown sailor hats with turn-up brims are also present.

Shoes have the same clean-cut look as clothes. Where there is adornment, it's part of the construction.

Make-up? Fresh complexions, clear lipstick colors and an almost face-polished look.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. S. Johansen, 648 Victoria Ave., Belleville are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Karin to Donald C. Wasiuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wasiuk of Oshawa, Ontario. The wedding will take place Saturday, January 1, at 3 p.m., in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

Princess Grace of Monaco Speaks Her Mind

By DORIS CLARK

After becoming acquainted with some of the problems your LaLache League is helping so generously to solve, I was fascinated. As a young woman as modern as any, and in normal expectation of a family, I had never considered anything else but breastfeeding when I should have children.

And when these children came, two girls and a boy, I breastfed them simply as something which was to me wholly normal and right.

I had never thought about it particularly as anyhtsee extraordinary for me to be otherwise — as a working woman, which I had been in a so-called glamorous profession, nor as the wife of a ruling prince.

It would seem to me that the closeness to the child resulting from breastfeeding is somehow an extension and affirmation of that very love that has resulted in its being there. A man and woman have united to create this baby that one is holding to oneself and nurturing.

The breastfeeding of the child by the mother is a contemporary extension of closeness and security the child knew while still encircled within its mother's body.

It is this sense of continuity which, due to the breakup of families, is so lacking in our life today and which is, in my opinion, so important to human stability — if not to the survival of the race.

As women, it is one of our greatest prides that we have in our bodies, to give to our newborn children, every element, that an infant needs for perfect health and growth. — Princess Grace of Monaco, addressing the Fourth International Convention of La Leche League

Branches of La Leche ("la lay-chay") League now exist in a number of Canadian cities. Write in for more information.

Dear Big Day: (1) They may take their pick: long or short, for a formal daytime wedding. (2) Yes, Short ones, Hats also, usually small dressy ones, which may be removed during the reception.

(3) Yes. For her brief period the transfers it to her right hand.

Monkey Nut A Memory of the Past

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please help me prove a point? I work in a home for the aged. During coffee break the other day I mentioned that when I was a school girl I used to buy monkey nuts and they were delicious. No one knew what I was talking about. One person accused me of imagining things. These nuts are about the size of a large pea. They had a light brown shell and the meat inside was very tasty. I have not seen monkey nuts in years. Apparently no one else has either. Do you know what I am talking about? Are they extinct? Have you ever heard of them? Do they now have another name? Please consult a nut expert and help me prove I am not imagining things. I'll pin your answer up on the bulletin board and say: "I told you so." —Fran

Dear Fran: My nut expert says you are not nuts. The monkey nut is a cousin to the peanut. It comes from the European basswood tree. You and I must be about the same age because I remember monkey nuts from my school days, too. Thanks for jogging loose a pleasant memory.

Dear Ann Landers: In one of your books you had a chapter titled: "Marriage is not for Everyone." Will you please repeat that sage advice in your column? I am a girl in my 30s, perfectly content with my single status and while I am not prepared to say I will never change my mind, I now have no desire to get married.

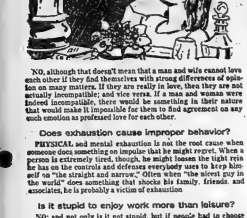
You wouldn't believe the hours who take over my head in my presence as if I were an inanimate object. "It'll have to find a nice man for Gin to marry," they say. Don't people realize a girl might be unmarried for one of many reasons? Perhaps she is supportive aged parents. She could be a lesbian or may have had a heartbreaking experience which has made her afraid of marriage. Each of these possibilities is highly personal. What right have they to consider to ask?

Please, Ann, print this letter. Thoughtless people often mean no harm. Please tell them. — Gin

Dear Gin: You told them, and I told them well. Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been married before. He has two sons, ages eight years of age. The mother of these boys has custody, and they live 120 miles from here. The judge decreed that every other weekend my husband could see the boys at his mother-in-law's house, which is 60 miles away—midway between our place and his ex-wife.

My mother-in-law is so partial to the older boy that it makes me sick. It happens that he is the image of his father and the younger boy resembles his mother, I can understand my mother-in-law's leanings but she openly dotes on the older boy and ignores the other child. Naturally the ignored child acts up when he is at his grandmother's —does things he shouldn't do to get attention.



I've tried to point this out to my husband, hoping he'd pay extra attention to the younger boy, but he says child psychology is a lot of bunk and what the kid needs is a swat in the rump. Can you give me a little support, Ann? Many thanks.— Trying Hard

Dear T.H.: I hope your husband realizes how lucky he has been packed such an understanding woman for his second wife. Of course you are right. The ignored boy needs extra love and attention. Grandma is probably unreachable, but let's hope your husband is not beyond learning something.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can a couple be in love and incompatible, too?

NO, although that doesn't mean that a man and wife cannot love each other if they find themselves with strong differences of opinion on many matters. If they are really in love, then they are not actually incompatible; and vice versa. If a man and woman were indeed incompatible, there would be something in their natures that would make it impossible for them to find agreement on any such emotion as professed love for each other.

Does exhaustion cause improper behavior?

FRIEND: Such mental exhaustion is not the root cause when someone does something on impulse that he might regret. When a person is extremely tired, though, he might loosen the tight rein he has on the controls and defenses everybody uses to keep himself on "the straight and narrow." Often when the street guy in the world does something that shocks his family, friends and associates, he is probably a victim of exhaustion.

Is it stupid to enjoy work more than leisure?

NO; and not only is it not stupid, but if people had to choose between just a week or two of taking it easy, more of them would pick the job. It is not that most people are industrious, either. It is more a matter of most people liking routine—however much they complain about being "stuck in a rut." They will take the orderly pace of going to work and coming home, over the loose-ends existence of not having something specific to do.

Election Promises to Be Kept

Legislature to Meet for One Week Session

TORONTO (CP) — A brief, pre-Christmas session of the Ontario legislature to approve major tax changes and other election promises aimed at easing unemployment opens Monday without the usual pomp and ceremony and with many new faces.

The session, expected to prorogue by Friday, will begin at 3 p.m. EST with the reading by Lt.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald of a one-page speech from the throne.

The 117 members will then move directly into the question period and consideration of bills to amend legislation that will enable Premier William Davis to keep several promises made during the recent election campaign.

It will be the first session since Mr. Davis's triumph in the Oct. 21 election, which saw his Progressive Conservatives increase their representation by 16 seats to 78 to give them a commanding majority in the house.

Both Robert Nixon, leader of the Liberals, and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, have indicated they will co-operate with the government to achieve passage of the amending legislation as quickly as possible.

The Liberals enter the session with only 20 seats, seven fewer than they held in the last legislature. The NDP, with 13 seats, have two fewer than before.

Allan Reuter, 58, member for Waterloo South and former deputy Speaker, will be proclaimed new Speaker in a ceremony prior to the reading of the speech from the throne. He replaces Fred Cass, who did not contest the last election.

Except for Gordon Carton, who this week accepted the dual portfolios of labor and consumer and financial affairs, the cabinet is unchanged for the session which will be the first for 39 new government backbenchers, including two women.

Absent will be the former opposition education critics, Walter Pitman of the NDP, and the Liberals' Tim Reid, both defeated in their bids for re-election.

Colorful newcomer Phil Givens, former member of Parliament and a former mayor of Toronto, will be making his debut as a provincial member on the Liberal front benches.

A major task of the legislature will be to approve a three-per-cent reduction in provincial income tax to match a similar cut by Ottawa Oct. 14.

Legislation also will be required to provide for the elimination of medical-care premiums for old-age pensioners and the poor, an election promise.

The government is also expected to present a $10-million program for construction of day nurseries as part of its winter works projects.

The tax changes, retroactive to July 1, will mean a saving of about $150 million, or $25 for an average family of four, for Ontario taxpayers.

Medical-care payments for the 230,000 Ontario residents 65 and older are due to be scrapped Jan. 1.

Cabinet To Change

number no more than 10 or 12.

The three new policy fields are:

Social Development, composed of the departments of colleges and universities, housing and social services, education and health.

Environment and Resources Development, composed of the departments of agriculture and food, environment, lands and forestry, labor, transportation and communications, and natural resources.

Justice-Composed of the departments of the attorney-general, correctional services, and public protection.

The heads of these departments would have equal status with policy ministers and would work with them in formulating proposals to be presented to a senior cabinet body, the policy and priorities board.

This board would consist of the premier, the three policy ministers and two senior cabinet members, the minister of finance and intergovernmental affairs and the chairman of the management board.

Recommendations of the policy and priorities board would be submitted for approval to the full cabinet, "in which all ministers would have equal status and be able to question recommendations," the report says.

It argues that the recommended changes are required because government organization has grown so large and complicated that it is difficult to manage.

Ministers with departmental responsibilities have insufficient time for policy making, the report says, and an improved system is required to prevent demand for services from outstripping available revenue.

It sees the new policy ministers as serving as a link between the government and the public as well as providing liaison between their policy fields and the policy and priorities board.

"Policy ministers would have the opportunity to spend more time expanding government policy and gathering reactions from citizens as to the effectiveness of government programs", it says.

The cabinet's over-all number was reduced by absorbing existing departments or splitting their functions among the new by-created portfolios or existing ministries. The three present ministers without portfolio would be dropped.

However, the three policy ministers would be added, together with the chairman of the management board, another minister without departmental responsibilities.

The new ministry of financial and intergovernmental affairs would absorb municipal affairs and treasury and economics, together with some of the functions of the provincial secretary and mines and Northern affairs which would also disappear.

Another new department, revenue and government service, would take over the present revenue and public works departments.

Financial and commercial affairs and part of tourism and information would be shared among the three ministries in the justice policy field, which would include the new department of public protection.

The new natural resources department would take on the responsibilities of lands and forests and the new trade and industry ministry would replace trade and development and some branches of tourism and information.

Housing and social services would be created from the present social and family services department, together with the Ontario Housing Corp., now the responsibility of trade and development.

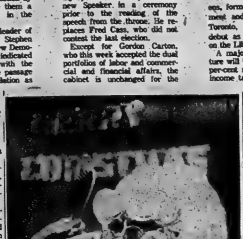
The chairman of the management board would preside over a body consisting of the minister of finance and intergovernmental affairs, the minister of revenue and government services and a minister drawn from each of the three policy fields.

Mr. Davis said the report will lead to "significant reforms in government procedures and improvements in government performance."

Although he said he is essentially in agreement with the committee's concept, "I want to reserve judgment as to the precise designations of ministerial portfolios."

Cabinet Changes At a Glance

TORONTO (CP) — Seven new cabinet portfolios would be added, 11 would disappear and 16 would remain unchanged under proposals for reorganization of the Ontario government advanced by the Committee on Government Productivity.



In an interim report released Friday, the committee proposed the creation of the following new cabinet posts:

Chairman of the management board and ministers of financial and intergovernmental affairs, public protection, natural resources, trade and industry, housing and social services and revenue and government services.

These departments would disappear:

Provincial secretary and citizenship, municipal affairs, treasury and economics, revenue, public works, social and family services, trade and development, mines and Northern affairs, lands and forests, tourism and information, and financial and commercial affairs.

The departments remaining basically unchanged are the prime minister, colleges and universities, education, health, correctional services, attorney-general, agriculture and food, labor, environment, and transport and communications.

Native Injustices To Be Recorded

EDMONTON (CP) — The Native Council of Canada says it will seek a meeting with Justice Minister John Turner next week to protest incidents of discrimination against native people.

The council—the national organization of non-treaty native people—is holding a three-day conference at the Canadian Native Friendship Centre.

The 90 delegates from six provinces, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories voted Friday to send the presidents and vice-presidents of their provincial groups to Ottawa "next week" to focus government attention on injustices against members of their race.

Many of the delegates complaints involved what they called unfair or discriminatory treatment of Indians and Metis by courts of law.

The decision to seek the meeting with the justice minister was initiated by remarks reported to have been made in Vancouver by a county court judge in Sudbury, Ont.

The council said the judge was quoted as referring to "another stupid Indian—of which we have many."

Council President Tony Belcourt of Edmonton told delegates that the council executive had sent a protest to Mr. Turner shortly after a newspaper report of the judge's statement was published. In return, they received a reply that the report would be investigated, he said.

"This is not good enough," he told delegates. "We think he should be removed from the bench."

The council agreed to ask Mr. Turner why there is such a high percentage of people of Indian ancestry in Canadian jails.

James Ducharme, president of the Metis Association of Alberta, said that when as many as 75 per cent or more of the prisoners in some penal institutions are people of native background, the situation "must come about through discrimination—not through the due processes of law."

Fairways Try to Narrow Oshawa Gap Sunday

The Belleville Fairways are hoping their seven lucky number for the Oshawa Crushgen when the two teams clash in an Eastern Ontario Junior B contest Sunday.

The Crushmen currently hold a seven point lukge on the Fairways in the battle for second place in the league standings. Facing the other direction Belleville finds that their 4-4-1 record so far this season gives them a three-point margin on the Kingston Frontenacs.

Fairway scoring leader Terry Meagher is expected to be the only addition to the Fairway team which dropped a 9-1 decision in their last meeting with Oshawa. However, the team appears to have jelled since then, recording 3-1 and 9-1 wins over Peterboro and Gananoque in their last two outings.

Goalie Bill Cormier, whom it was feared would be lost to the team for the rest of the season because of shift-work commitments, will be available for weekend duty behind Bob Harrison who has been the back up starting action.

Sunday has been designated as Moles night with students from that school being admitted for 50 cents with a student council card.

The game will get under way at 7.30 p.m. at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

While Belleville Quintes' John McConnell appears to be doing some fancy choreography in front of Woodstock Royals' goalie Ron Boomer and defenseman Doug McGowan, such was not the case in the actual case. McConnell, older brother Wayne, and Dave Jones were engaged in a third-period scoring thrust against the Royals, whom the Quintes trounced 9-1 in an OHA Senior A game at the Memorial Arena Friday night. The convincing win boosted the Quintes into a fourth-place tie with Woodstock and Oakville Oaks.

Seniors Find Time for a Laugh

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

It had been a while since members of the Belleville Senior team had much to joke about, so a few dressing room chuckles were in order following Friday night's 9-1 blitz of visiting Woodstock Royals.

For instance someone wanted to know the secret of the shorthanded scoring success enjoyed by the George Godson - Lorne O'Connell penalty-killing tandem.

"It's Lionel," O'Connell grinned and gestured toward veteran defenceman Lionel Bothy. "Whenever he's off the ice that's a break for us," he rebuked Bothy about his three penalties.

O'Connell scored the second of two shorthanded goals on a two-on-one Godson set - up with Bothy sitting out a second-period hooking minor. His first, at 11.23 of the opening period to give the hometowners a 2-0 lead, was a solo effort, coming after the hard-working winger intercepted a pass deep in Woodstock territory and drilled the puck past Ron Boomer.

Godson's forechecking was the most devastating feature of the Quintes' attack. The club's leading point producer padded his total by earning five assists.

"Yeah, we've had quite a few this year, I guess," the soft-spoken centre discussed the shorthanded goal situation. He and O'Connell each scored while penalty - killing during last weekend's 6 - 2 [illegible] victory over Oshawa.

Friday night's win was [illegible] Quintes, who are operating on a [illegible] unsponsored basis.

In addition to satisfying the 900 paid customers (including season's subscribers) the win vaulted the Quintes into a fourth-place tie with Woodstock and Oakville who were also being trounced to the tune-of 9-2 by Orillia.

A road win in Owen Sound tonight could snap the Belleville team out of doldrums that saw them skid from first to seventh place in the eight-team Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League standings.

Al Ferguson continued to loom large for the Quintes, getting the all-important opening goal at 4.28 of the first period on a power-play assist by Ray Johnston, a and scoring his 14th goal in 19 games on a two-on-one play with Godson to open the Quintes' four-goal second-period barrage.

Rookie right winger Perry Chitlick made coach Gene Poirier look good putting a pair of Godson rebounds in the final period after Poirier used him to replace Ferguson on the Godson-O'Donnell line. The bespectacled Chitlick had scored only twice in 16 previous outings.

Inserting John McConnell between brother Wayne and Ralph Pace also paid off for Poirier at 17.37 of the final period, when the younger McConnell fired in another 25-footer past Boomer for the eighth Belleville goal. The move, including, shifting centre Dave Jones back to defence, was originally necessitated in the second period when defenceman Mike Bevis injured a shoulder after sliding into the boards.

Second period goals by Doug Senior, on a power - play, and defenceman Greg Marchen on a diver back to the point from Senior accounted for the other scoring plays in the most formidable offensive display by the Quintes this season.

Following Chitlick's second goal, and the Quintes' ninth, Royals' goaltender Ron Boomer

Brown Rink Ousted

HAMILTON (CP) — Eight of 32 rinks participating in the Ontario Curling Association challenge round were eliminated Friday.

By Sunday, two of the 32 starters will gain a bye to the Brier playoffs Feb. 3-6 in Ottawa.

Eliminated from the double knockout series Friday were Harry Brown, Grimsby; Bruce Munro, Toronto Terrace; Elton Coombe, Ottawa; Vince Mion, Orillia; Claude Rosborough, Newmarket; Dave Brown, Belleville; Cam Davidson, Guelph; and Bill Dixon, Bramp-ton.

Four draws were scheduled today and three more Sunday, one of the rinks to get a bye into the Brier playoffs will be known by tonight and the other by Sunday night.

One of the biggest winners Friday was Tom Sicen of Dubawa who has the biggest moustache and longest sideburns of any of the competitors.

Sicen whipped Munro 10-5 and then trimmed Ray Grant of Unionville 11-4.

Munro, who was undefeated in the bonspiel last year, was eliminated after his 10-6 loss to Ken Buchanan of London, a former Ontario champion.

Wildcat game was a match between two other former Ontario champions, Paul Savage of Scarborough and Bob Charlebois of Avonica.

Savage led 8-7 after 11 ends but Charlebois completed a double raise and was lying shot rock with his first stone in the 12th.

Savage came wide with his final rock and tapped another Charlebois stone in to give the Aweeks quartet two points and a 9-8 victory.

Two Belleville players deserved better fates.

And winger Wayne McConnell gave Woodstock goalie Boomer fits all evening but couldn't buy a goal. He had Boomer beaten cleanly with a wicked 40-foot slapshot early in the first period that rattled off a goalpost, and was grabbed from behind by Royals' defenceman Bob Graham on an early second-period break.

A McConnell shot near the end of the game knocked Boomer right off his feet.

Next home action for the Quintes comes next Saturday when Barrie Flyers are in town.

Lakers Tie Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons' compliment to Los Angeles Laker Lakers after they defeated his Phoenix Suns Friday night ranks as a major understatement.

"They're really playing good basketball," he said after the Lakers posted a 126-117 overtime triumph to tie the National Basketball Association record of 20 straight victories.

Lakers Coach Bill Sharman acted relieved after the contest.

"The last three games have been tough on us, especially due to the second travelling we've had to do. When they went into overtime I was really worried," he said.

Gail Goodrich's long-range sharpshooting accounted for seven points as Los Angeles outscored the Suns 15-6 in the overtime period to end the victory streak established last season by Milwaukee Bucks.

Los Angeles led 58-76 going into the final period but the Suns tied it on Mel Counts' jumper with 21 seconds remaining.

Goodrich led all scorers with 33 points, followed by Jim McMillian with 31 for the Lakers. Dick Van Arsdale paced the Suns with 31.

In other NBA action Friday night, Cleveland Cavaliers edged Detroit Pistons, 113-111, Chicago Bulls beat Baltimore Bullets 118-112, Portland Trailblazers nipped Buffalo Braves 101-100 in overtime, Milwaukee Bucks drubbed Boston Celtics 120-104, Huston Rockets downed Atlanta Hawks 95-85, Cincinnati Royals upended Philadelphia 76ers 113-108 in overtime and Seattle Supersonics dumped Golden State Warriors 105-94.

Kareem Jabbar scored a career-high 55 points including 16 in the third period as Milwaukee whacked Boston.

Archer Straight So Far

FREEPORT (AP) — George Archer, winner of two titles already this year, took the second round lead in the $130,000 Bahamas Islands open golf tournament Friday with a four under par 67.

That gave the eight-year pour veteran a two-stroke margin over first round leader Tom Jones, who slipped to a 70 for 138. Bert Yancey was alone in third, three strokes off round 69 for 126.

Archer, the No. 4 money winner this season behind the above Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer, had a 36-hole total of 133, nine under par on the warm and sunny Lucayan Country Club course.

Archer said driving was the key on the plush 6,805-yard course that features 36 holes, 72 sand bunk and trees just off the fairways.

Flyers Dump Galt

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Second-place Barrie Flyers defeated first-place Galt Hornets 7-3 at home Friday night in highlight Ontario Hockey Association Senior A play.

The top six teams in the standings were in action while Kingston and Owen Sound had a night off.

Third-place Orillia Terriers defeated Oakville Oaks 9-2 at Orillia and the teams announced a four-player trade.

Mike Corbett and Larry Gilbeau, Oakville defencemen, went to Orillia in exchange for defenceman Ray Dupont and forward Dave Nicholsbeen.

Gibbons and Nicholsbeen had not been regular starters with their old clubs.

At Belleville, Guinies defeated Woodstock Royals 9-1. Lorne O'Donnell, Al Ferguson and Perry Schick scored two goals each for Belleville and singles went to Doug Senior, Greg Marchand and ohn McConnell. Jim Martz scored for Wood stock.

Barrie scored five eoglas in the first 10 minutes of the second period and outshot Galt 33-23 before a crowd of 1,650. Bob Cunningham led the Flyers with two goals and Pat Monahan, Mike Dubrose, Dick McCheckin, Doug Acomb and Ron Robinson each scored once.

Charlie Cipolla scored three goals for Terriers before 1,300 fans at Orillia. Mike Draper, Gary Milroy, Clare Alexander, Ernest Moore, Al Osborne and Ray Dupont tallied once apiece. Dunc MacDonald and Ken Nation scored for Oakville.

Only one point separates Barrie from Orillia and Oakville, Woodstock and Belleville are each tied for fourth place.

Clancy Claims Rule Toughest on Bruins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

King Clancy, vice-president of Toronto Maple Leafs believes the new rule that calls for a seven penalty for a third man joining a fight in a National Hockey League game is impeding a hardship on Boston Bruins.

It may also have a bearing on the fact that Keith Magnuson, who used to be a rough and tough customer in the ice brawls, has had only 65 minutes in penalties during 28 games this season.

Magnuson ran up a total of 291 minutes last season and may revert to his customary form after the spirit of Christmas goodwill has passed.

He'll be at his usual spot on defence tonight when the Chicago Black Hawks invade Maple Leaf Gardens and may be in a mood to prove he is more of a hawk than a dove, despite the current statistics.

Last night in California, St. Louis Blues and the Golden Seals settled for a 4-4 tie after the Blues took a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Gary Unger, Jim Roberts and Mike Murphy.

California replied with a pair of quickies early in the second period when Gerry Pinder and Walt McKechnie tied the score two four minutes had elapsed.

The Blues went ahead again when Barclay Plager connected unassisted. Then the Seals' leading scorer, Bobby Sheehan, squared accounts again at 15:42.

The Blues outshot the Seals 41-35 but Gilles Meloche was a stubborn obstacle in the California net.

Meanwhile in Montreal, Yvan Cournoyer and defenceman Guy Lapointe are preparing to return to the lineup tonight when the Canadiens entertain the west division leaders, Minnesota North Stars.

Lapointe had been idle since Nov. 28 when he suffered a broken cheek bone in a game at Detroit against the Red Wings.

Young Howe Retains Poise in Limelight

TORONTO (CP) — Despite the confusing glare of publicity generated by the fame of his retired father's name, Marty Howe has retained his poise as he pursues his hockey career with Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

"Marty has had so much more publicity than any other 17-year-old player that it's tough to think of him as being that young and in his first year of Major Junior A hockey," says Marlie coach Frank Bonello.

Marty is the eldest son of Gordie Howe, one of the game's best players who retired this year after 25 seasons in the National Hockey League with Detroit Red Wings.

Marty, a defenceman, this year moved up from the Detroit Junior Red Wings in the Southern Ontario Hockey Association to the tougher competition of the OHA's top league.

He left behind brother Mar, 16, a forward, who he will be rejoining Dec. 29 for an exhibition game in Detroit against the United States Olympic team.

Marty says he has not had much difficulty in adjusting to a new town and a new league.

"The OHA is a better league but not by as much as you would think," Howe said.

"As big difference is in the arenas. We played in some older buildings last year but most OHA teams play in good ones, such as Maple Leaf Gardens and the Montreal Forum, plus new buildings in Ottawa, Oshawa, Kitchener, London and Peterborough."

Coach Bonello says that while Howe still is learning, he has shown a lot of ability.

"He knows exactly when to get rid of the puck and exactly when to hold on to it. This isn't something he has to think about. He makes the move naturally, which means he doesn't give the puck away too often."

Howe's father often makes the trip up from Detroit to see his son play and sometime watches the Marlies workouts. At one such practice the senior Howe offered some fatherly advice from his vantage point along the boards:

"Skate, you lazy son-of-a-gun. Do you expect the puck to pull you?"

Gardens Terms Tough

Toronto team in the World Hockey Association wants to play in Maple Leaf Gardens, it can do so—provided it meets stiff demands from the Gardens.

Gardens' president Harold Ballard laid down these terms Friday: The team must pay a rental fee of $25,000 per game or 50 per cent of the gate, whichever is higher; and it must post a $500,000 bond, which would be returnable if the team completed a season.

"He (Ballard) only wants three legs and arm every time," commented a spokesman for Jim McCreath, who is co-owner of the Ontario WHA franchise with Doug Michel.

Seattle Wants WHA

SEATTLE (AP) — Sam Schulman of Los Angeles, owner of Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association, said Friday he has offered to bring major league hockey to Seattle.

Schulman made the announcement at a news conference called during the halftime of the Sonic-Golden State basketball game.

He indicated that he was talking about a merger between the newly formed World Hockey Association and some other club rather than an established National Hockey League franchise.

A couple of weeks ago Schulman had said he was interested in buying Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League but he did not mention the WHL at the news conference.

At that time Schulman had said the league leaders should get together and form a major league.

He did not go into specifics of his proposal but said six to eight cities were interested in the plan.

Schulman did not refer Friday to buying the Totems but said previously he would like to make them "part and parcel of my operation."

The Totems played in Denver Friday night and officials of the club were unavailable for comment. They had said of Schulman's previous offer that club owners would be polled as to their willingness to sell.

Rockets Offered For Sale

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — If anybody wants to buy a pro hockey team, all you need is $13,000—and a lot of courage.

Jacksonville Rockets of the Eastern Hockey League were put on the block Friday after seven seasons of financial losses. The new owner would also have to pick up about $30,000 in debts, a spokesman for the team said.

"I'll sell for anything, about 13 grand," said Jim Hanson, board chairman o fthe team.

"Anything to keep hockey here in Jacksonville."

The Rockets are 6-20-2 for the season, last in the EHL standings. Friday night's game against St. Petersburg was called off when officials swalled developments.

Aircraft Landing Refused

Indian Troops Poised for Final Assault on East Pakistan Capital

From AP-REUTER

A Pakistani army garrison at Jamalpur, about 90 miles northeast of Dacca, surrendered en masse early today, a spokesman for India's eastern military command claimed.

Nearly 600 Pakistani soldiers surrendered soon after the Indians attacked the heavily fortified East Pakistan garrison, the spokesman said.

In addition, he said a large store o. ammunition and arms were recovered from the post.

Friday, a government spokesman in New Delhi claimed that 400 Pakistani soldiers surrendered after battling Indian troops near Laksham, 55 miles southeast of Dacca.

As Indian troops were poised for a final assaul on Dacca, capital of the Pakistan garrison, the Canadian Forces Herc.ules transport aircraft with UN markings returned from the city after being refused permission to land to pick up UN personnel.

The Press Trust of India reported that the aircraft was refused permission to land by Pakistani air controllers who said the flight originated in "enemy" territory.

The plane took off from and returned to Calcutta.

India has given assurances it will refrain from attacking Dacca airport during certain hours this weekend to permit the evacuation of UN and foreign personnel.

India insists it cannot guarantee safe conduct for evacuation planes unless they land at Calcutta both on their way into and out of Dacca.

Though the fall of Dacca may be imminent, Indian spokesmen said their forces are meeting little or no resistance there from the heavily-outnumbered Pakistani troops.

Fierce fighting continued on the western front, where the Pakistanis poured four battalions of infantry backed by tanks and planes into a massive assault in the Chhamb area of southern Kashmir.

An Indian government spokesman said Friday night this had not offensive—the fifth by Pakistan in that sector in the last seven days—had been repulsed.

As India rushed in a fresh brigade to slow the attack, the tide was turned and Indian troops killed many Pakistani soldiers, the spokesman reported.

Pakistani forces were said to be withdrawing to the west of the Munawar Tawi River, which guards the approaches to the vital supply route to the Kashmiri capital of Srinagar.

The Chhamb area runs down to the ceasefire line below the Himalayan foothills. The two sides were locked in heavy fighting over the same ground in the 1965 war.

The Pakistani drive appears to be directed at cutting off the northern areas of Kashmir, but the Indians say the Pakistanis have not succeeded so far.

In fact, Indian forces are still in defensive positions along most of the western front, the government spokesman said.

However, Pakistani forces claim to have killed 300 Indian troops while defeating a strong counter-attack by the Indians in the northern part of Kashmir.

Elsewhere in Kashmir and in other sectors along the western front, Pakistani units have repulsed a series of Indian assaults and increased their own gains in heavy fighting, an army spokesman reported.

The spokesman said it was in an action in the Kargil area, where the Indians used a whole battalion into the engagement, that more of the attackers were killed.

Another Indian attack in Kashmir's Tithwal sector also was defeated, the Pakistan army's spokesman from Rawalpindi, West Pakistan.

India claims to have frustrated all of Pakistan's major aims in the war.

A spokesman said in New Delhi the main objectives, as pinpointed by Indian intelligence, had been to immobilize India's air force by pre-emptive strikes, to capture territory in the state of Rajasthan as a bargaining counter in later negotiations over East Pakistan, and to penetrate the Kashmir Valley.

The first and third aims had been knocked out on the second day of the war, which had gained ground—estimated at about 600 square miles—inside Pakistan in the Rajasthan sector, he said.

In East Pakistan, Indian forces now have established a bridgehead across the Meghna River 40 miles to the northeast of Dacca.

With one Indian spearhead already within 12 miles of the capital, the way now appears to be clear for conquest of the whole province.

There are no more natural river barriers ahead of the advancing troops, and the Indian army's force is striking at steamers and barges which might be used for any attempted Pakistani breakout to the sea.

The New Delhi spokesman disclosed that India has signed an agreement with the self-proclaimed government of Bangla Desh, which it recognized previously, under which their forces are operating under a unified command.

Its major clauses included agreement to restore normal conditions and essential services in the region and to ensure the speedy return of the 10 million refugees who fled to India earlier this year.

They also agreed to do their best to protect everyone in the liberated areas from "mob violence."

Caution Urged

Aspirin May Aggravate Bleeding: MD

BALTIMORE (Reuter) — A University of Maryland doctor has urged the public to shun aspirin after finding that the common medication can cause heavy bleeding in the intestinal tract.

Based on his findings, Dr. Vernon M. Smith, professor of medicine at the university's medical school, said studies should be made to determine whether aspirin plays any role in heart disease and strokes.

In an interview at Baltimore's Mercy Hospital, where he is chief of gastroenterology, Dr. Smith said there is "no doubt" in his mind that aspirin can be "a dangerous drug."

"There is certainly far more harm in a couple of aspirin then in a couple of cigarettes," he said.

Dr. Smith is not the first doctor to warn against the possible harmful effects of aspirin. Dr. Irene Mengay, professor of surgery at the University of Chicago, advocated last year that the drug be sold only by prescription because it has been known to cause internal bleeding and even death.

The federal Food and Drug Administration also has sought special packaging for aspirin to protect children. Aspirin is the most common cause of accidental poisoning in children.

Dr. Smith agreed that aspirin should be made a prescription item. He commended that the restriction would not do much good because doctors would prescribe it widely anyway.

It has been known for some time that aspirin can cause erosion in the lining of the intestine that leads to internal bleeding. This affects relatively few people.

Dr. Smith believes aspirin has another side-effect that troubles greater numbers of people.

A study he performed at Mercy Hospital showed that 56 out of 100 patients admitted for severe intestinal bleeding had taken aspirin—or a preparation containing aspirin—within 72 hours of the onset of the bleeding.

Dr. Smith believes that aspirin is acting to inhibit a process to "plug" bleeding at an early stage. Platelets—small blood cells in the blood necessary for coagulation and clotting—come together to "plug" bleeding, Dr. Smith noted.

"It is well documented in humans that aspirin in even small doses poisons the platelet's ability to aggregate" in cases of intestinal bleeding, he said.

"Having lost the normal . . . plug, an insignificant amount of bleeding may become symptomatic," he noted.

Dr. Smith said many persons have a small amount of intestinal bleeding—as little as a teaspoon—daily, sometimes caused by a lesion that is undetectable by conventional x-ray analysis.

It is in cases like these where aspirin may act to prolong the bleeding and possibly necessitate hospital treatment, he said.

By using fibre-optic examination of the 100 patients in his study, Dr. Smith found that in only 29 cases was the bleeding caused by aspirin-induced erosion of the intestinal lining. In the remaining cases, he said, the site of the bleeding was found to be small lesions.

While the evidence is only "circumstantial," Dr. Smith said it "places the burden on those who say there is no interaction" between aspirin and platelet-poisoning.

Dr. Smith also noted that coronary thrombosis—a major share of heart attacks—is often caused by a minute hemorrhage which causes fatty deposits lining the arterial wall to swell and block blood flow in the vessel. Aspirin could be a factor in this hemorrhage, he speculated.

He also suggested that aspirin may play a role in excessive or irregular menstrual bleeding and noted that a common parental remedy for this condition contains aspirin.

Dr. Smith said a single aspirin tablet is enough to poison the body's circulating platelets and keep them out of action for from four to seven days.

He noted that most brain hemorrhages are caused by a spontaneous rupture of a small blood vessel. The body's inability to heal this rupture quickly could lead to a paralyzing stroke, he said.

Dr. Smith said he has no data to link aspirin with heart attacks, vaginal bleeding and strokes, but that such area is badly needed, he said, adding: "I wish someone would do it."

New Math Said Family Irritant

OAKVILLE (CP) — The new math may be contributing to break down of the family, a school trustee said here Thursday.

Richard Goodin told the Halton board of Education the new math has come between the parents and their children as parents find themselves unable to help with homework assignments.

Several trustees agreed, among them Ernie Bodzer, a professional engineer who said his attempt to help his daughter with the new math drove her to tears.

Trustee Bill Priestner suggested scrapping new math in favor of mathematics fundamentals and traditional methods of teaching the subject.

United Nations' Call Defied

Bertrand Okay

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand, former Union Nationale premier of Quebec, has left Laval Hospital after several hours of tests for chest pain. Sources close to the Bertrand family said the results were satisfactory.

The Unite-Quebec member for Missisquoi entered hospital early Thursday evening after complaining of chest pain. Friends described the tests as precautionary.

Mr. Bertrand suffered about a attack during his term as acting premier following the death of Daniel Johnson in September, 1968.

Bob Thompson to Quit

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert N. Thompson, former Social Credit leader who was a key figure in the fall of the Diefenbaker government and then went on to become a Conservative MP, is expected to announce today that he will not seek re-election.

The sad-eyed Thompson, first elected to Parliament in 1962 as a Social Credit member, told the Red Deer Advocate Friday he would make an announcement today.

A bizarre figure, even in politics, the 37-year-old chiropractor was born in Minnesota, graduated in education from Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., and organized the Ethiopian air force during the Second World War. His family came to Canada when he was three.

His political education began in Alberta under "Bible Bill" Aberhart, father of social credit. The Alberta groomed the young Thompson at weekly leadership classes.

The pupil went to Montreal, organizing the Social Credit movement there in 1956 when five candidates were elected to the legislature.

A short, well groomed man, he was elected national Social Credit leader in 1961 and became an MP in 1962. His party's vote against the Conservative government forced its dissolution and the election in which Liberals under Lester Pearson formed a minority government in 1963.

Real Caouette's successes in Quebec 29 seats — overshadowed the four seats won by Social Credit in the West and a series of splits developed after 1963, sundering the party.

Mr. Thompson ran as a Conservative in 1968 and won Red Deer riding by an increased majority.

His decision to become a Conservative came after John Diefenbaker's end as party leader. The two have never been seen to speak since Mr. Thompson joined the party.

Speeded Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army announced Friday that thousands of first-term draftees and volunteers due for discharge next year will be released up to six months early to bring army strength down to 892,000 by June 30 as ordered by Congress.

It was believed that the reductions would affect about 60,000 soldiers.

Left Bleeding From Blow Prison Convict Testifies

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — A Kingston Penitentiary convict testified Friday he was left dazed and bleeding from a blow to the head by a club wielded by guard Grant Snider during his transfer to the institution April 21.

Norman McCaud, 38, now a prisoner at the Joyceville institution north of Kingston, said Snider struck him three or four times with a leather-covered jackjack in a loading platform where he and other Kingston penitentiary convicts arrived in two buses.

Then, he said, he was "prodded" along a corridor lined by fellow 10 or 15 guards who struck him with riot sticks.

Snider, 41, of Harrowsmith, Ont., is charged with assaulting bodily harm on William Knight, 23, of Chatham. Guard Bernard William Evans, 25, of Kingston is charged with common assault on Knight.

The two are among eight Millhaven guards charged with a total of 17 assaults of seven former Kingston prisoners following an April riot there. The other six trials are to be held in county.

McCaud said he was only partly dressed after being "skin searched" (stripped and searched) when Evans "beat him and stuck his face in mine" and said, "Who do you think you are to go around with your shirt outdoors?"

The prisoner said Evans then told him to lean his forehead against the wall and lower his head to his side. Then the guard kicked him in the groin.

McCaud told Crown prosecutor Clay Powell of Toronto that another guard then joined Evans. One would tell him to raise his hands then he would be struck. Then the other would tell him to lower his hands and he would be struck again, he testified.

McCaud said he saw Knight struck with a blackjack at least twice by Snider, then "manhandled" across the loading platform to the corridor containing the line of guards.

Knight said on the opening day of the trial Thursday he had received the "necessary" revolt by grabbing, punching and kicking a guard.

He now is serving an accumulated term of 11 years for various offences.

Chico Santana, 32, serving a three-year term for breaking and entering, said the ill-treatment of prisoners by guards was the usual procedure after a riot. He had been involved in another riot at Guelph reformatory in 1962.

Santana said that although the guards ordered the convicts to run while clubbers ing from the front, mounting the loading platform and going through the corridors at Millhaven, "I didn't believe I had a sure ankle and I wasn't going to degrade myself."

He said he was met by Snider near the exit to the corridor and was struck on the neck with a blackjack. When he entered the corridor "I decided it was either run or get my head kicked completely in."

There were about 20 guards equipped with riot sticks "but four were doing most of the swinging, he said.

Santana said that as he grabbed the barrier at an intersection of two corridors and tried to swing into a second corridor, he was hit in the "gut" by Evans.

While he was on the floor, he was kicked a couple of times by Evans and told to get up, he testified.

Another convict, Douglas Charles Young, 23, said he was struck with riot sticks on the legs by the guards. He said after he was "skin frisked" he was grabbed and struck in the face by Evans.

Young told the court he had spent about three months inside jail or prison walls since the age of 18.

Bernard Vercheloit, 31, serving eight years for parole violation and attempted break and enter, said that Snider repeated something like "you're the 'gay' fun, now it's our turn," to Santana and McCaud while they were on the loading platform.

He testified that when he saw McCaud or Knight in the corridor, McCaud's shirt was "full of blood" and Knight's head was bleeding.

Three other convicts were to testify during Friday's session but court was told there had been a delay in transferring them to the courtroom. Mr. Powell said he would call them to the stand Monday. Medical evidence from the physicians is also to be heard Monday.

The trial is expected to last until the end of next week.

Eight-cent Stamp Ready for 1972

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Canadians in January will face yet another increase in postal rates as the second phase of a mid-1971 decision to raise mailing costs swings into action.

Because first-class letters will cost eight cents each to mail as of the first of the year, the Canadian Bank Note Company Ltd. in Ottawa, has designed a definitive issue similar to the regular series.

The post office first released its regular issue of one cent to a dollar stamps in 1967, commemorating Centennial year. Since then, six-cent stamps, redesigned to carry the interim seven cent value, were released.

The newly designed eight-cent stamp, printed in black, features the Canadian Coat of Arms with the Library of Parliament in Ottawa, in the background.

The United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) proclaimed 1972 as International Book Year at the 16th session of its general conference. The Canada Post Office thought it a fitting tribute to use a design of one of the original parliament buildings that survived the fire of 1916 which destroyed the centre block.

The library itself was almost lost when in 1952, fire swept through much of the historic edifice. Reconstruction was completed by 1956, with much of the original materials maintained.

With issuance of definitive issue on Dec. 30, the stamp marks the 100th year for the Library of Parliament.

Founded in 1871 by an act of parliament, the library amalgamated literary collections of Upper and Lower Canada after the two provinces united to become the Province of Canada in 1841.

The beautiful domed building with the historic white statue of Queen Victoria that dominates the central hall, houses some 300,000 volumes and receives all 120 Canadian daily newspapers, almost all the Canadian periodicals, 1,800 periodicals and all federal and provincial publications, as well as the publications of international organizations such as the United Nations.

Inquiries are answered by the reference branch, which selects and provides source material for use in speeches and papers. They prepare bibliographies, indexes and abstracts and lend library material. Because of the size and quality of the collection, this library also provides substantial assistance to Royal Commissions, government departments, the academic community and other non-parliamentary groups and individuals.

Established in 1965, the research branch conducts the reference branch, but serves only Senators and Members of Parliament. The lawyers, economists and other professionals screened prepare research papers and notes at the request of Senators, House of Commons Committees and Parliamentary Associations.

The plates of the regular issue will be used for the continuing release of the new stamp.

• • •

The Canada Post Office has confirmed issue and sale of one sheet of the Maple Leaf in Autumn stamp with one color missing.

The mistake resulted in complete absence of the text "Canada, Automne 71" from all stamps in the faulty sheet. The post office admits that one to four additional, similarly faulty sheets may exist.

It is not known at this time who obtained this sheet, either as a collector or in parts. However, such an error could prove to be as valuable as the 1959 Christmas stamp error of similar nature.

Showbusiness Highlights

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television talk-Show host Merv Griffin, dropped by CBS earlier this week, will replace Emmy Award-winner David Frost next year on Metromedia stations here, in New York and in Washington.

A Metromedia spokesman, Reavis Winkler, said Griffin's new syndicated show probably will begin in mid-February when his contract with CBS expires.

In New York, DAvid Henderson, president of Group W Productions, which syndicates the Frost show, said the Metromedia decision to replace Frost with Griffin at 8:30 p.m. weeknights would not affect the show in other areas.

Henderson said the Frost show, seen on 68 stations, would be scheduled at a different time on the Metromedia stations or would be moved to another independent station in those three markets.

Winkler said no decision had been made yet whether Griffin show would follow the same talk show format now used on CBS. The salary and length of contract agreed on between Griffin and Metromedia were not disclosed.

LIMA, Peru (Reuter) — Leftist students prevented a concert appearance Saturday by Lima University stadium by the American rock group Santana.

After two days of demonstrations against the concert, the left-wing military government ordered the group out of the country. Police escorted them to the airport Friday and they took off for Los Angeles.

About 2,000 fans welcomed Santana at Lima Airport when the group arrived Wednesday and 58,000 were expected to jam the stadium for the Saturday night show.

But left-wing students denounced Santana's music as "an imperialist penetration" and burned the stage which the group was supposed to play.

Zappa's stage leader Adolfo Calderon said: "We do not want our cloister to be the scene of a grotesque spectacle."

LONDON (Reuter) — American pop star Frank Zappa suffered a broken leg Saturday when he was thrown off the stage of a London theatre.

Zappa was taken to the Royal Northern Hospital and treated for a leg fracture.

Welfare, Drug Resolutions Are Endorsed

Applications for welfare assistance from young people 18 to 18 years of age should be processed by Children's Aid Society officials rather than by the welfare department.

This is the feeling of Hastings county councillors who, this week concurred in a resolution from Durham and Northumberland counties asking that the present procedure be changed.

The resolution suggested that many young people in the above age group who have home and apply for welfare are in need of guidance.

Council also concurred in a Leeds and Grenville resolution requesting the Federal and Provincial departments of health and drugs to prevent the legalization and sale of soft drugs.

Benson Agrees Tax Bill Amendments to Be Forthcoming in 1972

OTTAWA (CP) — The government confirmed to push its revised version of the taxation bible through the Commons Friday, but Finance Minister E. J. Benson pitched out some flaws in his own gospel and said they should be changed next year.

Mr. Benson gave the House a list of sections of the tax change bill that he said his department is rethinking.

Included were parts dealing with gifts to charitable organizations, rollovers and corporate reorganizations, the retirement, profit-sharing plans and taxpayers leaving Canada with capital assets to be taxed.

Conservative Finance Critic Marcel Lambert, noting that all these areas had been criticized by the Senate banking committee in its two November reports, charged Mr. Benson with bribing the Senate into giving the bill quick passage after it leaves the Commons.

The Senate is expected to get the bill next Friday after the government brings in a motion limiting debate on third and final reading in the Commons.

That would give the upper chamber less than a week to deal with the massive bill, if it is to meet the government's Jan. 1 deadline and get, home for Christmas holidays.

Some indignant senators suggested earlier this week that they were sick of being treated like an old shoe, and that they might just consider the bill into the new year.

But government sources said the Senate was expected to do as it was asked because the government defended its promise to deal with some of the sections senators found most serious next year, after the bill was safely passed.

After Mr. Lambert heard Mr. Benson's list, he said senators would be better advised to hold firm in their protest, because the measures promised were only "a cheap bribe."

The government, he said, was trying to get the Senate a few crumbs.

Although Mr. Benson's series did not deal with all the Senate committee's complaints—notably missing were softer tax deals for mining, petroleum and pulp and paper companies —it did deal with several of them.

Mr. Benson said he was sympathetic to complaints about the tax treatment of gifts or bequests of property other than cash, such tax-exempt organizations as charities or museums.

Under the bill such donations would be subject to accumulated capital gains tax.

He said it was a difficult area, because persons had often used charities to abuse the tax system. But he hoped the government could soon find answers to this and other problems.

The minister last said his department was carefully reviewing the proposed rules on corporate rollovers, in which parties in a merger are involved in mergers, amalgamations, takeovers and transfers of stock between related companies.

There have been arguments that the rules could open the purchasing company enough latitude in deferring tax on capital gains accumulated by the company purchased.

The department would examine whether such deferments could be extended.

On paradise leaving the country, the bill would permit them to defer payments on any capital gains accrued on Canadian property until it was sold.

But when a person did sell it he would have to pay Canadian tax on his world-wide income for the year, with deductions for tax paid in his new country of residence allowed.

The provision was designed to catch persons who moved to tax havens, but wherever they moved they would be required to file two income tax returns.

Mr. Benson said he hoped his department would be able to work out a rule that was less harsh by next year.

On passive foreign investment —that which does not involve direct business interests in another country—the minister suggested that there might be an increase in the $200 exemption allotted under the bill for such income.

On employees' profit-sharing plans, he said he was in general agreement that employees should not have to pay capital gains tax on a dividend paid to shares they received on retirement.

Rather a system might be worked out whereby they could pay when they sold the shares or died.

After his speech was over, the House went through a long procedural wrangle before finally admitting an Conservative amendment on taxation of a livestock farmer's basic herd.

The bill would apply capital gains tax on the sale or transfer of a basic herd. Opposition members have argued that it takes generations to build up such a herd, and farmers would be prevented from taking over what their fathers had paid.

Arthur Laing to Quit

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Arthur Laing confirmed Friday that he will not be a candidate in the next federal election.

"Hell, I don't want to be around Ottawa when I'm 72," the 58-year-old Vancouver businessman said in an interview.

Earlier in the Commons, Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) jokingly suggested that Mr. Laing "retire to Laing," setting off recurring rumors that the minister is to be appointed to the Senate.

There is a vacancy in the upper house for a B.C. resident and it was suggested to Mr. Laing it was being held open for him.

"Who says that," he snapped back. "I have no plans at all."

Personal friends of Mr. Laing say he is not interested in becoming a senator.

Now the oldest member of the Trudeau cabinet, Mr. Laing is also among the most active.

His staff members say he is the first in the office in the morning and doesn't leave until his desk is clean.

"There isn't anything going on in this department that I don't know about," Mr. Laing said.

He has held the Vancouver South riding since the 1963 general election.

Douglas Workers Support Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The 4,000 striking employees of Douglas Aircraft Canada Ltd. voted Friday to continue their eight-week-old walkout and were subsequently ordered by the international union of the United Auto Workers to "know exactly why the strike should not be terminated.

The workers, members of UAW Local 1967, refused at a meeting to accept a company offer and on an offer they rejected from the company last month.

And in a statement read to the meeting by Dennis McDermott, Canadian vice-president and director of the UAW, that the international union had ordered both the executive and bargaining committee to appear at a show-cause hearing before all UAW headquarters in Detroit.

Mr. McDermott said the order was issued because the local refused to take the second ballot and because terms of the Douglas offer were similar to those worked out by negotiators for other UAW workers in California and Oklahoma.

The strikers reaffirmed their rejection of the Douglas offer at the conclusion of a stormy 2½-hour meeting that ended with the shouts of "resign, resign" for their president, N. H. Johnson.

The meeting was called by the union executive to take a second secret ballot on a three-year proposal Douglas made Nov. 13. Described by the company as its final offer, it would have given the union members an increase in existing hourly rates of $2.61 to $3.72.

The standing vote against a second tally brought many in the standing-room-only crowd to the 3,600-seat centre to their feet in a prolonged ovation. Bill Wilson, head of their bargaining committee. Cries for the resignation of Mr. Johnson went up around the auditorium.

Mr. Johnson denied charges by Mr. Wilson that the president had used "underhanded" tactics to call the meeting and set out point the two showed cast," other for control of the membership.

The strike, which started Oct. 13, forced the layoff Nov. 23 of 1,500 production workers at the McDonnell-Douglas Corp. plant in Long Beach, Calif., by cutting off delivery of Canadian-component parts for the U.S. plant.

The international union approved the Dec. 2 return to work of 600 office workers at the Toronto plant on the condition they performed no work that would normally be done by production workers.

The office workers, members of UAW Local 973, voted 56 per cent in favor of a company offer Nov. 15.

Nine persons were arrested Dec. 4 when police attempted to open a passage in a line of production strikers to allow office workers into the plant.

Tendon Can Become Irritated; Curing Condition Not Simple

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been treated twice with a series of hydrocortisone injections for cystitis (inflammation of the tendon and sheath) but this gave only temporary relief.

X-ray shows no bone problems or calcium deposits. Surgery is not indicated. Is there any other effective relief? — Mrs. R.D.G.

Dear Doctor: How does one cured tendinitis of the left shoulder for six months, but little improvement. — E.D.G.

Dear Doctor: How does one get these deposits? Is exercise harmful? Will it get worse if nothing is done to correct it?— Mrs. M.L.B.

A tendon is the fibrous tissue at the end of a muscle, attaching the muscle to a bone. From some injury, or more particularly from some unaccustomed strain, the tendon (and the sheath through which it passes) become irritated and inflamed.

That is tendonitis—simple to describe, not so simple to treat. In some instances, the sheath is fluid-filled sac between the tendon and a bone, becomes irritated, too. That's bursitis. That also can be painful.

At the outset, there may be no calcium—indeed, there usually isn't. That comes later, as the fibrous tissue heal the inflamed area by depositing calcium. This usually is a harmless material, about the consistency of toothpaste. Then you call the trouble calcific tendonitis. The calcium shows up on x-ray.

Common sites for tendonitis are in the shoulder, in the heel (heel spurs), and in the hand (tenosynovitis disease).

Exercise isn't going to cure tendonitis. Quite the opposite. The essential part of treatment is to put the painful area at rest. Continued movement and strain will only make the inflammation worse.

Along with this, the application of heat, by any means you choose, is extremely helpful both in alleviating the pain and in encouraging healing. Of course, simple pain-relieving medication is helpful, not only for the sake of easing the pain but in a secondary way by helping you relax and let the painful area rest. Tension increases and strain will only make the inflammation worse.

Sometimes, if the condition does not clear, cortisone may be necessary.

Still other times, the gooey stuff that is accumulation may have to be removed by irrigation of the area, by boiling saline or occasionally by some more elaborate surgical procedure.

But keep in mind the basic condition: irritation and inflammation at the level of the tendons. You may be lucky enough to get a single injection ends the trouble, but more often you will have to give the tender area adequate time to heal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it okay and safe to give a four-month-old baby raw eggs for breakfast? I have been giving my son a half egg-yolk mixed with cereal since he was a month old.

I have stopped because of the pesticides that chickens may accidentally eat with their feed. Should I wait until he is older and give him cooked eggs?— Mrs. K.E.C.

The danger with raw egg is not so much pesticides as it is from infection from salmonella. This is not common but it can occur, however, if present, multiplies very rapidly in an egg. Better check with your pediatrician on this. Cooking is safer. Never use a cracked egg.

Chemicals Must Be Identified

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge ruled Friday that chemicals used in a breath analyzer machine must be identified specifically, not simply by a production-lot number.

Mr. justice Patrick Galligan overturned the impaired-driving conviction of Orville Russell Lacey of St. Thomas, Ont., made a city 7 provincial court decision. "...

Mr. justice Galligan agreed with defence lawyer Peter Gluki in St. Thomas that the description of chemicals used in the machine should be sufficient to enable an accused to "attack the make-up of the solution."

Assistant Crown Attorney . N. Buchanan said the lot number identified the chemicals more definitely than words.

Mr. uttice Galligan said the unprecedented and ruled Mr. Lacey would not have to pay court costs.

Opening lead—ten of spades.

Let's say you're in six no-trump and West leads a spade. You can count eleven sure tricks, after forcing out the ace of clubs, and the problem is how to obtain the twelfth.

It can come from hearts, if that suit is divided 3-3, or it can come from diamonds if either a 3-3 division or cy of the deck if the suit proves to be divided other than 3-3.

Assume you win the spade lead with the king and cash the king of clubs, won by West with the ace. West leads another spade and you win with the queen, and at this point you execute a coup to learn all you can about the distribution of the unseen hands.

The first thing you do is cash the king of spades, on which East discards a club, and the next thing you do is cash the Q-J of clubs, on which West discards a spade. Both of these moves prove enlightening for you learn that West started with five spades and two clubs, and East with two spades and four clubs.

Next you cash three hearts. If West discards a spade on the third one, you have all the information you need now up the contract.

West obviously began with five spades and three hearts and two clubs—and therefore must have four diamonds.

Taking advantage of this information is easy as pie. You simply cash the king of diamonds, a low diamond back to the ace, and continue with a diamond to the fifth. West follows low, you finesse, confident that under the circumstances it terribly with your arithmetic the finesse will succeed. When it ten wins, you have removed confidence in your ability to count out a hand.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)—The die is cast by now, either for good or ill, depending on your past management of funds. With slight exception, it's a case of years if you plans have to change things.

Gemini (May 21-June 21)—Your love is promised now whether or not you expect to receive the same amount of affection in return. You're seeing things for better or for worse.

Cancer (June 22-July 22)—It's going to be a difficult adjustment at first to the transformations in your private life, but be assured that any sacrifices now are building for a better future.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)—Make a firm resolve to stay calm, under whatever provocation circumstances develop today. You're high-strung, prone to make faux pas without provocation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)—Your generosity is going tested now by loved ones, but it's likely that they'll go too far in their requests. They think you're made of money.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)—Wholehearted support within the family circle should not be counted on now. Kin all have very strong feelings on the matters and no one wants to give in.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)—Don't get involved with the hordes of everyday pressures still may not be enough to keep you where you belong. A decision to leave suddenly is likely.

Sensitive Inducement Branch Plant Answer

OTTAWA (CP) — The authors of a study on the way United States-owned branch companies operate in Canada say Canadian authorities should try to correct that challenge to sovereignty by inducements rather than coercion.

The inducements would be designed to make the U.S.-owned companies more sensitive to Canadian priorities rather than forcing change of ownership and control, say economists I. A. Litvak and C. J. Maule of Ottawa, and R. D. Robinson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The three authors of Dual Loyalty: Canadian-U.S. Business Arrangements, published this fall by McGraw-Hill of Canada Ltd., outlined their ideas at a news conference Friday.

Economists Maule and Litvak, both of Carleton University, expressed doubt that government policy should include a federal screening agency to regulate foreign investment—a proposal reported to have been in federal cabinet plans.

Mr. Maule said it would be difficult to keep tabs on all foreign-owned enterprises. Mr. Litvak said he could not see the federal government going ahead with such a plan without consulting the provinces about rules to be laid down.

Mr. Robinson said there is a danger of having a number of agencies working at cross-purposes.

The authors said the government should decide on national industrial policy—how resources are to be allocated, the kind of industry required—before trying to control the pattern of investment.

The authors say that it would be difficult for the Canadian government to coerce foreign-owned companies into good Canadian corporate behavior "without running a good chance of serious retaliation from the U.S."

The authors suggest a series of Canadian measures, including:

—At least three Canadian citizens should be on the subsidiary company's board of directors—two of them not otherwise connected with the company—to bring in a Canadian viewpoint.

—The companies should be required to fully disclose their financial operations.

—Tax law should permit deductions for the training of Canadian personnel in the parent U.S. firm.

—The government should require all subsidiary companies to be separate entities for bookkeeping, profit and tax purposes, deducting the full costs of materials and services provided by the parent and charging the parent an economic price for goods and services supplied.

—Federal incentives for research and development should be more selective to encourage specialization in Canada.

Taxpayer Court

OTTAWA (CP) — The Tax Review Board Act will be proclaimed in force Dec. 15, Justice Minister John Turner announced Friday.

It was also announced that county court Judge Keith Allan Fleming will be chairman of the new board when the act is.

The act, in effect, is a "taxpayer court" designed to provide the ordinary taxpayer with a tribunal that combines accessibility, informality and effectiveness.

A taxpayer would also be entitled to recover reasonable costs regardless of the result when a decision of the board is appealed to the Federal Court of Canada and the amount of tax in question is not more than $2,500.

Kingston Visit

KINGSTON (CP) — U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, will visit the Queen's University campus next fall as the university's 1972 Brockington visitor.

The secretary - general received an honorary [illegible] from Queen's in 1964.

The position is named after the late Leonard W. Brockington, a broadcaster and public servant.

Previous Brockington visitors have been former prime ministers Lester Pearson and British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell.

Bushnell Says CRTC 'Uncertain, Confused'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission is "uncertain and confused" and its members "don't know what the hell they're doing," says veteran broadcaster E. L. (Ernie) Bushnell.

Mr. Bushnell, president and chairman of the board of Bushnell Communications Ltd., makes the comment in his biography Mister Broadcasting, being published today by Peter Martin Associates Ltd. of Toronto. Its author is Peter Sturgeberg, another veteran broadcaster associated with CFCH-TV, Ottawa, a Bushnell station.

The book says Mr. Bushnell feels the worst fault of government or a government agency like the CRTC is the time it takes to get anything done. He cites as an example the case of a small community cablevision system at Rockland, Ont., near Ottawa.

It took the CRTC more than 18 months to approve the system's sale to the Bushnell interests. Meantime, the local businessmen who sold the system almost went broke because they couldn't touch the money which was lying in the bank awaiting the official sanction.

"At no time in my memory has the communications industry been in such a bloody mess," the book quotes a memo by Mr. Bushnell.

"It is true that never since the days of earphones has the structure of broadcasting been so complicated and so entangled in the web of technological advancement. How it will be solved is a conundrum wrapped in a mystery. . . ."

"One thing is sure . . . The CRTC had better make up its mind . . . which way it proposes to direct traffic before we end up in such a snarl that the highways and byways of our communications system will be blocked for years to come, and chaos, not order, will be the result."

If that happened, the public would suffer most.

The book sketches Mr. Bushnell's career from his boyhood at Omemee, near Peterborough, through his long career in broadcasting. That began in the latter half of the 1920s.

In 1933 he joined the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission, forerunner of the CBC, and he remained active in the public broadcasting enterprise until late 1959. He resigned then to enter the private field, founding CJOH-TV.

He still has high regard for the CBC, calling it "my second best love" in broadcasting.

But he doesn't think the CBC is perfect.

He is critical of the CBC's "commercial-rate structure and especially its policies with respect to local advertising." It is known to be the "worst rate cutter" in the business.

But he is also critical of private broadcasters: "There is no real leadership" and the Canadian Association of Broadcasters "as the defender of the private sector of broadcasting has been conspicuously ineffective."

Born at Bethany in eastern Ontario in 1900, Mr. Bushnell was two years old when his parents moved to Peterborough. Four years later they went to Omemee.

Surrender Unlikely, Dacca Battle Looms

Siege of City Ready to Begin

From AP-REUTER

Indian troops were reported within 15 miles of the East Pakistan capital of Dacca Sunday night and advancing from three directions.

Signs mounted that the estimated 20,000 to 30,000 defenders of Dacca would not surrender without a battle.

Senior Pakistani officers in Dacca predicted the attack on the city would begin by Tuesday. But Pakistan's military chief in the East, Lt.-Gen. A. A. K. Niazi, was said to be determined not to surrender.

A battalion of Indian paratroops was dropped somewhere north of Dacca Saturday night. An Indian military spokesman in New Delhi said they advanced on the city Sunday night after beating off a counter-attack during which they killed 23 Pakistani soldiers and took 12 prisoners. There was no official word on Indian casualties.

The Indian spokesman was unable to say whether the paratroops had linked up with another Indian column advancing from the Meghna River in the northeast. These troops were reported to have taken Narsingdi, 25 miles from the capital and to be "now advancing fast towards Dacca."

The main drive on Dacca is from the southeast, and some reports placed it near Daudkandi, 30 miles away.

East Pakistani guerrillas in Dacca and its suburbs were said to be awaiting the signal for a general uprising, but so far no fighting was reported in the city itself.

The Indian spokesman declined to say exactly how far the Indian airborne troops were from Dacca but added: "They might be in more than one place."

The military spokesman in Calcutta said 4,000 Pakistani troops had surrendered so far in that part of East Pakistan lying east of the Meghna River—an area now completely in Indian hands, Pakistan denied this.

These included 967 Pakistanis who surrendered Sunday in Comilla district alone.

South of Dacca, in the Bay of Bengal, the Indian navy maintained heavy pressure on the trapped Pakistani forces.

A spokesman at India's eastern naval headquarters at Vishakhapatnam said Indian warships and carrier-borne aircraft were still carrying out a series of strikes.

Ulster Senator Is Slain

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland was stunned today by the first political assassination of a current terror campaign when gunmen murdered a senator as his wife watched television.

The mutilated body of 63-year-old Senator John Barnhill, a Protestant and member of the governing Unionist party, was pulled out of the rubble of his wrecked home at Strabane early today. Irish guerrillas shot and killed him before blowing up the building.

Barnhill was killed by two armed men Sunday night at the doorway to his two-storey farm house, half a mile from the Irish Republic.

The killers placed his body in the living room and placed a 40-pound gelignite bomb beside it. Mrs. Barnhill was given two minutes to leave the house.

For Chip, the loss of his front leg didn't present more than a passing problem. Chip's mistress Penny Gilpin, 16, of 170 Foster Avenue, said Chip was running across the road some time ago, when he was clipped by a car. He survived the mishap, and Saturday bravely entered a mini-pet fashion show at Queen Elizabeth School. For story, see Page 3.

Canadians Flee Pakistan Mob

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — An unruly mob of Pakistanis terrorized Canadians moving to Islamabad International Airport yesterday to rendezvous with a Canadian Armed Forces evacuation plane.

Maj. S. E. Burrows of Winnipeg, commander of the Canadian Twin Otter destroyed last week by Indian air attacks, indicated this morning the mob directed by megaphones sprang on Canadians by mistake, thinking them Russians.

Ninety - one Canadians flew home yesterday aboard the Trenton - based Boeing 707, the majority explaining at Ottawa. A handful of evacuees, including the Otter crew stayed with the flight to its completion at CFB Trenton at 2:15 a.m.

In a Trenton interview, Major Burrows recounted the seed-off from Islamabad in which Pakistanis climbed onto the UN jeep in which his party moved to the airfield, tore off the door, pounded on the roof, clambering on the hood and obstructing visibility.

He said a Russian plane moved into the capital to evacuate USSR embassy staff under blanket of the same ceasefire accorded the 707 was mobbed on its arrival and Russian arriving by buses to board the plane were blocked from doing so until "we ran with the Pakistan army . . . cleared away the people" carrying anti-Russian placards.

...Confusion as to the Canadians identity continued as the party moved out to board the 707 and the party was hailed with rounds of "good show" and "come back".

Landing in Trenton early today were a handful of the 17 Peterborough residents that had been engaged in a Canadian General Electric nuclear power plant project near Karachi and the eight - member Otter crew.

Members of the Otter Squadron crew included Maj. Burrows, Cpl. C. W. Cumming of Belleville, W. O. E. Greene of Trenton, Sgt. L. M. Hunter of North Bay, Capt. H. R. Jenkinson of Ottawa, Cpl. R. R. Mitchell of Trenton, Lt. A. J. Morrison of Gananoque and Cpl. R. C. Ware of Belleville

Maj. Burrows gave instruction of the Otter as the reason for his crew's withdrawal from Pakistan. The Otter had provided support to the UN observer group. "There was not much we could do with our plane gone," he said.

He said the UN observer group to which Canada contributes is not functioning, although the United Nations has decided not to withdraw it. Observers, he indicated, are allowed neither to go to the ceasefire line nor make observations.

"We were very thankful the 707 got in (to Islamabad)," he said. "Today (Sunday) was the last day — the Indians have said they will not allow any more air evacuations."

Exhausted evacuees told of constant bombings both of Karachi and Islamabad by Indian aircraft and of rising tensions

Chinese Free Two Americans

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China released two American prisoners—one a woman—and commuted the life sentence of another today, only a few months before President Nixon visits Peking.

But Peking also reported the suicide of a fourth American detained after allegedly sailing his yacht into Chinese waters in 1968.

Richard Fecteau, 43, walked to freedom across the Chinese border into Hong Kong after 19 years in a Chinese jail. The American woman, Mary Ann Harbert, detained three years ago, was with him.

Blast Kills 22 Workers In Port Huron Tunnel

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — An explosion which ripped through a tunnel being built beneath Lake Huron has claimed the lives of at least 22 construction workers.

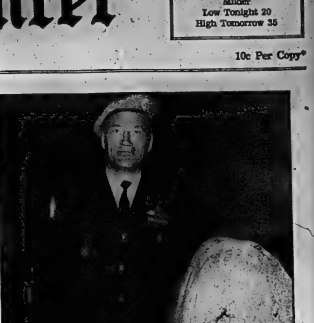
"We think we have all of them out," said Gerald Ramm, a project official. "But if you saw that tangled up mess of debris, you'd understand how somebody could still be down there."

Investigators still were uncertain today what caused Saturday's blast, which rumbled through the six-mile-long tunnel some 220 feet below the lake surface. Eight workers were injured.

The tunnel, about six weeks from completion, is being built to carry the lake's water to Detroit and other customers of the city's metropolitan water system.

The workers were finishing laying concrete in the 16-foot-in-diameter tunnel, which leads out under the lake to an intake shaft extending upward to within 50 feet of the lake surface.

Ramm, manager of Detroit Metropolitan Water Services, described as conjecture reports Sunday that the explosion was touched off by natural gas.



"We want to get the experts in there and see what might have happened," Ramm said.

The evacuation of bodies and search for survivors was interrupted Saturday night and early Sunday morning by a buildup of methane gas in the tunnel.

Nixon and Pompidou Conferring in Azores

ANGRA DO HEROISMO (Reuter) — U.S. President Nixon and French President Georges Pompideau opened two days of monetary and foreign policy talks today in this picturesque little town on Terceira Island in the Azores.

The Azores summit is in the first of a series of meetings Nixon has planned with European leaders.

The two presidents were set to have two rounds of private talks today and a final session Tuesday.

Their major objective is to arrive at a broad understanding on the issues thrown up by months of money-and-trade turmoil.

Agreement would enable the Western trading partners to work toward a speedy agreement in the knowledge that opposition between the United States and France will not torpedo their efforts.

Europeans flew into the Azores aboard the Concorde supersonic airliner to demonstrate his faith in the plane to the American, who he hopes will buy it.

Nixon arrived some six hours later.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Wintry weather has begun to make its way back into Ontario. Scattered snowflurry activity can be expected in a few areas today, while some squalls are predicted for these localities near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. Temperatures should remain in the low 30s.

Before that, he will have some Christmas goodies for the tax-payer, including a promised cut in provincial personal income taxes.

Paper Says Convicts' Sentences Negotiated

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail, quoting lawyers for some of the prisoners convicted in the death of two fellow-prisoners at Kingston penitentiary, says the trial judge helped negotiate a behind-the-scenes agreement on sentences that ended the month-long trial.

In a copyright story, the newspaper says Mr. Justice Henderson of the Ontario Supreme Court denies he took part in any sentence negotiations.

The 13 prisoners each originally pleaded not guilty to charges of non-capital murder in the beating deaths during a riot last April of Brian Reginald Enoor, 28, a child rapist, and Bertrand Henry Roberts, 34, who disciplined his children by burning them on a stove.

They eventually pleaded guilty to the lesser offences of manslaughter and assault. Their sentences in most cases ranged from two to five years added to their present terms.

Agreements in which a prisoner pleads guilty to a charge less serious than his original one are not unusual.

The newspaper says that, according to some defence lawyers, the agreements on reduced sentences were reached in the judge's chambers.

It quotes one lawyer as saying: "Nothing is more clear in my mind than that the prime mover was the judge."

It says the major hitch in the negotiations was Attorney-General Allan Lawrence, who refused to give an undertaking not to appeal the lenientcies. But after a weekend adjournment, a decision was made to proceed without Mr. Lawrence's commitment.

Le Baron and Award-winning Friends

'Le Baron, known in every-day circles as Francis Leek, holds a sixty pone for major award recipients left to right, Ronald Mason, George and James Maybee and Belleville Flying Club general manager James Marker. A gala banquet, awards night, fashion show and dance for the club, attracted well over a hundred guests at the annual club dinner party and awards night Saturday at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, but with a twist.

True to the Christmas spirit, host committee provided fashions for both men and women during a half-hour show following the dinner.

Top award that evening went to chief flying instructor Ron Mason. Presented annually, the Dr. J. N. Hard Award is bestowed on a member of the club whose name has been submitted by ballot, by members of the club. Votes are based on the recipients' contribution to the advancement of the club in the preceding year.

This is the second year Mr. Mason received this trophy.

Marking a joint effort, George and James Maybee of 137 Hastings Drive, a father and son team, were awarded the Corby Trophy, recognizing the unique performance of flying their first solo flight on the same day.

A second noteworthy trophy . . . the President's Trophy . . . is awarded to a young and progressive member of the club for over all contribution and personal flying achievements. Francis Leek, 23 Meadowvale Crescent, received the award in recognition of his dual flying role, in gliders and powered craft.

The Mayor's Trophy, presented on behalf of Dr. J. Russell Scott, was awarded to Charles Vandewetter. Charles made his first solo flight on his 15th birthday, achieved a 93 per cent mark in Department of Transport exams.

James Marker, manager of the flying club, complimented all award and "wing" recipients. "The student who challenges the elements and succeeds, must have a knowledge and initiative . . . all prime qualities without which he couldn't succeed."

Class C flying awards were also presented to Nancy Plumridge and Francis Leek.

On the lighter side of Saturday evening's proceedings, Francis Leek was invited to deliver a "tongue - in - cheek" review of various club notables.

James Marker: "What a treat. It is beyond my comprehension how this man can so firmly implant himself in our being that even when flying solo we sense his every word . . . into the back of our heads, and hear the words, 'You know better than that.' It is inevitable that every student should now and again try something a little off - beat when on his own . . . wipe-outs and similar harmless entertainments are not unheard of . . . but once the deed is done, our first thoughts are "even though his presence I cannot see, I know I am caught and how many airplanes will he have me wash this time".

"Taken all in all, I guess they're a pretty bunch; graduates all of a psychoanalysts' school, they wreak havoc upon our complacent natures. "Destruction" is a recurring theme for the lot of them. Who else today could, or would dare to make a member of my generation speak humbly, bow at the waist and politely pray.

Tow pilots Arthur Fort, Basil Kirby and Donald Fukumoto "The growing students breakfast. They represent a type of sunshine cutting through the student gloom at the BFC, as well as a spirit of fun pulling upon which we can take out all our earthly hostilities." One tow pilot is said to have drunk "nothing stronger than Belleville's pedalled tap water before he commenced towing". A second is reported to have had curly hair all over his head "before he came under our guidance". The last, "a quiet, sensible gentleman in the true sense of the word by Sunday night is incoherent . . . but he never fails to stand at attention when speaking to a student."

When laughter and applause at this Lighthearted expose died down, the students presented gifts to the aforementioned notables.

The Lady Was A Dummy

This "lady" was attacked on Front Street, Saturday night. Dragged to the Moira River near the Footbridge Arcade, she was unceremoniously stripped. City police Constable Charles Peters recovered the mannequin as the thief escaped on foot. Jack Fraser store manager Dan Bishop, of 24 Union Street, reports a $75 Afghan coat stolen from the display model after the thief smashed the storefront window. The glass will cost between $300 and $350 to replace.

IN MEMORIAM

CROMERTY — In ever loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Mac, who passed away December 13th, 1969.
We seem so lost in the soft light,
We look at it when the sun's hot bright,
We look on it when the sun's low and red,
We even look at it when it's dead.
Gone down to the far off west,
We miss you more as the time goes by.
Then we did on the day of your death,
Inside of our love is still given,
Your heart over the tunnel in the sky,
Your love the best to recall.
For no one could ever prove,
You are still the dearest of all.
Sadly missed by Chris and Daniel.

And wonder what you would do,
Could you but come back to us,
That grief can call its own,
But as it cannot, remembered by

But the meaning years can never steal,
Sadly missed by daughter Ruth, son-in-law Larry, grandchildren Debbie and Ricky and great-grandson Ricky.

WARDLEY — In loving memory of Mrs. Gladys Wardley who passed away December 13, 1970.
We cannot think of them as dead,

But in the midst of life and death,
They have but gone before.
Never forgotten by Mary and Wil Craig.

WARDLEY — In loving memory of my dear wife, Gladys, who passed away December 13, 1970.
My loss cannot tell how I miss her,
My heart can't forget how I love her,
But I know that's nothing to what Only God knows how much I miss her.
Never shall her memory fade,
Loving memories are around me,
To the spot where she is laid,
— Husband Charlie.

Parade Trophies Are Awarded

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce this year awarded four trophies to division winners in the annual Santa Claus parade held Saturday morning. Winners are as follows:

Best float, commercial, Picton Body Shop; best float entry of an organization, The Ontario School for the Deaf; best float, community entry, North Marysburg Township; best marching unit, Kingston Kiwanis Marching Band.

Trophies were presented to winners at the end of the parade route.

Canadians

manifested by increasing animosity toward foreigners.

Mrs. Joan Small, wife of John Small, Canadian High Commissioner to Pakistan who remains in Islamabad with a military aide, said during the plane's Ottawa stop, Pakistanis are becoming overzealous in enforcing air raid blackouts.

Others told of citizens running the streets at night smashing all lights. "If you smoke a cigarette they figure you're signalling the Indians" said Allan Chatterton of Montreal.

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Ted Smith and family of Belleville have returned to Canada independently. Mr. Smith had been working on a project for the East Pakistan Power Authority.

Mr. Smith left Dacca Dec. 1 by commercial airline for Islamabad, where he was reunited with his family resident there since the spring. Canadians had been employed by the Canadian High Commission to evacuate Dacca and the Canadian International Development Agency's projects (including the one Mr. Smith was engaged in) were "suspended".

The family, confronted like all foreign nationals in Pakistan with a cancellation of all commercial air flights Dec. 2, hired cars and drove out of West Pakistan's Rajpoot, Afghanistan, in face of rumors that Afghan brigands were attacking cars on the road.

In Dacca yesterday, as the Indian army tightened its siege on the city, three British planes succeeded in evacuating 400 foreigners including a few remaining Canadians of the peacetime total of 25 from the East Pakistani capital.

Canada's CH Squadron Hercules, after three attempts to get into Dacca, has now returned to its routine of distributing Christmas packages to military and diplomatic posts around the world.

Reports from Islamabad this morning indicate the mobs confronting Canadians and Russians at the airport there yesterday succeeded in cutting short evacuations during the morning's 3½ - hour ceasefire. The foreign ministry in New Delhi says seven planes managed to leave with an undetermined number of foreign refugees, while seven planes were stranded and one was forced to turn back without landing because of the mob.

Hot on the Trail of Santa Claus

Ralph and Rebecca, bassett-hounds handled by master of hounds Joanne Dunkley, led the Prince Edward Hack and Hunt Club's equestrian unit in Saturday's Santa Claus parade in Picton. Close behind the two sad-eyed hounds came 16 riders from the club.

Winter Use of Parks Growing

An increasing number of outdoor enthusiasts are visiting Ontario provincial parks each winter in pursuit of recreational activities.

Entry fees are charged in only a few parks operated with special winter facilities and programs, while snowmobiling is permitted in selected areas in a number of parks.

This year four parks — Sibbald Point Park on Lake Simcoe, Pinery Park on Lake Huron, Rondeau Park on Lake Erie and Arrowhead Park near Huntsville — will have snowplowed roads and campsites, heated washrooms with hot water, central fuel wood and garbage disposal areas. Regular fees for vehicle entry or camping will apply in these winter parks.

In the Quinte area, snowmobiles are prohibited in Dan Lake Park, at North Beach, and at the Sandbanks.

Restricted use of snowmobiles is permitted at Darlington Park near Oshawa, at Presqu'ile, Outlet Beach and Bon Echo.

In addition, a number of cross-country trails have been established on Crown lands by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests to accommodate snowmobilers who prefer this kind of prepared and marked trail development.

These trails located in areas of relatively heavy snow cover are established to supplement the trails developed in provincial parks and the many other trails marked by snowmobile clubs, winter resorts, and private land owners.

One of these is the Bon Echo Trail which begins at Bon Echo Park extending westward for 25 miles and connecting with an extensive system of trails developed by the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council.

Pets Take to Runway

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

The models were never so graceful, the fashion never so elegant.

It was dog-gone good show, all round, according to the audience who crammed the auditorium at Queen Elizabeth Public School Saturday afternoon.

The whole idea began with information received from the Ontario Humane Society, Quinte Branch, principal Donald Wishart explained.

Students at the school began discussing ways and means of raising funds for the pet shelter and came up with the idea of a pet fashion show.

Grroomed and primped to kill, 16 pets pranced and performed in costumes ranging from tu-tus to a paper box. Some were bold, some were bashful and one young model, per, pup, took it on the lam.

Snoopy, a 2½-year-old mixture with spots, was all set for his debut performance, when his trousers slipped. Now some can take such embarrassing situations in hand, so to speak, but for Snoopy this bit of pomp and ceremony was too much. He retreated, with haste, dragging the hindmost portion of his costume.

However, all was not lost. Handler Ricky Jenkins, 10, of 24 Goldfade Road, latched on to the errant model, with a firm clasp of the knees. Exhibiting a certain lack of dignity, Snoopy was hastily redressed. The look meted out to the audience during the episode, was definitely "hangdog."

Local stores provided small prizes for the winners, and the audience had a chance to admire a collection of puppies, kittens, guinea pigs and three roosters brought by the Humane Society.

When it was over, ribbons went to the winners. First prize was given to Alison Jeffery, 10, of 152 Dufferin Avenue, by commentators Janet Loynes, 12, of 219 Foster Avenue and Ruth Simonds, 12, of 185 Dufferin.

Passenger Injured

TRENTON (Staff) — A young woman from Kingston was lucky to escape with only bruises and a shaking up in a one - car accident east of the Brighton interchange on 401 highway early yesterday morning, the Ontario Provincial Police at Brighton report.

Donalda Smith, 21, of 2134 Princess Street was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment and observation after the car in which she was riding went out of control and rolled over three times the report indicated. The driver, Edgar Leduc, 24, also from the Limestone City was not hurt.

Santa Arrives in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Santa Claus came to town Saturday morning with high winds speeding his sleigh throughout the colorful parade sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, to herald his arrival.

More than 50 floats joined by bands, marching units and equestrian entries travelled from the fairgrounds, up Main Street to Main Street West.

"Hang on to your hat" became the password for parade participants who battled the breeze which ripped crepe paper and banners from the floats.

Municipal officials riding in Picton's annual salute to Santa included Mayor Margaret Ackerman and Prince Edward County warden Allan Anderson.

Quinte Apple Blossom Queen Anna Lynn Walker and her attendants also waved to onlookers from their convertible.

Although all indications Saturday pointed toward a green Christmas, snowmobiles were displayed prominently in the parade to reflect winter sport in the county.

The Prince Edward Hack and Hunt Club rode to the hounds with master of fox hounds Joanne Dunkley leading the equestrian unit with Ralph and Rebecca.

There two baleful bassett hounds were "hot on the trail" with 16 riders close behind.

Community spirit was reflected proudly in a parade entry planned by North Marysburg township.

A replica of Glenora ferry complete with "captain Lorne Smith, sailed the limestone quarry to emphasize North Marysburg's proximity to this sailing vessel.

Dozens of school children from North Marysburg Centennial school sat in class near a pot-bellied stove to recapture the school days of long ago. "Teacher" rang her hand bell throughout the parade.

At the end of the big parade was Santa Claus, man of the hour, who greeted onlookers with a hearty ho, ho, ho, and a cheery wave.

He was making only a whirlwind visit to town before the Christmas rush but found time to return to the Regent Theatre where he was met by hundreds of youngsters eager to discuss the perfect gift for their trees.

Economic Viewpoint

Dr. S. Sarpkaya, economic consultant to the Canadian Bankers' Association, had an answer to an oft-repeated question on the employment situation when he addressed the Quinte-St. Lawrence branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Belleville recently.

Asked if Canada would be better off eliminating double earners in a family and thereby reducing unemployment, Dr. Sarpkaya suggested this was a negative approach to the problem.

Very few housewives ,he said, had taken jobs men can do. Rather they were taking jobs girls were doing — most of a clerical nature — and he did not think men would be used in such positions.

"You answer," he concluded — and we agree — "is to provide more jobs for unemployed men rather than reduce the working force."

And how will this be achieved? Not even the Government, let alone the Opposition, has any overnight solution. Such would be plainly impossible; indeed, stripped of all its parliamentary emotion this is one of the plain facts of economic life in Canada.

Dr. Sarpkaya put it bluntly. Unemployment levels, he said, would remain fairly constant for another three or four years.

Consider, in this context, a survey of the economy in 1971 by The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. "Although the first half of the year was characterized by a growing recovery in the economy, there was little improvement in the employment situation," it said. "The unemployment rate, seasonally adjusted, averaged 6.3 per cent in the first half, down only slightly from the 6.6 per cent rate in the second half of 1970 and considerably above the 5½ per cent in the first half of the year."

These are the kind of statistics the Government must contend with and we repeat, it matters not who is in power, for given the economic circumstances of the day we cannot anticipate any dramatic change in employment levels.

Incidentally, as a native of Turkey and a resident of Canada for the last 11 years, Dr. Sarpkaya is able to see Canadians as others see us. He said he had become increasingly aware that Canadians look upon themselves as second-class. "It is time Canadians had confidence in the ability of our institutions, consultants, artists ,writers . . . simply, in our own work."

It is a viewpoint that ties in with what many Canadians feel — those who are aware of Canada at all, that is. Certainly we do need to contemplate the future with much greater confidence as individuals and as a nation. We are in the front rank of peoples — but we had better believe it.

Best Face Forward

Nova Scotia - born poet Wyndham Lewis once observed the Canadian scene in a manner particularly relevant to the remarks of economist Dr. S. Sarpkaya in Belleville last week.

Dr. Sarpkaya has concluded during his 11 years in this country that Canadians regard themselves as "second - class." This is what Wyndham Lewis said: "A nation, like a woman, has to make itself attractive, if it is going to attract. To stop drably and dowdily at home and tell the rest of the world to go hang is no way to live. If a nation has to repel, rather than attract, it only has to neglect its social equipment and throw away its manners.

". . . I am saying that Canada should give more point to making itself agreeable and gracious in its intercourse with strangers. For this new country needs — paradoxically as it may seem — new blood . . .

"One great fault in 'Upper Canada' — Anglo Saxon Canada — there is a sort of pride in being repellent, rather than attractive, to the stranger within the gate . . . Toronto the beautiful, as Mr. Mitch Hepburn calls it, should forget about being English. It could with great advantage take a leaf out of its far more attractive French sister Montreal's book . . ."

Of course that was many changed a bit since these words were written. Toronto is still a dour enough metropolis, but it is infinitely more cosmopolitan. The new blood is there, among its nearly two million inhabitants, and the city is greatly the better for it. All the same Wyndham Lewis' words still ring true for Canada at large. We need to present an agreeable image to the outside world.

Too Many Issues

PCs Bogged Down with Policy Resolutions

By FARMER STEVENSON

OTTAWA — One thing the Progressive Conservative party meeting proved is that Canadian political parties have not evolved a satisfactory technique for dealing with policy resolutions.

All three of our major parties have attempted to cope with the policy problem with varying degrees of success or perhaps, more accurately, varying degrees of failure. None has solved the problem of how to handle several hundred resolutions on a wide variety of subjects and still give adequate time for full discussion and arrival at a reasonable consensus.

In the Tory case, the meeting was faced with an impossibly large number of resolutions, taking up 47 long pages of single-spaced typing. And the delegates added many more resolutions to the total during the discussions in the three committees.

And, too many of the resolutions were couched in vague, generalized terms. Consider this resolution, under the heading of Income Development Program: "The elimination of poverty would be one of the most important national goals if we are to stem the economic and social drain that poverty imposes on all Canadians." No one would be against the sort of stuff that will propel the party into power.

A number of reporters, including me, expected some fireworks when the committee on economic affairs discussed regional development. We were surprise the 39 minutes or so devoted to this subject was spent largely on a resolution about decentralizing the operations of the Bank of Canada. There was not a single word about the department of regional economic expansion that I heard, and this at a time when that federal department is highly vulnerable to attack.

During the discussion on agriculture, fewer than 30 delegates were in attendance and only eight or 10 of these saw fit to take part in the debate, largely centered around the value of the Canadian Wheat Board. One Western farmer declared the wheat board had outlived its usefulness. Another disagreed and said that without the wheat board farmers would be reduced to selling their wheat on the open market while buying their supplies on a protected tariff market.

And so it went.

Our party leaders are going to have to find a better system of handling policy matters in the future if they seriously want the grass roots to have any real influence on the elected representatives.

For a starter, they might consider reducing the number of resolutions drastically, and couching them in stronger, firmer, clearer language, while allowing more time for a serious discussion of the issues then is now possible in a two-day meeting.

The friendly and optimistic mood of the meeting was in clear contrast to the party's blood baths of recent years. This was due, in part, to the absence of a leadership contest. Former candidates Stanfield and Baker deliberately played a low-key role, making only brief appearances, and was obviously making sure he did not upstage Mr. Stanfield.

However, the lack of a leadership battle took a lot of excitement out of the affair, despite the efforts of the presidential candidates to inject some color. Dr. Firmeo Monestime was the leader in this regard, bring a small band which made up in volume what it lacked in musical skill.

Mr. Stanfield surprised many delegates with his easy-going manner during the question and answer session. Those of us who follow Opposition politics knew of his flair, dry wit, but it rarely shows in his TV appearances.

One of his better similies was his comment on suggestions Conservatives would withdraw or re-write the tax reform bill if they were in power. He declared that process as about as difficult as "unscrambling an egg."

And one of his funniest cracks came when a B.C. delegate asked what he would do to modernize the port of Victoria. He can assure you that my concern about the port of Vancouver will not be very far behind my concern about the port of Halifax," the MP for Halifax replied.

The Tories still aren't quite convinced they can win the next election. Even Mr. Stanfield inadvertently echoed that doubt when he replied to one question with: "If I was prime minister" and then hastily amended it to: "When I become prime minister."

It's often the little things that hurt the most. A good case in point was a piece of campaign literature distributed to the delegates by London contractor Jim Matthews. Many of the other delegates he had spent some time in travelling across Canada "from Vancouver to St. John's"

Wolves: Are They Really That Big and Bad?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your staff reporter, Ian Robertson, must be congratulated in presenting the Farley Mowat slogo on wolves in your Nov. 17 issue.

Mr. Mowat's first book on wildlife came on the market in the middle forties. Since then, he has written and published others bearing more specifically with wolves and doing his best to change the public impression of these animals. He enlarges on the fact that they never kill or molest human beings; from this fact of course, then is the indication that they don't kill or molest anything other than a few mice and rabbits.

Mr. Robertson's article is typical of what you read in the newspapers, see on television and hear on radio when the subject of wolves is presented; he is a changed guy, not the big bad wolf of the past.

My minister has supplied me with 10 passages of scripture dealing with wolves and not one of them refers to him as other than an animal of destruction to domestic animals and other wildlife.

Dr. Douglas Pimlott in his book The Ecology of The Timberwolf in Algonquin Park, states the wolf will kill a minimum of 25 deer plus other animals in a year. Dr. C. H. Chapeskie states in an article in This Week published in Barry's Bay, that a wolf needs to kill a deer a week to survive.

Jack Shannon of the Department of Lands and Forests Head Office at Maple, Ontario, tells us the wolf's main diet is deer, supplemented by beaver. These are the two most valuable animals in our forests.

Government bounty on wolves has not been increased since the maple thirties when it was put on but it will buy less than half as much in 1971, Mr. Robertson writes and he leads readers believe the wolf bounty paid by the government is $25. My information is that our Ontario Government only pays 40 per cent of this amount or $10. The county pays the balance. Wolf bounties town pays $20 for every wolf killed in the municipality, taking a total of $35. This, to me, looks like a good deal when it saves several thousand dollars worth of saleable wildlife.

Scotland . . . many years ago exterminated its wolves and erected a monument on the spot where the last one was killed to commemorate this great event. Over half of the states of the United States did the same thing and are still without them. Not so long ago, Newfoundland did the same thing.

Dr. Douglas Pimlott, in The Gulf of St. Lawrence, has an area similar to our Algonquin Park. Without wolves, it has an estimated deer population of 75,000 as compared to Algonquin Park of less than 8,000.

COE HILL — FRED GRAHAM

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Graham seems to have acquired a lot of second-hand information on the presence or absence of wolves from Scotland to Ashcroft Inland to Algonquin Park and not mentioning those passages of Scripture passed on to him by his minister. There are a lot of word of any personal experience of wolves on hone around Coe Hill. We are not saying reporter Robertson is any more knowledgeable on the subject. He did quote his facts, however, from members of the Department of Lands and Forests. Incidentally, there was no mention in his report of author Mowat's book on wolves.

Critical Eye on NDP Waffle Group

Queen's Park
By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — Now that wound-licking time is over and scars have healed sufficiently to think about the next fight NDPers are giving a lot of thought to the Waffle. Perhaps too much.

Some of the foot-soldiers in the party, particularly, are tending to put all the blame for the unexpectedly poor showing in the election on this extremist group within the party.

By doing so they well can be distracting attention, and thought, from the root problems of the NDP in Ontario.

Nobody can say for sure just what influence the existence of the Waffle has had on the party's fortunes for the province.

One observer's opinion is that while it may have played some part, this part has probably not been nearly so substantial as many apparently believe.

With the average voter the Waffle likely has meant little more nor less than an extremist fringe. The normal citizen wouldn't know actually what it stands for. Do you? And Stephen Lewis did give an impression of straddling it.

The NDP more profitably, it seems, might look at the reflection of its general party image, and particularly that of its leadership.

Perhaps the leadership most of all. For the impression given by the leader can to a large extent be the impression of the party that takes by the impartial voter.

The top rank of the NDP was conspicuous at this when Stephen Lewis was chosen as leader.

That section of the party most supporting Lewis felt particularly the party must reflect a vitality and enthusiasm which it saw embodied in the 33 year old aspirant it put in office.

The most important convictions it seemed to have in mind was that the youth today was all-important. And beyond this that a young man would have the best chance of capturing it.

This always has been a questionable supposition. And now in retrospect it appears highly doubtful.

Youth probably would tend not to vote for an ancient. But also does it have the respect for a young man that will inspire it to vote for him?

Many times during the campaign observers, and even party members, volunteered they felt Donald MacDonald or Walter Pitman would have made a better run.

This, again, can't be said for sure, but now it does seem likely they would have.

So much so that it seems this image was, and is, one of the NDP's important problems.

Mr. Lewis himself will be helping automatically to correct this, for he will be getting older.

The leadership question will remain a problem, however, to only one of many NDP problems.

Laberge's 'Don Quixote'

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Delegates to the Quebec Federation of Labor's biennial conference (QFL) must support actively a political party, or if necessary to create a new one.

The resolution followed a suggestion from QFL President Louis Laberge, our great national Don Quixote who has received the divine mission, "to break the system."

Nine years ago a QFL convention voted to found a new party. . . . But a few months later . . . it decided not to support the New Democratic Party at the provincial level.

Again in the realm of contradictions and about-faces . . . the QFL now seems disposed to support the Parti Quebecois . . . even though in 1965 it vigorously opposed separatism.

Members of the QFL and the Confederation of National Trade Unions gave rise to the NDP. . . . But that party and the CCF have never been really listened to by workers who are more preoccupied with bread and butter than political action.

The QFL should be better off to emulate CNTU policy . . . which leaves its members free to vote as they see fit . . . for candidates and parties . . . but there is the best guarantees.

Not only the QFL must change its position but also the New Democratic Party which until now has directed its policies almost uniquely to workers without getting a real response.

A political party must concern itself with unionized workers, but also the non-unionized, the unemployed. In short everyone without exception.

Mr. Laberge still believes in Santa Claus. Lewis him alone with his illusions; times will change and bring him back to reality.

30 YEARS AGO

Members of the Kiwanis Club entertained residents of Hastings County Home at a Christmas party held at the institution. It was an unqualified success both from the type of entertainment provided and the enthusiasm of the listeners. George Farmer, chairman of the entertainment committee, arranged the special program and the ladies of the club who attended to this hard working member.

Cigarettes were sent to 52 additional Belleville boys serving overseas through the medium of the Kinsmen Club's "Fag Fund" this week, bringing the total of Belleville boys receiving "fags" to 280.

A good crowd was on hand for the general and nomination meeting. First vice-president, W. J. Ford took the chair as president John Browning was on the sick list. There was much lively discussion on the events since the last general meeting with several important points being held over for the 1971 executive. Dominion president C. C. Lindberg then graciously accepted the chair for the nominations and Obe. Hugh Northey tabulated the results which were as follows: president, John Browning and Hank Ford; first vice, W. J. Ford and Ray Reid; 2nd vice, R. G. Burns, (acc); treasurer, to be appointed by new executive; secretary, George Christopher, (acc); beverage room, Greg Ackerman and Hal Curwain; house, Bill Storms (acc); entertainment, Don Bland and Ted Newman; sports, John Baker, (acc); membership, A. During the meeting Cdr. S. Melbourne gave a brief talk as chairman of the sponsoring committee on the Unit 201 sponsored Air Cadets and reported that they had worked hard building the magnificent float for the Santa Claus parade and had been awarded the top prize for the best young people's group float. This statement drew a round of applause from the proud sponsors and the chairman presented a cheque for $50 to squadron Cdr. L. Melbourne Still another pleasant piece of news was that Cdr. G. Carver, retired Sports Editor of The Intelligencer and honorary life member of the Unit, offered to present a beautiful aluminum tray, inscribed with the names of the members of the 1962-3 Memorial Champion Maple Leaf hockey team, to be awarded to the player voted by his teammates as the most valuable to the team, the ANAF to present Bantam Hockey team. The Unit to provide an annual trophy for the player to keep while the tray would remain displayed in the clubrooms. This offer was much appreciated and accepted with thanks to the donor.

Snowmobiles Are Warned Off Tracks

Snowmobilers caught using railway tracks this winter can expect prosecution for trespassing and fines of up to $100 under the Railway Act.

Each winter railway police experience problems with snowmobiles being unlawfully operated on tracks and railway rights of way and a number of accidents have resulted from this unsafe practice with the situation growing more serious each year.

Frequently it is people travelling in the same direction as fast moving trains that are killed or injured because they are unable to hear the train over the noise of their own motors.

In order to control the situation, special patrols of tracks will be made and all offenders will be charged.

Canadian Girls in Training at College Street United Church Sunday had the added attention of a team of Loyalist College cameramen. The girls selected several traditional Christmas carols to highlight the service, here filmed by Loyalist cameraman Gerry Brosen. Members of the CGIT girls organized the service, with Rev. Roy Veney officiating. The church was packed to capacity, with members of the congregation viewing the service on closed circuit TV monitors in the basement hall.

Crowd Small for Rock Opera

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

An experiment in contemporary theatre was conducted in the city over the weekend, and much to the chagrin of promoters, there was no one around to make either observations or conclusions.

Jesus Christ Superstar, performed in the Belleville Collegiate Institute by the Canadian Rock Theatre Company, is a new look to the last days of Christ as he lived on earth.

Using an array of electronic gear, which persisted in ruining the first handful of numbers with feed-back, and a lighting system large enough to illuminate Front St., the show began on schedule, playing to the 250 who had paid their money.

Earlier in the day, a scheduled matinee was cancelled because of the ridiculously small audience scattered through the seats.

Equipment failure, coupled with the comparatively small audience, caused the performance to suffer during the first act, with the exception of a singular individual performance.

Karen Silver, portraying the biblical Mary and voicing her affection for the "superstar", called out in a beautiful, rich but delicate voice. "I don't know how to love him or what to do. I've been changed, when I see myself I seem like someone else. He moves me so."

The visual effects of the first act were manifold, but they also included the sometimes effective but [illegible] amateurish casualness of walking down the stress while [illegible].

While the band played with gusto, the 15 or so singers stretched haphazardly across the stage chatching microphones, did the bump and grind unabashedly to the music.

The change came in the show when it seemed the cast had been given a halftime briefing by the coach and they came back on like gangbusters, putting life into the Webber and Rice music score.

Victor Garber, fuzzy haired and sporting a cowboy shirt and an acoustic guitar, played Christ with a rest and a quiet inner strength that struck a validity to the show.

With no backing other than his own guitar, Mr. Garber did his bit and drew the audience to applause with each rendition.

Old things are still good things and Webber and Rice, reclaiming a piece of vaudeville beat, came up with a showstopper with This is the Christ, the great Jesus Christ. Sung with Christ seated on the stage, the sarcastic, skeptical cast chanted the song asking if He could walk across their swimming pool.

The finale, Jesus Christ, Superstar, was the crowd pleaser of the evening and with it came the end of the show.

The cast, after the performance had long forgotten how big or small the audience was, and were voicing their satisfaction with the show. In the lobby, 250 young and old were voicing much the same and all except the book-keeper were happy.

With 90 per cent of the gate, the company returned to their home 1 se of Toronto the same evening for a rest before starting on the 30 more engagements they have in the province before leaving for Hc[illegible]

"The show was a success to me because everyone left the building smiling," said Paul Barber, Quinte student and promoter of the show.

"We will have to underwrite a small sum for expenses but the loss was small in comparison to the enjoyment of having the company here.

Winter Exercise For Local Cadets

TRENTON (Staff) — Survival training is in order for air cadets and army cadets from the area this weekend.

Among the rigors to be experienced by the young trainees from 784 Air Cadet Squadron of CFB Trenton and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, with headquarters at Belleville, is a night sleeping in lonely bush country in lean-tos they build for themselves.

One of the main objectives of the exercise is to familiarize cadets with movement over snow-covered terrain. They'll receive instruction in the operation and handling of snowmobiles and the use of snowshoes.

The base camp for the weekend operation will be Camp Ross in Hastings County north of Madoc. Cadets will be transported by truck to Mt. Arthur Mills and then proceed the remainder of the distance on snowshoes.

Housing Construction On Verge of Record

Housing construction in Belleville continues to boom.

That's the word from city hall with building inspector Grant Stickle reporting that the construction of new housing (apartments and single family residences) is expected to set an all-time record.

For the first 11 months of the year to December 1, permits for a total of 627 dwelling units were taken out at City Hall with this total expected to be increased somewhat by the end of the year.

Of the total in residential permits so far issued, 92 were for single family residences, with another 535 units in multiple family construction.

By way of contrast, the total for all of last year was 438 units including multiple and single family units.

Besides the continued surge of residential construction, the overall value of new building in the city this year is not expected to match last year's total of more than $15 million. The total this year to date is just over $11½ million.

Approximately one-quarter of the year's total of multiple family residential construction is made up by the 16-storey, 135-unit structure on Sidney Street. Another 65 units are being provided by the apartment structure on Bridge Street East, on the former Judge J. C. Anderson property.

Construction of the latter apartment is well under way with the exterior framework now up about five storeys. The Sidney Street highrise is now fully enclosed, with interior finishing now underway.

This year there has been no major industrial construction in the city, but the new Quinte Mall on North Front Street provided a big boost for the city's 1971 commercial construction total.

Although permits for the two projects were issued last year, construction of the new administration wing at Belleville General Hospital and also the new Edith Cavell School of Nursing has provided needed construction jobs this year.

Vandalism And Thefts on Weekend

City police report a weekend of minor vandalism and robbery occurrences.

Most serious in a series of incidents occurred Saturday night. At approximately 10.40 p.m., the Liquor Control Board outlet on Station Street was broken into for the second time in as many days.

The thief or thieves unneeded in a window and broke down a door. A spokesman for the outlet reports six bottles of rye, valued at $35, were stolen. The window will cost $100 to replace.

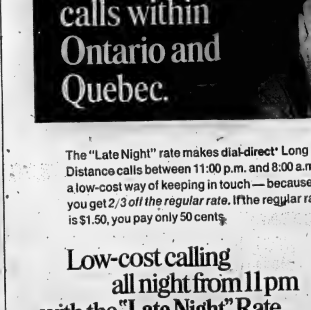
Five minutes later, someone smashed a front window at the Jack Fraser Store on Front Street.

The thief, described by a patrolling officer as "a bloodhaired youth who might be in his late teens," was seen escaping across the Footbridge.

He had walked off with a female mannequin. The thief was apparently startled by police as he was attempting the dummy's clothes.

The latest figure was decried up the bank of the Moira River to the back of the store by Constable Charles Peters. Manager Dan Bishop, 24 Union Street, reports a $75 window and an imitation leather jacket with imitation fur, known as an Afghan-look [illegible] had been removed.

The plate glass window will cost between $60 and $350 to replace.



Ruddy Electric store at 291 Coleman Street was also broken into in a similar fashion. A window was broken. Approximately $26 in cash, plus the cashbox, was stolen, together with two stereo car speakers, valued at $13.95.

City police also report 29 complaints of Christmas tree light thefts from Belleville homes. Young preasplers removed dozens of lights from outside displays over the weekend.

TWEED SENIOR CITIZENS

One of the most interesting educational and well - attended senior citizen meetings was held Wednesday, December 8, at 2 p.m. in St. James' Anglican Church hall, Tweed, when 77 members and visitors assembled for the last meeting of 1971.

The meeting was on the theme of Christmas. Mr. McTaggart, president opened the meeting as usual with prayer, and after some business details were attended to, he reported on the Ontario senior citizens low - rental housing project, which apparently is coming along satisfactorily. It was mentioned that prior to spring of 1972, some two dozen new folding chairs would need to be purchased. With the growing membership, seats must be available.

Mr. McTaggart then introduced Leslie Rawlings, manager of the Bank of Montreal, Tweed, who talked about money. He showed his coin collection, which was explained and he spoke mostly about money and coins, and he brought treats for the club, ice cream and cookies for all.

Art McCarey, who will be the new vice-president on the 1972 executive, introduced the guest speaker, Bram Humphrey of Belleville, who chose as his topic, "the Christmas candles", which he is an authority on. Mr. Humphries' wife was also in attendance. A special table was set apart and decorated with Christmas articles, and was in the form of a "wedding" feast, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gil Cotton, who were celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary, and for Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Forsyth, who were celebrating 50 years of married life. The beautiful cake was a double creation, and was cut and passed around, being cut the the 'brides'. Mrs. Cotton and Mrs. Forsyth. Mr. Cotton and Mr. Forsyth thanked everyone for the hospitality shown them in this surprise celebration.

The Christmas flowers and table cloth on the special table was most effective and all the table along with the two honored couples, was the executive of club 299 for the year 1972.

Over 1,000 delegates may attend. Chairman of the program for the convention is Mr. Fred Dodds, of Picton, president of the 45,000 member organization. With members of the Garden Club of America meeting at Queen's, it will be a joint convention with the theme "International understanding through horticulture".

At the annual meeting in Napanee, Mr. Dodds described Napanee, Rideau Lakes, a new society, was presented with its charter, and a new society at Tweed was welcomed. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Parks were the representatives from the Tweed society.

HOME REPLACED

QUEBEC (CP) — St. Brigid's home for the aged, built in 1858 as a military barracks, is being replaced by a modern $1.5-million building on another site which will house 186 persons, 60 more than the present home.

Christmas Pageant Presented at Centennial

Backed by the splendid renditions of the Belleville Choral Society, members of the Eastminster United Church performed to a near capacity audience in Centennial Secondary School on Sunday evening. The production was under the direction of Mrs. Hilda Henderson with Murray Irwin the director of the choral group with accompanyment throughout played by Alec Gordon.

The audience estimated to be the largest for any local production (over 800) was loud in its praise for the smooth running Christmas story entitled Star of the East, an annual endeavor of the church, first time to be held at the school.

In the afternoon a preview performance was given when a large number of senior citizens, students from the Ontario School for the Deaf and crippled children attended.

Many of the church members participated in the dramatic portion of the presentation with the Choral Society contributing numerous selections with solo parts taken by Colin Robbins, baritone; Lee Riedel, soprano; Shirley Wignard, contralto, and Carol Farmer, soprano. The congregation also participated in the opening and closing selections.

Boy Scouts and the 151-C group assisted with the ushering for both afternoon and evening performances.

Today's Dolls Do Everything

TORONTO (CP) — Today's plastic dolls sing, dance and do everything but spit in your eye. Were the old-fashioned ones prettier?

"Not so," says antique doll collector Mildred Fournelr.

"There are many beautiful dolls made today and there were plenty of ugly dolls made long ago."

In the past seven years, searching antique shops, she has rounded up almost 2,000 dolls and she says just because you discover a doll made in the 1940s, that doesn't make it worth having.

The most sought-after dolls, in her opinion, were made by two Frenchmen, Bru and Jumeau, from 1842 to 1898.

"Jumeau alone made 85,000 in 1881. In the year 1933 he had raised the number to 115,000."

He operated a factory where a single oven contained 5,000 dolls and often there were 20 ovens full at once.

Flavor and Fragrance Make Happier Holidays

By ALICE DENHOFF

It's difficult to think of anything connected with cakes and cookies without pure extract of vanilla. It's the very essence of baking flavor. With the holiday season near, here are recipes to fit the occasion, goodies that can be baked a week or so in advance. Here is a cake that is good without embellishment but may be frosted, if desired, with a creamy, rich frosting. It is a wonderfully flavorsome cake.

VANILLA CHRISTMAS CAKE

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups chopped blanched almonds
2¼ cups (2 cans, 3½ ounces each) flaked coconut
1 cup sliced glace cherries
1 stick (⅓ cup) butter or margarine, softened
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
1 cup sugar
5 large eggs, unbeaten
Creamy Coconut Frosting (optional)
Candied cherries

Sift together first three ingredients; set aside. Combine next three ingredients. Mix well with flour mixture. Add softened butter with vanilla and sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Gradually stir in flour mixture. Turn batter into a well-greased, lightly floured, round, medium tube baking pan. Bake in 300-degrees F. oven for one hour until a cake tester inserted in the centre comes out clean.

Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out on to wire rack to finish cooling.

Frost if desired, with this holiday special, rich:

CREAMY COCONUT FROSTING

2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons heavy cream
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup flaked coconut

Combine sugar and cream. Stir in next two ingredients. Mix until of spreading consistency. Spread over top and sides of cake. Sprinkle with coconut.

Decorate as desired with cherries and angelics, or with holly leaves for a proper holiday effect.

Now for some very special:

CHRISTMAS SANDWICH COOKIES

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
1 stick (½ cup) margarine or butter, softened
2¼ teaspoons vanilla extract
1 1-3 cups sugar
2 large eggs
¼ cup milk
½ cup finely chopped nuts
12 dates, chopped fine
½ cup thick apricot, peach or cherry jam
Vanilla Coffee Filling (recipe below)

Sift together first four ingredients. Blend butter with vanilla extract and sugar. Beat in eggs. Stir in next four ingredients. Gradually add flour mixture: mix well. Spread dough ¼-in. thick in a well-greased 15 x 10½ x 1-inch jelly roll pan. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until a cake tester inserted into centre comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out on to wire rack to finish cooling. Cut the layer in half crosswise and put together in sandwich form with Vanilla Coffee Filling. Cut in 40 1½-x-2-inch bars.

VANILLA COFFEE FILLING

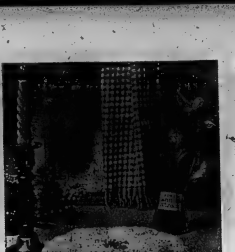
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon instant coffee or 1 teaspoon strong cooked coffee
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon heavy cream or undiluted evaporated milk

Combine all ingredients and mix until smooth.

VANILLA FROZEN PUDDING

½ cup mixed glace fruits
½ cup chopped seeded raisins
½ cup chopped pecans
3 tablespoons pineapple juice
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
¾ teaspoon salt
4 large egg whites
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

RECEIVES GRANT



MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal General Hospital has received a $192,800 grant from the Hartford Foundation to study changes in response to stress and in the behavior of individual tissues during the recovery phase following trauma. The investigation is aimed at clarifying detailed conditions necessary for cell survival.

2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream, whipped

Combine first four ingredients; mix well and let stand at least one hour. Combine sugar and water; stir until well mixed. Stir and cook until boiling point is reached. Continue cooking, without stirring, until the syrup forms a fine ball when a little is dropped in very cold water. Remove from heat. Add salt to egg whites and beat until they stand in soft, stiff peaks. Gradually beat in the hot syrup. Fold in vanilla extract and fruit mixture. Whip cream, being careful not to whip to butter stage. Fold into the mixture. Turn into ice cube trays, individual molds, or a 9x2x2-inch pan. Freeze until firm.

Serve in sherbet glasses and decorate to taste.

Makes eight to 16 servings.

Ann Landers

Both Parties Vulnerable on Blind Date

Dear Ann: Here's the story. What do I do about it?

He dialed the number. She answered her phone immediately. Yes, she'd love to go to a drive-in. She was waiting for him in front of her house as he pulled up. They went to the drive-in and it was a pretty good show. He put his arm around her. She kissed him. Not bad. He kissed her. Then he decided she wasn't very pretty—or very exciting.

So they went down the road to a sandwich. He asked her if she wanted to go somewhere and park. She said, O.K. Suddenly he decided he didn't want to park and drove her home.

Before she got out of the car he asked what she would have done if he had been a sex nut and decided to rape her. She said: "I never thought about that." He replied: "Well, think about it before you accept another blind date."

She got out of the car and walked away without saying goodnight. He went home to his wife and child. I am the wife he came home to. My brother gave him the phone number. Any advice?—Numb Alice

Dear Alice: Obviously your husband told you of the incident, which makes him look a little better—but not much.

Ask him this question: What would he have done if the girl had pulled a gun or a knife, taken his wallet, his watch and his car? Tell him to think about that before he picks up another strange girl.

And since your husband is so handy with the pokel, I suggest that he call a marriage counselor and make an effort to save what he has at home. As for your brother, he needs a keeper.

Dear Ann Landers: You have helped a great many people over the rough spots in their lives. I hope you can help me. I am 68 years old, have four grown children and six grandchildren. My eldest daughter is a widow. She and her 16-year-old son live near me. I love all my grandchildren, but I feel closer to Robbie because we have spent so much time together.

The boy's mother went to the Marys Clinic for tests a few weeks ago at the suggestion of her physician. Robbie stayed with me. My daughter made out a will before she left and asked me to read it in her absence. I was heartsick to discover that in the event of her death Robbie was to be sent to another city to live with her friends. My name was not even mentioned. Not even a rusty pin did she think to leave me.

My daughter is a woman of means. Her husband left her well fixed. I am comfortable also so that is not the point.

Thank God, the tests were negative and my daughter received a clean bill of health, but I am crushed to think that she would ignore me this way. What do you think, Ann?—D.C. Heartache

Dear D.C.: Children usually outlive their parents and I'm sure this was why your daughter did not mention you in her will. Say nothing and mark it up to her refusal to deal realistically with all of life's cruel tricks.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it harmful to a small child if he eats cigaret butts? How about burnt matches? We have a nephew who walks around eating whatever he finds in ashtrays. His parents insist nobody needs the sulphur and minerals he gets from the "garbage." They say that's why he does it. It's "nature's way." Are they right?—Concerned

Dear Con: A child won't die from eating a few cigaret butts and some burnt matches, but it certainly will not do him any good.

Successful Living

Everyone Is Worthwhile Individual

By DORIS CLARK

"No one can make you feel inferior without your consent." So said Eleanor Roosevelt.

Think about that. What she was trying to tell us is that each single one of us is a unique, worth-while individual, equally important under God, and with unique capacities.

Some of us do feel inferior because we have been told that we were perhaps; or we have accepted a position of service which has made the other person treat us as if we were beneath him. Or it may be that through force of circumstances we have been unable to amass the amount of worldly goods that the fellow next door has.

The reasons for feelings of inferiority are numerous — almost endless — and may be related to either physical or mental inequalities.

Mrs. Roosevelt said we did not have to consent to feeling inferior. And neither we do. Each one of us has a talent, a capacity to put to work and a capacity for love and outgoing friendliness. What you have to offer is worthy.

Be ye therefore perfect — and in your own way fulfil God's expectations of you.

Dear Doris: Our parents are reaching their 25th wedding anniversary. My middle sister feels we should give a dance and banquet and gifts. Most of the work would be done by me. The youngest is just 13. My thought was that the five of us could go out for a scrumptious meal and buy them a gift.

There is one complication: my husband had a fiery argument last year when I was in hospital over our small son. He has not once communicated with any member of my family. — Two Dilemmas

Dear Two: It would be just as bad to make too big a fuss as to do nothing at all. What mothers and fathers want is lovingly expressed appreciation for years of care and sacrifice which go into raising a family.

Is your sister trying to equal the lavish dimensions of a wedding feast? Such extravaganzas grow less and less attractive as one grows older, and, for my money, an opportunity to visit—with a few friends (an afternoon tea) and then go out for a special meal with those they love best would fill it right on the button.

As it is your husband's intention to impoverish the remainder of his and your emotional life by maintaining a stony silence toward your family, no message from me is going to change his mind.

But — for his own fun — don't it time he buried the hatchet? Elect him to propose a toast at the appropriate moment and with the appropriate words.

He just can't be as hard and unforgiving as you have made him sound.

Dear Doris: A child won't die from eating a few cigaret butts and some burnt matches, but it certainly will not do him any good.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is chess a game for squares?

YES, if "squares" are those who believe in an established order, and accept the rules of chess as it has always been played. Chessloe, is a game for the individual who is ready to accept responsibility. As Dr. Reuben Fine puts it in "The Psychology of Chess" (Dover), "since there is not the remotest element of chance (in nervous chess competition), a victory is the product of one's own efforts. A loss is the result of one's own mistakes."

Why do people feel 'out of touch'?

REFUSAL to become involved is usually the reason that two people find themselves "out of touch" with what is going on. Yet that is not the complete reason in most cases, since nearly everyone likes to be in the middle of things. Some people, though, refuse to believe that they want to be "where the action is"; but rather than admit it, they act as though they want to be alone and their contemporaries accommodate them.

Has inflation got the shopping wife down?

MAYBE DOWN, but not out. Each week a wife—or whoever does the family shopping—has to dig deeper to find more money for the same amount of groceries. Yet by careful shopping and budgeting, a modern housewife can rise to the challenge of today's inflation. She accepts its handicaps, likening the problems it presents to the struggles her forebears had to endure to keep a home despite more primitive circumstances.

Kate Aiken, 81, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Broadcaster Kate Aiken, whose folksy, easy-going radio show on homemaking was a Canadian institution for almost 25 years, died in hospital Saturday at the age of 81, after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Aitken, better known to millions of Canadian listeners as Radio's "Mrs. A." retired in 1957 while her national program was still one of the top shows in the country.

Predeceased by her husband in 1961, she lived a life of active retirement in Deseronto, a community 25 miles west of here, where she wrote household magazine articles and radio commentaries.

During a career that began by accident," Mrs. Aitken travelled through 54 countries, though she was perhaps best known for her daily tips on cooking, homemaking and etiquette, her interests extended far beyond the kitchen stove.

She had an instinct for sniffing out trouble spots and being on hand when big news broke. Early in 1940, she was in China when the Communists took over, and she narrowly escaped internment. Three years later she was in Korea interviewing Canadian troops during the Korean war, and in 1953, Mrs. Aitken was in Kenya reporting on the Mau Mau rebellion there.

In all, Mrs. Aitken made more than 9,500 broadcasts. She interviewed such personalities as King George VI, Queen Elizabeth, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Canadian prime ministers Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent and Lester Pearson, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini, and Adolf Hitler.

Four Men Survive Erie Gale

WALLACETOWN, Ont. (CP) — Four men who drifted in a Lake Erie storm for nine hours Friday before waves dashed their 18-foot glass fibre boat into a cliff near here returned Saturday to their homes in Ashtabula, Ohio.

Clifford Williams, 21, owner of the power boat, said they left Ashtabula, east of Cleveland, about 5:30 a.m. Friday for a three-hour trip.

Twenty miles out into the lake, inboard and outboard engines failed. Then the wind began to gust up to 50 miles an hour. It rained heavily and the men were forced to bail to keep the boat afloat.

Fifteen-foot waves tossed the boat and eventually smashed it into the 60-foot-high cliffs near the community 20 miles southeast of London late Friday afternoon. The four men, all wearing life jackets, were not hurt.

The other three men were: Harlan Rinto, 21, Richard Lowe, 28, and Gary Cartner, 20.

There was no trace of the $4,000 pleasure boat.

NBC Founder, D. Sarnoff, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — David Sarnoff, 80, an immigrant messenger boy who became founder of the National Broadcasting Co. and head of the giant RCA Corp., died Sunday at his home here.

Sarnoff organized NBC in 1926 and headed RCA for more than three decades. When he retired as board chairman in January, 1970, the corporation had annual gross sales of more than $3 billion, employed 128,000 people, and ran 64 plants throughout the world.

TORONTO (CP) — C. H. J. (Jerry) Snider, former associate editor of The Telegram, died here Sunday. He was 81.

Mr. Snider started with The Telegram in 1897 as a junior reporter. He gave 51 years service to the paper and retired in 1948.

Cause of Multi-million Subway Fire Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Investigators were trying to determine together the cause of a multi-million dollar fire in the city's subway system today while clean-up crews worked to clear away buckled tracks, sections of collapsed concrete and the wreckage of four nine-car trains.

The body of Gerard Maccaone, a 40-year-old subway operator who was to be married next month, was recovered Saturday from the cab of a train which collided with a parked one in the north-end Henri Bourassa terminal last Thursday.

He is to be buried Tuesday or Wednesday.

"We won't be sure of anything until we have a chance to examine first-hand Maccarone's cab and the train he hit," said Gaston Beland, a fire department investigator. "It was much too hot to do that when we recovered the remains."

He said sections of broken concrete showed temperatures reached at least 1,800 degrees — the point at which concrete disintegrates — during the fire which raged out of control for over 23 hours.

Debris burying some of the cars was hampering firemen and subway employees using special cranes and a winch-equipped diesel to haul away the trains, each valued at $1.1 million.

It was taking 12 hours to move one car one station down the line, subway officials said.

Intense heat, dense smoke and acrid fumes had forced firemen wearing oxygen masks to work in 10-minutes shifts while battling the blaze which caused damages that subway investigators say could reach $10 million.

Mr. Maccarone's body was found after firemen pumped out the terminal tunnel flooded in a last-ditch effort to put out the fire.

Mr. Maccarone and another operator riding at the rear of the train were the only persons on the train which had just discharged 500 passengers before making a routine switching operation.

Montreal Urban Community transit commission officials said that in the ensuing collision the other operator made his way to the front of the train. When he couldn't free Mr. Maccarone whose leg was pinned in his cab, the other man escaped along the tracks to report the accident.

Transit officials said that in a 20-minute conversation with Mr. Maccarone before fire cut off communication, the operator told them the throttle had jammed.

However, the computer-controlled trains are supposed to brake automatically to prevent crashing into one another.

Claude Saulnier, chairman of the Montreal Urban Communauty, said the Henri Bourassa station will be closed for several months.

Partial service was restored to terminals further south on the north-south line Saturday and remaining stations south of Henri Bourassa are expected to reopen today.

Canadians Awoke to Roar of Bombs

LONDON (CP) — In the dead of a December night at their comfortable Karachi home, Canadian housewife Faith Davediuk nudged her sleeping husband and exclaimed: "Fred, we're being bombed."

Nuclear engineer Fred Davediuk mumbled words that most husbands would have used in soothing response to wifely fears of noises in the night.

"Now, dear, don't worry, everything's all right," he said sleepily.

But instead of dozing off again, he was soon on his feet and peering in shocked astonishment through the windows of the house where he, Mrs. Davediuk and their three young daughters had lived since he began working on a Canadian-aid power station in West Pakistan more than two years ago.

"To the north, east, south and west, the sky was a complete blanket of red anti-aircraft tracers," Davediuk said in an interview Sunday, only hours after he and his family had completed a long evacuation trip from the Pakistani city to London.

With Pakistani anti-aircraft guns blazing away from positions on one side of their Karachi house and Indian jets attacking an airport on the other, the din became ear-splitting that memorable night of Dec. 3.

Windows shook, keys fell from door-locks, and the next morning lethal fragments of shrapnel were found scattered all around the dwelling's compound by the Davediuks and the two dozen other Canadian families brought to Karachi by engineers working on the power project.

The 36-year-old Davediuk, normally a resident of Peterborough, told how his daughters, ranging in age from 5 to 13, wept in fear.

For almost a week after their initiation into the rigors of a bombing war the Canadians and other residents of Karachi spent sleepless nights either in tense expectation of coming attacks or sheltering as best they could against the possibility that bombs or bullets meant for the airport or harbor facilities would kill or maim civilians instead.

Arthur Smith of Hamilton, a civil engineer with Canadian General Electric, has been here supervising the erection of the evacuees connected with the Karachi nuclear power station. He had left West Pakistan three weeks ago on business. His wife and three children were among those evacuated from Karachi late last week.

All the Canadians from the power-station colony were flown out of Karachi unharmed—some to London, others back in Canada.

Mrs. Davediuk and her children moved first from their dangerously exposed house to a downtown hotel and on Dec. 8 began a flight to Bahrein in the Persian Gulf, from where they flew by commercial flight to London.

Les Broad of Peterborough, father of three children included among the emergency passengers on the Nardana, said the ship's officers were "absolutely tremendous" in the way they took pains to make the Canadian families comfortable.

A Canadian forces jet turned up Dec. 10 at the heavily camouflaged Karachi airport to pick up specialists from Canada such as Davediuk.

From the terminal building, where 600 would-be evacuees swirling around in tense hopefulness of impending departure, Davediuk caught sight of the Canadian plane with what he later described as "his beautiful Maple Leaf flag."

"I can't describe the feeling," he said. "All I could say when I reached the plane and saw the crew was 'You're sure a good-looking bunch'."

The big aircraft, with Americans, British and other nationalities as well as Canadians among its 200 passengers, flew to Tehran.

Davediuk then went to Bahrein but found himself having to make the long flight to London before he was finally reunited with his tearful wife and children Saturday night.

In the British capital, they and a number of other Canadian families evacuated from Pakistan are resting in a spacious apartment hotel before deciding their next move—possibly a European holiday. Their fatigue and tension were last disappearing.

In Karachi, they had to leave their house full of the family belongings and can only hope these survive the emergency period unscathed.

The nuclear power station, now close to completion, is in a state of shutdown.

Moores to Probe Some Undertakings

OTTAWA (CP) — Newfoundland Conservative leader Frank Moores says he will investigate some development projects promoted by the Newfoundland government if he becomes premier.

But he says he does not plan a "witch-hunt of individuals."

The Conservative leader was speaking on the CTV network program Question Period, broadcast Sunday.

Mr. Moores said one reason Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood has not yet resigned is that he "probably wants to clean out the office."

The Conservative leader said there have been some "peculiar dealings in Newfoundland." He suspected there were some documents that were "incriminating politically."

Trounce Oshawa 7-2

Fairways Can Forgive Harrison

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville Fairways' goaltender Bob Harrison was sheepish about a 100-foot goal scored against him in his team's 7-2 romp over Oshawa Crushmen in Eastern Ont-rio Junior B action here Sunday.

"That's the longest one that's ever been scored on me," Harrison blushed when asked about Oshawa defenceman Chuck Lalna's shimmer from the other side of centre ice near the end of the second period.

"That'll teach me to keep my legs together. The puck hit something and went right up over my stick."

Harrison couldn't be blamed for the lapse in form. He wouldn't have been at fault for forgetting what the puck looked like after his teammates outshot the Crushmen 39-7 in piling up a 5-0 first-period lead.

The Fairways' final margin in shots — 43 to 24 — WAS indicative of the play as they skated rings around an Oshawa team they hadn't beaten in two years.

"We had it all over them in the first period, and that was it," coach Murray Hunter assessed. "We had a tremendous team effort and they just weren't skating with us."

The Mark Westward-Terry Meagher — Jeff Howard line dominated the opening 20 minutes, accounting for four of the five Fairway scoring plays. Woodward's two goals both came on powerplays.

Sandwiched between the Woodward line's output was a 30-foot blast by Brian Cousins that Oshawa goalkeeper Lou Moore barely waved at with his catching glove as it caught an upper corner.

Oshawa's Joe Greenlree broke the scoring ice in a chippy second period with a breakaway goal at 15.32. The only other scoring play of the period was Lalna's shorthanded longshot at 19.42.

Jeff Howard's second goal of the game, at 8.21 of the final period, was the game's best - executed. The left winger got behind the Oshawa defence and took a perfect lead pass from John Mihvilli that put him in the clear.

Mulvihill was nearly upstaged by fellow defender Doug Perry, who came up with a strong display of puck and manhandling.

Tim Yohn's goal at 9.56 capped the convincing win. Belleville's fourth undefeated start in succession. Three wins and a tie have boosted the Fairway record to 7-6-1, leaving them five points behind the second-place Crushmen in the six-team standings.

Elliott Lake middleweight competitor Walter Simbirski shows the form that helped him win the 165-pound class title at Saturday's 17th annual Eastern Ontario Christmas Teenage Contest. Simbirski compiled a three-lift total of 620 pounds to take top honors in his class.

Apollo Weightlifters Find Visitors Strong

Members of Belleville's Apollo Barbell Club found out Saturday that weightlifting is thriving as a sport in other Ontario centres.

Some 65 lifters competed in the 17th annual Eastern Ontario Teenage Christmas Contest and the host club won only two of 10 weight class titles.

Art Walt, in his last teenage contest, walked away with the 198-pound middle-heavyweight crown with a three-lift total of 860 pounds, 310 more than his nearest rival and was awarded the meet's top lifter award.

Provincial b a n t a m-weight champion Ron Hayes earned the only other Apollo first-place finish with a 545-pound effort in the 123-pound class.

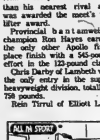
A 135-match helped Elliott Lake entrant Walter Simbirski win the middleweight division with an aggregate 620-pound effort .Belleville's Gary Ferguson was runner-up at 595.

Top lightweight (148-pound) performance was turned in by another Elliott Lake visitor, Dan Robitaille, who compiled a 650 total. Brian Conley took the 132-pound title home to Ottawa with a 451 total and Toronto competitor Irving Shaffer paced the flyweight (114-pound) lifters at 355.

Hamilton's John Brogly emerged top dog in the 12-entry paperweight (99 pound) division, edging out Apollo's Dean Fitzgerald 285-280.

Also on Saturday's agenda at S t r Mackenzie Bowell School was the presentation of the Ontario Champion of Champions award to Sarnia's Bob Santeyr, who has earned the honor twice in the past four years.

The Apollo Club's most improved lifter award went to Gary Walt, who upped his total from 326 pounds to 970 in the past year.



Hornets Stung This Time

It was the Hornets turn to get stung as they lost a 3-2 decision to the No - Stars in Northern Electric Hockey action Sunday.

Doug Bolie paced the winners with a goal and two assists with other scores going to Bob Bailey, Bill Jamieson, Tom MacDonald and Dave Putman. For the losers it was Ed Christopher and Bob Cote getting the goals.

Four goals by Rick Rosebush paced the Dukes to a 5-1 win over the Good Guys in the other game. John Brunette scored the other Dukes goal with Bill Carson, Terry Casselman and Mark Applefreddo picking up two assists each.

The lone Good Guys' goal went to Tom Pierce.

Timing Irks Quintes

OWEN SOUND (Special) — As far as Belleville Quintes are concerned, the Owen Sound Crescents' senior hockey timing is all wrong.

The last - place Crescents picked Saturday night to win only their fifth game of the season, 3-2 over the visiting Quintes, and Sunday to drop their 14th loss, a 16-1 drubbing in Kingston that brought the Aces to within four points of fifth - place Belleville.

Despite a late arrival and no pre-game warmup, the Quintes held their hosts scoreless in the first period Saturday night.

George Godson gave the Quintes a 1-0 edge with Ralph Plane in the penalty box at 6.40 of the second period. Godson's goal, on a pass from Lorne O'Donnell, marked the penalty - killing duos fifth short-handed goal in the last four games. However, Doc Vignol scored an Owen Sound powerplay goal before Plane returned to put the Crescents on an even footing.

Bob Tunsicad's goal at 12.01 just as Plane finished serving a hooking minor, put the Crescents ahead for good.

Al Blair made it 3-1 at 13.48 of the final frame, before Wayne McConnell scored at 19.14 after coach Gene Poirier pulled goalie Steve Rexe for an extra attacker with the Crescents already playing one man short.

The Quintes came close again in the dying seconds, but had to settle with a 41-40 edge in shots on goal.

Next action for the Belleville seniors comes Saturday when Barrie Flyers visit the Memorial Arena.

A PERSONAL INVITATION

. . . Mel Marek, Sales Manager, Edwards Ford Mercury extends this personal invitation to make an appointment with him or one of Edwards' professional salesmen to see and test drive the Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark IV.

The 1972 Lincoln Continental has been conceived, designed, and engineered to be one of the finest luxury automobiles built in North America. It is the quietest, smoothest riding and most comfortable Lincoln Continental ever offered.

For 1972, Continental introduces a new Mark. In many ways, Continental Mark IV is a subtle refinement of a contemporary classic. But though the styling changes are evolutionary, they are also dramatic. Continental Mark IV for all the 1970's will be the unique North American car.

Hawks Open with Bang Against North Stars

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gump Worsley wilted before the aroused Chicago Black Hawks, defenceman Brad Park stole the scoring precedent from some of his New York Ranger team-mates and Boston Bruins saw two ex-coaches direct them in National Hockey League action Sunday night.

Worsley, the veteran goaltender who led Minnesota North Stars' astonishing start last year, a league-leading goals-against average of 1.36, going into Sunday's games, was shelled from the nets by 11:04 of the first period after four pucks had beat him.

The Hawks scoring spree propelled them to a 5-3 win over the North Stars and a four-point bulge in their battle for top spot in the West Division.

Brad Park came up with his first three-goal game in the NHL as the Rangers trounced Pittsburgh Penguins 6-1 to pad their lead in the East to three points.

And Boston saw their chances of staying with the Rangers suddenly dim when ex-Bruins Ivan Boldirev and Wayne Carleton scored in a 4-2 win by California Golden Seals.

In other games Sunday, Montreal Canadiens, also in the East Division race, failed to capitalize on the Rangers' slip-up, losing a 4-1 game to Philadelphia Flyers. Toronto Maple Leafs took advantage of Buffalo defensive lapses to score twice on third-period breakaways for a 4-2 victory over the Sabres.

Chicago vaulted four places Saturday with a 3-1 win at Toronto while Montreal nipped Minnesota 4-3. Elsewhere, Boston drubbed Vancouver Canucks 6-2, New York Rangers whipped Philadelphia 6-3, St. Louis Blues downed Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and Buffalo and Pittsburgh Penguins tied 3-3.

Worsley, 43, who lost his last start, 3-1 at Toronto last Wednesday, had a case of too many Bulls before he departed in favor of Cesare Maniago, in favor of Cesare Maniago.

Dennis Hull started the Montreal-Minnesota melt with the first of his two goals just after the five-minute mark. Then Chico Maki, Dennis Hull again and Bobby Hull's 17th of the season completed the shellacking.

Maniago allowed just one more goal, but the Minnesotans were unable to play catch-up hockey in a surprisingly-tame affair at Chicago Stadium in which only six minor penalties were called, three in each team.

Park rocked Penguin's rookie goaltender Jim Rutherford with two goals in the second period and added his 19th of the year early in the final session.

He also assisted on New York's first goal, by Rod Gilbert. The veteran winger's goal, his 34th of the season, was the easy goal picked up by Rangers high-scoring Hot Line of Gilbert, Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield.

It also marked the sixth time

BRAD PARK

Gilbert has scored 30 or more goals in a season, a team mark surpassed only by Andy Bathgate and Gilles Hemery, each with eight 30-or-more-goal seasons.

The New York win was their eighth straight at Madison Square Garden during which they have clobbered the opposition 57-14.

Park's goal production moved him three ahead of last year's total output and within one of his best-ever year, 1969-70 when he earned first-team all-star ratings.

The Bruins, who had won 11 and tied one of their last 12 starts, were unable to shake loose from the pesky Californians who took a 3-1 lead on Boldirev's second-period score.

Phil Esposito's 33rd of the season, which brought Boston to a 3-2 deficit, set the stage for Carleton's insurance score with 30 seconds remaining in the game.

Boldirev moved to the Seals in a trade for two minor league players early in the season. He had been preceded there by Carleton, left unprotected by Boston in last summer's NHL draft and picked up by California.

To add to the Bruins' woes, California's opening score went

West Keeps Shoes
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry West, unbeaten this National Basketball Association season, looked down as he untied his shoes.
One of the Los Angeles Laker ball boys was standing nearby. West walked over, handed him the shoes and said, "Here, these shoes haven't lost a game. You can have them. I'm going to get a new pair."
"Oh boy," squealed the youngster. Then West thought better of his shoes, which the Lakers' star guard had worn while leading the Lakers to their first straight victory, an NBA record.
"Son, just a second. Let me have those back. You can have them when we lose a game."
"Gee," said the kid, walking off with head down, "maybe you won't lose."
The Lakers' Sunday night 104-95 victory over Atlanta Hawks was their 33rd straight success, but it did provide Los Angeles with an all-time record for consecutive triumphs, one better than Milwaukee Bucks won last year.
The streak began Nov. 5 when West came off the injury list. He also played in the Lakers' first four victories and has been the key man in almost every game in which he has played.
The Lakers, 27-3, face Portland Trailblazers Tuesday night.
Sunday night's game before 17,505 at the Forum was in doubt with 1:01 to play, Atlanta had clawed to within a point, 98-96, and the Lakers hadn't hit a shot in two minutes. Gail Goodrich then came off the bench and got off a wobbly pass that Will Chamberlain slammed through for a three-point edge with 39 seconds left. An interception, a layup by Goodrich and a dunk by Leroy Ellis plus two free throws netted the record victory.
The Lakers, during the streak, had averaged 121.7 points to the opponents' 97.8.
Goodrich had 32 points, West 26 and Jim McMillian 19 while Chamberlain was pestering for 24 rebounds.
Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday night, Boston Celtics beat Cincinnati Royals 98-83, New York Knicks downed Detroit Pistons 116-93 and Houston Rockets edged Seattle SuperSonics 109-98.
In the only game in the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh defeated the Floridians 98-95.
In the NBA Saturday night, it was: Chicago 115, Boston 99; New York 134, Portland 126; Cincinnati 103, Cleveland 85; Milwaukee 107, Baltimore 101; Philadelphia 118, Detroit 111, and Houston 111, Phoenix 106.
ABA Saturday results were: Indian 105, Floridians 96; Virginia 128, Kentucky 126; Memphis 116, Dallas 105; Utah 109, New York 93; Denver 130, Carolina 125.

Woods Wins Long Haul

HAMILTON (CP) — Bob Woods skipped his Toronto rink into the Ontario curling championships Sunday, but it was a long, tough haul.

His final win was a 10-9 squeaker over perennial challenger Jim Walle of St. Thomas and the game was as close as the six others Woods played at the Ontario Curling Association's challenge round.

Woods also won by scores of 8-6, 7-5, 7-6 and 11-7, in the 11-7 win over Kin Buchan of London, he needed a six-ender in the ninth end to bring home the win.

His only loss was an 8-7 decision to Bill Crorer, also of Toronto.

On Saturday, Ken Rowan of Toronto gained the other bye into the provincial playdowns in Ottawa Feb. 3 by defeating Ted Brown of Kingston 8-4 in the other tier of the double-elimination bonspiel.

Woods and Walle were tied 8-8 after 11 ends and Walle had two shots in the house when Woods went to the back for his last shot. He hit the shot rock solidly and stayed to count the winning stone.

Rowan had to knock out one of the many favored rinks to reach his final. That rink belonged to Bob Charlebois, last year's provincial champion who curls out of the same club as Rowan. He won 8-6 in the semi-finals.

"That's the first time we've ever beaten him in something like this," said Rowan, adding that his win will save a lot of hard work.

"We would have had to play off among 16 rinks in our own club, then a division playoff, then an inter-division playoff," he said.

"This saves us at least three weeks of hard curling."

Among big-game curlers who were knocked out were Al Phillips Jr. and Paul Savage both of Toronto, Buchan and Eldon Coombe of Ottawa.

Rowan was an outside choice. Sixteen of the 22 rinks were seeded by the association and he was not one of them.

He won five consecutive games to take the top half of the draw.

Dawson Draws Stram's Plaudits, Landry Touts Cowboy Backfield

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"If there is a better quarterback in pro football, I don't know who it would be," Kansas City coach Hank Stram said of Len Dawson.

"I can't say they're the best two running backs, but just look at what they've done the last two weeks," Dallas coach Tom Landry said of Duane Thomas and Calvin Hill.

Dawson masterminded a last ditch 83-yard drive that ended in an Stenerud's 18-yard field goal Sunday which catapulted the Chiefs to a 16-14 victory over Oakland Raiders and the American a Conference West championship.

And the Thomas-Hill tandem rushed for 183 yards and accounted for four touchdowns in Dallas' 42-14 shellacking of New York Giants that put the Cowboys on the edge of the National Conference East throne.

In Sunday's other National Football League games, San Francisco 49ers smothered Atlanta Falcons 24-3, San Diego Chargers bombed Denver Broncos 45-17, Green Bay Packers belted Chicago Bears 31-10, Philadelphia Eagles beat St. Louis Cardinals 19-7, New York Jets defeated New England Patriots 13-6, Cleveland Browns edged New Orleans Saints 21-17, Pittsburgh Steelers turned back Cincinnati Bengals 21-13 and Houston Oilers topped Buffalo Bills 20-14. On Saturday Minnesota Vikings beat Detroit Lions 29-10 to take the NFC Central title and Baltimore Colts whipped Miami Dolphins 14-3.

In tonight's televised game, Washington Redskins play the Rams in Los Angeles.

Otis Taylor, who wound up with 113 yards in pass receptions, caught three Dawson passes for 28 yards in the winning surge and an interference penalty on another pass to him accounted for 29 more.

It is Kansas City's first divisional title since 1966—although in 1969, after finishing second to Oakland in the regular season, the Chiefs whipped the Raiders in the playoffs, then went on to rout Minnesota in the Super Bowl.

Taylor also caught a 29-yard touchdown pass and Stenerud booted earlier field goals of 23 and 14 yards in the triumph that knocked the Raiders from contention by quarterback George Blanda, who came off the bench to guide the Raiders from a 10-0 deficit to a 14-13 fourth-quarter lead on a pair of Mary Hubbard one-yard touchdown bursts.

The Cowboys opened a one-game lead over Washington and can clinch the divisional crown if the Redskins tie or lose to-night.

While Thomas rambled for 94 yards and touchdowns of three and seven yards, Hill tacked on 89, including a four-yard scoring run, and added 50 more on four receptions, one of them a 19-yarder from Roger Staubach for a touchdown.

And Craig Morton, who has quarterbacked the Cowboys to six consecutive victories since winning the starting job outright, teamed with Bob Hayes for scoring bombs of 46 and 85 yards.

John Brodie passed 23 yards to Larry Schreiber for one touchdown and hooktegged the ball four yards for another as the 49ers pulled into a temporary first-place tie with the Rams in the NFC West.

John Hadl of the Chargers completed 21 of 35 passes for 332 yards and four touchdowns, including two to Jeff Queen and a 77-yard bomb to Gary Garrison, to lack the Broncos in the AFC West basement.

Packers running back John Brockington scored four 1-yard and a touchdown against the Bears to become the NFL's 25th 1,000-yard rusher and only the fourth rookie to reach the mark. He now has 1,027.

Tom Dempsey booted the Eagles to their fifth victory in eight games and past the Cardinals into third place in the NFC East and Bill Bradley, also from 54 yards, while Pete Liske combined with Harold Jackson for a 69-yard touchdown strike.

The Patriots-Jets game was halted on an errant wind between Jim Plunkett and Joe Namath, but not before three a touchdown pass. The only one of the game came on John Riggins' one-yard plunge following Phil Wise's fumble recovery on the New England five. New York's Bobby Howfield and the Pats' Charlie Gogolak each kicked a pair of field goals.

It was defensive tackle Walter Johnson of the Browns, recovering Archie Manning's fourth-quarter fumble in the end zone for a touchdown, that sank the Saints.

Terry Bradshaw came off the bench to fire a pair of last-period Pittsburgh touchdown passes to beat the Bengals.

Rookie Dan Pastorel, falling under heavy Buffalo pursuit, underhanded a fourth-down pass to Jim Bierne that wound up gaining 40 yards, setting up Robert Holmes two-yard touchdown plunge with 24 seconds to play that gave the Oilers their triumph.

Goalby Hatches His Eggs

FREEPORT, G.B.I. (AP) — It had all my eggs in one basket in this one round" a smiling and admittedly excited Bo Goalby said.

He was talking about the round 70, a steady one-under-par effort under tremendous pressure Sunday that brought him a one-stroke victory in the $130,000 Bahama Islands open golf tournament.

Goalby temporarily-at least for the 40-year-old Goalby, it's returned him an exemption from the qualifying rounds for next year's regular tour of 1972.

"I'm pretty excited, maybe a much as I have ever been," he said after carving short putts on the final two holes to win the $22,000 first prize and a spot in the top 60 money winners—the determining factor in making the exempt list.

George Knudson of Toronto also made it into the top 60 with a tie for 20th place. He needed $1,200.85 to make it and won $1,222.85. That knocked out Dick Lotz and Jimmy Jamieson who had held top-60 spots going into the week.

Rollins Peewees Give Strong Tournament Effort

Rollins peewees battled all the way to the semi-finals before bowing out of the Oshawa Kinsmen Tournament this weekend.

The Belleville peewees began tourney action Saturday with a 6-2 win over Barrie. Bobby Crawford, Jeff Gow and John Jacquemard each fired two goals for the winners.

Sunday morning Rollins played to a 2-2 draw with Sudbury after the teams remained deadlocked in overtime play, so Belleville was awarded the game because they had scored the first goal. Mike Bonnell and Andy Lupenette counted for the locals.

Belleville were finally forced out of action when they lost a 5-3 verdict to Burlington. Lupenette counted two goals in that game with the other going to Sandy Hutchison. Goalies Bruce Hamilton and Terry Thompson were standouts for Rollins through out the tournament.

The Willson Concrete tykes stunned Stirling by a 9-0 count in their only encounter this weekend. Thompson and Powell had two goals each for the winners with singles going to Ashton, Gerard, Legge, McLeod and Taylor.

The Esso Cars' Wash peewees missed played to a 4-4 deadlock with their Peterborough counterparts. Belleville scoring was split among Danny Jacques, David Harris, Gary McIlroy and Dan Duffy.

In novice play, Towers Food City continued their winning ways with a 5-2 win over Kingsmen Sandblasting followed by a 5-0 Sunday blanking of Kingston's Centre 70 squad.

Darrell Coltman and Mark Crawford looked after all of the Belleville goal scoring with Coltman potting three of the five goals in Sunday's win Steve Mofina rapped in two counters with Bruce Brien, Crawford and Rick Henry rounding out the scoring.

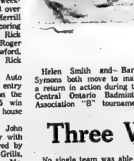
Belleville's Western Tire Juveniles battled to a 2-2 draw with Centre 70 Sunday. Rick Meagher led a band in both Western goals, assisting on Kevin Joughin's tally and adding an unassisted marker for the final Belleville score.

The Belleville Kinsmen bantams swept to wins in a trio of weekend games. Jeff Merrett and Rick Hutchinson got the Kinsmen off on the right foot by recording 4-0 shutout of Napanee Friday. Rick Barbeau looked after the fivescore with three goals, while Dave McBride scored the other.

Saturday they stopped Trenton Kiwanis 5-3 behind two goals by Roger Gallant and singles by John Murphy, Paul Hayman and Mark Foster.

The Kinsmen's third weekend win was a 6-3 win over Centre 70, with Jeff Merrill recording the shutout. Scoring for the winners were Rick Calkin, Mike Taylor, Roger Chapman, Mike Crawford, Gary Thompson and Rick Barbeau.

Thurlow's Belleville Auto Dealers Bantam E entry started their season on the right foot with a 7-3 win over the Sidney Inn house loopsters.



Mick Whalen and John Muir showed the way with two goals each followed by Brian Masterson, Ed Grills, Rod Dafoe and Peter McGlaney with singles. Ray Skelly had three goals for Sidney with Tony Meagher picking up a pair.

The Blake Kerr Imperial midgets won the hockey game, but lost a defenceman in their 10-0 verdict over Napanee.

The Belleville midgets will be minus the services of the defenceman Jeff Brown for at least two weeks due to suffered a broken shoulder in the contest.

"It couldn't be termed a fast break, but the Loyalist College basketball team finally broke into the win column of the Ontario College Athletic Association.

After losing their first four outings, the Lancers managed to dump St. Lawrence at Cornwall by a 63-59 count Saturday night. The Belleville cagers had dropped a 71-50 verdict to Sheridan's Algonquin College Friday.

The hockey Lancers took twin trimmings in their week-end outings, losing 14-3 to Algonquin and 12-4 to St. Lawrence.

Robert Hicks paced the Loyalist basketball win by pumping in 19 points. The rookie guard received scoring support from Rick Webster with 15 points, Terry Tomkins (13) and Ed Goudy (12).

In Saturday's hockey game Barry Remington, Randy Caterllarin, Dave Mosely and Steve Webster paced the Lancers in the 12-4 loss.

Webster emerged as high scorer for the losers in Friday's loss to Algonquin by netting 18 points, while Hicks was good for 13. Rick Killaby led the Algonquin team with 17 points.

Three Way Badminton Split

No single team was able to establish clear superiority at the Central Ontario Badminton Association's "B" tournament at Centennial Secondary School Saturday as Napanee, Oshawa and Cobourg split the victories.

Napanee's Irma Lisinski and Sylvia Cassidy emerged with the win in the women's section of the doubles competition. They defeated Jo Thackery and Yvonne Chapman of Oshawa, 8-15, 15-7 and 16-4 after recovering from a slow start.

The Oshawa team of Pete Byer and Bill Thackery played steady badminton to stop Kingston's John Johnson and Jack Carnbell 15-8, 7-15 and 15-6 in the men's final. In each game it was the team getting off to an early lead that emerged with the win.

Byer and Johnston used doubles partners to a double win, but he and partner Jo Thackery were stopped by Helen Smith and Barry Symons of Cobourg. After, losing the first game 14-17 the Cobourg mixed team swept the final two matches 15-12 and 15-8.

Over 100 competitors from across eastern Ontario took part in the one day competition, the first time that it has been held at Centennial. Facilities of the ideal high school drew praise from a number of participants.

Larry Zehnder of Belleville added to his racing stable by claiming Rob Ron Baby from Carleton Place owner Ivan Farr for the sum of $1,850.

Trudeau Defends Government Against Charge of Arrogance

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau Sunday criticized opposition parties which called his government "arrogant," for its performance in the House of Commons.

Mr. Trudeau told a Liberal party fund-raising gathering that during the excitement of former prime minister Lester Pearson, the Liberals were called weak and incapable of governing when its bills were debated for weeks in the Commons.

"We had a great leader in Mr. Pearson, but we had a minority government," which necessitated "compromises with the opposition," the prime minister said.

When the government tightened up Parliamentary rules, it was labelled "arrogant."

Some 2,000 party supporters, who paid $500 each for the buffet and cocktails, gave thunderous applause when Mr. Trudeau said, "We will consult the people, we will tell them the way we think Canada should be oriented."

"But they (the opposition) don't like our white papers" in which government policy is offered for public examination.

The prime minister told the gathering his party is concerned with "building a country which is free, prosperous and has social justice."

His cabinet was trying to "make laws which are good for the whole of the country.

Laws were not being drawn up for faceless labor, management, or any one sector of the Canadian population but "for the common good."

"These themes explain the week we are doing here," he said. They "give the orientation to our party.

He traced his government's record since its election in 1968 and said there were still many problems facing the country.

"We never said there are no problems. There are problems in every sector."

The prime minister said the Liberals had instituted a capital gains tax, had given diplomatic recognition to Red China, had reviewed the nation's defence commitments, and were working on giving more equality and social justice to all areas of Canada.

"But now, we are called an arrogant government because we are governing."

Earlier Sunday, Mr. Trudeau chatted pleasantly with callers on an open-line program on French-language radio station CKAC.

But one caller aroused the prime minister's ire when he asked when "Quebecers will finally be free."

Mr. Trudeau asked why the man felt he had been in 1971.

The caller said he did not have cultural freedom.

Mr. Trudeau asked if anyone had prevented the man from having the culture he wanted, from reading the books that he wanted or from going to the church or university of his choice.

The man replied that Quebec, as a nation, did not have freedom.

The prime minister asked if anyone had prevented the caller from voting for the candidate of his choice in the 1970 Quebec provincial election.

Mr. Trudeau added that the man could have voted for the Parti Quebecois, the Union Nationale (now Unio-Quebec), the Liberals and the Creditistes.

If he had not felt freedom, it was not the prime minister's fault.

Other questions on the program dealt with the tax bill recently before the Commons, the cold aged, unemployment and the government's import policies.

Quebec Gives Newspaper and Union Settlement Proposal

MONTREAL (CP) — Union and management reaction to Quebec government recommendations aimed at settling the bitter and complex dispute at La Presse remained unknown today despite a government deadline for acceptance or rejection Saturday.

Labor Department officials explained the recommendations to union officials Sunday and the five La Presse unions affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions announced they would hold meetings of their members today and Tuesday. There are six other unions at the newspaper affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor.

Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer said given management and the 11 unions involved until 5 p.m. Saturday to accept in full his recommendations. If either side rejected any of the proposals, he told a news conference early Saturday, the government would end its intervention.

A labor department spokesman said the unions asked for a delay and J. O. Lebeau, chairman of the labor minister, met with union officials starting at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The spokesman said La Presse management gave it a written response in a sealed envelope by the specified deadline but it was handed back unopened when the unions gave no decision.

Meanwhile, a group of 38 journalists issued a brief statement calling on their union leaders to call a general meeting at 7:30 p.m. today to discuss Mr. Cournoyer's recommendations.

The paper, with a circulation of 225,000 a day, has been closed since Dec. 2, when La Presse decided to suspend publication.

In his ultimatum Saturday, Mr. Cournoyer described the journalists-management dispute as "a complete deadlock."

Malton Strikers Ordered Back By Union International Heads

TORONTO (CP) — The 4,000 strikers at the Douglas Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plant in nearby Malton were ordered back to work by the international officers of the United Auto Workers, plant chairman Archie Hall said Sunday.

Workers on the plant's midnight shift reported as instructed Sunday night.

Mr. Wilson, the local's bargaining committee chairman, said the order to end the three-week strike was given Saturday by UAW President Leonard Woodcock after a 2½-hour meeting in Detroit between international officers and the executive members and bargaining committee of Local 1967 at Douglas.

Friday, the local's membership had voted to carry on the strike.

Local officials were called to Detroit Friday after the membership rejected a decision by the local union executive to hold a secret ballot on the Douglas wage offer.

The order terminating the strike also cut off strike benefits of up to $90 a month, effective today.

The company offer provides increases of 80 cents an hour over three years, plus improvements in pensions and other fringe benefits. Of the 80 cents, 17 cents represent payments for increases in the cost of living during the term of the last agreement.

Hourly rates under the old contract ranged between $3.61 and $3.71.

The strike, which started Oct. 13, forced the layoff Nov. 29 of 1,500 production workers at the MacDonnell-Douglas Corp. plant in Long Beach, Calif., by cutting off delivery of component parts to the United States plant.

Douglas makes DC-8 and DC-10 aircraft wings in its Malton plant.

Mr. Woodcock said in an interview that the strike had been sanctioned by the international out trivialism on Douglas employees improvements negotiations.

French Scientist Plans Six Months in A Cave

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) — Some time in the next week—perhaps Dec. 19, his first wedding anniversary—a French scientist named Michel Siffre will kiss his pretty wife Nathalie, and set off for Midnight Cave.

When he sees her again it will be June.

In an experiment, Siffre will live 200 days outside the earth time cycle which surrounds him.

Deep in a limestone cave under the rock-strewn hills of Southwest Texas, he will seek to prove that man can change his life rhythm from its current 24-hour cycle to a 48-hour cycle, in which he can work 36 hours and sleep 12.

He cut himself off completely. Siffre will have no watch, no clock, no radio, no television, no newspapers.

His team-mates in a laboratory atop the cave won't tell him the time of day. Nor will they discuss the weather, for that might give some hint of season, daylight or darkness.

He'll exist in a time vacuum.

Electronic recording devices will note when the modern-day Rip Van Winkle wakes and sleeps, eats and dreams. Eight electrodes attached to his body will activate data machines watched by his fellow scientists on the surface.

What he learns might prove invaluable for those who, in a sense, must live outside time in their working lives—astronauts, the crews of submarines, and the crews of nuclear submarines.

The United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration is interested in Siffre's work. The French defence ministry and the French Institute of Speleology are helping with funds. Texas Instruments Inc. and other firms have contributed equipment.

The base camp is located in remote ranch country in Edwards County, about 50 miles northeast of Del Rio.

Siffre will celebrate Christmas with a special festive dinner when he "feels" the date is right. It may or may not be Dec. 25. He may also miss his 32nd birthday on Jan. 3 by a day or two.

Siffre will speak by phone only to his four fellow scientists. He says he won't speak to his wife because she's not part of the experiment.

How did this all-French expedition land on a sun-bleached hilltop deep in the heart of Texas? Siffre says it's because the best cave for his experiment is here.

Midnight Cave is too far off the beaten track to attract tourists who might interrupt the experiments.

He expects to spend much of his time making a doctoral thesis on the physical and psychological behavior of man under conditions of close confinement.

More Women Dying From Lung Diseases

OTTAWA (CP) — As many women as men will be dying from lung disease in 10 to 20 years unless women cut down on cigarette smoking, a group of Ottawa area doctors says.

Smoking, they decided, is easily the greatest cause of respiratory ailments.

And because men are apparently more easily convinced than women of the dangers of smoking, plus the fact that more women are smoking now than a generation ago, the doctors predicted trouble ahead for women.

The physicians, meeting for education day," discussed tuberculosis, lung cancer, emphysema, bronchitis and pneumonia.

Prescription Item Best Way To Rid Self of Stubborn Lice

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can I do about crab lice? Is there anything I can get without prescription to kill them and the eggs? I've been using an ammonia cleaning solution diluted in water. Is this doing any good? Please help.—D.M.G.

It may seem strange in this age of presumed social advancement that lice should be a problem, but they are! Head lice, body lice, crab lice (which prefer the genital region) exist.

A combination of ingredients called Kwell (the long scientific name doesn't matter).

But it is a prescription item. The law as specifies, so you have to have a prescription to get it. And that's what I'd advise you to do. (It comes in lotion or shampoo form, may require a second application, but should not be overused.)

There are other items, available without prescription, and pharmacists have told me that apparently results are quite good, but they cannot, under the law, dispense such items of medication that are in Kwell, so my advice is to use the surest treatment.

I don't recommend any of the various home remedies. They can get rid of the lice, but the problem is when the lice already have laid their eggs, which stuck very tightly to hair shafts, so presently the eggs hatch and you go through the same trouble all over again. There is no home remedy I know of which will kill all the eggs. Just plain washing won't begin to get rid of them.

The medical literature already contains reports of lice becoming of epidemic proportions in some areas. Since lice are spread mainly by direct contact, person to person, the so-called "hippie communes" are thought to be an important factor. Living in close quarters, if one person brings lice into the group, pretty soon others in the group get them, too. Here and there, contact with people outside the group spreads the lice still farther.

I checked with a pharmacy in what we think of as a "nice neighborhood" the other day, and was told that in the last few months they had sold more delousing medication than they formerly had in years.

So even if you're not a hippie, be on the alert, and if you acquire some lice, get effective treatment. Don't waste time with home remedies.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote that a person can get lice from wearing the clothes of someone who had them.

I have been a financial help for us in buy garments at used-clothing stores. Are crabs and lice eggs destroyed by hard-boiling clothes dry-cleaned?—C.

It is not too difficult to get rid of the lice, by dry cleaning or by thorough washing. Since lice normally are attached to hairs, there shouldn't be much risk of acquiring them from used clothing if the clothes are adequately cleaned.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My niece is a divorcee raising her 15-year-old daughter has had a hysterectomy. Is this out of the ordinary for a girl that age, and how serious is the operation?—M.C.

It is unusual at that age but sometimes necessary. Intractable bleeding is one reason for it, but there could be others.

It is a major abdominal operation—maybe the most dangerous surgery. The young lady, of course, will not be able to bear children, but it should not bother her in any other respect.

Opening lead—King of clubs.

A fatal accurred in the match between France and Italy in 1969. It provides a fine illustration of the play known as the squeeze coup.

At the first table — where Garozzo and Forquet were North-South for Italy—the bidding went as shown and West led the king of clubs. With East following low, West shifted to his singleton spade.

Declarer recognized the danger of a ruff but nevertheless finished down one. After winning the spade in dummy, he played a trump to the ace and the jack back, deliberately avoiding a finesse.

West won with the king and shifted to a diamond. It is due to the scissors coup which had effectively cut communications between the East-West hands — declarer made the contract.

He ruffed the diamond return and led the A-J of hearts West won with the king — he was the third trick for the defense — and cashed the rest of ammunition. Svarc easily won the rest of the tricks and his contract. The pairs split the deal as a direct outcome of the scissors coup.

D. G. Steuart Chosen as New Liberal Leader in Saskatchewan

SASKATOON (CP) — D. G. Steuart of Prince Albert, deputy premier of Saskatchewan under the late Ross Thatcher, was chosen Saturday to succeed Mr. Thatcher as leader of the province's Liberals.

At a two-day convention estimated to have drawn more than 1,500 people, to the Centennial Auditorium, Mr. Steuart was chosen on the second ballot over two opponents.

The convention was called after Mr. Thatcher died last summer, a month after the June election in which his Liberal government was ousted by the New Democratic Party. The NDP won 45 seats in the 59-seat house and the Liberals 15.

Mr. Steuart, 58, was opposed by the member of the legislature for Milestone, Cy MacDonald, and a former member for Elrose, George Leith.

While it required two ballots to cement the Steuart victory, the outcome was never really in doubt after the first vote which gave the eventual leader 404 votes to 285 for Mr. MacDonald and 171 for Mr. Leith.

The winner needed 59 per cent of the vote plus one to win and Mr. Steuart fell 21 votes short of that on the first ballot after the vote by 676 registered delegates.

Mr. Leith was automatically dropped for the second vote, the majority of his support going to Mr. Steuart, who got 333 votes to 314 for Mr. MacDonald in the second round. Another 31 delegates refrained from voting on the last ballot.

The convention, which also elected 32-year-old Garry Wilson of Regina as party president, dealt with little policy although one resolution passed called for a policy conference within a year.

Stish, robust, cocksure and ever ready for a good political fight, at 55, Steuart's political career may be nearing an end, what with the trend towards youthfulness, but if the age of the fire-spouter lives on, then so does Dave Steuart.

His style is a near-replica of that of the politician he succeeds as Liberal leader—W. Ross Thatcher—but he insists the leadership will be run his way.

"Anyone who thinks I'm just a pale imitation of Ross Thatcher or that I'm going to try to carry on the party in his exact footsteps, is wrong," he once told an interviewer of his long association with Mr. Thatcher, who was a close personal friend.

"I have been influenced by his drive, his energy, his ability to organize but our philosophies weren't exactly the same.

"I would be a different leader. I would hope to have some of the strengths he had . . . but we're totally different people."

One thing that bothers Mr. Steuart is the Liberal party failure to attract 35 per cent of the vote since 1929 "while the CCF, or NDP has done it two or three times."

"That's something I hope to do something about by opening up the party more at the local level, establish policy at local level."

Edwin Goodman Heads Independent Canada Body

THUNDER BAY (CP) — It was seeing all those Canadian companies in one basket that got to Edwin Goodman.

"I really became a nationalist when I saw what was happening in my work as a lawyer with all those Canadian companies selling out to the Americans," Mr. Goodman said Sunday after being chosen national chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada.

The organizational talents of the former national chairman of the Progressive Conservative party will be taxed in his new role as leader of the new movement.

The CIC came away from its first national convention armed with a new constitution, a formal structure of councils and committees and a sense of nationalistic mission, but no money and undetermined support.

Another cause for concern was the absence of Quebec delegates.

Only a tiny delegation headed by Montreal lawyer L. Yves Fortier attended from that province. As it was, the vast majority of delegates were from Ontario. There were 10 from British Columbia, two from Manitoba.

Mr. Fortier, former president of the Canadian Club of Montreal, said French-Canadians would be able to identify with the CIC once the organization began to campaign in Quebec.

But Claude Lemelin, correspondent for the Montreal newspaper, Le Devoir, told the conference that Quebec already has a nationalistic movement in separatism and nevertheless would find little to identify with the CIC.

In any case, Mr. Fortier declined an invitation to become a national co-chairman to succeed Claude Ryan of Montreal.

"There is no point naming a general before he has an army to lead," he said referring to the lack of Quebec supporters.

Mr. Goodman said one priority is to increase membership in Quebec, and added he is confident this can be done. "Most Quebecers believe in an independent Canada," he said.

"As a group we're feeling more militant, more determined to secure our views," said the 53-year-old Toronto lawyer who organized the Conservative party federal campaigns in Ontario in 1957, 1958 and 1962. In 1968, he was Robert Stanfield's campaign manager.

Jack McClelland of Toronto, who stepped down as chairman, said "raising funds is the key to the future of this organization." He said the organization's new treasurer, Jack Biddell of Toronto, president of Clarkson, Gordon Co., is "a genius in this area."

The CIC came into being after the formation of a youth wing but passed a motion empowering local committees to form high school youth groups which would have some degree of autonomy.

The conference passed only one resolution—that a full-fledged policy conference be called within one year.

Several other resolutions were introduced for brief discussion and are to be submitted to a policy committee which will prepare final drafts for submission to local committees. The committees will seek consensus on be resolutions.

Canadian Firms Seen Best

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Max Saltsman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature, produced a report at the first national meeting of the Committee for an Independent Canada which he said indicated foreign ownership may be making Canada poorer, not richer.

The report, prepared for the Waterloo MP by the library research department of the federal government, compared wages, prices, tariffs and profits between Canadian-owned steel manufacturing and United States-owned rubber manufacturing concerns in Canada.

Comparison figures between the two areas of manufacturing showed Canadian-controlled companies paid partly with U.S. workers, sold their products as cheaply, had little tariff protection but showed a profit three times that of U.S. companies.

On the other hand, the U.S.-owned rubber companies operating in Canada had low wages, charged high prices, had high tariffs and low profits.

Mr. Saltsman, speaking on a panel at the weekend convention, said the report did not prove anything conclusive, but did indicate Canadian companies, which manufacture on a smaller scale for the Canadian economy, do more to raise the standard of living in Canada.

Construction May Begin Next Week on Wallbridge Road Mall

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Construction may begin next week on the new Wallbridge Plaza.

A spokesman for Leasehold Construction Corp., which owns the Wallbridge - Loyalist Road and Highway 2 site, said today from Montreal his company is "ready to go". If Atlantic and Pacific Food Stores, prime tenants of the proposed mall, sign a contract Friday.

"We were told by A and P the contract will be signed by December 17," said Eric Bell, project engineer for Leasehold.

A and P is holding the contract at its head office in New York.

"The drawings are ready and we will start the day after A and P signs," said Mr. Bell. "This isn't a very good time of the year to begin but at least we can get the signs erected."

Mr. Bell estimated the cost of the project at $1.5 million and said the mall would contain approximately 12 stores in addition to its two prime tenants, A and P and Zellers.

He declined to reveal the names of other tenants but said they would be "different types of stores" than those in Quinte Mall.

"Zellers feels it creates its own market," said Mr. Bell, adding that the company will likely vacate its present Front Street premises when the plaza is completed.

An engineering superintendent for the much - delayed project has been on standby in Montreal for the past four weeks.

Construction was originally scheduled to begin in August after Leasehold took out its building permit in July. Problems signing tenants set the date back to late November.

Both A and P and Zellers will locate large outlets at either end of the mall. Initial construction will centre on the middle portion which will house offices and small shops.

The Quinte Area Planning Board will occupy 3,000 feet of space in a second-story office. It was originally promoted as occupancy date of February, 1972, but Leasehold did not predict today when the plaza would be ready.

More Ontario Jobs Mini-budget's Aim

Succession Duties Will Be Imposed

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough presented the opening session of the Ontario legislature Monday with what he described as a mini-budget designed to stimulate the provincial economy and curb unemployment.

Mr. McKeough announced the province's budgetary deficit will be $553 million in the fiscal year 1971-72, an increase of $138 million from the $415 million deficit predicted in the April 25 budget, the largest in Ontario's history.

Also announced were a number of tax changes—a cut in personal income tax, imposition of succession duties and changes in corporation tax—designed to meet the pressures of a continuing rise in unemployment and the recent economic measures taken in the United States.

Apart from the succession duties and minor changes in corporation tax, all tax changes announced Monday had been put forward previously by the government.

At the beginning of his speech, Mr. McKeough said:

"The Ontario economy has been performing well below its full potential for some time. This year alone I estimate that about $1.5 billion in output and over 70,000 jobs have been lost because of the underperformance of the economy."

He said real economic growth in Ontario for 1971 will be an estimated 5.5 per cent, but the unemployment rate is 5.5 per cent.

Next year, he said, he hopes real economic growth will range about six per cent, but he said unemployment will "continue to be a problem."

However, "the most recent estimates of the economic outlook for 1972 convince me that unemployment will improve gradually, and hopefully the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment in Ontario may decline to 4.5 per cent by the end of next year."

The provincial income-tax cuts, the provincial treasurer said, will take place in two stages.

The first stage consists of a 3.6-per-cent tax cut for the period July 1, 1971 to Dec. 31, 1971, at a revenue cost of $22 million.

It will take the form of a reduction to 27.5 points from 28 points in the 1971 Ontario income-tax rate and will be received by Ontario taxpayers as a refund when they file their 1971 income tax returns.

The second stage consists of a three-per-cent tax cut for Jan. 1, 1972 to Dec. 31, 1972, at a revenue cost of $36 million.

This provincial tax cut parallels a similar federal cut and will show in take-home pay immediately, Mr. McKeough said. It is expected the cuts will save about $25 for an average family of four with an income of $7,000.

Other announcements in Mr. McKeough's mini-budget include:

—Combining of medical and hospital insurance programs by April 1, 1972, three months earlier than first announced.

—Reduction in total insurance premium levels to $11 a month for single persons and $22 a month for couples and families, effective April 1, 1972.

—A provision of $10 million for construction of day nurseries to provide jobs during the winter unemployment hull.

Monday's session was the first time that Premier William Davis and his 77 fellow Conservatives have confronted the 28 Liberals and 19 New Democrats since the Oct. 21 provincial election. The session is expected to end Friday.

Dacca Force Will Fight

ACCA (Reuter) — The 30,000 defenders of Dacca will fight to the death rather than surrender East Pakistan's capital to advancing Indian troops, Gen. A. K. Tiger Niazi, commander of the Pakistani forces, says.

"It doesn't matter if we don't have enough men to defend the city; it's now a question of living or dying and we shall fight to the last man," he vowed during a tour of his defences.

As the general spoke to reporters Monday, the spearhead of the numerically stronger Indian forces was said to be only nine miles away in their southern push on the city.

The Indians were reported to have virtually ringed Dacca and sealed it off from the outside world.

Gen. Niazi said: "Our army will either live honorably or perish for our cause."

He ruled out any thought of trying to repatriate the army to West Pakistan if the battle here, was being lost, saying: "The army will die. There will be no troops left to be repatriated."

"We came here to find work!"

Soviet Vetoes Ceasefire Bid

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN Security Council, blocked by Soviet vetoes in its efforts to end the India-Pakistan war, makes another attempt to reach agreement on a formula to stop the fighting.

But Pakistan, without saying why, called the latest proposal by Iraq and Japan, tabled Monday night, unacceptable. It would create a three-man security council committee to mediate the war.

Quebec Minister Says FLQ in Civil Service

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has been infiltrated by revolutionary separatists intent upon sabotaging the political system from within, Maurice Tessier, municipal affairs minister, said Monday.

Mr. Tessier said in an interview that civil servants in every government department are trying to subvert the government.

The minister said he recently had to reorganize the planning service in his department and "clean out" several "revolutionary separatists with Maoist and Felquiste (Front de Liberation du Quebec-style) ideas."

These civil servants and others like them elsewhere in the government, he said, were using public funds to undermine the government by ignoring cabinet directives and instructions and applying ideas that were "diametrically opposed" to government policy.

"There has been infiltration everywhere," he said.

Mr. Tessier, who appeared nervous during the brief interview, did not want to give any more information about the alleged infiltration.

U.S. and France Agree On Dollar Devaluation

ANGRA DO HEROISMO, Azores (AP) — President Nixon and France's Georges Pompidou agreed today to work for a devaluation of the United States dollar, and revaluing of other currencies to achieve a realignment of the Western world's exchange rates.

A joint U.S.-French statement said the two presidents reached "a broad area of agreement," on measures necessary to achieve an early settlement of the international monetary crisis.

"In co-operation with other nations they agreed to work toward a prompt realignment of exchange rates through a devaluation of the dollar and re-evaluation of some other currencies," said a statement issued at the conclusion of the two-day talks here.

The statement also said the realignment of money parities "could be accompanied by broader permissible margins of fluctuation around the newly-established exchange rates."

It did not specify any figures for the possible new parties.

U.S. Fleet Said Bound For India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Several leftist members of Parliament called on Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today to comment on reports the U.S. 7th Fleet is en route to the Indian Ocean.

Hiren Mukerjee, a member of the Communist party of India, demanded that Parliament be told how India proposes to answer the reported fleet movement. "This insolent and arrogant U.S. move."

Dief Wants New-style Parley

MONTREAL (CP) — John Diefenbaker proposed Monday that a new-style constitutional conference be called, bringing together not only federal and provincial government representatives but also leaders from the broad spectrum of Canadian life.

The former Progressive Conservative prime minister recalled in a speech to the Canadian Club that in 1963 he proposed a national constitutional conference be convened, but he was defeated by Lester Pearson and the Liberal party before it could take place.

The former prime minister said his successor, Pierre Trudeau, have presided over several constitutional conferences bringing together federal and provincial leaders.

"What I had in mind was that the representatives would not sit for one, two or three days, but would sit indefinitely, as was the case of the conferences in Quebec and Charlottetown prior to Confederation," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"I still think such a conference should be convened, but with the membership including not only federal and provincial government representatives, but representatives of the Opposition parties in each of the provinces and in addition representatives of cultural organizations . . . to the end that all Canadians would be involved. . . ."

Hannukah Is Marked By Jewry

Avis Jews lit their first candle Sunday evening to usher in their annual festival of lights.

One candle will be lit every evening in Jewish homes until eight are burning.

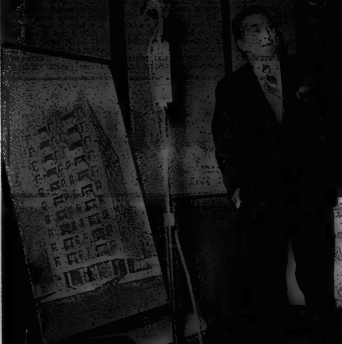
Children in the Hebrew school operated at Sons of Jacob Synagogue presented a Hannukah concert with a play and singing Sunday afternoon as part of their observance of the season. The school will close Dec. 19 until Jan. 3, but Friday evening services will continue as usual.

Hannukah marks the first victory in history for the principle of religious freedom, when Judah Maccabee defeated a Syrian army in 165 BC.

"At this time of year, Christians praise a Jew for promoting peace on earth, but we commemorate a military victory," said Sons of Jacob spiritual leader, Bernard Wind.

Behind the struggle that ended in victory for the forces of Judah Maccabee was "the struggle against a minority group of Jewish Hellenists who tried to go along with the Greeks in the Hellenization of the Jews," said Mr. Wind.

"The well - to - do Jews in Palestine were fraternizing intellectually with the Greeks and the struggle was spiritually directed against Hellenization," he said.



Hannukah symbolizes "that the creed must be maintained in its purity, and we must respect other religions' areas of separation as well as togetherness," said the rabbi.

Sidor Seeks Approval For 44-unit Highrise

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Armed with a massive oil painting of his latest project, an 11-storey apartment tower, developer Wasil Sidor last night sought tentative council approval of the plan.

By the plan, Sunrise Developments would construct the 44 - unit highrise on the southeast corner of property now held by the company at Jacent to Henna Park behind Prince Charles School in the town's west end. The land is now residential first density and must be rezoned.

"If there is no rezoning," said Mr. Sidor, "developers will have nowhere to build." (The Quinte Home Builders' Association has opposed restrictions on highrise construction limposed by Trenton's new official plan.)

Councillor Ted Perker voiced the opinion during a discussion of the plan that one objection that may plague the development is that there is only one access road to it.

Quinte Planning Board, according to Councillor Paul Tripp, wants to do a study of lands south of Parkside Drive and this should be taken into account.

Abruptly Mr. Sidor asked council, "Could we find some more excuses from people opposing this?"

Sidor said "the town is looking for taxes . . . if council feels this (building) will give us help, I believe council is still in power over the Quinte Planning Board."

On the subject of additional access to the site, the developer said he would be willing to give any road allowance necessary to achieve it.

Councillor Pete Ada jumped on the remark of Councillor Tripp that the Quinte Planning Board should have a look at it."

Mr. Sidor acceded to this request and indicated he will have a meeting with planning director Bert Kenny so that a report on the scheme can be made available for the January meeting of the QPB.

During discussion of the apartment proposal, Councillor George Turner brought up the topic at hand at one point and asked Sidor why the "for sale" signs had recently been erected to the famed McGill Street cul-de-sac were issued to the Dufferin Development controversy.

Sidor replied the delay in processing the deed on lawyers' hands, but it will occur and he is away for a half day and does not is there for work is on holiday." He indicated the matter should be resolved soon.

Special Education Support Urged

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward school trustees have received a letter from R. Couchman, president of the Canadian Mental Health Association urging support of special education services in the 1972 school budget.

The letter, sent to all county school boards, emphasized that there are one million Canadian children with mental or emotional health problems who need special assistance.

It backs by many Ontario school boards in their budgets for special education services as noted by the Canadian Mental Health Association and is disappointed to learn that troubled children apparently are viewed as "low priority items".

It was stated that one child in 10 needs special education services.

Special services co-ordinator Russell Williams said that he understood the general rate was 12 to 20 per cent.

Education director John McNeil remarked that he had not thought of these students as being in a one to eight ratio.

Trustee Edward Rutter asked if the letter had been sent to all county boards or simply to Prince Edward trustees and was told it had been circulated generally.

It recommended that the Prince Edward County board of education has tried to allot more money each year toward the required special services.

Board chairman George Flower added that he felt trustees have been "very concerned" with problem in need of special education services.

Letters will be sent out to all township reeves seeking community involvement in carnival events.

Snowmobile races will be held on Sunday, January 23, preceded by a cross - country race on Saturday, January 22. The course for the race has not been decided yet by officials.

A snow queen pageant will be sponsored in conjunction with the winter carnival by members of a Picton service club.

Cold Ends Escape Attempt

NAPANEE (Staff) — A cold and shivering Detroit youth was heading back to jail here after his bid for freedom was interrupted by Mother Nature.

At approximately 3.35 p.m. yesterday, he made good an escape over an eight-foot high wire fence on the north side of the jail yard.

Ontario Provincial Police Constables John Peoples and Cadet Robert Clapp were patrolling along Highway 401 north of Highway 401, at 5 p.m., when they discovered the missing prisoner ambling along the road, heading back to the jail. They picked him up a quarter of a mile from the point where he was pulled up, directly opposite the Wayfare Restaurant.

"I guess he was pretty cold when we got up to him," an OPP spokesman said this morning.

Water Low in the Bay of Quinte

While the flow of the Trent River system is reported normal for this season the level of the Bay of Quinte on the south shore appears low and in some cases is causing inconvenience to residents depending on seepage wells for their daily water needs. In this photo, docks for boats are shown well high and dry.

White Water Fishing on the Trent

No. 1 dam on the Trent River at Trenton is the boundary line for sport fishing during the winter months. Game species - pickerel, pike, coho - can be taken from below this point and as a result increasing numbers of anglers are attracted to the place where the fast - moving water remains open for fishing

First Steps Approved for Education Administration Centre

Hastings county moved closer to construction of an educational administration building last night with a 12 to 2 vote by trustees in favor of preparation of a sketch plan.

If built, the almost half-million-dollar building would increase taxes by 1½ percent annually, said business administrator Kenneth Wormald.

Mr. Read said Bayside is considering establishing satellite learning centres at CFB Trenton, Batawa, Frankford and Bayside on the days when Bayside students do not attend school.

He recommended continuing the alternate day for Trenton and Bayside use of Trenton High School, a situation the students support.

Mr. Garrett wants to bring in half Trenton's students on Bayside's days at school.

The situation will be resolved by administration and the principals after further consultations.

In the meantime, there is no friction between the two student bodies and the two principals sharing the same school, Mr. Read said.

"There's no nationalism among the two student bodies," said Mr. Read.

"There is a little crutch between the teachers. But if they are going to be spirited and independent people, they might well object to having two cooks in the kitchen."

The money would be borrowed from a bank and be paid back at the rate of $78,000 a year over five years, according to tentative plans proposed earlier.

"This proposal doesn't take any money from the amount that goes to the pupils in the classroom," said director of education Eric Runacres. "It is classed as an extraordinary expense."

The board approved by recorded vote a three - part motion calling for drawing up of sketch plans by an architect, preparation by the administration of a before and after comparison of staff size, operating costs and equipment savings and suggestions on the site of the new building.

Because Lennox and Addington county recently got approval from the department of education to finance a similar administration building through a bank loan, Mr. Wormald told the board he anticipated no difficulty in gaining government approval.

Trustees were told that centralized administration in one building, instead of the four now in use, would result in reduction of staff by at least five people, and probably more. This could amount to a $40,000 annual saving in salaries, aloof half the cost of the yearly amount to be repaid on the bank loan.

Duplication of equipment such as telephones and files could be eliminated and maintenance would be reduced, the board was told.

The present main administration buildings, on Bridge St. East and on College St. adjacent to Quinte Secondary would be sold. They are now valued at $175,000.

Tentative plans now call for construction of a 36,000-square-foot building, costing about $16.50 a square foot. However, plans might be altered if a tenant were found to share the accommodation and cost with the board.

School Sharing Is No Problem

Bayside and Trenton students, now going to school on an alternate - day basis in Trenton while Bayside Secondary is under construction, aren't suffering unduly from the disruption, Hastings county board of education was told Monday.

"As a teacher, I'm not too upset about what's happening to those students," said director of education Eric Runacres. "Don't listen too carefully to people who blame the poor performance of their youngsters on this situation," he advised trustees.

Mr. Runacres said he went into a Toronto school as principal when it was only 66 per cent completed, and ran with a shorter day than Bayside and Trenton students are now experiencing.

"We had a better academic record that year than ever again," he said.

The director's remarks were bolstered by statistics presented by Trenton's principal J. C. Garrett and Bayside's L. D. Read.

Trenton High School had a failure rate of 16 per cent in the just - completed Christmas examinations, Mr. Garrett said. Last year's Christmas failure rate was 17.3 per cent.

Bayside's failure rate was 16 per cent, "average for this time of year," said Mr. Read.

Mr. Read recommended that his students be moved into their new school this academic year, even though they may not get in until the end of April.

"From a morale point of view it would be a bad mistake to delay the move beyond spring," he told the board. The excitement of the new building will offset the confusion of switching the students over."

Land Sale Approved

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here Monday approved the sale of 7.28 acres of serviced industrial parkland as the site for the new Robin Hood Multi-foods plant.

The Montreal-based firm will set up a pie and pastry producing plant in north-east Trenton near Moore Business Forms.

Purchase price for the Robin Hood land was set by council at $7,280.

Traffic Committee Will Try Again

City council may have another look at lifting the rush hour parking ban in the downtown Bridge Street area.

A week ago city council turned down a traffic committee recommendation asking that the parking ban on the north side of Bridge Street be lifted on a trial basis, the view expressed being why change regulations when traffic moving freely.

But the traffic committee claims that the vote caught several of its members absent from council with the result that it was defeated by a close vote.

Yesterday, Alderman Jack Ireland said that the traffic committee was sincere in its request to have the rush hour ban lifted. He noted that it had been requested on several occasions by downtown merchants who had been promised that once traffic on the new Dundas Street bypass route was established, the move would be considered.

Even the police department had agreed to lifting of the ban on a trial basis, he noted.

Alderman Ireland told the traffic committee that he would seek to have the recommendation reintroduced to council — when more traffic committee members were present.

Trenton to Retain Planning Board

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton council last night balked at a request from Quinte Planning Board for a resolution dissolving the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board.

It was the feeling of council that the TSPB should stay until the reports received from the department of municipal affairs that its new official plan has been approved. The plan was forwarded for department consideration about six months ago.

Council resolved to advise the QPB of its wishes in the hope that overtures from the Quinte Board will help speed up passage of the new plan.

"I do not feel we should dispense with the Trenton Planning Board until we have something with which to replace it," commented Councillor Ted Parker.

Councillor Pete Aziz said he understood the TSPB would be replaced by a local advisory committee to the regional planning board, adding this may be a little more satisfactory" than the TSPB.

Trenton's share of the operating costs of the Quinte Planning Board for 1972 were revealed last night as being the same as those for 1971, about $25,000 a year.

REAL ESTATE

HOW MUCH IS YOUR HOUSE WORTH?

BY McKINNEY R. E. McKinney Realty Ltd.

There are many differing types of buyers, but one thing they all have in common is an understandable desire to get the most for their money.

If you are selling your property, have no doubt that the average buyer will usually have seen numerous houses similar to yours and is very likely aware of the prices asked.

This may not deter him however from offering you a figure he knows is below the current average.

How should you react?

This is the time — when the chips are down — when you must be SURE your price is right. If the buyer is more knowledgeable than you in the matter of price, he has you at a disadvantage.

In a state of doubt you are apt to waver one way or the other in error. You may stick stubbornly to too high a price and miss up a good offer — perhaps the best you will get; or sell your home for less than its market value.

The knowledge you must have is that supplied by a reputable Realtor through a professional appraisal.

Women's Influence

In these days of Women's Lib we observe further evidence around the world of the power we are subjoined never to underestimate.

First there was that picture of Progressive Conservative president Don Matthews of London, Ont. When it comes to winning the admiration of your family, the caption said, Mr. Matthews ought to have the recipe — there was the new PC executive flanked by his wife and four daughters aged 16 to 20.

It is true in politics as in anything else, a man will not go far without the support of his wife and family.

Consider too the influence of the late Eva Peron on the politics of Argentina and that in recent days Isabel Peron, third wife of ex-president Juan Peron, now 76 and living in exile in Madrid, arrived in Buenos Aires, reportedly on a mission to unify the various factions in the Peronist movement. The blonde, attractive Mrs. Peron was pictured waving to a cheering crowd on her arrival.

Such is the power not only of a woman but also of a legend. Peron was deposed in 1955 after nine years of virtual dictatorship in Argentina, a period of personality cult centering around the President as well as his then wife Eva. From his place of exile in Spain Peron evidently still dreams of a return to power.

From Ottawa and Madrid to a state farm in the Gorno - Altai autonomous region of the Soviet Union. In this remote part of Soviet Asia Mrs. Irina Lapasova is a shepherdess. She also has ten children to look after, so she bought a motorcycle and sidecar with which she covers her territory and takes the children along with her. A Tass picture shows a smiling Mrs. Lapasova with at least seven of the kids arrayed in and around the bike. They are the happiest looking youngsters and all are identically clad in windbreakers and handsome fur hats.

And so think we have been reading that few people in the Soviet Union can buy much in the way of consumer goods because so much goes into defence. Here is one family that seems to manage.

No End to It

Faced with still more intensified guerrilla activity in Northern Ireland, militant MP and evangelist Rev. Ian Paisley has told Prime Minister Brian Faulkner that "we're not going to have semi-measure of it, and you can interpret that any way you like."

Mr. Paisley may be an extremist of sorts himself, but there will be many in Ulster for whom he strikes a responsive chord right now when the Irish Republican Army is causing such fear and disorder.

But it is two or three months now since Mr. Paisley announced the establishment of a "third force" in Ulster, meaning a Protestant force to combat the IRA which seems to be having things very much their own way. Thus far there has been no real evidence of this force making its presence felt.

Meanwhile the bombing and the shooting and the terrorism generally threaten to carry on through the Christmas season. As it is, Ireland, the land of St. Patrick, has already forfeited much of its traditional image as a country by its tragic condition. And this despite the fact — as an article elsewhere on this page indicates — the overall picture of violence may be overdrawn.

Hidden Wealth!

There may not be gold in them thar dunes — but on this past mild December weekend we hiked over to the fringe of the Sandbanks from the provincial park, ascended a relatively low-passed dune and when we made it to the top there, lying in the sand before, us were two nickels. Down on the far side of course we saw a bottle or two but overall there was surprisingly little junk. What a December it is — warm enough for golf — and there were quite a number of cars over in the park area, including one from Ohio. In it was a young couple. And — no horrors — the young man hiked over to the beach and returned with a brown paper bag full of sand. Maybe he wants to compare it with the Lake Erie stuff!

Roads Named

A couple of hitherto obscure side roads on Highway 14 not far beyond Mountain View have been given names. One is Christian Street and the other is Jericho Road. Quite appropriate at this Christmas season!

'Getting to Pierre'

Prime Minister Displays an Increasingly Mean Temper

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — "There, but for the grace of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, sits God."

Memorable, if deeply wounding, political words, those.

And an unforgettably evocative single sentence characterization of PET, there on the record of Parliament.

Dropped into the pages of Hansard nearly three years ago — in the springtime of both the year 1969 and of the new Liberal majority Trudeau government, by New Democratic leader David Lewis.

Long before Prime Minister Trudeau, still the man of remarkable private grace, began displaying his often atrocious public manners.

Since then, the Prime Minister has petulantly indulged in a multitude of personal insults to individuals, small groups and big organizations.

So now the Commons awaits — the Liberals ready to cringe, the Conservatives to laugh nervously, and the New Democrats to enjoy — more of the Lewis acid.

It could come at any time, David Lewis, without question the deadliest tongue in Parliament, again of late in full accompass with what he has called Pierre Trudeau's obscene arrogance.

For weeks, the New Democratic leader has been reading the Prime Minister like a dense, bewildered

Industrial Commissioner Resigns Chamber Post

PICTON (Staff) — Industrial Commissioner William Duggan yesterday announced his resignation as secretary of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce with reference to "the pressure of work" in his department of county council.

Mr. Duggan, who was elected secretary of the chamber last January, stated in his letter of resignation that the past year has been a fruitful one with an increase in membership and an improvement in financial position through careful conservation of funds received.

The industrial commissioner stated that "there are always the possibility that the chamber may make decisions or enter on a path of action which could be completely counter to the wishes of the county council and my position in such circumstances would, of course, be impossible."

"It is anticipated that the county will continue as a member of the organization and I should be happy to continue to serve as a director if this was the wish of the members," concluded Mr. Duggan.

The secretary agreed to postpone his resignation until a replacement can be found.

It was suggested by chamber president Bernard Hogarth that "the time has arrived" for directors to review the combination of the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association information booth with the office of the chamber secretary.

Directors agreed that the chamber's executive committee and past president Ronald Scott should investigate the possibility of joining the secretary's office with another suitable office such as the QTA or the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority office.

Lightnappers Apprehended

The city police Christmas tree light squad last night put the blinkers on a half dozen juveniles who have been swiping the colorful tree baubles from lawns over the past week or two.

Last night, a lady observed several youths in the process of removing bulbs from decorated Christmas trees. She called police.

Six juveniles, ranging in age from nine to 11 years, were questioned.

Police found a substantial number of theirs committed in the east hill area were done by these youngsters," a spokesman announced this morning.

A total of 18 bulbs were recovered.

Parents were contacted. Because of their ages, and nature of the offence, the spokesman does not believe charges will be laid.

Youth Escapes Injury in Crash

A Picton youth escaped injury Saturday evening when the car he was driving apparently went out of control striking a guide post on Main St., East. Michael Minaker 18, of Roger St., was unhurt in the incident which caused an estimated $150 damage to the vehicle. The incident was investigated by a town police constable Fletcher Charles.

Bell Canada Starts $1.4-million Quinte Job

TRENTON (Staff) — That expansion continues to boom in the Quinte region is supported by the Bell Telephone Company's decision to spend $1,407,000 to improve and extend services in the Trenton and Picton areas.

Already under way south of Trenton, along the new development road and Highway 33 to the Hillier township boundary at Consecon, is a $500,000 project expected to be completed in March, 1972.

The changeover of services in Amelianburg township, where most of the new cable is being installed, is scheduled to start late in February, Bell's Trenton manager Bob Carlton announced yesterday.

Mr. Carlton, with construction manager Peter White and foreman Jim Howie of Belleville, watched a demonstration of the prototype of a cross-country cable laying device being developed by the company. The machine, on trucks, with a range of 20 miles, can negotiate swamp land, bush and rugged terrain with relative ease. It was moved to the Picton - Northbrook area today for more testing under actual field conditions.

Operated by one man, it can place 8,000 feet of cable from one inch to three inches in its size in one day.

It was designed by Larry James of the company's automotive research branch, in Montreal.

When the Bell undertaking south of Trenton is completed, it will be followed by an upgrading and expansion of services in the Picton area costing $500,000.

Route of the cable running south of Trenton coincides with proposed expansion for the area, in particular large tracks between Trenton and Consecon. Cable being installed contains 600 separate wires, 200 pairs in telephone installers' jargon, and it will do away in many cases the old fashioned party line. It will make available private service when it is called for.

School's Tape Recorder Found

On Friday, surveyors were working on the new city reservoir site near Herchimer Avenue.

Walter Watson of Belleville discovered a green, plastic garbage bag, containing a SeeMaze recorder.

City police this morning identified the $280 7 - inch reel recorder as the property of Moira Secondary School.

Gas Bar-Car Wash Approval Delayed

TRENTON (Staff) — George Ellsworth of Shell Canada told council here last night the company's proposed gas bar-car wash will make the corner of Dundas East and Byron Streets "the showcase corner of Trenton".

The east side site of the new $250,000 project is really need prompting Councilor Pete Axiz to say "I am glad this thing does not have to go before Quinte Planning Board because they may not approve it."

Councilor Paul Trupp expressed concern whether the service centre would reap much tax revenue for the town. No details as to tax yield were available but Mr. Trupp noted and that the Metro Toronto borough of North York is now reluctant to have new developments like drive-in restaurants with modest buildings and large parking lots.

Mr. Ellsworth told council the new service centre would provide no automobile servicing but would contain only a "California car wash" and gas bar employing 12 to 15 people. Shell will spend $25,000 in landscaping the site.

Although rezoning is not needed for the Shell outlet, before it goes ahead council must lift the ceiling it has imposed on the number of gas stations in the town now set at 24. Council last night discussed the possibility of increasing the number from 24 to 25 but eventually tabled amendment of the restricting bylaw until further details about the new development are known.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Gold issues climbed sharply higher as prices in all major sectors of the Toronto stock market recorded strong advances in active mid-morning trading today. The gold index was up 3.58 to 167.94, industrials .55 to 175.80, base metals .17 to 74.25 and western oils 1.96 to 213.60.

The strength in golds follows agreement by the United States to work toward devaluation of the U.S. dollar as part of an international monetary realignment settlement.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 1.08 million shares compared with 841,000 at the same time Monday.

Beverage, oil refining, food processing, steel and merchandising issues posted broad advances as 13 of the industrial index's 17 sub-groups moved higher.

Chemical, trust and loan, general manufacturing and real estate issues drifted fractionally lower.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than two-to-one, 141 to 60 with 155 issues unchanged.

Dome Pete was up 1¼ to $33½ following a delayed opening due to an influx of orders. Home A rose ¾ to $30¾, Toronto Star B ¾ to $30¾, Bank of Nova Scotia ¼ to $31 and Walker-Gooderham ⅜ to $46.

Among advancing gold issues, Dome Mines climbed 2¼ to $35½ and Campbell Red Lake ½ to $53.

Hudson Bay Mining dropped ¾ to $18¼, Inco ⅝ to $29, Labatt ¼ to $21¾ and Royal Bank ⅛ to $29¾.

In Monday's trade, Western oils recorded strong advances as prices generally closed higher.

It was absolutely impossible to rationalize the many extraordinary bids and plays Sylvia perpetrated at the club.

Of course, all bridge players — when they first start to play — pass through a phase when they make innumerable errors of judgment, and Sylvia was certainly no exception. But what constantly amazed the members of the club was not so much that she made errors, but their highly astounding nature.

Sylvia's approach to bridge was far different from that of any player we had ever seen. No one could fathom the strange workings of her mind. No matter how hard she tried to grasp the principles that her harried partners attempted to impress upon her, she would nevertheless soon after take off on some utterly wild tangent of thought that would lead her to bids and plays the likes of which it was literally impossible to imagine.

But some of Sylvia's flights of fancy proved sensationally successful and it was these unexpected triumphs that inevitably became the talk of the club. Excess for this one saving virtue, Sylvia's future as a player would have been dark indeed.

Take this hand which occurred soon after she joined the club. As usual she was playing in the expert game, and when South bid six hearts, Sylvia (West) doubled. This was undoubtedly an optimistic double — since a trump trick was all she could reasonably expect to take — but Sylvia doubled nevertheless.

Furthermore, her opening lead was the queen of hearts!

You may marvel at this lead, but if you stop to analyze the hand thoroughly you are sure to discover that this was the only card Sylvia could play to defeat the contract. With any other lead South would have lost only one trick. As it was, South had to go down one.

Tomorrow: The falsecard.

Plants Thrive in Friendly Area Says Horticultural Technician

By GLENNIS ZELM

EDMONTON (CP) — If you have problems with houseplants, spare a thought for Joy Dowler, who is the sole support and mother to nearly 1,500 plants.

Miss Dowler is a horticultural technician and cares for all the plants on the 23 floors of offices of Alberta Government Telephones in a 33-storey building. She thinks she may be the only woman in Canada with such a job.

A graduate of Olds Agricultural College in Alberta, the 22-year-old brunette got the job with AGT just before it opened its new building last July.

The architects wanted to bring nature inside the building, as much as possible, so AGT had ordered 1,500 tropical plants sent from Miami.

The plants come in all sizes, from a seven-foot African milk tree to a four-inch peppercorn plant, and in more than 40 species from an Australian umbrella tree to a zebra plant.

Miss Dowler prefers their generic names, but she translated as she showed off some of the plants, several of which were blooming.

She got her job almost by accident, she said. After she finished high school in the spring, she went to work for the ecology corps in Edmonton for the summer.

"AGT was looking for someone and they wrote to the college, which gave them my name," she said in an interview. "They were surprised that I was a girl, but they hired me."

The biggest plants in the building are on the main floor, she said. Those include the African milk tree, which is part of a large planter of cacti and succulents, a couple of huge rubber plants and several laurels.

Around the base of each tree, she has planted vine-like plants as ground cover.

These help keep the topsoil moist in the large planters and help discourage the public from dropping cigarette butts and candy wrappers into them, she said, picking a gum wrapper out of the cactus garden.

She makes rounds of all the plants in the offices about once a week. She waters them, loosens the soil, picks off any dead leaves and checks carefully for signs of insects or disease.

Her work area is a desk in a corner of an unoccupied floor of the building. Clusters of potted plants sit in groups around it; some need repotting, others were brought there for treatment or special care.

She hasn't any special plants of her own. The closest she'd come to anything to a favorite among them was to say she really liked a Madagascar dragon tree—a hideous-looking gaint-like plant she had ready for repotting.

Asked if she believed that talking to plants helped them grow, she smiled and said:

"It's interesting. One floor in the offices has a very relaxed and friendly atmosphere and the plants there are just flourishing.

"Another floor, there's a lot of tension. And the plants there don't seem to be doing so well."

With These Tips--Take Years Off Your Age

By DORIS CLARK

Take These Tips — And Take Years Off Your Age...

1. An older person pushes himself or herself to a chair. This is entirely due to lack of muscle control.

2. Lack of eagerness and interest which shows itself in the face and unconscious demeanor. The mind wanders.

3. Do you feel with your face? Usually hands wonder when thoughts do. If you fidget your face you are going to look much, much older.

4. Slumping in a chair.

5. Head jutted forward rather than lifted and alert.

6. Nodding head to emphasize what you say.

7. Mumbling when you talk or even patting your hand to your mouth while you mumble.

8. Dragging feet when you walk instead of picking them up with pep.

9. Frowning. Not common in youth.

Ann Landers

Group Discusses Taking Alcohol or 'Pot'

Dear Ann Landers: A group of us—all parents of teen-agers —were having a discussion the other night and some of the ideas presented were very interesting. The question was this: Given a choice, would you prefer that your teen-age children smoke pot or drink alcohol?

Someone asked: "I wonder how Ann Landers would answer that?" I said, "I'll write and ask her and let you know." So what's your answer?—West Coaster Who Can't Decide

Dear W.C.: That's some question. It's like asking: "Which would you rather have, smallpox or typhoid fever?" My answer is this: Why must there be a choice? Who says teen-agers have to do either? I am opposed to any alcohol-altering agent for teen-agers, and both booze and pot come under this heading. Parents who O.K. pot because their kids have told them it is less harmful than booze are falling into a trap. No one knows yet how harmful pot is because there have been no controlled studies. Soon the word will be out, officially, and I predict a great number of people (including some psychiatrists and

New Senator Coaxed To Accept Position

MONTREAL (CP) — Renaude Lapointe says she had to be coaxed to accept the job as Canada's newest woman senator, but once the decision was made it was the task ahead, not the honor, that seemed overwhelming.

"I couldn't believe it when Prime Minister Trudeau approached me," she recalled in an interview soon after being sworn in Nov. 18.

"I had to remind him. I had no university education and that I was a very, very poor public speaker."

"I'm better behind a typewriter, you know," she added.

Miss Lapointe has spent most of her career staring at a typewriter ribbon. In the last 31 years, her jobs have ranged from legal stenographer to editorial writer for La Presse, North America's largest French-language daily, and member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations.

Despite her success in what are traditionally male fields of endeavor, however, Miss Lapointe admits she has always suffered from a lack of self-confidence.

"It was others who pushed me into things. I was brought up in Disraeli, a small town in the Eastern Townships (southeast of Montreal) and my family moved to Quebec City in 1933. I got my first job in a lawyer's office because the lawyer was the brother of a nun who taught me music."

Her chief appeal for the lawyer, she remembers, was that he was representing a musician and needed a stenographer who knew about music.

In 1939 came an opportunity to work for the Quebec newspaper Le Soleil, and again there was the characteristic hesitation, to accept the job.

"I was convinced I couldn't do that job either. Perhaps that was why I refused to accept the $12 a week they were offering me although I was only being paid $10 a week by the lawyer. Anyway, when Le Soleil raised their offer to $13 a week, I felt I couldn't refuse.

"I didn't think I would be any good, but I stayed in journalism for 31 years."

She expects to represent women, especially her French-Canadian colleagues, in the Senate but not as an ardent feminist.

"I always seemed to be too busy with assignments to be a very active anything."

Furthermore, "I don't like segregation; I never have."

"I was treated as an equal by men in the newspaper profession. I didn't have to break down any barriers because I never came across any. I have to admit I worked like a man. I never expected any favors or privileges because I was a woman."

Miss Lapointe says she feels "low" when she considers the achievements of Senator Therese Casgrain.

"I started reading the manuscript she just finished and I felt lower and lower as I read it. I will have to do so much to try and fill her shoes."

Dear Doris: I couldn't resist writing to you at once. My friend Lena was one of those people who asked about "eyes in Denmark. She sent in the coupon and away and after two false starts has finally unpacked things to eat for the January 1972 semester.

Lena is a woman in her 30s; husband a retired Army officer. Traveled with him to places like Nigeria, where she performed the duties of a diplomatic wife (his Nigerian Red Cross, without all the diplomatic but with plenty of willingness to learn.

She is a person who can make the most of her changing situation. One of her ambitions is to meet Doris Clark! — Dot

Dear Dot: Wonderful. This full-college of broad horizons in Denmark wants to add more Canadians to round out their multi-nation atmosphere.

Dear Mr. and Mrs.: Nursing is a normal function—but I can think of several normal functions that call for privacy. And breast feeding is one of them. I'm with you.

And now: A word to the members of La Leche League. Please note: I am not against breast feeding. I support it, recommend it and applaud it. The breast-fed baby has a headstart, both physically and emotionally — but I feel it should not be done in the presence of guests.

Dear Ann Landers: Hey I say a word to New York Idiot? She claims she wants to tell her husband about a row-ended affair with his best friend because her conscience is bothering her. I hope she takes your advice and keeps her mouth shut because it she doesn't she's going to be bothered by a lot more than her conscience.

I made the mistake of confessing to my husband and he has made me eat my words a 100 times over. It's been five years now and he still throws it up to me whenever he gets mad. I didn't accomplish one thing by bringing everything out in the open.

All I did was give him ammunition to shoot me down. Now I will have to pay for my foolishness for the rest of my life. How much wiser it would have been had I talked to my minister or my counselor.—Regrets and he ready to report to the rest of us. I can't think of a more exciting, three months for anyone who can manage it.

And of course we want to hear from any of the 42ers to whom I have sent details, and who have gone or are going for a stint to International People's College, Elsinore, Denmark.

• • •

Dear Doris: My older sister practically raised me. She is 12 years older than I am and when my mother died at an early age she took over. I adore her.

Now her 10th wedding anniversary is coming up and I would like to splurge on a gift she would appreciate. Silver, stemware, dishes are out. Both she and her husband are "outdoorsy". What do you feel would be appropriate? — Just Sis

Dear Sis: In the book a 10th anniversary calls for something in tin or aluminum; but you don't have to stick by that. Choose something you know she would especially enjoy for her garden.

It could be a barbecue with a rotisserie, or an outdoor chaise lounge (either of which would probably involve some tin or aluminum); but rose bushes or even a shade tre would be highly unique.

Your own dilemma may not be as hopeless as it looks. Write to Doris for help.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Are women heavier gamblers than men?

NOT in professional card games or dice games, at any rate. Men try to play as though they believe there is almost or just as much skill in a game of cards or craps as there is luck. Women prefer the luck factor. For instance, many of them like to make nearly every card in the deck "wild" when they play poker. Perhaps the women's realism on luck come natural to them. Look at the chances they take when they select a husband.

Do diabetics feel sorry for themselves?

FAR FROM IT. People who have learned to control their diabetes have no shred of self pity in them. It is an unfamiliar feeling to them, either. Enlightened by their doctors, they become confident that, through insulin injections, special diet, prescribed medicines, that they can lead normal lives. Then too, diabetics who are confident they can control their reactions to their condition become self-reliant in whatever they do.

Can someone who has it all ever feel pity?

YES, and very often it is just that type of person—someone who has always received the breaks and who has never had any misfortune—who can feel and express pity for someone less fortunate. Many people who could use a little pity themselves are so busy scrambling for position, or so afraid to admit they need compassionate encouragement, that they have no room in their heart to express pity for anyone else.

Kingston Convict Was Injured on Day He Moved to Millhaven

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Medical evidence presented to County Judge Gerald E. Smith and a 12-man petty jury Monday indicated that a former Kingston penitentiary convict received several head injuries April 21, the day he was transferred to Millhaven penitentiary.

The evidence, presented at the trial of two Millhaven guards, indicated that prisoner William Knight, 28, of Chatham had a vertical laceration on the back of his head. It required six stitches.

The following day, doctors discovered several bruises, a fracture on the left side of the skull and a possible hairline fracture near the laceration.

The evidence came at the trials of Grant Soldier, 41, of Harrowsmith, Ont., charged with assault causing bodily harm on Knight, and Bernard William Evans, 35, of Kingston, charged with common assault on Knight.

The two are among eight Millhaven guards charged with a total of 17 assaults on seven former Kingston prisoners following an April riot there. The other six trials are to be held in January.

The alleged assaults occurred when two inmates of former Kingston penitentiary prisoners were being transferred to Millhaven.

Dr. Donald Workman, medical officer for Millhaven, who examined Knight April 22 and 28, testified that he believed the laceration was caused by "force applied or received probably from a blunt object."

He agreed with defence lawyer Stuart Willoughby that the injury could have been caused by falling on a blunt object or a cement floor.

Terry Walter Hayes, 40, serving 10 years for armed robbery, testified that Soldier "swung at" some prisoners with a blackjack on a loading platform near a prison corridor within sight of two provincial police officers.

A second man, Charles McDonald, 21, now paroled and living in Toronto, agreed.

"There was nothing prevented them from seeing what happened," said McDonald.

One of the officers, Constable Ray Paisley, said prisoners were told to move at double time as they filed off the bus to mount a set of steps, cross the platform and enter the corridor.

He said Knight was told repeatedly to hurry but did not.

Constable Edward Hubbell said Knight "more or less refused to hurry at all and was shoved along into the corridor" by a guard.

They could not identify the guard and said they did not see him strike Knight.

Donald Walsh, a correctional staff training officer, told the court that five or six prisoners were struck on the buttocks by Soldier.

This occurred "if they didn't move along as we required; if they decided to take their own time walking," he said.

He said riot sticks and black jacks were defence weapons.

Crown prosecutor Clay Powell asked:

"They weren't being used for defence this day, were they?"

"Well, . . . they weren't being used to maim in any way that I saw," replied Mr. Walsh.

Millhaven Warden Donald Clarke and 33 others including Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer are being sued by Knight for damages for injuries he alleges to have received in assaults by guards.

The trial continues.

Lawrence Says He or Deputy Played Role in Pen Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said Monday that he or his deputy minister played a role in a deal that ended the trial of 13 convicts charged with murdering two fellow prisoners at Kingston penitentiary in a riot last April.

Published reports Monday said that the accused men were told what penalties they could expect if they pleaded guilty to lesser offences of manslaughter and assault.

The trial judge, Mr. Justice William Henderson of the Ontario Supreme Court, said he did not take part in any sentence negotiations.

Some defence lawyers say the agreement was reached in the judge's chambers.

The prisoners received terms ranging from 18 months to five years.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon asked Mr. Lawrence in the legislature whether he considered the process as reported unethical in any way and whether he agreed with the findings of the court.

The attorney-general said the matter could still be before the courts because the appeal time is not up so he would not comment.

He promised to make a statement on the issue at some point.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) asked whether the Crown intends to appeal. But Mr. Lawrence said it does not but the defence still has time to appeal.

Patrick Lawlor (NDP—Toronto Lakeshore) asked whether the minister or his deputy played a role in determining sentencing and pleas.

"Yes," said Mr. Lawrence.

"Would you care to elaborate?"

"No," said Mr. Lawrence.

He refused to comment further, repeating that the matter could still be before the courts.

Meanwhile, outside the legislature, some of the defence lawyers involved in the proceedings said in interviews that published reports of the plea bargaining have distorted the issue.

"Negotiations for a settlement of a criminal case is common—all of the judges do it, with few exceptions, in order to facilitate the passage of matters through the criminal courts," said lawyer Elmer Sopha of Sudbury.

He was supported by Arthur Maloney of Toronto, another of the 13 defence lawyers involved in the trial.

FLQ Activist Pierre Vallieres Renounces Terrorist Tactics

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Vallieres's denunciation of terrorist tactics in favor of political action through the Parti Quebecois has brought criticism from a former ideological comrade and only terse statements from the party.

Political activist Charles Gagnon said that Vallieres's decision to "put himself on the bourgeois's side" must have arisen from "personal rather than political reasons." He said it showed "an extraordinary ideological confusion."

"Politically it makes no sense because nothing has changed since September when he said that there was no alternative to armed battle," Gagnon said in an interview Monday.

Vallieres disappeared last September while free on bail pending trial on charges of seditious conspiracy and counselling to kidnapping and murder.

A note on paper bearing the insignia of the Front de Liberation du Quebec said at the time that he had gone into hiding "because there are more important things for a revolutionary to do in Quebec that to submit interminably to fake political trials."

First word since then from the author of White Niggers Of America came Monday with publication of a 27-page handwritten document delivered to Le Devoir saying he was cutting all ties with the FLQ and hailing the Parti Quebecois as the only "real alternative" to the current Liberal government in Quebec.

Vallieres saw the Parti Quebecois as "the provincial force for political strategy" in the struggle for liberation" of the Quebec people.

Gagnon disagrees.

"I recognize that the PQ is the only recognized political force working toward the independence of Quebec, but I don't agree that people should go with the PQ without considering its programs and orientation," he said Monday.

"The solution is no either the FLQ than the PQ. It is an organized worker party or revolutionary organization that has to be built by Quebec workers."

Vallieres, in his document, gave a "categorical no" to the necessity of armed violence and urged other FLQ members and sympathizers to end actions started in 1963 which culminated in the kidnap crisis of October, 1970.

He said that after "radical self-criticism" and study of the political situation, he had concluded FLQ actions had become in fact the "pretext and excuse" which present governments are seeking to crush real liberating movements such as the Parti Quebecois, labor groups and citizens' committees.

"Even if the political, social and economic objectives pursued by the FLQ rest on the real aspirations of Quebecers, their vision was more or less spontaneous, sectarie and circumstantial," he wrote.

"The independence movement, which is also a movement of social liberation, rests clearly on the collective will of building the Quebec state politically free and on building a radically transformed Quebec economy.

"In the present situation, it would be an unpardonable error for the partisans of the true social revolution in Quebec to under-estimate, or worse, to deny what the Quebec people can gain by the defined strategy of the Parti Quebecois."

Rene Leveque, Parti Quebecois leader, said in a brief statement that Vallieres has apparently made a "courageous gesture."

Lucid reflection had been brought to bear on "the sterility of armed agitation, and especially the fact that it can be set off only with the complicity of a regime whose sole last hope is repression."

Hashish Worth $3 Million Is Seized

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Charges were laid against seven Americans Monday after RCMP said they had seized more than 600 pounds of hashish valued at $3 million. It was believed to be one of the largest seizures in North America.

Charged were Michael Wayne Overstreet, Danny Ray Zink, Kenneth Frank Seaverns, David Cooper Randall, all 23 and from Denver, Colo., Barry Edward Dorel, 22, of Lakewood, Colo., Daniel Richard Owen, 22, of Denver, and Barry Robert Levy, 23, of no fixed address but believed to be a Colorado resident. They were remanded in custody to Dec. 20.

They were charged in Edmonton with illegal importation of the drug.

The arrests ended what RCMP described as a "lengthy" investigation. The final moments about 2:30 a.m. Monday involved more than 60 officers and 30 vehicles.

The drama started Friday night when four large light metal trunks arrived at Edmonton International Airport 30 miles north of here.

Billed as Indian artifacts, the trunks originated in Afghanistan and were routed through Frankfurt, West Germany, and Toronto.

Police said the shipment was picked up by two men and loaded into a panel truck which then moved in convoy with three rented cars to Red Deer Municipal Airport at Penhold just south of here.

During the trip, police said, the hashish was transferred to eight heavy canvas duffle bags. A twin-engine aircraft was seized at Penhold "just prior to an intended departure on a flight south, the eventual destination believed to be Denver, Colo," the police said.

Six of the accused were arrested in the Penhold area and a seventh was picked up in a downtown Edmonton hotel.

Two suspects were captured after a high-speed chase, with speeds up to 100 miles an hour, at a roadblock near Innisfail, Alta., about 12 miles south of Red Deer.

U.S. College Hockey Keenly Scouted by Talent-Hungry Pros

NEW YORK (AP) — United States college hockey, which is producing more and more National League players, gets its major showcase in several professional rinks over the next few weeks, and don't think the pro scouts won't be watching.

With goalies Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks and Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens its most prominent graduates to the pro game, college hockey has gained considerable stature in the last few years.

There will be major tournaments at New York's Madison Square Garden, Boston Garden, St. Louis Arena and Detroit's Olympia during the Christmas holidays and with every major league expansion else for next season, the talent-hungry scouts will be covering them all.

"You have to," said Denis Ball, director of the New York Rangers' farm system. "This is where the talent is going to be coming from."

So the Rangers will cover the tournaments in the four NHL rinks and three others scheduled for minor-league facilities at Cleveland, Flint, Mich., and Syracuse, N.Y.

Esposito, a product of Michigan Tech, and Dryden, who played at Cornell, are the best-known products of the college game but by no means the only ones.

"There were 24 collegians drafted by NHL teams last summer and 18 of them were turned pro," said Ball..."That's a pretty good percentage."

Included among those 18 were Curt Bennett of St. Louis Blues, who played at Brown. Two of Bennett's brothers, Harvey, who plays for Boston, and John, who plays for Boston College, will be opposing each other in the Eastern College Athletic Conference's Holiday Hockey Tournament in New York Dec. 20-21.

Also in the New York tournament are Notre Dame and St. Lawrence University. And two days before the New York tourney begins, Notre Dame will play Boston College at Chicago Stadium.

Cleveland's tourney also runs Dec. 20-21 with Bowling Green, Princeton, Yale and Ohio State entered. On Dec. 22, the Christmas Festival in Boston, sponsored by the ECAC, begins, with Northeastern, Boston University, New Hampshire and RPI competing.

Pennsylvania, Harvard, Wisconsin and host St. Louis University play in the St. Louis Invitational beginning Dec. 26, and Michigan State, Michigan Tech, Dartmouth and Notre Dame are in the Great Lakes Invitational at Detroit starting Dec. 28. That's the same day that Michigan, Western Ontario, Bowling Green and Windsor open play in the tournament at Flint, Mich.

"It's good hockey," said Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers. "There are some fine young players coming out of the college game."

Francis might have been thinking of Craig Patrick, Kevin O'Shea, Keith Magnuson, Cliff Koroll or Rod Severson — all college products playing in the NHL.

WHA Team Short?

MONTREAL (CP) — Nell Shayne, the New York lawyer who doubles as president of that city's proposed franchise in the newly-formed World Hockey Association, conceded Monday he may have a difficult time fielding an entry for 1972.

Shayne was in Montreal to appear on the CBC's local evening news program Hourglass.

"I can't exercise my franchise until I get some playing dates," Shayne said in an interview. "The WHA are pressing me now for these dates."

He said his major problem is "time," and acknowledged that the "WHA could conceivably start without me."

Shayne has two suits pending that he hopes will clear the way for him to enter the proposed 12-team league.

The first is against Nassau County, where he hoped his team could play in Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Hempstead, Long Island. The second is a $33-million anti-trust suit against the National Hockey League, filed when the latter agreed Nov. 9 to expand to Atlanta and the Long Island site for next season. As a result of the NHL move, Shayne claims he has been shut out of the Long Island site.

Shayne said he went ahead with his franchise bid on the strength of published statements that the NHL would not expand beyond its current 14-team, two-division alignment before the 1974-75 season.

He said he expects the suit against Nassau County will be settled within weeks and that the action was merely to allow his team to play in the arena. He does not expect the anti-trust suit against the NHL to be heard for about "a year."

Shayne said he did not think it would be fair to seek an injunction that would tie up the Nassau arena because "it is a public arena and should be for the benefit of all."

If the WHA entry is not allowed into the Nassau arena, Shayne said there is a possibility of icing his team in either of two New York boroughs — Brooklyn or Queens.

Only Rocket Richard Beat Espo to 300 Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Phil Esposito and defencemen Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins have been as close as ham and cheese in a sandwich in most cases during recent seasons in National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

But today the entire New York Ranger's line of centre Jean Ratelle, along with wingers Vic Hadfield and Rod Gilbert, is doing its best to separate the pair.

Esposito retains the individual lead on the strength of his 300th regular-season NHL goal, one point ahead of Ratelle. The lanky Bostion scorer has a league-leading 23 goals and 51 points.

Hadfield is third with 46 points, one more than Gilbert and three more than Orr, who also lost his lead in the assist department.

Ratelle took the assist lead by picking up five last week to raise his total to 32. It was the first week since Jan. 5, 1969, that someone other than Orr or Esposito has led in assists.

By becoming the 16th player in NHL history to score 300 goals, Esposito accomplished the feat in the second-fewest games, 564. Only Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the former great right winger with Montreal Canadiens, bettered the mark by scoring his 300th goal in his 431st game.

Here is a comparison of some of the other players with 300 or more goals: Nels Stewart, Montreal Maroons, Boston, New York Americans, 568 games; Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks, 576th game; Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, Montreal and New York, 793rd game; Jean Beliveau, Montreal, 594th game; Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings, 634th game.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Hull, incidentally, reached another milestone last week when he scored the 527th goal of his NHL career, including playoffs... That put him ahead of Rocket Richard, who had 626 goals, including 544 in regular-season play and 82 in the playoffs. Hull has 521 regular-season and 58 playoff goals.

The all-time leader is Howe, who recorded 853 goals—786 in regular-season and 67 in the playoffs.

Another individual highlight came about last Sunday when Jim Park of the Rangers became only the third active defenceman to score three goals in a game.

Park performed the feat against Pittsburgh Penguins and goalie Jim Rutherford.

The only other defencemen to score three goals in a game in the last 17 years are Orr, who did it twice—Dec. 14, 1968 against Dave Dryden and Charlie Inglis, and again this season on Nov. 14, against Gary Edwards of Los Angeles Kings—and Pittsburgh's Dane. Rupp who scored three against Rutherford, March 24, 1971, when the latter was with Detroit.

Red Kelly, now general manager and coach of the Penguins, was the last defenceman prior to Orr and Rupp to score three goals in a game.

Kelly, then with Detroit, did it against Boston and Jim Henry Oct. 21, 1954.

Tony Esposito and Gary Smith of the Black Hawks has taken over first place in the goalie race with a combined average of 1.78. 10 points behind than Gump Worsley and Cesare Maniago of the Minnesota North Stars.

Appearances Deceiving

What appears to be a goal-scoring effort by Toronto Maple Leafs' Darryl Sittler (27) is not as Minnesota North Stars' goalie Gump Worsley kicks the shot with help from defenceman Tom Reid during National Hockey League action in Toronto Wednesday. Toronto handed West Division-leading North Stars their second defeat in a row with a 3-1 victory. A string of losses since has cost Worsley and teammate Cesare Maniago their NHL goaltending lead. Saints Shy Away from Six-figure Players

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints aren't interested, now, in luring a Bobby Orr out of the National Hockey League . . . at least if he's under a multi-year contract.

"Contractual obligations will not overplay," said Jim Adams, president of the Saints' team in the new World Hockey Association that plans to start play next October.

"We're going to respect existing contracts. It has to be recognized that we won't sign anybody that's now on a multi-year contract."

Adams made the statement Monday at a news conference called to announce the hiring of Glen Sonmor, 42, as the Saints first coach and general manager.

Walter Bush Jr., president of Minnesota North Stars in the rival NHL, said about a fourth of his players are on multi-year contracts.

BOBBY ORR

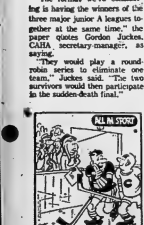
"Actually all of our players are on a contract for more than one year," said Bush. "They are under option. In effect, anybody who signs with the other league is going to have to sit out for one year."

Bush said the North Stars and NHL are prepared to go to court to protect their interests.

Adams said the Saints are considering a hands-off policy on NHL players demanding six-figure contracts.

"I think it is our owners' feeling that we can field a very qualified and competent team without having to lure that type of player, most of whom are on multi-year contracts anyway," said Adams. "We feel we've budgeted ample amount of money to secure the kind of talent to field a very representative time."

Sonmor, who comes to the Saints from a five-year term as hockey coach at the University of Minnesota, said he feels confident there is enough talent to go around.



Memorial Cup One-game Affair?

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is working on a new format for the Memorial Cup which might restore some of the lost stature to Canada's junior hockey final.

The paper says the idea being considered by the CAHA involves one sudden-death game between the Memorial Cup finalists with national television coverage the objective.

"The format we're considering is having the winners of the three major junior A leagues together at the same time," the paper quotes Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary-manager, as saying.

"They would play a round-robin series to eliminate one team," Juckes said. "The two survivors would then participate in the sudden-death final."

"Crush me into the boards when you get a chance, pal. She seemed very sympathetic when Cesares was carried out!"

The Globe says the three junior A teams participating would be the Ontario, Quebec and Western Canada leagues.

Juckes, who now works out of the CAHA offices at the administrative centre for sport and quoted by the Globe as saying "Recreation is in Ottawa, was an announcement might be made about the new format in a month.

Last year, structural changes in the CAHA led to a downgrading of the national junior playoffs and the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series decided this year not to include Memorial Cup play in its plans this season.

Last year, when Western Canada teams were allowed to use four over-age juniors, the CAHA refused to play them under those conditions and Quebec agreed with Ontario that neither league would play the West in Canadian championship play because of the age discrepancy.

But midway through the eastern final series between Quebec Remparts and the OHA's St. Catharines Black Hawks, the Quebec league decided that if the Remparts beat St. Catharines, they would play the Western champions. Edmonton Oil Kings, in a Memorial Cup final series if all games were played in Quebec City.

After Quebec was awarded the eastern title while leading the best-of-seven series 3-2 when St. Catharines refused to return to Quebec for a sixth game because they feared physical violence from the Remparts fans. Remparts defeated Edmonton in two successive games of a scheduled best-of-three series.

Howe's Perch Pretty Safe

by

PHIL ESPOSITO FANS shouldn't get too excited about the news that the lofty Bruin centre has become the second quickest to attain 300 goals in the National Hockey League.

Esposito accomplished the milestone in his 561th game this week. Only Rocket Richard, who scored 300 goals in his first 481 NHL games got there faster.

Bobby Hull took 576 and Gordie Howe 624.

But League statistician Ron Andrews paints a pessimistic picture for anyone who envisages overhauling the retired Howe's regular-season career goal record of 786.

Esposito, who scored 76 goals in 78 games last season, scored 203 goals in his first 302 games for the Bruins after Chicago Black Hawks decided he wasn't the right man for their lineup.

And he came up with the startling revelation that a rookie, say Richard Martin, would have to maintain a 52.4 goals-per-season average for 15 years to match Howe's total, compiled in 25 seasons.

CY YOUNG AWARD winner Vida Blue just missed out on equalling one all - time American League pitching record in his sparkling 1971 season.

The 22 - year - old Oakland whiz, who posted a stingy 1.82 earned-run average in his first full big league season, fanned eight shutouts amongst his 24 wins.

The only American League hurler who ever threw more in one season — nine — was a fellow by the name of George Herman Ruth in 1916.

BOXING RULES seem flexible, to put it loosely. Remember when a champion had to defend his title within six months of winning it?

Well, that's still the official policy of the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association, but it doesn't seem to apply to Joe Frazier, who has seen one since Sunpoint Muammad Ali of his heavyweight laurels last March.

British commentator Alex Hubbard suggests there are reasons why Frazier has taken a prolonged ring absence.

"The hospital where Frazier was kept under observation for two weeks after the fight has declined to disclose full details about his condition," Hubbard pointed out in a recent magazine article. Hubbard also quotes Madison Square Garden officials as saying Frazier "was hurt real bad" in winning the 15-round decision."

ROGER BANNISTER'S CLAIM to have run the first sub-four minute mile, his 3 minutes 59.4 sec. run in 1954, is disputed by a United States publication called "Runner's World."

The magazine says the Nebraska State Historical Society published evidence in 1932 that a Pawnee Indian was clocked in 3:58 by two U.S. Army officers.

If the claim is recognized, the record book would have to be re-written — literally.

The Indian's name was Kotah - we - cuts - no - let - e - boo - la - shar.

DATSUN scored an overwhelming victory in the 1971 Canadian Automobile Sport Club rally championships.

The Japanese entry finished up 1,985 points, nearly five times as many as runner-up Fiat, in the manufacturer standings for the 24-event series.

Total membership of CASC affiliated clubs was 5,826 in 1971, the association's annual general meeting learned earlier this month in Toronto.

The CASC is Canada's representative on the world governing body of auto sport, the Federation Internationale d' Automobile.

Delegates to the annual meeting accepted for study a proposal that all auto sports — drag racing, hot rodding, etc. — should be invited to join the CASC. A precedent was set in this area during 1971 when the B.C. Region of CASC accepted into its organization a three-buggy racing club.

CASC executive director Robert Hanna said association membership has not reflected the tremendous growth in general interest in auto sports.

"There is no question that there are large numbers of potential members out there, but clubs are not reaching them," he said.

"This might've been a terrific round if it brought a dozen more balls along!"

Lolich Led Pitchers In Eight Categories

BOSTON (AP) — The champion Baltimore Orioles, Detroit's Mickey Lolich, Oakland's Vida Blue and Milwaukee's Ken Sanders dominate the official 1971 American League pitching records announced today by president Joe Cronin.

The Orioles, featuring four 20-game winners, led the league with a 2.99 earned average, in complete games with 71, in fewest runs allowed with 536, and in fewest earned runs surrendered with 476.

Baltimore's 20-game winners were Dave McNally (21-5), Pat Dobson (20-8), Jim Palmer (20-9) and Mike Cuellar (20-9).

It marked the first time a club has had four 20-game winners since the Chicago White Sox in 1920.

There were six other 20-game winners, giving the league a record-equalling group of 10. The record was set in 1907 and equalled in 1920.

Other members of the 1970 group were Lolich (25-14) and Vida Blue, the CY Young Award winner, captured the earned-run average title with a brilliant 1.82 mark, edging Wood, who had 1.91. The 22-year-old Oakland southpaw posted eight shutouts, one shy of the league record for strikeouts set by Babe Ruth in 1916.

Sanders, a relief workhorse, led the league with 83 game appearances, five shy of the record set by Wood as a reliever in 1968, and in saves with 31, three under the American League record.

Allen Gets Revenge on Rams

" LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was billed as a civil war. And to some it was. The result put George Allen's Washington Redskins into the National Football League's National Conference playoffs.

The 38-24 Washington victory Monday night left Los Angeles' Rams. Allen's team for five years before he was fired and moved on to Washington, with a long shot opportunity for the playoffs.

It was Allen's first game against the Rams since he was fired after making winners of the Los Angeles club. He said afterward that "there's no bitterness with my relationship with the Rams. I'm glad to win and glad to be back in the Coliseum although it's my first time in the visitors' dressing room."

The Rams, under former UCLA coach Tommy Prothro, were rated one touchdown better before the game. The pre-game talk was Washington defence vs. Los Angeles offence.

The passing punch of Bill Kilmer didn't draw much notice. But the 31-year-old "No. 2" Washington quarterback, playing ahead of the mending Sonny Jurgensen, threw three touchdown passes as the Redskins ran up their highest point total of the season.

Washington could win the Eastern Division on Sunday if it defeats Cleveland Browns and first-place Dallas Cowboys lose to St. Louis Cardinals. But, with it's 9-3-1 record, Washington is assured of the NFC wild-card playoff berth going to the club with the best runner-up record.

The Rams, 7-5-1, meanwhile, are through for the season unless they beat or tie Pittsburgh Steelers and Detroit Lions upset San Francisco 49ers Sunday. The 49ers moved half a game ahead of Los Angeles when the Rams lost to Washington.

After Curt Knight tied his personal distance mark with a wind-aided 52-yard field goal to tie the score at 10-10 in the second quarter, the Rams drove to the Washington 15. On fourth and two, the Rams passed up a field goal attempt and quarterback Roman Gabriel was stopped by Pardee one yard short of a first down.

Allen, considered the more conservative of the two coaches, made his gamble after defensive back Ted Vactor blocked a 29-yard field goal attempt and Kilmer capitalized with a 25-yard touchdown pass to Clifton McNeil for a 17-10 lead.

Vactor, a three-year veteran, recovered a fumble on the next kickoff at the Los Angeles four. Including an automatic first down on a defensive holding penalty against the Rams, it took Washington seven plays to score, with Larry Brown carrying in on fourth down and the football less than a foot from the end zone.

Most of a capacity crowd of 80,402 and millions from some of the Redskins expected Allen to order a field goal but instead he went for the touchdown.

A Gabriel interception, his first of the game, set up what proved to be the winning touchdown in the third quarter. Mike Bass outfought Lance Rentzel for the ball at Washington 45 and three plays later Kilmer threw a five-yard touchdown pass to Ron Jeffers on a 31-10 lead.

The Rams struck first when Kilmer's former UCLA teammate, Kermit Alexander, intercepted his pass and raced 82 yards for a touchdown.

But Washington struck quickly when Kilmer hit Jefferson on the Rams' 27 and Jefferson's defenders Jimmy Nettles and Dave Elmendorf on a 70-yard touchdown play.

Hockey Briefs

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced Monday night they have traded right-winger Phil Roberto to St. Louis Blues in exchange for Jim Roberts.

Roberts, 31, a native of Toronto, was drafted by the Blues from the Canadiens in the 1967 NHL expansion draft.

Prior to this season, he appeared in 512 NHL regular-season games, scoring 65 goals and 63 assists for 128 points.

Roberto, a 22-year-old native of Niagara Falls, Ont., has been a part-time performer for the Canadiens for much of this season with only three goals and two assists in 27 games.

TORONTO (CP) — Mark Howe will not be able to join brother Marty with Toronto Marlboros at least not this year, the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council decided Monday.

The council, at a special meeting, passed a motion that the Marlies, who signed Mark on the weekend, will not be allowed to play him this year, pending further consideration of the case at the council's annual meeting Jan. 17.

OHA president Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz, said the motion was taken because of an earlier decision by the OHA that 17 - year - old players could sign with both of the Howe boys, sons of former National Hockey League star Gordie Howe, that club would lose its first two selections in the annual draft of over-age midgets for the next two years.

Howe is not in a position to forfeit its draft choices in that manner, said Schmalz, because they are Oshawa Generals a second or third draft choice from an earlier trade deal.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Only one of four members of Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series remains in hospital following injuries received in a four-car crash on Highway 401 at Toronto Saturday.

Rookie defenceman Paul McIntosh, driver of the car which was carrying him and his team-mates home to the Barrie area for a weekend visit, was in serious at Toronto Sunnybrook Hospital with a broken ankle and fractured lineup. He will be lost to the team for the season.

Forward Bill Evo received 15 stitches to close a gash on his face and will be lost to the Petes for two weeks.

Defenceman Mike St. Cyr also suffered facial bruises, and Jim Turkiewicz, a defenceman who needed stitches for a cut hand, played for Peterborough Sunday against St. Catharines Black Hawks.

TORONTO (CP) — Left winger Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs will miss at least the next two National Hockey League games because of a shoulder separation suffered in practice, coach John McLellan said Monday.

"He's had it for a couple of weeks and it wasn't getting any better," McLellan said. "Every time he took a shot or moved sharply it would aggravate the pull."

QUEBEC (CP) — About 100 teams, including one from Los Angeles, have accepted invitations to participate in the 12th annual Quebec international peewee hockey tournament to be held Feb. 3 to 12.

For the first time, a team from Saskatchewan will be participating in the event.

Lane Suspended

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Star running back MacArthur Lane has been suspended by St. Louis Cardinals' final game of the National Football League season.

Suspension of Lane, 6-foot-1, 225-pounder, followed remarks attributed to him after the Cardinals' 19-7 loss Sunday to Philadelphia Eagles in Philadelphia.

The Globe-Democrat quoted Lane Monday as blaming Cards' coach Charley Winner. Bid well for the team's troubles.

"All his moves right there in his stomach," Lane was quoted as saying.

Quarry New Number Three

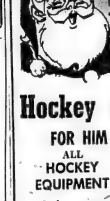
SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — Jerry Quarry's recent first-round knockout victory over Jack Bodell of England advanced the Bellflower, Calif., heavyweight to the No. 3 ranking in the division, according to ratings released Monday by the World Boxing Association.

Above Quarry on the list are champion Joe Frazier and challengers Muhammad Ali and George Foreman.

MICKEY LOLICH

team-mate Joe Coleman (20-9), Blue (24-8) and Oakland's Jim Hunter (21-11), Chicago's Wilbur Wood (22-12) and California's Andy Messersmith (20-13).

Lolich topped the league in eight departments—victories (25), starts (45), complete games (29), innings pitched (376), strikeouts (308), hits allowed (338), batters faced (1,410), and tying for most sacrifice flies permitted (12).



Lolich pitched the most innings since Walter Johnson's 391 in 1912. His 29 complete games were the most since 1946, and his strikeout total was the highest since Sam McDowell's 325 in 1965.

Blue, the Cy Young Award winner, captured the earned-run average title with a brilliant 1.82 mark, edging Wood, who had 1.91. The 22-year-old Oakland southpaw posted eight shutouts, one shy of the league record for strikeouts set by Babe Ruth in 1916.

Sanders, a relief workhorse, led the league with 83 game appearances, five shy of the record set by Wood as a reliever in 1968, and in saves with 31, three under the American League record.

Junior Ski Patrol Will Help on Slopes

TORONTO (Special) — The Canadian ski patrol system announced today in co-operation with local holders of Coca Cola, a junior patrol program that will carry the system's standards of courtesy, safety and service to thousands of young skiers throughout Ontario and Quebec.

The program has been designed to complement the existing senior program that has approximately 4,000 trained patrollers who supervise skiing on Canadian slopes. In Ontario, 1,100 senior patrollers operate on 175 hills during the ski season.

A spokesman for the Canadian ski patrol system said: "The junior member will become actively involved in a system that provides a public service. He will help promote safe and courteous skiing in all weather and snow conditions. As he improves his skills he will have every opportunity to develop his leadership potential.

"The junior ski patroller will provide valuable assistance to senior patrollers by recognizing and reporting accidents and skiing hazards which could cause accidents."

A basic knowledge of skiing, and the ability to ski in control and set a good example to others on the slopes are the requirements for each junior patroller. Applicants will also be requested to take a basic first aid course so that he or she can be of assistance to the senior patroller if their help is needed at the scene of an accident.

Youngsters 12 to 15 years old who have some skiing ability and are residents of Ontario or Quebec will be eligible for the junior program. Those applying must have their parents sign the application form giving them permission to join.

Application forms can be picked up at all C.S.P.S. centres in Ontario and also at the Toronto offices of Infoplan International, 39 Bridge St., West, Suite 20. All written requests for application forms should be addressed to Infoplan's Toronto address.

Top training and a fantastic experience await young people who enroll as junior members of the Canadian Ski Patrol System.

Pigott Must Keep Eye on Scales

LONDON (CP) — They say of Lester Piggott that he's the only man around who spends more money on The Financial Times and fat Havana cigars than on food.

Piggott is Britain's perennial top jockey—he's heading for his ninth championship —and he's completely dedicated to beating the scales. Also, he keeps an eye on his stocks and bonds.

Masterful Lester picks up more than £100,000 a year but cannot afford to make a meal out of anything bigger than something like a small piece of fish and one lettuce leaf. His normal weight is about 146 pounds but he-rides at 117 or so.

Despite his continuous thinning-out, the 35-year-old Piggott handles his half-ton of mount with plenty of muscle, along with plenty of brainpower. His specialty is lying well behind the pace and bursting through on the rails about two furlongs from the wire to win by a neck.

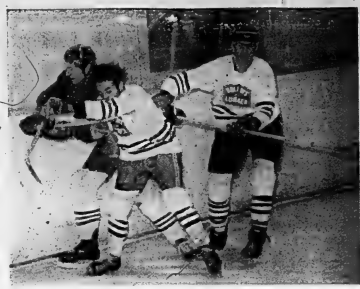
Sometimes he doesn't find the hole or hasn't the horsepower under him, but pokerfaced Lester is the one the crowd is watching right from the gate. Just to have him in, the irons shortens the price. And he's been murdering the bookies all season.

At that, it's not his best year. He was past the 170 mark in winners by early October but it does not look as though he'll catch up with his 191 mark of 1966 by the time the British flat-racing season closes at the end of the month. But, barring miracles, he will be coasting in for No. 9 title without trouble.

Willie Carson is 20 wins behind and Geoff Lewis, customarily the runner-up, just got past the 100 figure in late September.

Piggott has been doing this sort of thing for about 23 years, a long time in the life of a jockey. He won his first race in 1948 as a 12-year-old apprentice.

"Lucky you brought a good supply of arrows, Charles. Now, go find a couple of size logs!"



Joudwa Line Paces Juveniles

Kevin Joudwa was getting by with a little help from his linemates, but the Western Tire Juveniles didn't need any help at all in their OMHA exhibition match with Picton last night.

Joudwa counted four goals, with linemates Rick Meagher and Mike Goegan drawing assists on all four, to pace the Belleville juveniles to an 11-2 romp over Picton. The victory lifted Western's record for the season to 10-1-1.

Joudwa also helped in the scoring department by Bob Foster's two goals and singles by Dave Taylor, Jim Robertson, John Bowen and Sonny Farrell.

Meagher picked up five assists for the night with Goegan adding four and Foster and Brian Rumbles two each.

Gerry Lucas of Rollins Lumber cuts in front of teammate Bob Smith to attempt a defensive efforts of Wilson Coo-erette's Charlie Rowbotham during Gas House Hockey action Monday. Despite such defensive efforts the cementmen managed a 4-2 win over Rollins to move into a first place tie in the 11-team league.

Cementmen Do Best Job Of Spotting Right Sweaters

It was hard to tell the teams without a scorecard, or even with a scorecard, when Wilson Concrete met Rollins Lumber in a Gas House Hockey League game Monday.

Both teams sported white sweaters with red trim, making it touch to tell teammates from opponents. Wilson fashioned the difference well enough, however, to skate off with a 4-2 win. The victory gives them a share of the league lead with Jim's Pizzeria.

Right winger Bruce Stickle provided the scoring difference by getting a pair of goals, including the winner in the third period. Charlie Rowbotham had opened the scoring for Wilson's, while their final goal went to Dirk Kamink.

Each team was assessed six penalties.

In the other game played last night, the Teachers skated away with an easy 6-1 win over Stewart Warner.

Bruce Racicot was the big gun for the winners firing three goals, while Dave Seddon counted two and Kevin Manion a single marker. Bill Lynch's goal ruined a shutout bid by Teachers' netminder Casey Soden. The losers drew four of the game's six penalties.

Boxing Judge Draws Quebec Suspension

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Berenger, one of three judges at last week's non-title boxing match between Fernand Marcotte and Reynald Caulin, was suspended Monday by the Quebec Athletic Commission.

Commission president Rosaire Dermoot would not comment on the suspension following a commission meeting to discuss a charge by Caulin's manager, Georges Drouin, that Belanger had got against Caulin.

Belanger said earlier that he had placed a $5 bet on Caulin for his 11-year-old son, requested and paid for by him.

Marcotte, a Quebec City fighter, won a split decision over Caulin, the Canadian junior welterweight champion.

Another hearing on Drouin's charge is scheduled for Thursday in Montreal.

Women Separate But Equal

LONDON (AP) — The Jockey club scrapped an age-old ban Monday and agreed to let women jockeys compete on British tracks next year.

But they won't be allowed to race against men, they will have their own races, and a limited number at that.

"We will start off with a half-dozen in 1972," said Maj. Gen. Sir Randle Feilden, senior steward of the Jockey Club, "We will then see what sort of demand there is for races of this type."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

A T D R N G Z Y H T O R D P X Z R F E P D B Y,

Grants to Cover Full Cost Of Day Nurseries for Retarded

TORONTO (CP) — Local associations for the mentally retarded will be eligible to apply for capital grants paying 100 per cent of the cost of buying land, building and furnishing day nurseries up to June 1, 1972, Thomas Wells, minister of social and family services, announced Monday.

He told the Ontario legislature that special assistance is needed for these children and their parents to make sure that adequate day-care facilities exist and that accessibility is not dependent on the family's wealth.

Earlier, he had announced that municipalities and Indian bands would be able to apply for 100-per-cent grants for day nurseries.

He also introduced amendments to the Day Nurseries Act that would provide for 100-per-cent grants to municipalities and Indian bands for renovation of existing day-care centres from Nov. 1, 1971 to June 1, 1972.

On any remaining work on these projects after June 1, the grant would be 80 per cent, he said.

All nurseries built during this winter works program will also be eligible for the regular operating subsidy of 80 per cent.

Mr. Wells said 102 applications for capital grants have been received—63 from municipalities, 13 from Indian bands and 26 from local associations for the mentally retarded.

He said an "informal quota" has been set for each region, based on population, existing day-care resources and the province's welfare caseload. He did not make public the quotas for any region.

The legislation also extends the eligible age for day nursery care for retarded children to 18 years from 10.

Bills Introduced In Legislature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bills introduced in first reading Monday in the Ontario legislature include:

Corporations: Would exempt provincial corporations from paying income tax on grants received from federal government to ease the impact on recent United States import duties.

Estates: About 2,000 estates, valued under $100,000, would be tax-exempt when province takes over succession duties field Jan. 1, 1972.

Health: Would combine medical and hospital insurance programs by April 1, 1972, three months earlier than first announced.

Insurance: Would abolish medical-care premiums for persons 65 years and older, effective Jan. 1, 1972.

Nurseries: Would provide $10 million for cost of constructing day nurseries to provide jobs during winter employment lull.

Pensions: Would enable widower of female teacher to claim pension, and include can-vas calculation formula to provide for early retirement if required.

Taxes: Provides for a reduction in provincial income tax by three per cent to match federal scheme aimed at stimulating consumer spending.

Unemployment: Would authorize municipalities to use provincial grants for job-creating programs during winter months.

Medical and Hospital Plans to Be Joined

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will combine its medical and hospital insurance programs by April 1, 1972, three months earlier than first announced, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said Monday.

He was introducing a bill in the Ontario legislature to set up the Ontario Health Insurance Commission, an umbrella group that will plan and carry out the first stages of the unified insurance plan. Next session there will be more detailed legislation.

Premier William Davis announced Oct. 13 during the election campaign that there will be reductions to those who pay the full insurance premiums when the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan is combined with Ontario Hospital Services Commission coverage.

He said at the time the reductions would be effective April 1, 1972, and gave figures showing the monthly savings would be $3.75 a family, 80 cents a couple and 40 cents to a single person.

Estate Taxes Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A bill to provide for the Ontario government to move into the estate tax field was given first reading Monday in the Ontario legislature.

Treasurer Darcy McKeough, who introduced the bill, said the move will generate $96 million annually in revenue for the province.

He said the move will be effective Jan. 1 when the federal government vacates the estate tax field to the provinces.

Mr. McKeough said outside the house the government stood to lose $48 million in revenue by not acting to fill the gap left by the federal withdrawal.

Under the new scheme, exemption for widows and widowers would be included in the estate. As well, estates, about 2,000 of them, valued up to $100,000 would not be subject to tax.

Budgetary Deficit Will Increase Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — In outline, plan," to the Legislature yesterday, Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said the $12 billion budgetary deficit increase from an increase revenues of $36 million — of $2.883 billion—offset by an increase in expenditures of $174 million, bringing provincial spending to $4.436 billion from the April figure of $4.262 billion.

The bulk of the increased expenditures are for job-creation and welfare programs, with almost half the million being earmarked for winter works and capital improvement programs which are expected to generate some 40,000 jobs within the next six months.

Eleven departments will receive increased funds, with the largest chunk—$17.2 million—going to the social and family services department, and an other $34,075,000 to the health department.

Of the $17.2 million, the social and family services department will transfer $29.1 million to municipalities for welfare payments, with another $7.1 million allotted for day nurseries, including $6.3 million against new buildings.

The increased health department funds, bringing spending in 1972 to more than $1 billion, will be used in large part to provide free medical and health insurance to old-age pensioners by Jan. 1 and to persons without taxable income by April 1, 1972.

Other expenditures include capital outlays for subway construction in Toronto, additional grants to regional governments and accelerated purchases of recreational land.

The bill amending the Succession Duty Act, given first reading Monday, is expected to generate about $48 million annually in provincial revenue. It will be more effective Jan. 1 when the federal government vacates the estates tax field in favor of the capital gains tax levied in the new federal tax legislation.

Mr. McKeough in a news conference was critical of the federal government for getting out of the estate tax field, but the capital gains system is fully established.

Ontario will receive no more than $10 million as its share of capital gains taxes in 1972, he said, while losing its share of Ontario now levies succession duties which generate income of about $70 million a year. The federal estate tax collects about $56 million. Both collections are made by the federal government, with Ontario benefiting by about $38 million.

Under the bill, exemption for widows and widowers would be raised to $200,000 from $250,000. All gifts made within 15 years prior to death would be included in the estate.

Estates valued up to $100,000 will be exempt from duty, regardless of their distribution.

While the rate of graduated succession duties would be doubled, Mr. McKeough said he expected the changes in the law would reduce the number of taxable estates to about 2,000 a year, from 5,000.

The change in the Corporation Tax Act will ensure that Ontario businesses which receive money from the federal Employment Support Act do not have to pay tax on that money.

The federal act provides an $80-million fund to maintain employment levels in businesses hit by the recent supplementary duty on manufactured imports to the United States, announced in August by President Richard Nixon.

Lawrence Will Meet Drug Group

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence was to meet all day today with his drug advisory committee for a briefing on drug prices.

He told Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Riverdale Park) in the Ontario legislature Monday that he would meet with the committee today, drug costs until after the meeting.

Dr. Shulman asked him to explain why his department has been saying that prescription costs have fallen while the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association has reported costs rose by three per cent in the first year of Ontario's Parcost program.

Mr. Lawrence said he was not familiar with the report but said that prescription costs have fallen by eight per cent.

Parcost is a short form for Prescriptions at a Reasonable Cost, in which the government publishes an index comparing the prices of brand names drugs with their generic names.

Sharp Is Disappointed Russia Won't Discuss Cuts in Troops

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp expressed disappointment Monday that the Soviet Union has refused to discuss with NATO East-West troop cuts in Central Europe.

However, he told reporters, there is no time limit on the so-called "stepped" invitation of former NATO secretary-general Manlio Brosio proposed two months ago to sound out the Russians on the prospects for such cuts.

He said he is confident that the discussions will take place, though he declined to predict when.

He said the West has placed Russia and its Warsaw Pact allies on the defensive in proposing that Mr. Brosio go to Moscow and see whether any realistic basis exists for what NATO calls mutual and balanced force reductions.

Soviet leaders, in a series of public statements last year, endorsed the idea of troop cuts.

However, another side has clearly explained to the other what it has in mind.

In a Commons statement on last week's NATO ministerial meeting in Brussels, Mr. Sharp said that if the Soviets receive the Brosio mission, "progress will depend on their positive and fairly toward substantive negotiations."

"That they have not done so, I believe, reflects the fact that the Soviet and their friends have not yet worked out either their procedural or their substantive position . . ."

At the same time, Mr. Sharp hailed "forward movement" in East-West relations which he said formed the background of the semi-annual Brussels meeting.

Ratification of West Germany's treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland could be expected within the next few months.

The Soviet Union has made such ratification a condition for conclusion of a Berlin settlement. The West, for its part, has made a Berlin settlement the pre-condition for a conference on European security, staunchly advocated by the Soviet bloc.

In Brussels, Mr. Sharp met Franco Maria Malfatti, president of the European Economic Community.

He reported that attitudes within the EEC toward Canada have become "much more realistic" in the last year.

There is no longer a tendency to lump Canada with the United States.

The changed attitude had resulted from Canada's frequent contacts with the EEC commission.

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) complimented Mr. Sharp on a "reliable appraisal" of the European security situation.

Mr. Macquarrie said the government is showing a changed, more positive, attitude toward NATO. In 1968, it appeared that the government had thrown NATO into the ashcan.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said he is gratified by forward moves toward European detente.

British Ministers Reported Manipulating Query Time

LONDON (CP) — Members of the opposition Labor party bristled with indignation as they demanded a government explanation of reports that ministers are manipulating the daily Commons question period to their own advantage.

Labor leaders, apparently anticipating fervent official denials, called for a major parliamentary battle, confident the government would be severely embarrassed by the sensitive issue.

Sunday newspapers had given detailed accounts of the alleged "question rigging" and public interest was high when Commons business began Monday.

But in Labor's attempt to get and in the surprise of many observers, there were no outright denials or apologies from the Conservative government.

Instead, Environment Minister Peter Walker told the Commons the reports were essentially correct as they related to at least two occasions earlier this year.

"What's he saying?" cried perplexed Opposition MPs.

The argument may not be over yet since the Commons Speaker has still to decide on a Labor motion that "the whole matter be referred to the Commons committee on privileges. But the earlier accusations have clearly lost their original force.

The controversy arose from newspaper articles stating that ministers in Walker's department had instructed civil servants to prepare questions on housing matters that could be asked by Conservative MPs.

The newspapers said the aim of this policy was to prevent embarrassing or awkward questions from Opposition MPs.

Labor immediately accused the government of invoking civil servants for political and breaching parliamentary privilege.

Walker, who volunteered his statement at the opening of Monday's House session, argued that it has always been parliamentary practice for ministers to arrange to have questions tabled by MPs from their own party, based on material supplied by officials.

Walker said the housing row between Labor and the Conservatives dered the questions to be prepared last March when there had been two "converted Opposition campaigners" on hand in the Commons order paper with questions on housing and construction."

He said Labor MPs had been trying to gain support in preparation for two by-elections at the time.

Labor Leader Harold Wilson said he found Walter's attitude outrageous. Conservative MPs were apparently incapable, because of "ignorance" or unconcern, of asking their own questions, Wilson added.

Tax Bill Debate Near End

OTTAWA (CP) — The government, majority easily swamped last-ditch opposition efforts Monday to delay progress of its big tax bill, through the Commons. And there were indications that any Senate attempt to stall the bill would be more of a whimper than a bang.

Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen poised the debate-limiting guillotine rule on the bill for the second time, thus ensuring—unless some strange happenstance keeps Liberals away from the House—final passage of the bill through the Commons by Friday.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson made a special afternoon appearance before the Senate banking committee, which has expressed displeasure about some segments of the bill.

Although Mr. Benson later said "I don't know what they'll do," Senator Salter Hayden (L —Ontario), banking committee chairman, told the upper chamber Monday night he had committed the Senate to be conciliatory. And he described the afternoon committee as having "a conciliatory tone."

Senator Jacques Flynn, leader of the minority Conservative opposition in the Senate, said he could not assess how Liberal senators reacted to the Benson appearance. He didn't think it had accomplished much.

His personal view was that a day or two of Senate debate on the 332-clause bill would be meaningless. Either the Senate should jam it through all required readings in a day or so, knocking off in plenty of time for Christmas, or it should do a real job and give the bill a minimum of three weeks study, scuttling Mr. Benson's Jan. 1 deadline.

Mr. Benson told the committee changes to the tax legislation would be introduced in the New Year, probably in a government budget presentation. He expected such amending legislation would mollify some Senate criticisms.

Senator Flynn, observing that the Senate is expected to get the bill the same day it passes the Commons under the guillotine, said he would not be involved in a sham.

It could be rammed through if that was the consensus, but he would not stand for any short consideration being construed as proper study.

Conservative senators would just ignore the bill if it became obvious it was to be passed in a couple of days.

In the Commons, the Liberals handily defeated two opposition attempts to change the bill.

These were a Conservative amendment and a related New Democrat one, designed to modify the tax clout on a basic cattle herd and in the capital gains tax on farm land at the time it is sold or transferred.

The Conservative motion went down 93 to 71 and the NDP amendment lost 92 to 71.

There were only a few opposition taunts of shame when Mr. MacEachen used the required 24 hours of notice Monday afternoon by announcing that the government would use the debate-limit rule starting today and that debate would end Friday.

The government used the same rule Dec. 2 to wind up debate on clause-by-clause study of the big bill.

If Nose Closes Up at Night Some Allergy Possible Cause

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been in three doctors' offices for trouble because my nose closes up at night. I use nose drops two or three times a day—which I know isn't good.

I have tried various prescriptions and home remedies, yet nothing seems to solve my problem. It is especially bad at night when my nasal passages seem to close up.—Mrs. H.L.

Having the trouble more at night may be a clue, for part of the answer may be in your bed. Do you use a feather pillow? Some folks can be allergic to feathers, and from your letter I get the idea that your trouble sounds like an allergy problem.

You can get allergen-proof pillow covers. There also are molds in a pillow stuffed with some other material. Since your dis comfort is worse at night, I would think that was definitely worth a trial.

But since some of the trouble persists by day, you should give heed to other allergy possibilities.—Animals? Dust? Fungus from a damp basement? Cosmetics? Have you changed them since the time when your distress was less severe? Assuming that your trouble is relatively recent, what things are you now using, or coming in contact with, that you did not use before? I would certainly explore the possibility of allergy very thoroughly, and you may need the services of an allergist.

As to the nose drops, you are right. They can cause trouble when used other than occasionally and moderately. These drops shrink the swollen, inflamed surfaces of the nose, which "opens" the passages. But the help is only temporary, and is followed by a "rebound effect." The artificially dried tissues react by becoming bogger than before, and the whole procedure makes your condition worse instead of better.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My brother, 73, is having leg cramps so bad nobody can sleep nights. The doctor is giving him quinine and some form of a white pill and seems to think this should take care of it.—F.H.

Quinine very often is helpful; I wouldn't know what else he is taking, but probably a pain reliever. When a single type of treatment is not sufficient, a combination of methods may be.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After having a baby, is it true the mother's hair falls out, or is it just an old wives' tale? If it is true, will it stop and how long will it take?—B.M.V.

It's true—occasionally. If it were true in all cases, there'd be a lot of young mothers not needing their hair.

The loss of hair following pregnancy, when it does occur, is temporary, but it takes anywhere from several weeks to several months for the hair to get back to normal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What precautions should be taken to safeguard a family of people of many ages including small children when a beloved and affectionate grandparent has incurable cancer?—M.V.

Ordinarily none. The exception would be when a cancer is on the surface and has become infected. The precautions then should be the same as for any infected sore: keep the sore covered, and avoid contact with pus or matter from it. The danger is not cancer; it is the danger of picking up any secondary infection that has developed.

What The Stars Say

By CONSTELLA

Tuesday, November 14

Aries (March 21-April 19)—Things are starting to simmer down, and routine matters are again occupying your thoughts. Attend to finances that have been ignored in the rush.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)—Where you have failed to act in the past, the same folks are willing to give you a second chance. Don't disappoint them this time or it's over for good.

Gemini (May 21 - June 21)—Authorities at work can't seem to leave their personal problems at home. An advantageous alliance can result, though, if you don't let down their troubles.

Cancer (June 22 - July 22)—You've vowed to stick by loved ones no matter what transpires. This complete backing may be just the thing to keep them from misbehaving. Maybe you couldn't hope for more.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)—Kin know more but may really have no gripes over your taking command of family affairs. This way, they've got a much better chance of everything working out.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 21)—You're asked to give your opinion by a supersensitive party here on self-improvement. Though they say they want the truth about their faults, you'd better sugarcoat it.

Libra (Sept. 22-Oct. 22)—You'll find your just reward for sacrifice, though fate may take a rather unusual direction in repaying you. What you reject in terms of generosity: you'll get back.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)—For all your superficial sternness and practicality, you're just as easily swayed by the hearts and flowers routine in romance as anyone else. Let it show.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)—There are short tempers, long hours and upsetting conditions where you live for a while, but you can see this as a positive influence. You're forced to work it out.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-an. 19)—You've got the floor now, so let everyone know how strongly you feel about pet issues. Lack of discipline is the main virtue that seems to be missing in those close to you.

Aquarius (an. 20-Feb. 18)—It could just be that the reason you've been passed over for a raise or promotion is that you haven't bothered to come out and ask for one. It's the way the boss operates.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)—Regardless of how positive you may feel over your abilities, you still need an extra push to take the big step. Close ties know well enough to provide it.

Today's birthday—Be warned that any decisions you make independently this winter that affect your partners carry quite a burden of responsibility. If plans backfire this summer, they won't let you forget it.

Wednesday, December 15

Aries (March 21-April 19)—If someone thinks he has a better idea, let him prove it by him self. There's no need for you to risk your neck out over nothing more than a good sales pitch.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)—Funds that you've left to others to manage are safe, but you'll be quite annoyed to find more hasn't been done to improve your nest egg. Do it yourself.

Gemini (May 21-June 21)—Competition has been something you've only been vaguely aware of up to now, but those who plan to beat you to the lead plainly name themselves today. Don't be intimidated.

Cancer (June 22-July 22)—Bosses think they can step up your productivity simply by pushing up deadlines. When imagination must be used, this sort of system just won't work.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)—Don't expect to come home to a smiling mate who'll greet you at the door. Those who stay at home have had a rough day. Be more understanding.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 21)—This isn't the day to try to find out who wears the pants in the family. It's not a matter of who's in the right in this family squabble because you're not able to sour your day. Don't be encouraged to risk it by loved ones.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)—You can still be original and independent within the social framework. In fact, you make more headway now by working with the system, rather than against it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)—When you're hurt, even just slightly, your reactions far exceed the attack. Hold your temper in check or you can say things you regret.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)—It may be a prideful issue now to prove to everyone you're just as good, even better than the rest of the pack. If you go ahead, though, you'll only prove you're insecure.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)—A little encouragement is good, but you've gotten an overdose. Don't let partners convince you you can walk on water, for you're liable to try it.

Today's birthday—You've got an excess of energy and drive this year, but it's up to you whether it makes you a saint or sinner. Listen to mates who are trying to bring out the best in you. It's not criticism.

Airlines Reach Accord On Atlantic Fares Cut

GENEVA (Reuter) — Thirty-six airlines operating the North Atlantic and related routes have unanimously agreed on a package of reduced air fares—some of them cut by nearly 20 per cent.

A spokesman for the International Air Transport Association said Monday the new fares will come into effect April 1972, and last until March 31, 1973.

The accord clears up six months of uncertainty over its tariffare prices. Present agreements are to expire and with failures of two previous IATA conferences this year there were threats of a price war in the spring.

Queen's Professor Tried for Murder

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Supreme Court was told Monday that Keith Latta, a Queen's University law professor on trial for the non-capital murder of Bob Neville, stood to gain $75,000 in insurance if Mr. Neville did not die a natural death.

In a statement to the jury on evidence the Crown intends to introduce, Crown counsel W. J. Stainton said that Mr. Latta and Mr. Neville were partners in Neville World Travel Services Ltd., a $37,500 insurance policy was taken out by each on the other's life.

He said they also signed an agreement whereby if one died, the money from the insurance policy could be used to buy the dead's shares in the company.

The policies were identical except for a double-indemnity clause in Mr. Neville's policy by which Latta would collect $75,000 if Mr. Neville died an unnatural death, Mr. Stainton said.

Mr. Neville, 36, was found dead in his downtown office on June 13. Latta was arrested one week later at his home in Kingston.

In his opening statement, Mr. Stainton said Latta had sold his shares in the business, but the Crown will bring evidence to show that Latta had a proposed version of the policies prepared by an insurance company.

Mr. Stainton told the seven men and five women of the jury that Latta had told an insurance company representative that he would be taking the proposed revision to Edmonton with him on June 8, when he would discuss the revision with Mr. Neville. Mr. Stainton did not elaborate on the contents of the revision.

The Crown counsel also told the jury that Latta told a friend in Edmonton on June 9 that Mr. Neville was being blackmailed by someone else. The friend was told that Latta had stopped to help Mr. Neville, who had been ordered to supply $10,000 or have his wife told about alleged philandering with other women.

The friend had been told by Latta that Mr. Neville had been told he must pay or be killed, Mr. Stainton told the court.

The court was told of the finding of the body and a crude map showing the bus depot and several downtown buildings in the office area and a key to a bus depot locker.

In the locker, police had found several items including a newspaper, a handgun and ammunition, a map of Italy and an Italian-English dictionary. Mr. Stainton said evidence would show that a palm print and a fingerprint of Latta's were on the newspaper and a palm print on the map.

Pakistani General Requests Ceasefire

India Halts Raids, Demands Surrender

From AP-REUTER

The Pakistani commander in East Pakistan has appealed to the Indian army chief of staff for a ceasefire, the government in New Delhi announced today. India ordered a halt to the bombing of Dacca and gave the Pakistanis 16 hours to surrender.

Gen. Sam Manekshaw, the Indian chief of staff, said he would order a ceasefire as soon as the Pakistanis confirmed their surrender, an Indian spokesman said. The appeal was from Lt.-Gen. A. A. K. Niazi, who previously had vowed to fight to the last man.

The exchange between the two generals came as an Indian army spokesman reported Indian troops fired mortars into Dacca from less than two miles away and the battle for the East Pakistani capital was "in its final stages."

An Indian government spokesman said the Indian army had closed to slightly more than a mile from Dacca when the ceasefire request was relayed.

Indian troops also were reported within four miles of Chittagong, East Pakistan's largest port. Its harbor area was hit Tuesday by an air and sea bombardment.

Manekshaw warned that "if you do not comply with what I have stated you will leave me with no other alternative but to resume my offensive with the utmost vigor at 0900 (9 a.m.) Dec. 16."

This is 10:30 p.m. EST today.

Manekshaw told Niazi he had ordered the bombing pause at Dacca as a "token of my good faith."

The Indian government did not release the contents of Niazi's message, but it said that it would be obvious from Manekshaw's reply that the Pakistani general had asked for a ceasefire, without committing himself to a surrender.

The Indian army chief then made clear a surrender would be required before India would agree to a ceasefire.

"I give you my solemn assurance that personnel who surrender shall be treated with dignity and respect that soldiers are entitled to and I will abide by the provisions of the Geneva conventions," Manekshaw added.

"Further, as you have many wounded, I shall ensure that they are well cared for and your dead given proper burial.

"No one need have any fear for their safety, no matter where they come from. Nor shall there be any reprisal by forces operating under my command."

Manekshaw noted in his message that he previously had the two surrender appeals to Maj.-Gen. Rao Farman Ali, military adviser to the civilian government, guaranteeing the safety of all of Niazi's military and paramilitary forces who surrender. The East Pakistani civilian government resigned Tuesday and sought safety with the International Red Cross in Dacca.

The message exchange was made through the U.S. embassy.

Radio Pakistan conceded that Indian troops were putting pressure on Dacca after opening up with an artillery shelling Tuesday. Reporters in Dacca said government buildings were set afire.

The army spokesman in Calcutta told reporters Dacca is surrounded and Indian columns, advancing from the northwest, north and south, have opened up with mortars on the city from 2,000 to 6,000 yards.

Quoting intelligence sources, the spokesman said Pakistani soldiers were occupying civilian buildings in Dacca and civilians were being evacuated from these areas.

Asked whether this meant that the Pakistanis were preparing a bitter yard-by-yard resistance, he replied: "That depends on whether, when the ring is around Dacca, the troops can withstand our pressure. It's a possibility."

He said Indian units and groups of the Mukti Bahini, the guerrilla army of the Bangla Desh independence movement, "are in position to attack close to Dacca from all sides."

Other Indian forces were reported moving toward Dacca behind the leading columns.

The spokesman said waterways east of the city have been crossed and no further waterways remain between Indian forces and Dacca.

Elsewhere in East Pakistan, a stiff fight was reported for the fifth day of Khulna, an inland port 90 miles southwest of Dacca.

"Every inch is being fought," an Indian spokesman said.

He reported Indian troops had crossed rivers and marshy areas and had captured Sirajganj, 75 miles of Dacca, the second biggest industrial town in the province.

Quake Rocks Soviet Coast

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — An earthquake measuring 7.8 on the open-ended Richter scale was recorded Tuesday night off the east coast of Siberia's Kamchatka Peninsula, the Palmer Observatory reported.

The observatory issued a seismic wave watch for Alaska's Aleutian Island chain, about 800 miles east of Kamchatka, and the national weather service in the Hawaiian Islands placed its stations on the alert to watch for signs of a sea wave.

But a spokesman at Palmer said: "At this time we really don't think there will be a Pacific sea wave." He said the quake was centred about 1,700 miles west of Anchorage and was not felt in Alaska.

Japan's meteorological agency also issued a wave warning but lifted it four hours later after determining that no unusually high tides would hit Japan.

The University of California's seismological station said the tremor was measured at 7.5 on the Richter scale of earthquake intensity.

The National Earthquake Centre in Washington, D.C., rated it at 7.8.

By comparison, the earthquake which devastated San Francisco in 1906 was rated at 8.25 on the Richter scale.

Kamchatka and the Kuriles are both Russian-owned.

The Kuriles separate the Pacific and the Sea of Okhotsk, extending from Kamchatka Peninsula, on the Asian mainland, to Japan's Hokkaido Island.

The peninsula is about 800 miles west of the tip of the Aleutians and about 700 miles north of Japan.

Seismographic instruments in Washington located the epicentre of the quake in Kamchatka, where a smaller tremor registered 7.3 on the scale Nov. 29.

A spokesman at the centre in Washington said the quake was not connected with the U.S. underground nuclear blast on Amchitka Island in the Aleutians last Nov. 6. Environmentalists had fought that test, arguing that the explosion, among other things, could cause earthquakes and a tsunami, or seismic wave.

The centre of the quake is in a relatively unpopulated part of what the Washington centre called a highly seismic area.

"The main danger," the spokesman said, "would be from a tsunami, and this quake would be large enough to cause one. It's not the best time."

He said tide gauges in the Aleutians, Hawaii, the Union and Japan were attempting to get a reading to indicate whether the quake had indeed caused a tsunami.

"Then along came Prince Croll and slew Poverty, the dragon"

Airline Clerks Work to Rule

TORONTO (CP) — The 2,000 members of the Canadian Airline Employees Association will start a work to rule campaign at 3 p.m. local time across the country today, a spokesman said.

The campaign might hinder Air Canada operations in all areas of the country, and "will certainly slow things down all right," the association spokesman said.

Under the campaign, the ticket sellers, secretarial staff and ground hostesses represented by the association will carry out their duties "by the textbook . . . no cutting corners."

The action follows a break off Tuesday in negotiations between the association and a conciliation board appointed by the federal government.

Negotiations for a new contract started early in September, a few weeks before the previous contract expired Sept. 30.

Freezing Rain Tangles Quinte Transportation

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Transport communications went skating to the sidelines in many parts of the Quinte district as freezing rain hit the area this morning.

At CFB Trenton takeoffs of four transport planes were cancelled, while the arrival of two big passenger jets later today was said to be in doubt.

Road conditions were described as "terrible" throughout the Belleville area by a highways department official who advised motorists that the best course was to halt travel until the freezing fallout passed.

To zoos there had been no major accidents although provincial police in some rural areas were being hard-pressed to keep up with the number of mishaps.

School buses, particularly in Prince Edward County — a treacherous storm eye of any Belleville-area bad weather — were cancelled on a number of routes, although schools remained open.

It was the first blowout of its kind to hit the Quinte area in the new winter.

The rain hit the Belleville-Trenton area about 6 a.m. — following a brief snowfall last night.

But the forecast from the CFB Trenton weather office is that snow will gradually quit this afternoon in the Belleville-Trenton area, petering out later further north. Not only that but temperatures — in the 30s during the morning — may rise as high as the mid-fifties by this evening — possibly a record for this time of year, said a forecaster. Even a thunderstorm may materialize. Winds, gusting up to 40 miles an hour may occur in some local areas before daybreak.

Four cargo planes — their makes, makeups and destinations not certain — were unable to take off from the Big service transport base this morning because of ice conditions. There were no problems with arrivals — since no aircraft were due at the base this morning. No passenger bookings were involved in this morning's cancellations, it was reported. However,

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An intense storm system will move rapidly northward across the upper Great Lakes in the next 24 hours. Freezing rain falling over parts of southern and eastern Ontario will gradually change to rain as warmer air floods across the lower Great Lakes. The storm is expected to dump four to six inches of fresh snow into regions north of the Great Lakes. Central Ontario will receive precipitation beginning as snow or freezing rain and eventually changing to rain. The only thing that all of Ontario will experience in common is the strong winds swirling around the storm. Precipitation will end in most regions tonight or Thursday but blustery winds will continue until Thursday night.

India Tells U.S. To Keep Ships Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — India has told the United States to keep the U.S. nuclear-aircraft carrier Enterprise and escorting warships out of the Bay of Bengal and has promised to give help to all foreign nationals seeking safety in the East Pakistan war.

Indian Ambassador Lakshmi Kant Jha told reporters Tuesday he has received reliable reports the U.S. fleet might seek to "establish a beachhead for the evacuation of not only American personnel, but also Pakistan army officers and men as well as civilians who feel insecure."

Jha said he had sought a denial of the report from Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisco but had failed to receive a satisfactory reply.

American officials continued their silence on activities of the 7th Fleet task force.

But it was learned from authoritative sources that the American fleet is poised at the Straits of Malacca near Singapore awaiting instructions to take part in an evacuation plan if necessary. A shipping official at Singapore said the Enterprise passed that port Tuesday.

At the same time, U.S. Intelligence sources disclosed that Soviet naval strength in the Indian

Boy, 16, Killed by Commandos

BELFAST (AP) — A 16-year-old youth, suspected of carrying a gun, was shot dead by paratroop British commandos early today.

Military headquarters said Martin McShane was spotted in early morning darkness climbing a fence in a playing field at Coalisland, County Tyrone.

He saw the soldiers, a spokesman said, and aimed a gun at them. The troops opened fire, and the youth slumped to the ground. In the light of a flare, he said, the boy was seen lying over a weapon.

An angry crowd of about 40 people surrounded the body and refused to allow the soldiers near it. They called an ambulance which took the body away, said the spokesman.

The death of the youth brought to 197 the death toll for 28 months of violence.

The buildup of an urban terror campaign by outlaws of the Irish Republic Army—seeking to bring Northern Ireland under the rule of the Irish Republic—was reviewed in Belfast Tuesday by British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling.

The minister, who holds cabinet responsibility for security in Ulster, had a date today with the hardline Protestant evangelist, Rev. Ian Paisley.

The Belfast government is said to believe the IRA has begun a new stage in its all-out offensive to force Northern Ireland out of the United Kingdom.

The assassination of a Northern Ireland senator Sunday and five attacks Tuesday on the suburban homes of politicians and magistrates were said to confirm this view.

Two of the houses were bombed and severely damaged by the fires which followed.

Selina Christie, 58-year-old wife of a Belfast magistrate, was shot in the head as she struggled with three raiders. Redmond Taggart, 67, husband of Senator Edith Taggart, was beaten on the head.

Apartheid Defended By S.A. Ambassador

The South African ambassador to Canada, visiting the Kiwanis Club yesterday, spent much of his visit defending his homeland against "the maligning comments" made by the North American press.

Hennie Collins, stationed in the South African Embassy in Ottawa, claimed, "through the press and the mass media of television and radio, the heads of the western world have been turned against my country, and its system of apartheid."

The world apartheid, as defined by the Webster's New World Dictionary is, the policy of strict racial segregation and discrimination against the native negroes and other colored peoples as practiced in the Union of South Africa.

Mr. Collins claimed it was the only reasonable solution to the problem of the widely divergent areas of nationalism within the South African continent.

"We have nine tribes of Bantus (collective term for native South Africans) and each has a fierce nationalistic feeling for his own group," said Mr. Collins.

"Rather than friction between black and white, it is a friction or a segregation of blacks and blacks," he said.

The over-riding theme of the ambassador's presentation was to attain a complete independence for each of the ethnic groups, including the whites.

"Through upgrading the education of the black majority, they will elevate themselves to take their own government into their own hands, and enjoy this complete independence," said Mr. Collins.

Mr. Collins also suggested that this practice would satisfy the nationalism evident in all the tribes, allow them to be "masters of their own fates" and at the same time allow harmonious trade between themselves.

"What the whites are doing on the continent is helping the Bantu make the transition from tribe to recognized political and economic nation as painless as possible," he said.

Mr. Collins, while he did not specifically name the nations, claimed, "within the next few years, there will be three or four tribes that will be enjoying almost complete independence."

"We are maligned by those with ulterior motives, and criticized by those who do not understand," said Mr. Collins.

"Because our way of life is so far removed from the western ways, we are looked upon as an oddity. We don't believe in discrimination and the rights of all people are a chief objective of the system, he concluded.

Santa Gets Letters --And Lots of Them

By COLLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

"...an' I want a dolly, anna tey stove like mom's, anna tea service, and bring my little brother a toy gun, (I had to ask for him, Santa, 'cause he can't write) an' I want . . .

Santa Claus, Pere Noel, Father Christmas or Kris Kringle, call him what you like, he's the man in the mail.

Every year the tradition is relived of children, with pencils clutched in their little hands, writing down furiously what they want for Christmas. And they all mail their letters to the fat little man, in the bright red garb. (Care of the North Pole.)

"Yep, there's a Santa Claus, my mom said there was," said one little girl, poring over her most important letter. "I've been a good girl all year so Santa would be happy with me."

The magic of the letter is consistent in the minds of the children who write them that Santa reads them, and it helps him out when he's making his shopping list.

"If I didn't send my letter, he wouldn't know where to come and he wouldn't know if I was a boy or a girl."

Helping out with the letters to Santa are the Quinte Mall and the Belleville Plaza.

"Each day letters find their way into the mail box we have installed in the mall, and similarly each day we send replies to the children letting them know that Santa is on his way," said a mall employee.

In the past, more than 100 letters have been mailed through the postal service to Santa.

"It's a devil of a job getting them to the North Pole but we do our best," said a wearied mailman.

The Post Office does suggest that a return address be placed on the letter so that Santa knows where to come.

Rain

a decision was to be taken later this morning on the possible need for diverting — possibly to Ottawa — two large planeloads of planes due to land this evening — one from Europe, the second from the west coast.

Base authorities were hoping for a clearup in conditions before that time, said a report.

Roads safety crews were working steadily to keep to highways and roads sanded as the rain continued.

"We're doing the best we can (but) you just have to use your judgment — that's all," proclaimed a spokesman at the Department of Highways barns at Marysville.

"The rain is freezing on the highway as soon as it comes down," he added, "if you're nothing to do, you might as well stay home."

Further north, provincial police patrolling Hwy. 401 near Tilsonburg reported accidents were "very bad".

"All our officers are out," (investigating mishaps) said one OPP officer in the area, where probably the worst accident of the morning occurred.

At Martin's Hill, on Highway 37, a transport slid out of control, hit a guardrail and half-jackknifed across the high-way making the road impassable, said a motorist.

All school buses in rural areas of Hastings County were running late, a county school board official confirmed. However no schools were closed, although daily enrolment was halved in some cases.

(One bus driver enroute to Tyendinaga school took his young passengers home when his vehicle slid in the ditch.)

Buses were running late in where storm conditions were bad. Bancroft schools' director, in some cases, the storm didn't reach the area until about 10.30 a.m. — more than three hours after it struck the Belleville area.

Similar situations were reported from Prince Edward County.

Road conditions forced many drivers to cancel daily runs but John McNeil, director of education, said no schools had been closed.

However, some would have fewer pupils — those worst affected being some in Ameliasburg, Massassaga, and Wellington consolidated schools.

Yet, despite the hazardous road surfaces, no accidents had been reported this morning by either Picton police or the local OPP detachments.

Hydrant Hit Water Off

A number of householders in the West Hill area were without water for most of Tuesday afternoon as a result of a truck knocking off a hydrant at the corner of Moira and Murney Streets.

The mishap, occurring just after 11 a.m., resulted as an unidentified truck was backing out from a nearby gasoline service station.

Utilities manager E. L. Burnham said water users along Moira from Coleman Sreet to Hillside as well as users along intersecting streets were affected by the shutoff.

It was early afternoon before all users had been notified of the impending shutoff necessary to carry out repairs.

In the meantime, the broken hydrant spouted a column of water which cascaded down Moira Street remindful of the spring run-off.

The Tune Was Christmas for Twirlers

Quinte Twirlers, an organization of five adult clubs and three square dancing classes, last night presented Belleville Firefighters president Paul Stephenson, right, and Reg Christopher, chairman of the associations' underprivileged children's program, with 180 wrapped Christmas presents and more than $100 in cash. The Twirlers are only one of many organizations that provide toys, games, dolls, puzzles and other presents for more than 300 needy children during the Yuletide season. The total collection, now being sorted by the firefighters, will be distributed next week.

Nursing Assistants Course

Loyalist to Offer Training

Quinte Secondary School will give up its Registered Nursing Assistants course and Loyalist College will take it over next year.

Trustees of the Hastings county board of education agreed to relinquish the course, a two-year program that graduated girls with both Grade 12 standing and a Registered Nursing Assistant's certification. The school has offered the course to Grade 10 graduates since 1953.

Loyalist College's board of governors had already agreed at a meeting Dec. 2 to take over the training of nursing assistants. President Herbert Young said the college of nurses favors community colleges taking over the course and operating it as a 10-month course for Grade 12 graduates. Mature women will be permitted to enrol with Grade 10 completion.

Loyalist anticipates a registration of 25 women next September and will take over the training of the 12 students from Quinte who will be completing their second year. They will be bused to Loyalist for the academic part of their course, and no fees will be charged the secondary school students.

Quinte's principal John Hayman, said the number of students taking the course had dropped off considerably in recent years from a high of 40 when the course was instituted.

Because of the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing now in operation at Belleville General Hospital, the Quinte nursing assistance students could not take their practical work at the hospital. They have been bused to Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Jean Hutchison, a registered nurse, objected to the transfer on the grounds that a course that had been offered free by the school board was now going to cost money.

"When Loyalist takes over it is going to charge a tuition fee," she noted, and asked how high the fee would be.

No one at the board meeting could tell her. Glynn Harry, director of finance for Loyalist, told The Intelligencer today that no decision has been made on the status of the nursing assistants students but if they are accepted as normal, fulltime, day students, the tuition will be $150 a year.

The three instructors at Quinte will be given first chance to become the clinical instructors at Loyalist, and the college will take over Quinte's equipment.

Firemen--with Help All Set for Christmas

Christmas is a time for love and good cheer; a time when man greets his neighbor with more fond wishes perhaps, than at any other time in the year.

It is a time for giving and a time for receiving. For some homes in Belleville, this takes on a special meaning.

At large number of families are in a position where the time for giving would be a tight-belted situation if it weren't for donations of toys and money by various organizations, clubs and individuals throughout the city.

Every year at this time, the Belleville Firefighters Association accumulates a warehouse of toys, games, and dolls to be given to children who might not otherwise have anything under their Christmas trees.

On an annual average, approximately 1,200 youngsters wake up Dec. 25 to find toys brought in such a manner.

The Quinte Twirlers square dancing clubs and classes, organization of nine square totalling some 750 people, delivered 180 gaily-wrapped presents and more than $100 to the firemen last night.

Association president Paul Stephenson couldn't recall all those who have provided these gifts, but named the Catholic Women's League, OPP wives, Womens' Christian Association, Womens' Sales and Ad Club, Loyalist College, Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund and a large number of area schools. And oh yes, the little old lady who annually knits mittens for the children and the Girl Guides who dress a number of dolls — one and all, they play their role for Christmas.

Through funds received, the firemens' association has purchased more than $1,200 in hockey sticks, gloves, pucks, candy canes, new books and jigsaw puzzles to swell the growing pile at the Ruddy Electric warehouse on Coleman Street.

Off-duty firemen will be delivering the toys and games to the 300 Belleville families listed by the Christmas Exchange program, on Dec. 22 and 23.

In the old days, the traditional firemen sat in their halls repairing any slightly damaged items brought in . . . some departments still do.

"However, there's no time to make repairs of this sort," Under-privileged Childrens Program chairman Reg. Christopher said this morning.

The firemen have been making repairs to some of the toys, but because the Yuletide season is so close at hand, "we want new or good used toys from now on.

"It's unfortunate, but the program has got too big to do it now," Inspector Stephenson added.

On Christmas morning there's going to be quite a few happy children whose holiday season might not have been so bountiful if it hadn't been for donations of toys and funds from families and groups in the city.

"That's what Christmas is all about," the fire association officers agreed.

Which One, Dear?

The selection of dolls and "strange wee things with hairy legs" proved a problem for selection by firefighter Ralph Bounhower and his wife, Betty this morning. As the pile of dolls and toys for underprivileged children grows at the Ruddy Electric Lineman Street warehouse, firefighters will choose items for delivery to more than 300 needy children who might not otherwise have toys for Christmas. All items have been donated by families and organizations in the Belleville area.

Safe Evacuation

The safe evacuation of Canadians from Pakistan is a matter for satisfaction. That it was a harrowing experience for the Canadians and other nationals in the period before planes could land and fly them out is clear from reports.

There were long hours of waiting at such centres as Islamabad, the Pakistani capital, Dacca and Karachi, uncertainty as to whether relief planes could fly in and when they did arrive there was not room aboard for everyone. Threatening Pakistanis were another problem as the evacuees prepared to leave.

Some had made it to safety earlier, by road convoy to Kabul, Afghanistan, accomplishing the journey despite reports that Afghan bandits were waylaying cars en route. Among this group was a Belleville couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Smith.

It has been a happy outcome for many, but while any of our nationals remain in this strife-torn region there will be continuing concern. The Canadian High Commissioner to Pakistan, John Small, and a small staff are among those still in the country. Meanwhile, the hostilities continue, although how long the outnumbered and outgunned Pakistanis can hold out in the eastern capital of Dacca is a matter for doubt.

Women Smokers

Of the millions of people who still smoke despite warnings it is injurious to health, casual observation suggests that if anything there are more women smokers than men.

Teenagers start at school and young office girls seem increasingly addicted to tobacco, not to mention the older women who may be seen buying cartons of their favorite brands at the supermarket.

Now we see that a group of Ottawa-area doctors have warned that as many women as men will be dying from lung disease in ten or 20 years unless women cut down on cigarette smoking.

Smoking, they remind us, is easily the greatest cause of respiratory ailments. Men, it seems, are more easily persuaded than women of the dangers of smoking. And, confirming our own observations, the doctors say more women are smoking than a generation ago. Hence their concern for the long-term effects on the health of women smokers.

Kitchener Development

If Kitchener's colorful old farmers' market, with its Mennonite farmer clientele and German atmosphere, is to be axed to make way for urban renewal it will be a decided loss to the summer and early autumn tourist trade.

At the same time progress cannot be balked, especially when it involves downtown renewal. Indeed Kitchener is to be envied its proposed face-lift which envisages demolition of city hall and erection of a department store and shopping mall.

Nor would the market disappear altogether under such a plan. There is talk of a new permanent home under a six-storey parking lot to be built near the present market. It would be partly in the open air and partly indoors.

Chinese Medicine

Who knows what peaceful benefits may accrue from Canada's recognition of Communist China? We can cite as example that a study of acupuncture is to begin next year at Victoria hospital in London, Ont., and possibly at St. Joseph's hospital in the same city.

Acupuncture is the Chinese medical practice of inserting fine needles in parts of a patient's body as an anesthetic and, we understand, in surgery. Even the Chinese are uncertain of the reasons why acupuncture is so effective in certain treatments, but they do know it works.

The tests at the hospitals concerned will be in clinics treating persons, mostly post-operative cases, who suffer constant pain and usually are given nerve drugs.

We wonder have the Chinese, using this method, had any success in curing such pernicious ailments as sinus and migraine headaches which can be so unresponsive to the many patent medicines on the market here?

Vigilantes?

Vandalism and break-ins continue to plague the Bellville scene. We wonder if stores and other commercial establishments would find it useful to provide their own vigilantes, especially at weekends. If it were known someone was in the premises such misdemeanors could be virtually eliminated.

Burning of the Ballots

Voting Procedure Complicates Politics in Newfoundland

By FARMER TISSINGTON

OTTAWA — The current snafu concerning the Newfoundland provincial election results and the famous "Burning of the Ballots" incident serves to illustrate what must be apparent to those in charge of our electoral machinery—whether it be federal, provincial or municipal.

The sad fact is that in some cases the returning officers and deputy returning officers are incapable of handling voting procedures and ballot counting with the sort of efficiency which the public and the politicians should expect and demand. Most of the election officials are there by reason of being in the right party at the right time. Many have held the job for donkeys' years and we are too old to be expected to be an efficient job. And, other than written instructions which obviously are either not read or not understand, there is no training given to the people who run the polls regarding election law in advance of voting.

Commenting on the Newfoundland fiasco, Senator Eugene Forsey tells me he can recall elections in the past where a candidate or a candidate's official agent was present at the actual ballot counting, leaning over the shoulders of the DROs, telling them how it should be done and correcting their faulty addition.

Perhaps we should be grateful for the right-time, hap-hazard way election officials are chosen, that our system works as well as it does, with a minimum of foul-ups, such as the one in Newfoundland.

Now that Prime Minister Trudeau has conferred with President Nixon, some of the opposition heat will be lowered. Both Tories and New Democrats had urged him for months to make such a trip or, at the very least, to chat with the president of the Ottawa-Washington hot line about our mutual problems.

But if Mr. Trudeau had been reluctant, other MPs have not. Rarely have the airlines been so busy ferrying between the two capitals as they have been in the past couple of months, taking Canadians and Americans back and forth for formal and informal discussions.

On the Canadian side, the so-called environmental watch-dog, MP David Anderson, has been spending a lot of time down there arguing about Alaska pipelines and oil tanker routes. The Anchlitta test went a dozen or more Canadians, MPs and private citizens, to Washington in protest. The Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group got together for a couple of days of talks. Ed Broadbent, the Ottawa-Whitby MP, made a solo flight to talk auto pact with U.S. senators and officials. And Canadian cabinet ministers have visited the U.S. several times, talking to their counterparts about the import surcharge.

Maybe our American friends don't understand us northerners. Or maybe they don't care. But the lines of communication have been more open recently than for a long time.

Don't be surprised if the Alberta Premier leader, Harold Cardinal, runs as a Progressive Conservative candidate in the next general election. Word here is that the Tory brass were keeping a close touch with him during his recent visit to Ottawa when he and Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien had their confrontations.

There was a time recently when I thought Canada might well be girding to a non-partisan hall. There was a possibility that the post office, the television and the airlines all might be struck by their employees at the same time. All we needed were the railway strikes and the hydro electric workers, and it would have been back to those good, old pioneer days.

Late Grey Cup note: The innocent nonsense about: who holds the record for the longest official kick of the game could have been an academic discussion by now. Bob Osborn, a former director of the Ottawa Football Club, recalls that when Viscount Alexander was the Governor-General, he conceived the idea of lifting the football with helium in the glass fuel expectation it would go over the stands at the slightest nudge. But it didn't help the kicking game any. Mr. Thomson suspects somebody put in heavy water in place of helium.

Barn Timber Valuable Commodity

Watertown (N.Y.) Times

The law of supply and demand is rapidly catching up with old barns. As the value of their weathered boards and timbers increases in value, these structures over the rural countryside are vanishing.

This situation is most noticeable right now in New England, where the interest in old barn lumber started to bloom about eight to ten years ago. But as the relics disappear from the landscape, the search is bound to expand to adjacent states.

Two years ago scattered barn boards were selling for about 25 cents a board foot and big timbers, some measuring 12 inches by 12 inches and more were bringing $1.20 a board foot. Today the price is 50 cents for those same boards and $1.50 on the timbers.

The trend toward utilizing old barn lumber was launched in southwestern Connecticut along the shore of Long Island Sound. Some of the builders of new homes, who were moving out of New York City, had either lived on a farm at one time or their parents or grandparents had been "country people". Weathered-shingled boards provided a warm, relaxing atmosphere.

"Barn buyers" started combing the New England country side in search of old barns. Owners discovered they could sell this old lumber for the same or even higher prices than new lumber. One buyer kept one employee busy just travelling back roads scouting old barns.

Today you will find rough textured boards and hand-hewn timbers in family rooms, living rooms, basements and country-style kitchens of new homes selling anywhere from $20,000 to $100,000.

Just as wine gets better and improves with age, so do old barns become more valuable with the years.

Tommy Douglas' 'Retirement'

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Tommy Douglas laughs easily, any way, but he had a real belly shaker when he was asked the inevitable leisurely bite of a retired party leader.

"Leisure?"

Well, there are the normal House of Commons duties of a backbencher, which stripped down earlier this year as leader of the New Democratic party. There are still more than 100 letters a day coming across the Douglas desk. There are speaking invitations from all over North America, of which about three a week are accepted.

There are visits every second week to his Vancouver Island constituency. There is the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. And there are university lectures to prepare, along with frequent church sermons.

In short, little Tommy Douglas, six months after ending his 9-year leadership of the NDP, is champing at the bit. There is no rocking chair in his office.

But despite this, and despite the clutter of letters, documents and reports on his heavily-worked desk, it remains one of Parliament's most comfortable offices to visit. That is because the pudist turned preacher turned politician still has more wit and warmth than just about anybody in the business.

Despite a searing schedule, he now has a bit more freedom in arranging his time. If his public MP, now 67, can be found, he's usually willing to have a chat.

Until his retirement, he had been a party leader for 27 years. 17 of them as premier of Saskatchewan.

And now he was being asked what he would do if he won were a 21-year old Canadian.

"I'd go into politics. But I would from my level best in sterling economics, sociology and law. I wouldn't have any specific preference regarding federal or provincial politics."

Why didn't he do more with his business?

"I've tried to avoid any image of being the Bob Hope of politics. The purpose of humor for me is to build a bridge with my audience—and there is no better way than to let them know you can laugh at yourself . . . you can't hate someone you have been laughing with."

At this point, the five-foot, four-inch, politician announced that he is working on a book about humor in politics. If he can get his wit into words, it will be well read.

Mr. Douglas said he has turned down invitations to go on the U.S. lecture circuit at handsome fees, but is planning to spend more time visiting universities.

The easiest group of people to address?

"Party supporters. I can prepare a speech in half an hour but there isn't much value in speaking to people who agree with everything you say. The most useful speeches are made to non-political groups."

The little Scot said he can compare a St. Andrew's Day speech in a few minutes. But for one on St. George's Day speech, he worked for three days.

Meanwhile the mail was piling up. His phone was ringing and someone was at the door. And the beaming human is in his element, handling all three.

"Haven't felt so well in 20 years."

Mr. Trudeau's description of the Nixon pledge as "a fantastic statement" was as unfortunate as it was accurate. There is nothing fantastic about a promise by the U.S. giant not to push its trading partner, Canada, bankruptcy or a trade war. It is just plain common sense. But neither is there any "humiliating" (the choice word of the politically opportunist Mr. David Lewis) about our Prime Minister's obtaining the assurance from the President of the U.S. clarification and reassurance on a point of policy that clearly concerns the economic life of nations around the world.

Extensive Reorganization

Focus on New Structure of Government in Ontario

Queen's Park

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — There are many ramifications to the new structure for the government which has been proposed by the committee on government productivity and which has been accepted in principle by Premier William Davis.

Mr. Davis says it is the most extensive reorganization ever to be undertaken in Canada.

This probably isn't hyperbole. It certainly is big. And it is complicated.

In all of the shutting down of departments, combining of others under new names and the myriad of-shoot tentacles, there is one core objective in the COGP recommendations: to bring about more orderly government.

The approach to this is to shift various activities into departmental areas where they logically belong.

Thus, administration of the Motor Vehicles Act, which covers all driving offences, would go to a new legal department, the department of public protection.

Day nurseries, which have been partly under education, would go to social services (the old welfare department).

The most radical change, however, is an attempt to switch decision-making from what, in official jargon, is termed the vertical to the horizontal.

"In effect this means that in these matters of government, which cross a number of fifferent fields, as so many matters do, rather than two, three or more assessments and then decisions made "vertically" on the interest of the department involved, there will be a broad assessment and one decision made "horizontally," in the best public interest.

An example could be a substantial area of undeveloped land, which had a sizeable portion of marsh and that was close to an urban centre.

Under the existing structure of government the department of agriculture could be interested in having the land drained, cleared and developed as farm land; lands and forests might want it preserved for its wildlife value; the department of environment could want it reserved saved; the housing corporation could see it as a fine area for a housing development; trade and industry might find it useful for an industrial park; transportation and communications might want it for a superhighway through it; Ontario Hydro could have plans for a transmission line across it; and the urban municipality in which it should be a role could feel it should be a residential area and park.

As things happen now, the department heads could be left either nothing at all would be done about the land for years or one of the interests concerned would wrestle in quickly and get underway with whatever it felt was right. Or, if there was a lengthy and protracted study, there would probably be a compromise, with a duck pond beside a factory, and residents of a new sub-division suffering the noise of heavy trucks from a superhighway.

The solution proposed for this is the setting up of three basic policy ministries of resources and environment, justice and social development and justice.

When a problem such as the piece of land first came up the minister concerned (in this case highways and environment) ministry) presumably would ask for recommendations from all the other ministers with a interest, and then the recommendation to cabinet on it final disposition would be made after a meeting and decision of all of these members.

The overall scheme is good in make, dependent on efficient all of it's sudden, but would mean improvement.

Fancy Wording Clouds Trudeau-Nixon Statement

Brantford Expositor

Just what was it President Nixon "reassured" Prime Minister Trudeau about in their brief White House meeting? Mr. Trudeau's necessarily general account of the private talk suffers from some maladroit wording, and it has been reported under more examplified headlines about "independence," a word with a wide range of meanings. So the public and some off the cuff commentators may be excused for getting the misimpression that Mr. Nixon promised to get over Canada lock, stock and barrel and incorporate the 51st state of the U.S.

Mr. Trudeau's description of the Nixon pledge as "a fantastic statement" was as unfortunate as it was accurate. There is nothing fantastic about a promise by the U.S. giant not to push its trading partner, Canada, bankruptcy or a trade war. It is just plain common sense. But neither is there any "humiliating" (the choice word of the politically opportunist Mr. David Lewis) about our Prime Minister's obtaining the assurance from the President of the U.S. clarification and reassurance on a point of policy that clearly concerns the economic life of nations around the world.

Appreciation of Local Artists Growing in Quinte District

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Art has never been a still-life scene around the Belleville area.

But now, its landscapes are livelier and brighter with prospects than ever before.

Increasingly, the arts and crafts of local amateurs are stimulating a response from a broadening hometown patronage in what seems to be a mutual maturing process.

Viewers and purchasers are becoming more discriminating and artists, more sophisticated.

So say members of the organization for years the focal point of arts and crafts in the city area — the Belleville Art Association.

In recent times, has there been a healthy quickening of interest among the public for paintings, sculpture and ceramics produced by association members?

"My answer to that would be yes and very definitely," says one artist whose only complaint is that she feels she lacks time to paint up with the demand.

"It's tremendous compared to what it was," agrees Muriel Andrews, one of the founding members of the society years ago, when only "a few were curious" about the work of local artists.

Main reasons for today's happier—and healthier — situation seem to include: A growing number of gift shops and boutiques in the trend of the times, which are willing to include local arts and crafts in their sales displays; more knowledgeable public created by education and extra leisure time; artists aware of the need to keep in touch with universal trends, influences and experiments in their chosen medium.

(One such outlet is the foyer of the new Cinema 1 at the Quinte Mall, which has been hanging the works of local artists since its opening in late summer. The exposure is good and the artists are selling because of it, says a manager Stella Culhane. "I would say they've done quite well with it," she says. Cinemagoers seeing the paintings have contacted the artists at home about purchases. There's a footnote: Mrs. Culhane, on behalf of her employer, Famous Players, agreed that 10 per cent of the sale price would be donated to the artist's a subscription to Variety Village, the famous Toronto-area establishment operated by show-business folk for crippled children. To date says Mrs. Culhane, she has received no donations from the artists whose works have sold. She says perhaps the artists feel if the works are not sold on location no such 10 - per - cent subscription is qualified. "I don't press it because it's charity," she says. But I do feel it would be a nice thing, even when they put their work in. If there was a small donation.")

A major breakthrough came when the association — which counts close to 80 members now — hit on the idea of renting the works of its artists. This has placed scores of works in local homes and professional offices. Even if the basis is temporary, it gives that much more exposure and the likelihood of more sales.

Not that the change dawned overnight.

For instance, Audrey Davies, a leading member of the association — whose versatility ranges through ceramics, batik, calligraphy, pottery — feels it has been a "process of growth".

For the local artists will continue as long as they keep sharpening their appreciation by being in touch with what's going on in the world of art.

And the local public?

An individual artist may feel local appreciation doesn't exist in Belleville but "I feel it does.

"And one way we can have acceptance of our work is to make ourselves known," says Mrs. Davies, also busy as a holder of children's ceramic classes for the city's recreation commission.

Making themselves known — and artistically accepted — took time.

Mrs. Andrews, who teaches art at Albert College, recalls the early days when fledgling local artists bonded together about 14 years ago.

Its start was actually a matter of art appreciation.

"You know what we did? Life magazine sent out semiannually from the Metropolitan Museum in New York. Forty dollars was spent on the first course and I think 2 of us gave $2 each. That's how the association started. That was the nucleus."

In those earlier times the local artist had little local recognition.

"There were a few that were curious," recalls Mrs. Andrews. "But I would say it was more or less among the art-minded people we found any enthusiasm at all."

In fact, the artist might find recognition much more quickly elsewhere, while out - of - town artists might win reader acceptance.

"It was just that idea that faraway fields are greener," says Mrs. Andrews.

Artists, as familiar local residents, found it difficult to be identified separately from their creations.

The group obdurately progressed, its members continuing to paint and bringing themselves increasingly in contact with various teachers, techniques and trends.

A new departure in public contact came in 1967 with the city's Centennial Year Arts Festival — now an annual event. The association went on exhibit in the event in a big way and has remained there ever since.

Times also were changing, as was the size and content of the community.

In latter years, says Mrs. Andrews, art "has become more popular, period. For instance, there are a lot more galleries in Ontario. There used to be 12 or 14 in the whole province. Now there are 40 some that are recognized."

Leisure time increased and people began dabbling in various pursuits to various degrees — arts and crafts among them.

Belleville - area artists moved with the currents. Now, says Meg Pedersen, present association president, Belleville - area artists are locally growing "well recognized" for their work. Gift shops and boutiques are the fashion of the times, too, and these are providing more display outlets.

Was there once a hometown attitude that a creation was less appreciated because it was local?

"That's right. But now I think they're recognizing that we're keeping up with the trends in art," says Mrs. Pedersen.

"We're doing as good work here as any place else now . . . in all mediums."

There's also a new generation of local viewers.

There are people who like what Mrs. Andrews describes as "big sweet little scene as against something more thoughtful" . . . . . .

But, increasingly, viewers are appreciating "something that has really more heart to it than something that's momentarily pleasing . . . at first glance."

"I think you can do just as well here (as a purchaser) . . . and probably better than you can in larger centres. Our prices are very much less than Toronto for instance," Mrs. Pedersen claims.

But does the work compare?

"Yes indeed it does," says Mrs. Pedersen confidently.

"Amateur art means we are not earning our living by it. But some of our members are just as professional in their way of painting as the bigger names."

Mrs. Davies adds this observation: "Man has come back from the industrial age . . . and has found he can use his hands and use them well. (It's happening) everywhere not just in our area. They're recognizing that if it's a piece of art it really doesn't matter that much who did it. . . . I think names are starting to drift in the background and our art — what we're producing — is going to stand by itself."

Mrs. Bea Williamson adds a footnote to multi-talents. Many association artists have been painting for years — herself for nearly 30 — and if their work hadn't improved "it's time we gave up".

But "we are starting to produce fairly good amateur work that is quite acceptable . . . "

Many people are reaching the conclusion that a good amateur work is "better than a print" in the home "and it doesn't cost a great deal."

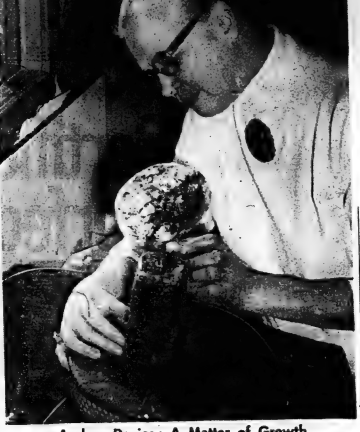
Mrs. Davies agrees that there may be many people who purchase according to price.

But, she adds, she has never seen a painting exhibited by the association published by "outrageously priced."

In crafts, I think you'd find the same thing selling in Toronto stores possibly costing more money than you would pay locally," she adds.

The rental inspiration occurred some time ago and now the association holds regular shows to attract what appears to be a growing clientele each time, members say. (Rental charges are two per cent per month of the total price — deductible from the cost if the renter finally decides on purchase.)

In such an arrangement as rewarding for the creator?



"I find it very rewarding," says Mrs. Davies.

Although people may not purchase the work "they are taking it out and putting it in their home for a month or two, bringing it back and renting someone else's work.

"We think of the world in dollars and cents. But then if you can produce a piece of art for a person to sit down and enjoy it, to me this is more than any form of money can purchase."

Mrs. Andrews would like to see the rental operation extended further. While art objects now may highlight many a home and office, she would like to see more interest from industry.

"There are men," she says, "that appreciate beauty — even though they're punching a time clock."

Madoc Senior Citizens Entertain

MADOC — Recently, a group of 44 senior citizens from Peterborough journeyed to Madoc to spend an afternoon with the local club. They arrived here by bus and were welcomed by president, Mrs. Broadworth. Fifty-three members from the Madoc Club were present and all enjoyed an afternoon of cards and other table games. The lunch hour was spent chatting with old friends and getting acquainted with new ones. Mrs. Pack of the visiting Club thanked the hosts warmly for their hospitality and extended an invitation to the Madoc Senior Citizens to visit them soon. All sang a song and the meeting adjourned.

The regular monthly meeting of the Madoc and District Senior Citizens Club was held in the United Church basement on Thursday, December 2. President Mrs. Broadworth was in the chair and the meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer recited in unison. A momentary silence was observed in memory of those from the community who recently lost their lives in a tragic manner. Mrs. Broadworth read two short pieces from the Friendship Book.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Raney. Thank you notes were read from Mrs. Johns, Mr. Bateman and M. Eric Raney for cards received while ill. Business was dealt with. It was decided to send plants to members who are ill. Plants will also be sent to the Madoc Manor Nursing Home. Cards are to be sent to elderly and shut-ins. Plans were made for the Christmas party, which will take the form of a potluck dinner in mid December. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in playing games.

Happy Birthday was sung for two members, Mr. Harry Dedrie and Mrs. Cassidy, who are celebrating birthdays this month.

Miss Raney and Mrs. Holstine served a cup of tea with cheese and Christmas cake and a social half hour brought another pleasant afternoon to a close.

U.C.W. Meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT - RAWDON UCW

The Christmas meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon UCW was held on Wednesday evening at the church hall with 48 women in attendance.

The program committee had decorated the hall with a Christmas arrangement of bells, streamers, a lighted tree and a special worship centre.

A long table was covered with wrapped gifts which were sold by Mrs. George each member learned who her unknown friend was for 1971.

Mrs. W. C. Cox was in charge of the centennial congregational pictures taken in September. A large number had been ordered. Forty of the centennial cook books were sold by Mrs. George Grills and the rest will be available in the new year.

The new president, Mrs. Robert Hoard distributed the 1972 programs which contain a list of officers and committee members. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver sold a book written by a former pastor's wife, Mrs. L. E. Townsend, Belleville.

Mrs. Garth Joslin presided and Mrs. Milton Shaw provided accompaniment for the Christmas hymns.

Mrs. Herbert Smith read several thankyou notes for cards and gifts. A letter from Stirling public library was read telling of the books they had purchased with the money from the fellowship meeting at Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe gave the fellowship report. It was decided to sponsor the 4 H club projects in 1972. Mrs. Harry McAdam gave a full report of the catering for a birthday banquet and barn sale in November.

Mrs. Garth Joslin voiced thanks to the officers and members for their co-operation during her two-year term of office.

Mrs. Ross Jeffs and Mrs. Douglas Campbell were in charge of the program. Each read a special Christmas message on the theme 'the story ever new'. Several Christmas carols were sung with Mrs. Milton Shaw as pianist. Miss Brenda Williams read the scripture message and Mrs. Jack Dunham led the meditation.

Mrs. James Hoard and Mrs. Robert Hoard contributed a vocal duet. Others assisting with the devotional were Mrs. Burton Sharpe, Mrs. Eldon Chapman, Mrs. Fred Naughton, Mrs. Frank Bailey and Mrs. W. C. Cox.

A piano selection was played by Mrs. Jody Sager and Mrs. Percy MacMullen. Mrs. Clarice Knight conducted a game and a contest.

The gifts were distributed by Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. Robert Hoard. The refreshment committee, Mrs. William McAdam, Mrs. Norman Parker and Mrs. L. David served refreshments

Memories of Good Times 66 Years Ago

PICTON (Staff) — Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Morris, a Picton couple emphasizing the catch phrase "you're as young as you feel" yesterday celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary with memories of country dances that lasted until dawn.

Married in Bloomfield United Church by the Rev. D. S. Houck, the couple recalled that 66 years ago it was very cold but there was no snow.

They travelled to the church for the 10 a.m. wedding service in a rented livery rig and recalled that the night before they had danced into the morning hours.

"There were only one or two cars in Picton in 1905," said Mr. Morris referring to the horse and buggy that got him "to the church on time."

Honeymoons were not generally popular in the early 1900's and the newlyweds promptly settled down to married life at their Hall's Corners farm. Later they moved to Hillier township, then to Cherry Valley and in 1929 settled in Picton.

The evenings were brightened by community dances held in farm parlors and Mr. Morris can recall "rolling back the carpet" on many occasions after first removing all the carpet tacks.

Square dancing was popular when mixed with some round dancing and Prince Edward County caller Steve Thurston was in demand for members of the swing your partner set.

Mrs. Morris, the former May Ryckman, noted that dances lasted until 5 or 6 a.m. and remembered that on one occasion she and her husband drove toward home at 9 a.m. with the sun shining on their quilter.

"It was only 25 cents to go to a dance," she added. Lunches were brought by each couple. Mr. Morris observed that these indeed were "the good old days" and remarked that they seemed more carefree than modern times.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Morris have hung up their dancing shoes they continue to be community card parties at Greenbush, Cherry Valley and Mount Pleasant. "I think it helps you feel younger," commented Mr. Morris. His wife quickly agreed and said that euchre games frequently conducted in the past contributed to improving her outlook.

Mr. Morris is one of the few remaining Picton residents to keep a small vegetable garden in his backyard. He spends the summer months busily hoeing and weeding and finds spare time to help his wife with her flower beds. One of his secrets of staying young is "early to rise." He remarked that he and his wife always rise before daylight to get an early start on the day's activities. Part of Mr. Morris' keep fit program includes an early morning stroll downtown and often his morning's work is well on its way to completion by 9 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris have two children, a son, Irvin, of Picton, and a daughter, Mrs. Eva Gledhill, of Quebec.

The couple spent their 66th anniversary in a quiet at-home celebration surrounded by cards and flowers from friends and relatives.

New Ways in Using Cranberries

By ALICE DENHOFF

Holiday time, more than any other season, is cranberry time. Those bright red cranberries add a festive air to our markets, we stock up on cranberry sauce and we use strings of the berries for decorating the tree. We asked the cranberry-growers cooperative, if there were still other uses for holiday cranberry ideas and they came up with some delightful notions which we pursued, like using these native American berries as a prime ingredient in some holiday confections that are great to give as gifts or hang, foil-wrapped, on the tree.

CRANBERRY ROCKY ROAD

2 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
½ cup sugar
½ cup water
1 package (6¼ ounces) miniature marshmallows
1 can (6 ounces) pecans
2 bars (8 ounces each) semi-sweet chocolate

Combine first 3 ingredients. Bring to a boil. Simmer 5 minutes. Drain and cool. Combine marshmallows and pecans with cranberries. Melt chocolate over hot water. Pour chocolate over cranberry mixture. Mix quickly until all particles are well coated. Spread mixture evenly into buttered 9-inch square pan. Chill until ready to use. Cut into small squares or bars.

CRANBERRY CHOCOLATE FUDGE

1½ cups sugar
1 cup marshmallow creme
½ cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 packages (6 ounces each) semi-sweet chocolate bits
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup fresh or frozen-fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained

In a large-size saucepan, combine first 4 ingredients. Place over medium heat; stir constantly until mixture boils, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in chocolate bits until melted. Add final 3 ingredients. Pour into greased 8-inch square baking pan. Cool. Cut into squares.

Makes about 64 1-inch squares.

CRANBERRY FRUIT BALLS

2 packages (12 ounces each) mixed dried fruits
1 can (8 ounces) walnuts
2 cups fresh or frozen-fresh cranberries
2 cans (3½ ounces each) flaked coconut
1 cup sugar

Pit prunes in the dried fruits. Coarsely grind fruits, nuts, cranberries and half of the coconut. Knead in sugar. Shape mixture into 1-inch balls and roll in remaining coconut. Cover and store in a cool, dry place until ready to serve.

Wrapped in gold, silver or colored foil, these cranberry confections are delightful for gift-giving, placed in a pretty reusable-container, or, as mentioned, to serve as edible tree decorations.

Women's Institutes

QUEENSBORO WI

Mrs. Frank Barry was hostess for the December meeting of the Queensboro branch of the Women's Institute which was held in the WI hall on Wednesday evening with the president, Mrs. Roy Rollins in the chair.

A report of the Trent Valley Area convention was given by Mrs. Roy Rollins.

The program was conducted by the conveners of the standing committees who had decorated the hall with lights and a Christmas tree. Mrs. Arthur Holmes acted as chairman for the program which was all on the Christmas theme.

Mrs. Harry Declair read a selection. Mrs. John Thompson presented a travelling gift which came finally to the president. She also presented a gift to the secretary. Mrs. Arthur Holmes gave a reading followed by a selection on a tape recorder.

Mrs. Fred O'Rourke read a selection. Mrs. Carl Gordon conducted a contest. This was followed by several Christmas selections on the tape recorder and Santa Claus arrived with gifts for everyone.

Lunch was served at the close of the meeting by the hostess and her assistants and a social time spent. Mrs. Fred Bosley will be hostess for the January meeting.

MELROSE WI

The last meeting of the year for Melrose WI took the form of a potluck supper held in the basement of Melrose United Church. The members as always put forth their best efforts to make this an outstanding meal.

As each member brought her own place setting, there was no dish washing problem before the evening's entertainment started. The committee responsible for the program did an excellent job in providing contests, skits and stunts. Some Christmas music with Mrs. R. Badgley as accompanist, was enjoyed and rang one we left out when the gifts were distributed.

A special event of the evening was the arrival of Mrs. Charles Bates who has been indisposed for many weeks. She was able to take part and was the winner in the musical contest.

Everyone appeared to have thoroughly enjoyed the Christmas party and a special thank you was extended to those responsible for the entertainment, Mrs. Clare Weese, Mrs. Vincent Pascoe, Mrs. Dan McLaren and Mrs. Mary Ann Plews.

Successful Living

Brain Damage Does Not Mean Low IQ

By DORIS CLARK

"Regarding people with learning disabilities: How normal do people have to be to be considered normal?

"Perhaps there exists nobody who has all his potential marbles. Perhaps it is only the exceptional person who can plan intelligently. Certainly one of the common findings in brain-damaged people is that they are 'bright but dumb'. There does exist a large group of people at any age that is quite different from the majority, and this difference is in degree rather than in kind." — Camilla M. Anderson, MD

Dr. Anderson, who makes the above statements, is here quoted by the newsest agency in Amherst, N.S. This is the Canadian Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, and the Amherst branch is one of several now carrying a torch for the learning handicapped child.

To have such a child regarded as retarded or mentally defective is a shame, and teachers are gradually learning to assist them in getting the kind of help they need.

My leaflet Children with Learning Disabilities is available for 20 cents to any mother or teacher who is trying to cope constructively with this problem.

Dear Doris: I just read about Can't Take It Anymore, and, oh, how this brings back the terrible life I and the rest of my family had because of a father like this woman's husband!

"I didn't think there could be anyone like my father in the world. My mother left him many times and he'd come crying so we'd all be bundled up and kiss him better.

"I'd like to tell this poor family that it will not help to ignore all the bad temper and sulking. My mother is a wreck at 70 years. We have begged her to leave him for good.

My two sisters have had broken marriages and very unhappy lives and to this day are not sure of a husband's love. My brother turned out to be a good father and husband and can really love his children.

I was lucky to marry a loving and understanding husband, so little by little I began to realize that there are good people in the world. — Lucky In Spite Of It All

Dear Lucky: Those childhood scars can heal but affect your grown-up lives.

UCW Meeting

MELROSE UCW

The December meeting of Melrose UCW was held in the hall of the former United Church in Shannonville and took the form of a potluck supper followed by a worship service and entertainment. The afternoon unit conducted the early part of the program using hymns, scripture readings and other readings connected with the Christmas story. The evening unit was responsible for the contests and games that followed. A quartet consisting of Mrs. N. Demille, Mrs. R. McMechan, Mrs. E. Badgley and Mrs. H. McMechan sang some Christmas songs with Mrs. Roy Badgley as accompanist.

A short business period dealt with a catering request which would take place in Belleville. This was turned down due to the uncertainty of the weather and driving conditions in the winter.

An exchange of gifts took place. The gaily wrapped parcels had been placed on a table on which rested a sparkling decorated tree with its glittering colored balls. Other decorations lent a festive air on this special gathering of the president of Melrose congregation.

It is not easy for the worm to turn at 70. I hope by now your mother has a strong wall of defence up against your father's juvenile behavior. In case of Can't Take It Anymore: I agree that if I were her counsellor I'd go all out in working for a separation.

Dear Doris: Well, the Amychtka blast went off all right... I guess they know what they are doing.

My idea is less protesting and more prayer. We have to have positive rather than negative thoughts, too. — My Sermon For Today

Dear My Sermon: You packed a great big sermon into a few short words. I'm getting intrigued by our Jesus People — the young men and women who feel sick of all our materialism and declare they have found their answer to life in Christ.

Once I remember a minister saying that if a person read the four gospels over and over again they would come to know the Leader of the Christian faith (on which our country's civilization was built) and their whole lives would be changed.

Poor Quality of Reading Material Incentive for Writing Book

CRESCENT BEACH, B.C. (CP) — The poor quality of reading material available to children in rural areas made a deep impression on Ann Blades.

And so did Mary Felt, a Grade 2 pupil in the little schoolhouse in the isolated community of Mile 18, just off the Alaska Highway, where Mrs. Blades and her husband taught for a year.

These were the reasons behind Mary of Mile 18, written and illustrated by Mrs. Blades and published by Tundra Books of Montreal.

Four years ago, the Blades bought a beat-up old car for $2.50 (to cover the transfer of ownership) and set out for the Mennonite community of Mile 18, about 50 miles from Fort St. John in northeastern British Columbia.

"We had spent most of our lives in the city and the thought of teaching in a remote area was an exciting prospect," Mrs. Blades said. She was 1." at the time.

She said the car proved to be a godsend over the year, particularly when their only source of water became contaminated in warm weather and frost in cold weather.

"We took the back seat out of the car and drove five miles with buckets to get water from a spring. We didn't have conveniences such as running water, electricity or a telephone."

She said their chemical toilet was a luxury—it was indoors—and they bathed in a big, square galvanized tub.

But the people—in the community more than compensated for any inconveniences.

"There were close to 150 people and we had 60 children in the schools," Mrs. Blades said. "The families were really spread out."

The children came to school in trucks until cold weather and snow came, when they were brought on flatbeds pulled by a tractor.

She said there were times when the temperature was 40 below zero with a 25-mile-an-hour wind—those days, everyone stayed home.

"Half the families were Mennonite," she said. "The girls didn't cut their hair and some children were not allowed to come to any school parties.

"Mary had long braids and the hairiest voice I've ever heard on a child—it was incredible. She had amazing enthusiasm and her favorite expression was 'Oh, how beautiful.'"

"Every little thing she saw was beautiful to her," Mrs. Blades said she was appalled at the books provided for the children. They were of such poor quality she felt she could do better so she started to work on one of her own.

In the beginning, she was going to write about the families, but changed her mind and concentrated on Mary. She changed Mary's last name and used her and her home as a model for her illustrations.

The book is 24 hours in the life of a bright little girl and Mrs. Blades painted the water colors that illustrate each page.

No one at Mile 18 knew she was writing the book, not even Mary. "Mary accepted everything as it came and she never asked why I was sketching her."

Mrs. Blades has since written three more books—including another one about Mile 18 and one about life on the northern B.C. Indian reserve where she and her husband taught two years ago.

Tundra Books will bring out her second book in 1972.

Meanwhile, the Vancouver Art Gallery is showing her water color illustrations in December and the first week in January.

Special Hisiory Course on Women and Society

OTTAWA (CP) — Feminists have always seen conventional history as a male-dominated version of the past and Deborah Keith, St. Patrick's College associate professor, is no exception.

This year she launched a special history course called Women and Society.

She got the idea after hearing about women's courses in other universities.

One of these, Barnard College in the United States, has set up a women's centre offering 11 courses with its own special library.

Prof. Keith had no difficulty getting administration support for her proposed three-hour, a-week seminar. She said she feels the college, affiliated with Carleton University, is taking it seriously.

McGill University offered such a course under its extension program two years ago, although it was not toward any degree.

Loyola College of Montreal also offered a women's history course for credit since 1970.

The 35 students who women, attend Prof. Keith's course for two reasons, she said.

Either they're confused—they're interested in examining their own feelings about themselves"—or they're confident and want to learn more about women's history.

Prof. Keith came honestly by her feminist sympathies.

"I was raised as a feminist. I had a mother who never succumbed to the counter-culture—she always worked. She headed her own advertising agency."

Both parents were members of the radical left in their youth. The New York-born professor feels this increased her natural today's agitation over women's rights.

Her course seeks to relate the past to the present. Students like to discuss their conditions but she said she is careful to point out that it is the male-dominated past that created today's society.

Course books reflect Prof. Keith's concern with the total picture as far as women's rights are concerned.

They range from studies of family planning in Abe Victorian era to the status of women report; from Emily Pankhurst's autobiography to "Kate Millet, Germaine Greer, Simone de Beauvoir, Betty Friedan and other modern chroniclers of women's position.

The professor says the traditional historical treatment of women is inadequate because Western European societies, including their North American offshoots, Canada and the U.S., have always been male-dominated.

"Individual women who have been major historical figures were in most cases standing in for men or functioning as men in society. The first Queen Elizabeth is a good example.

Care Is Required In Purchasing Toys

OTTAWA (CP) — Construction sets may stimulate the imagination of children in a wide age range but they should be carefully chosen to suit a child's capabilities, says the Canadian Toy Testing Council.

An article on construction toys in the Canadian Consumer, a publication of the Consumers' Association of Canada, says the wrong set at any particular age will frustrate the child and may create a dislike for all kinds of construction toys.

"You want the toy to present a suitable challenge but not to discourage a child," say Joan Cochlin, Moira Geller and Bev McAskie, members of the voluntary council. It is a group of Ottawa women who test a selection of toys in the home and periodically release the names of the best ones.

The council considers the educational skills of its members in the toy testing and draws a federal grant for its work.

The council members say parts that fit tightly together and separate easily to create steady, balanced structures are a must for a properly functioning construction set.

"Consider the fitting mechanisms of the pieces in the light of the capabilities of the child. Sometimes fittings are too complicated, or too fiddly, and therefore too exacting for the age of the child intended.

"Consider also the versatility of the set. The more versatile a set is, the greater amount it will be to the child's imagination and the longer the hours of play."

There are two groups of construction sets. The first includes those with one, or few, parts of different shapes all parts having the same basic function. They are generally more suitable for younger children.

The second division includes construction toys that have components of different shapes and sizes that are compatible with which the child can build realistic structures as well as designs of his own.

"Some sets in this division are excellent and have a very wide age span because of the different parts and the fact that gears and motors can be added as the set grows with the child."

There are specialized construction sets for older children or teen-agers. Electrical and mechanical models could really be classed as hobby items.

The council says clear instructions are necessary in these sets, the pieces must be of good quality and the end product must be satisfying and function well.

Mom Gave A Friendly Reminder

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the wife who wrote to say her husband was a good man but be never remembered her birthday jogged loose some pleasant memories. My mother had the same problem but she solved it when I was eight years old. I remember the occasion vividly. Mama's birthday was Jan. 18. On Jan. 17 she tacked a large poster on the door of the kitchen. It read: Closed tomorrow in honor of my birthday.

Dad got the hint and took the whole family out to dinner on mama's birthday the next night. She light-heartedly tacked up that poster every year Jan. 17 and dad continued to honor the tradition.

Last year mom died of a heart attack. She was stricken Jan. 19. Dad said he was sure she waited till after her birthday to die because she so enjoyed that night out. It's a sweet thought, but I half believe it, too. Incidentally, mom loved your column and so do I.—Wisconsin Reader

Dear Reader: Your mother was a wise woman. She knew that often it is easier and less hazardous to reach one's destination by traveling the back roads rather than the busy highway. Thanks for a heart-warming letter.

Dear Ann Landers: With the holiday season upon us, it is inevitable that thousands of people who read this will receive a telephone call with the news that some good friend or relative was seriously injured—or killed—in a car accident. They will mourn the loss of innocent people who died in a crash because some drunk was driving.

Please, Ann, put something in your column about drunk driving. Point out that many people think they can handle a car competently after two or three drinks—or even four or five—because they can stand up, talk sense (they think it's sense) and see well enough to get the key in the ignition. What an intoxicated person does not realize is that he is no judge of his competence, brilliance or anything else. Thank you.—Hissable Header.

Dear Hiss: I'll do more than remind them. I'll tell them where to write for a free Drive Sober Calculator.

It is a cardboard meter which tells how much a person can safely drink, according to his weight and how many hours he can take within X number of hours before it will affect his ability to drive safely. Governor Richard B. Ogilvie's Traffic Safety Commission furnishes the made this calculator available, without charge, to anyone who writes to: Drunk Driving, P.O. Box 3007, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been going steady with a wonderful fellow for nearly five months. Last night Art surprised me with an engagement ring. I can't say I am unhappy (in fact, I am thrilled) but one thing is nagging. He has never said "I love you." Isn't this strange?

Art was engaged to a girl a while back and he gave her a ring just before he left for Vietnam. She cheated on him when he was away so he broke the engagement when he got home. Can this be the reason he can't seem to say "I love you?" What should I think about it?—Something Missing

Dear S.M.: Yes, something is missing, but the important components are present. He wants to marry you and I hope you won't be so foolish as to say no because he is unable to verbalize his feelings. Don't make an issue of his hangup. Be patient. I suspect you've guessed the reason.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Should couples take turns in settling fights?

THAT HARDLY works in the daily "confrontations" couples have. Most husbands and wives seem to do better in settling disputes and differences of opinion as they go along, rather than deciding on the basis of "I gave in the last time, now it's your turn." Sometimes a husband, say, will deliberately pick a fight with his wife, even though he knows he is wrong, simply because it is his turn to win, and he can't lose.

Will people do anything to cure an alcoholic?

YES; that is, most people would do anything to cure an alcoholic if they could see what the compulsion to drink does to such an addict. Usually, though, the alcoholic is someone most of us read about or see in the movies or on TV. Perhaps he might even be a human derelict we see on the street. Rarely do we rarely realize that an alcoholic may be the very person we are urging to have a drink "just to be sociable."

Does daydreaming show a child's imaginative?

YES, but only up to a point. Any child is imaginative who fancies himself as the star of his daydreams. Yet parents shouldn't start dreaming of a creative career for a youngster who daydreams all the time. They should make sure that the child is happy and secure. Perhaps the daydreamer is merely filling his world with objects of a very active imagination to compensate for the love and affection he feels he is not getting at home.

Club Activities

ALBERT COLLEGE GUILD

A gaily lit tree, poinsettia and other Christmas decorations created a Yuletide atmosphere when the members of Albert College Guild met at the manor for their December meeting.

The president, Mrs. Fleming, read a Christmas poem.

The headmaster, Mr. L. Shewfelt addressed the group, extending season's greetings and thanking them for their constant help and co-operation.

Mr. Shewfelt is now a member of Canadian Headmasters' Association, which means that Albert College now has a staff and equipment comparable to all residential colleges across Canada.

Mrs. G. Moore was in charge of the program and in her devotional service stated that the birth of Christ has done more to bring happiness to the world than anything else that has happened, as love and good will can make a good world.

Christmas calls for a revival of family life with a sense of God's presence, inward discipline and outward service which brings joy to others.

The speaker was Mrs. Ralph Morden, who told a Christmas story, entitled Goodwill Toward Men from a book by Jean Bell Mosley.

The story dealt with a senseless quarrel which had lasted so many years that people had forgotten what the original trouble was. It was healed by the baby of one party being chosen for the Christmas tableau, and at the last minute, the mother of the other family having to take the part of Mary. The child needed some comforting, and in giving it the quarrel was forgotten, and in the end the feud and old hatreds dropped.

With Mrs. Franklin as accompanyist, a solo was given by Miss Melanie Black and duets by Mrs. Shewfelt and Mrs. Christenson.

On behalf of the guild, Mrs. McKay presented Mrs. Fleming, retiring president, with a gift to express appreciation of her services.

Mrs. Reynolds thanked all who had contributed to the program saying that all should now be filled with the Christmas spirit. Singing of carols closed the meeting.

During the social hour, Mrs. Shewfelt and Mrs. Franklin poured tea.

Officers for 1972 are: honorary president, Mrs. Shewfelt; president, Mrs. H. McCabe; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. Reynolds; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. Burr; treasurer, Mrs. E. Denyes; secretary, Mrs. L. Shewfelt; corresponding secretary, Miss D. Young; pianist, Mrs. T. Franklin; assistant pianist, Mrs. E. Hubbs; program convener, Miss H. Selman; maintenance, Mrs. T. McMullen; Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. H. McKay; telephone convener, Mrs. N. Brown; social convener, Miss Grace Connors. Mrs. K. Sills and Mrs. G. Moore; entertaining committee, Mrs. E. Fleming, Mrs. N. Queen Plans French Visit

LONDON (CP) — The Queen's state visit to France in May, 1972, has been hailed here as the seal of royal approval on a new entente cordiale as Britain prepares to join her destiny with continental Europe after a decade of doubt and debate.

The announcement, following a visit by French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, was accompanied by an Anglo-French declaration pledging closer co-operation in many fields, including greater emphasis on teaching French in Britain and vice versa.

Before their visit to President Pompidou, the Queen and Prince Philip will have made a seven-week tour of Thailand and Far East Commonwealth countries including Malaysia and Singapore.

A personal milestone for the Queen comes up Feb. 6, 1972, when she will have been exactly 20 years on the throne—a period during which the monarchy, its realms and the public attitude towards royalty have undergone vast changes.

Elizabeth II will be 46 next April and there is no sign yet of her easing up on major activities in spite of her eldest children taking a more prominent role in public affairs. At the end of November, her usually buoyant health gave way to a surprise attack of chicken pox, which forced her out of circulation for a while. The Queen Mother, still energetic at 71, took over a number of routine duties for her daughter.

The year 1971 was notable for a strenuous nine-day tour of British Columbia in May to mark the province's centennial. Princess Anne suffered from recurring bouts of ill-health on the visit and the trouble was finally diagnosed as an ovarian cyst which had to be removed later in the year.

Anne triumphantly overcame the effects of her operation by going on to win the European individual championship in her first major horse-riding contest, beating riders from eight other countries. Dubbed Sportswoman of the Year by Fleet Street sportswriters, Anne is high on the list for selection for Britain's equestrian team in the 1972 Olympic Games in West Germany.

Olympics selection secretary Sandy Duncan says if Anne is chosen for the Munich Games she will be "treated as any other rider." But her selection would pose unprecedented problems of publicity for the Olympics organizers and Buckingham Palace.

Anne, who turned 21 last August, will accordingly concentrate hard on her riding during 1972, although she is to accompany her parents on the first half of the Far East tour starting Feb. 8.

During 1971 she undertook some far-flung royal assignments, visiting Iran with Prince Philip for the shah's flamboyant celebration of 2,500 years of Persian monarchy, and later spending a week in Hong Kong in her capacity as a regimental colonel-in-chief.

Earlier in 1971, Anne and Prince Charles toured Kenya and Anne was featured in an informal film for a BBC children's television program—a rare departure from traditional royal protocol.

Charles, 23 last November, plunged into a physically taxing year which took him through a training spell in the Royal Air Force—complete with parachute jump—to gain his pilot's wings. Shortly afterwards, he followed family tradition by going into the Royal Navy.

His training at Dartmouth Naval College completed, and sporting a sub-lieutenant's single gold stripe, Charles joined HMS Norfolk, a guided-missile destroyer, to begin his naval service, which may last from three to five years.

The Queen and Prince Philip scored a personal triumph with an autumn tour of Turkey notable for its enthusiastic crowds. Far cooler—indeed, frosty—was the reception Londoners gave Emperor Hirohito of Japan when he stayed with the Queen during his first state visit to Europe in October.

The visit, marked by lingering animosity towards Japan's former war leader, may make an interesting contrast with one planned for 1972, when the West German president is scheduled for a stay at Buckingham Palace.

Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, highly popular figures in Britain, are also due to visit here

Brazil Moves West

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Deep in the Amazon jungle Brazil has begun one of the largest pioneering projects in the history of the Western Hemisphere.

Colonists already are settling in a program that eventually could cover 1.2 million square miles.

The federal colonization and land reform agency, INCRA, is offering 247 acres of land, a small wooden house, seeds, tools and an initial living allowance to anyone who wants to farm in the Amazon region. Determined to develop and populate that vast and potentially fertile area, the government has set aside 60-mile strips of land on both sides of all roads to be built through the jungle.

INCRA says it spends around $2,000 to establish a family. It charges $720 for the house, land and equipment. The homesteader has 20 years in which to repay, with no interest. Only Brazilian citizens are eligible, but congress is debating a law that would let foreigners participate.

"This is not a giveaway," says Koshi Takahashi, co-ordinator of an INCRA colony near Altamira, along the Trans-Amazon Highway. "We've found out from experience the paternalistic approach doesn't work. We will show these homesteaders how to make money farming, and we will insist on full payment for the land."

The unit for Brazil's program is called an agrovila, a settlement of 20 houses, with a common school, health-care post and general store. The homesteaders' plots are adjacent to the agrovila.

Long-range plans foresee the grouping of agrovilas into agropolises of 1,000 families and eventually, town-like ruropolises located every 85 miles across the jungle. Hundreds of thousands of homesteaders could be accommodated.

Five colonization projects already have started, and seven more are to be set up soon. The Altamira colony now is the biggest with 1,450 families predicted by December.

Drug Abuse In Eighties Forecast

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Leo E. Hollister presents some startling possibilities for drug abuse in 1984.

Admittedly tongue-in-cheek with a serious, concerned eye on the future, he imagines a society in which:

—Libido-enhancing drugs make sexual athletes of the very old and bring new dimensions to the lives of the middle-aged whose sexual desires have begun to wane.

—Electrodes implanted permanently send electrical pulses to the brain's pleasure centre. At the touch of a button and as often as desired, an individual so equipped can experience all the feelings of life's pleasurable activities—eating, drinking, sex, achievement, a day at the beach or an evening at the theatre—but with more intensity.

—A battery of new mind-altering drugs are available, in addition to the old standby LSD. An amnesia drug can erase memories of traumatic events. An euphoby drug blurs boundaries between the mind and the body's environment. A non-aggression drug renders the meanest bully harmless.

Hollister, a research scientist at the veterans administration hospital at Palo Alto, Calif., made the predictions at a recent symposium at Stanford University that explored "Drug Abuse—1970-1984." He admits his imaginary future may be far-fetched.

Undoubtedly, the new techniques he outlined will be developed, and in the hands of doctors will greatly benefit mankind. But each technique also has a potential for misuse.

The dozen experts at the symposium agreed that use, and abuse of drugs will be of society for years to come, just as alcohol, also a potent mind-altering drug, has affected man's affairs for centuries.

The current drug abuse problems, such as the epidemic of heroin use, are controlled, others will spring up, they said. There always will be a small segment of society that will seize on new discoveries and incorporate them into a drug abuse culture.

Each new form of abuse will have to be dealt with separately, the scientists said. It is unlikely some "magic bullet" such as a vaccine or miracle drug that would ned or prevent drug abuse entirely will be found.

Life Saving Medallions Awarded

Nine swimmers from the city were awarded their bronze medallions this week after successfully completing Royal Life Saving Society requirements at the Belleville Family YMCA.

The swimmers were Jennifer Beach, Linda Adamson, Brenda Sutherland, Meredith Maxwell, Cliff Ralph, Peter Lenk, Peter Krasowski, Richard Bell, and Leslie Morton.

The bronze medallion is the legal requirement for a 17-year-old to be lifeguard at a public pool.

The one-hour sessions, held once weekly for 10 weeks, contained instruction in rescue work, swimming and artificial resuscitation.

Portions of the examination, conducted by CFB Trenton Sergeant Moe Laporte, included swimming 300 yards while towing another swimmer, swimming five lengths of the Y pool using legs only, and swimming 400 yards using four varieties of strokes.

A written examination was also a prerequisite for successful completion of the course.

Jim Cleveland, physical education director for the Y, Enid Rowe, aquatics director, Kathryn Watson and Joanne Pugnett formed the instructional team.

Cost of the course was $15.

Young, Old Considered

TRENTON (Staff) — Decision was made by council here last night that there is a need in the town for both a senior citizens' centre and a day care nursery for children.

A bylaw was passed during the evening's business indicating council intends to construct a senior citizens' centre — a formality that will make Trenton eligible for grants from the department of social and family services.

Prior to assistance grants, the town must complete a 10-part study that includes an audit of all 60 - year - olds in Trenton, an outline of programs available for them now and a survey of programs desired by the elderly themselves.

The provincial government program may provide as much as 30 per cent of the cost of the centre's construction and 50 per cent of annual operating costs or $15,000 a year (whichever is less).

Bids by the town to have the structure built under winter works incentive programs are unlikely because it is expected the studies required by the department of social and family services will take several months.

Council also resolved to ask the Hastings County Welfare Unit to provide a day care centre for the municipality. Grants for 100 per cent of construction costs and 80 per cent of the operating costs are available from the provincial government.

The 20 per cent operating costs to be borne by the town would be drawn from Trenton's annual welfare budget.

Couple Hurt

TWEED (Special) — An accident early Sunday morning 3½ miles west of Madoc sent a Bethany couple to Belleville General Hospital with serious injuries.

The single vehicle accident occurred about 1:45 a.m. when the car driven by Zane Landon went out of control on Highway 7.

Jar. Landon, 41, suffered facial lacerations, a fractured nose and concussion. His wife, Rita Landon, 37, sustained a fractured hip and pelvis and multiple abrasions.

A flat tire was involved in another accident at the Highway 62 bypass early Friday morning when a car driven by Andrew Sidoc Friday at 1:30 a.m. Joseph Tarasco, 41, Rexdale, escaped with bruises, but the vehicle he was driving was damaged to the extent of $4,000.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

Each year, a few days before Christmas, Mexicans celebrate the Day of the Traffic Policemen by gift-giving. In Mexico, every public service profession is honored annually, an 15 years ago the Mexicorganized this special day in mid-December for traffic policemen. They are the recipients of such gifts as pesos, soft drinks, liquor, radios, TV sets, bicycles, or even stoves. The givers include individual drivers who enjoy making forbidden U-turns to merchants whose delivery trucks frequently block traffic and firms who desire free publicity. They feel that they have bought some influence, though the policemen don't keep track of the gifts or their givers.

Although the snowmobile season hasn't begun for most of us, it soon will. There is great emphasis placed on snowmobile safety this year, after 118 people were killed last year in snowmobile accidents across Canada.

The Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association has put booklet which will be available out a free snowmobile safety able in all snowmobile dealers and winter sports stores, called Your Guide to Snowmobile Safety which contains 30 safety hints. Here are 10 of the 30 included in the booklet.

1. Always wear a safety helmet.
2. Wear clothing suited to the climate. Avoid loose clothing.
3. Become familiar with all controls before starting.
4. Be extra careful when operating in crowded areas.
5. Be extra careful when carrying passengers.
6. Use extra care when pulling sleighs, or cutter. Use proper hitch.
7. Do not allow children to operate your snowmobile without instructions and personal supervision.
8. Stay off lakes and rivers until ice is safe.
9. Slow down at night and use extra care.
10. Do not litter. Respect other peoples property and don't cross over their lawns.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has also sent us a letter asking us to warn snowmobilers to keep away from railway tracks as their snowmobiles make so much noise they can't hear a train coming, and the excess clothing around the face usually obstructs their view. Of the fatal accidents, however, the greatest number, — 63.4 per cent — occurred on public roads.

The Department of Transport reminds snowmobilers that they are prohibited from all superhighways, such as the 400 and 401. On other highways they can use only the travelled portion.

Main speed traps are on Route 301. Throughout the state of Georgia visiting drivers up and Folkston, Georgia, on Route 301. Throughout the State of Georgia visiting car drivers should be especially careful to stay within the speed limits. There is another speed trap just south of Richmond, Virginia, on Routes 95 and 301 between Petersburg, Va., and the North Carolina state border. Anyone travelling this main winter route to Florida should reduce speed in these areas.

Mink For Women In Forces

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's ailing mink industry has received a boost from the $12,040 defence department decision to order 6,000 mink furs.

The furs at $15.34 each — made of mink tails dyed black and topped with a furry fur bauble — are being issued to the 1,100 female personnel in the Canadian forces. The remainder will be stored until needed.

Israel Says UN Proposal Means Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Israel says the General Assembly's latest resolution on the Middle East peace talks has only prolonged the deadlock.

The assembly voted 79 to 7 with 36 abstentions Monday to call for withdrawal of indirect talks through UN mediator Gunnar Jarring and for Israel's commitment to withdraw from occupied Egyptian territory.

Canada was among those abstaining. Canada Ambassador Yvon Beaulne said Canada regrets it could not accept any of the resolutions submitted because they present no realistic basis for renewed peace talks.

Sergeant Feasts On Foes' Liver

CAMBODIAN FRONT LINES (AP) — Sgt. Danh Han talked with his North Vietnamese foes by radio on Sunday. He says he ate their livers Monday.

"I try to cut them open while they're still dying or soon after they are dead," he explained. "That way the livers give me the strength of my enemy.

"Often they talk with us on the radio. They ask us why we fight so hard. We ask them why they invade our land. We had a card game by radio then they challenged us to fight. When they attacked we got about 80 of them and everyone ate liver."

The quest for livers and also the beheading of enemy troops is not uncommon on the part of Cambodian troops, who have an ancient hatred of the Vietnamese.

Ontario Rules Changed

Lotteries to Be Cut to Five

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has changed the rules for province-wide lotteries.

From now on only five province-wide lotteries will be allowed to operate at one time and there will be a ceiling of $100,000 on prizes, Gordon Carton, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said Tuesday.

The potential operating groups will be divided into five categories: Service clubs, religious and educational groups, health and welfare agencies, amateur sports groups and cultural organizations.

The province will license only one lottery from each category at a time.

Mr. Carton said outside the legislature applications will be on a "first come, first served" basis.

The new policy will permit single-event lotteries only, thereby ruling out any proposal which would involve a weekly or monthly continuous operation, the minister told the house.

Mr. Carton said the limitation on big lotteries is designed to give a break to local fund-raisers who can only offer a car, a trailer or a small cash prize.

"If you have a chance to get for $1,000 on a $2 ticket or $100,000 you're going to go for the big money," he said.

The new policy will not affect local raffles licensed by a municipality with a maximum prize of $3,500 nor municipal or regional raffles licensed by the province with prizes between $3,500 and $10,000.

"It appears at the present time that most municipalities are having little or no difficulty in controlling the local groups carrying on small lottery operations."

Outside the house, Mr. Carton said the limit on the number of large lotteries at any one time was in no way an attempt to limit the amount that Ontario residents spend on lotteries.

The federal government turned over regulation and control of lotteries to the provinces Jan. 1, 1972.

Premier William Davis told Opposition Leader Robert Nixon the government has "not completely rejected" the idea of an Ontario government lottery but there is no move by the government at this time to start one.

Legislation to reduce Ontario's share of salaries paid to judges of provincial, county and supreme courts received first reading. Costs of the judge's salaries are shared by the federal and provincial governments.

Labor Minister Gordon Carton said he does not intend to introduce legislation outlawing strikebreaking in Ontario.

Small Municipalities To Be Given More Aid

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister George Kerr said Tuesday he hopes to announce soon a formula to increase provincial subsidies to help small municipalities build sewage and water works.

Mr. Kerr, replying in the Ontario legislature to Ed Good (L —Waterloo North), said the plan will increase the subsidies to 75 from 50 per cent.

Mr. Kerr also said the government may have to increase its loan program to large municipalities which drain effluent into Lake Erie.

He said a federal-provincial aid program provides $6 million to help these communities neutralize their pollutants. But if the municipalities found the cost of these programs too expensive, Ontario may have to provide more loan capital.

Nixon: Health May Cost More Than Schools

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon predicted Tuesday that health expenditures will exceed those for education in Ontario within five years.

The Liberal leader described the province's medical care plan as an "expensive monstrosity" with no controls on spending. Projected spending for education in fiscal 1971-72 is about $1.4 billion, the biggest spender among government departments. The health department budget is just over $1 billion.

Mr. Nixon opened the debate in the Ontario legislature on a bill to combine the government's medical and hospital insurance plan, and the authority, the Ontario Hospital Insurance Commission, to operate them.

He called the initials of the commission envisaged under the bill, "Oh, Hic," a slur on the authority.

The bill was given second reading, approval in principle, and moved into committee for clause-by-clause study. Two companion bills, to provide free medical care for pensioners 65 and over, were pushed through to third reading without debate.

Mr. Nixon referred to supplementary estimates tabled Monday seeking another $.9 million to pay for what he described as "unforeseen and unpredicted" requirements under the Ontario Hospital Services Plan.

OHSIP claims were averaging $40 million a month compared with monthly revenues of about $30 million.

He criticized the "unplanned approach" of the government.

Shulman Says Medicare Is Mixed Up on Warts

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman says the health department has proved incapable of administering medical insurance for such problems as warts and cholera shots and new administrators should be appointed to tackle the big job of combining medical and hospital insurance.

The New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park, who has a practice in the city's west end, asked in the Ontario legislature Tuesday why a doctor can claim payment of $5.40 for looking at a person's wart and only $4.50 for removing it.

"I now no longer take off warts. I merely look at them," he said sarcastically.

He suggested the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan is encouraging general practitioners to refer their patients to a specialist who would charge $50 to remove a wart.

Dr. Shulman was speaking during debate on a bill setting up a commission to integrate OHSIP with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission by April 1, 1972.

He asked why OHSIP does not cover cholera shots for persons going to India and Pakistan when the shots have been recommended by the federal health department. When he submitted a bill for a cholera shot, it was turned down and he thought it was a mistake.

"I didn't really think they wanted cholera brought back to Canada."

Department administrators told him shots needed for passports or visas are not covered by government insurance.

"It happens you do not need cholera shots for a passport, you need them to prevent cholera."

Dr. Shulman said administrative decisions like that "make me worry, if these are the people who are going to administer the plan."

Dentists Hire Detectives

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Macdonald (NDP—York South) charged in the legislature Tuesday that the Royal College of Dentists has hired about 40 private detectives to gather information against denturists as a basis for raids on their clinics.

He asked Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence if the clinics are a "sufficient health hazard" to justify this activity.

Mr. Lawrence said he was not aware of the hiring of detectives but he was not surprised to hear it.

He said after raids last summer the college obtained convictions against denturists.

Denturists make low-cost false teeth.

Mr. Lawrence said the government's position as to their role will be evident when he introduces amendments to the Dentistry Act some time next year.

Kingston Man's Prints Found on Exhibits

EDMONTON (CP) — A police fingerprint specialist testified Tuesday that prints of a Kingston man charged with non-capital murder were found on two articles entered as exhibits.

Constable Lyle Langer was testifying at the trial of Keith Elgie Latta, 43, a law professor at Queen's University charged with the June 13 shooting of Edmonton travel agent Robert Neville, 30.

The constable was called into the case by detectives Stan Crawford and Wally Starchuk after they had had an attendant open a locker at the city's bus depot with a key found near Neville's body.

The locker, the Alberta Supreme Court was told, contained a section of the June 9 Calgary Herald, a road map of Italy and the surrounding area, a black leather zipper case, an Italian-English dictionary, a torn spectacles case, two newspaper clippings with pictures of Neville circled in ink and a quantity of ammunition for a .32-calibre Smith and Wesson revolver.

Constable Langer explained he had treated the newspaper section and the map with silver nitrate to bring up prints.

He testified he found three prints of the ring finger of the left hand and a partial palm on the newspaper section and a partial palm on the map.

Court was shown three charts, each comparing prints taken from Latta by Constable Langer June 22 with prints on the articles found at the bus depot.

"Both prints were made by the same finger, the left ring finger of Keith Elgie Latta and no other" on the newspaper section, he testified.

Comparing the partial palm prints, he said "both were made by the same hand, being the left hand of Keith Elgie Latta."

Delvecchio Performs Same Act

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Veteran Alex Delvecchio used the National Hockey League stage Tuesday night to do his thing, the same act he has been performing for 21 years. Only the cast has changed.

For the first 20 years he set up Gordie Howe goals. With Howe retired, after 25 years service at Detroit, Delvecchio continues the same chores with an assortment of characters.

He helped on all four Detroit scores Tuesday night before the curtain came down at Vancouver's Coliseum on a 42-Red Wing win over the Canucks.

In the night's only other action, St. Louis Blues bowed 4-3 to Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs return home tonight to face Pittsburgh Penguins. Elsewhere Montreal Canadiens visit Los Angeles Kings, Philadelphia Flyers move into New York against the Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks entertain Buffalo Sabres and St. Louis visit Minnesota North Stars.

Delvecchio, a 39-year-old superstar who played the best years of his career in the shadow of his buddy, Howe, was ready to retire before the season started because of reported changes in his status.

The long-time centre and captain of the Wings said he had always been a regular "and I want it to stay that way until the day I retire."

Doug Barkley, who began the season as Detroit coach, and general manager Ned Harkness saw things differently.

They looked on Delvecchio's 39-year-old legs as battle worn, unable to "keep up with a 78-game schedule," said Barkley, who no longer coaches Detroit.

Barkley planned to use Delvecchio primarily as "an extra man" on the power play and killing penalties.

The Red Wings finally acceded to Delvecchio's wishes and he has been one of their few consistent producers.

Against the Canucks he set up linemate Mickey Redmond for two and Al Karlander for the winner.

Defenceman Dale Tallon, whom Vancouver coach Hal Laycoe has experimented with on right wing several times this season to put some punch into their offence, scored two for Canucks.

Scotty Is Watching

Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the National Hockey League, has installed a video-tape machine at his office in Toronto and uses it to check the work of his 37 referees and linesmen during games in the NHL. According to Morrison, his officials have developed a good attitude towards the use of the videotape and have learned from watching the correct performance of such basic procedures as faceoffs.

(CP Wirephoto)

However, it went for naught as the Wings padded their fifth-place standing to five points over Vancouver in the East but remained seven behind fourth-place Toronto.

The Leafs capitalized on defensive lapses for the second straight game in handling the Blues at St. Louis.

Jim Harrison and Dave Keon each scored their ninth goals of the season in the first period at the expense of St. Louis' defence to snap a 1-1 tie. The Leafs took advantage of loose defensive play to stop Buffalo by the same score Sunday night.

It was St. Louis' first loss at home in seven games and came at the hands of a Toronto team that alternated effectively between a tight-checking game and wide open skating.

Harrison sent Leafs into the lead, moving effortlessly around defenceman Carl Brewer and centre Garry Unger at centre ice to victimize Blues' goaltender Jim McLeod.

A similar fate awaited McLeod on Keon's goal when team-mate Bob Plager allowed the shifty Toronto centre to skate in unmolested.

Three fights interrupted the game, Harrison and St. Louis defenceman Andre Dupont trading shots at 16:44 of the first period and Toronto's Ron Ellis tangling with Barclay Plager just over a minute later.

Junior Wings Deny Howe Deal

DETROIT (CP) — Mark Howe will play his first hockey game of the 1971-72 season for the Detroit Junior Red Wings next week, Detroit manager Larry Weiss said Tuesday night.

Weiss said there never had been any question of Howe leaving the Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A club to play for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Detroit manager said nobody from his hockey club had ever been approached by anybody from the Marlboros or from the OHA about giving a release to Howe, who he said was signed by the Wings

Do You Know What Sport Is?

OLYMPIC TIDDLYWINKS?

Don't laugh until you give it some more thought.

The subject of what qualifies as sporting activity came up at Tuesday night's annual city Hooves and Awards Committee banquet, and even the 10 athletes and boosters were hard-pressed to come up with a definition for "a sport".

"Don't forget, there are about 4,000 people in Ontario who belong to a tiddlywinks association, a lot more than there are weightlifters," committee chairman Ken Carr-Brant noted at one point during the evening of festivities, in which Mr. Carr-Brant's Apollo Barbell Club members played the largest part.

The 19 recipients of plaques for 1971 athletic achievements within prescribed guidelines included weightlifters Price Morris, Canadian heavyweight champion and winner of four bronze medals at this year's Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia; Art Wall, gold medallist in the light - heavyweight class at February's Canada Games in Saskatoon; Paul Barrett, bronze medallist at the Games gold medallist; Bob Wall, silver medallist in the middle-heavyweight division; Ron Hayes, flyweight silver medallist at the Canada Games, and Canadian Intermediate champion in the bantamweight class; Jim Travers, Canadian teenage lightweight champion; and Darrell Seeley, who won the national teenage heavyweight title at an Elliott Lake meet this year.

COACH CARR - BRANT, who has qualified under the committee's terms of reference for an award the past two years, again declined to accept one because of his position as committee chairman.

Breaking up a weightlifting monopoly on plaques and free meals were archers Carol Armstrong, a member of the Canadian archery team at July's world championships; Ontario indoor barefoot title-holder Jim Widdicks, and provincial junior freestyle champion Bruce Thompson.

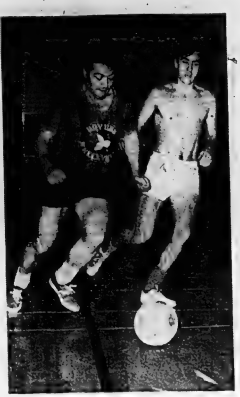
Webster's dictionary's, incidentally, is: "Any activity or experience that gives enjoyment or recreation," which covers everything from bird - watching to bantamweight elbow - bending.

THE LEXICON lacks on a secondary meaning that "said activity requires more or less vigorous bodily exertion and is carried on according to some traditional form or set of rules."

But equestrian competitions aren't the most exciting events in the world, unless you happen to be a horse, and we're not about to turn back the gold medal we won at the 1968 Olympics!

Conversely, just because an activity is strenuous and performed a specific way doesn't make it a sport. Who ever heard of the world's lawn-mowing championship, or the World Series of dishwashing?

Somebody thought they had a pat solution by restricting their notion of sport to games involved in Olympic competition, but archery is most certainly an exerting sport and is making its first modern Olympic appearance at next year's Munich Games.



HOW ABOUT something like chess?" queried Paul Barrett, who spends more time picking up pounds than pawns. Chess results are usually filed with the sport copy distributed by newspaper wire services. And although Russia's Spassky seldom throws a body check he no doubt perspires at more nail-biting some of his more crucial matches as Soviet strongman Valery Alexeyev in his 500-pound-plus clean-and-jerks.

On the other hand, don't think that Mr. Alexeyev or any other athlete can't be faced with enormous mental pressures. Sport can be an exercise in culture. In fact, as Honors and Awards Committee member Jack Devine pointed out at Tuesday's banquet, sport is part of our culture.

So what is sport? The question is more easily tackled when rephrased: when does recreation become sport?

MY ANSWER? Whenever an activity has winners and losers it passes the hobby or recreation stage. Every true sportsman has experienced the noble art of losing.

The problem with some so-called sports, like bowling, is that they are often left open to the accusation that everybody who participates is a loser.

Getting Their Kicks

Manuel Montes beats Kevin Kirby to the kick in a soccer workout at Quinte Secondary School Tuesday night. The Bay of Quinte's soccer performers were among the seven working out at the local high school gymnasium. Attempts are being made to organize an indoor league this winter with games to be played in Belleville and at CFB Trenton.

Dick Tiger Dead

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuter) — Dick Tiger, former world light-heavyweight boxing champion, has died in his Nigerian hometown after a short illness, official Radio Nigeria reported today.

The radio said Tiger, 42, died in Aba, eastern Nigeria, Tuesday night. He was survived by his wife and five children.

Tiger announced on his return to Nigeria early this year that he was quitting professional boxing to take up a coaching job in his home country.

Soccer Weathers the Storms

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Soccer players are weathering the winter by moving indoors. Members of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League and the minor soccer system are adding a new wrinkle to their pre-season conditioning program.

For the past two years they have begun indoor play in March to ready themselves for the league schedule. However this year they hope to organize an indoor league that will operate throughout the winter months.

The first scrimmage session was held at Quinte Secondary School last-night with about a dozen players making an appearance. "We generally get about 20 players a night at the indoor workouts, but around Christmas it's a lot harder to get people to come out," offered Parsons' John O'Neill, who hopes to organize the indoor league.

If the league is able to begin operation it will start scheduled play sometime in January. Games would be split between Quinte Secondary School and the CFB Trenton recreation facilities.

It is hoped that enough interest will be shown among local soccer players to operate at least a five - team league with five players on each team.

The indoor program is slated to continue right through until April. Any soccer players in the area, including Quinte league, minor participants and high school players are eligible to compete in the Tuesday night sessions at Quinte Secondary School. The ing time is 7 p.m.

Two-goal efforts by Pug Kellar, Sally Istead and John Smith guided the Mustangs to their easy win over Wannamaker's. Pat Salmon, who later suffered a broken wrist in the contest, notched a goal and two assists as did linemate Jim Horwood. Other goal - getters for the winners were George Webb and Paul Ruttan.

Geoge Johnson had a goal and an assist for Wannamaker's along with Ron Urch counting the other goal.

The Intell moved into a third-place tie with Mead Johnson on the strength of their 3-1 win last night. Ray Summers sank two goals for the winners with Maurice Switzer getting the other and Rick Hay picking up two assists. For the losers, defenceman Ted Rowland recorded the only goal.

Ron Hunter had a hand in every goal for the Hospital as they romped easily over the 5-1. Hunter earned three assists and two assists for Dave Switzer getting the other and Rick Hay picking up two assists. For the losers, defenceman Ted Rowland recorded the only goal.

Ron Hunter had a hand in every goal for the Hospital as they romped easily over the 5-1. Hunter earned three assists and two assists for Dave Switzer getting the other and George Jacklin adding two goals and one helper. Gary Sero scored the only goal.

Provinces Agree to Probe Amateur Hockey Abuses

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision to launch an investigation into amateur hockey and establishment of Sport Participation Canada, designed to lure Canadians away from their television sets and on to the playing fields, were highlights of a federal-provincial conference on sport and recreation Tuesday.

The investigation into amateur hockey is to cover the effect of lengthy junior hockey schedules on the education of the players; contracts which bind 14- and 15-year-olds to clubs, the $80 weekly pay for juniors, and hockey schools.

Sport Participation Canada, under the direction of former prime minister Lester Pearson and Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien of Montreal, is aimed at improving the physical fitness of millions of Canadians who do not take part in any sport or physical activity.

The program will be funded by a $350,000 grant from the government, although it is a non-government body.

Ministers or their officials responsible for sport and recreation in every province also were urged to promote participation in the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal.

Health Minister John Munro told the conference he was confident the Olympics "will be the greatest sports event ever held in this country."

"As such, we have the choice of utilizing these Games to the maximum advantage for sport at all levels or simply watching a great sports spectacle come and go without scarcely a murmur."

He announced more financial aid to sports governing bodies to allow them to hire technical assistants—who would devote themselves to the improvement of coaching, officiating and competitive programs.

Mr. Munro also revealed plans to dress up national amateur sports championships by holding several in one city in years when the Canada Games are not scheduled.

Mr. Munro said the provincial representatives were in full agreement with a federal working paper outlining "abuses prevalent in amateur hockey in Canada."

He was pleased, he told a news conference after the closed meeting, at the decision to form a federal-provincial committee of public servants to look into the abuses and suggest remedies, including either federal or provincial legislation.

The working paper said:

"There is a growing fear that young hockey players are being treated as chattels.

"Sometimes a boy is compelled to move away from his normal environment to pursue exclusively, or almost exclusively, a hockey career.

"The young player may well find that the demands of hockey are in conflict with his educational pursuits, particularly in the midget and junior classifications."

Some of the abuses the committee will investigate include:

—Lengthy schedules, such as 70-plus games played by OHA junior league teams;

—Contract arrangements in junior hockey which appear unfair "since it is really an outright professional operation masquerading under amateur rules;"

—Control by professional hockey over the rules of amateur hockey through the agreement between the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The working paper expressed concern that the newly-formed World Hockey Association would lure boys to turn to pro hockey even earlier than than now permitted. The age now is 20 years.

Amateur hockey also turned its back on players 18 years or older with no pro prospects, the paper said.

Also to come under committee scrutiny were hockey schools "which devalue the sense participation of hockey stars who, in reality, often spend little or no time at the schools."

The conference also was told that Canadians fared badly in fitness tests taken independently in Canada, the United States and Europe.

"Information available suggests that Jack Camick, the once fit and stalwart folk figure, may be less fit than Uncle Sam —who should be fat and futile by now," said a speech prepared for delivery by Mr. Pearson but read in his absence by Mr. Beaubien.

"Both are less fit than the peoples of other countries that have been tested: not only those we often think of as old and backward Europeans, but also even peoples whom we call poor and undeveloped."

Millions of Canadians no longer take part in any sport.

"One result is that the fitness activity levels of the great mass of adult Canadians are now extremely low; as low as the lounging chair from which you can watch on TV supermen playing in super bowls for super money," said Mr. Pearson's text.

Sport Participation Canada's theme will be "the mass involvement of people in the area of sport," Mr. Beaubien told the news conference.

"It will have a campaign to motivate Canadians to stop doing passive things and get involved in doing things physically.

"It will encourage people to get out and do things that are happening in their communities."

Gratton Misses Shutout Again

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gilles Gratton went hunting for his first Ontario Hockey Association Junior A shutout Tuesday night, but managed only to extend his unbeaten string to 10 games.

The Oshawa goaltender played shutout hockey for 46 minutes, then allowed three quick goals as St. Catharines Black Hawks salvaged a 3-3 tie with the Generals.

In other games Tuesday, Hamilton Red Wings trounced Toronto Marlboros 6-5 and Ottawa 67s blanked London Knights 5-0.

At Oshawa, the Generals built up a 3-0 lead on goals by Bill Lochead, Rick Middleton and Jack Lynch. But the Black Hawks, beginning with Darcy Murphy's goal at 6:06 of the final period, struck for three goals to gain the tie.

At Hamilton, the Red Wings, second-last in the standings, jumped on the Marlboros for a 2-0 second-period lead then hung on for their fifth win this season.

Eddie Gilbert, with two goals, and Skip Foster, Jim Storey, Pat Hickey and Vilho Wing, with singles goals, accounted for Hamilton's scoring.

Bill Harris notched two goals and Dave Gardner, Wayne Dillon and Glen Goldup one each for the Marlboros, five points back of the leading Generals.

At Ottawa, Bunny Larocque recorded his third shutout this season as the 67s moved to within seven points of the Marlboros.

Larocque kicked out 34 shots as he gained the league lead in goaltending.

Wayne Kegrick scored two goals while Denny Potvin, Bryan McSheffrey and Dan St. Cyr each got single goals.

Bunny Badgers Canucks

OTTAWA (CP) — J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association are locked in another battle —this time over hockey tours.

Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, appears to be banning Canadian teams from taking part in tournaments in European countries, even though they were invited by the countries themselves.

"We don't know just what is on his mind," Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary-manager, said in an interview Tuesday.

Four Canadian teams were scheduled to take part in invitational matches this year, some vetoed three of the tours.

Juckes said all of the tours have the blessing of the CAHA.

He also said that Ahearne appears to be overstepping his authority. Bylaws of the international federation require that Ahearne be kept informed of tours only; his permission is not required.

Ahearne has said the Canadians have not followed proper procedures in planning their trips.

Paiement Still in Hospital

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rosaire Paiement of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League will remain in hospital for at least another week while doctors determine whether the sight of his left eye has been damaged permanently.

Paiement was struck in the eye by a puck during last Saturday's 8-2 loss to Boston Bruins.

There has been no recurrence of the hemorrhaging in the eyeball, but Paiement will spend at least a week in hospital with bandages over both eyes.

Alouettes Returning to Former Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Before the 1968 football season began, the owners of Montreal Alouettes decided to move their Eastern Football Conference club to a riverfront stadium on the site of Expo 67 from McGill Stadium.

Tuesday afternoon, the Alouettes announced that they were moving back to McGill from the Autostade for at least the next three football seasons.

"We have completed negotiations with McGill for the next three years, with two one-year options," Sam Berger, the Als' team owner told a news conference. "Hopefully Montreal's Olympic Stadium will be ready by then."

Although the Alouettes will lose in seating capacity—the Autostade seats 33,312 and McGill will seat about 24,000—the club plans to offset this by increasing ticket prices.

The Alouettes will bump top seat prices to over $8 from a $6.50 top that prevailed at the Autostade last season.

And the initial reaction has been favorable.

"We've had hundreds of letters from fans telling us that if we move back to McGill, they'll renew their contracts," said Bob Sirota, the team's director of sales and public relations. "They say they'll gladly journey to be close to the field again."

"Our chief aims are to give our fans some good seats from which they will view the game from good vantage points," Berger said. "We'll have between 15,000 and 16,000 seats between the 25-yard lines."

Berger added that installation of 2,000 track seats and 2,000 bleacher spots will give the Als approximately 24,000 capacity for their home games.

"Now we'll be able to offer people 20,000 good seats, whereas we had only 10,000 between the goal lines at the Autostade," Berger said.

From the public's viewpoint, Berger said, the Autostade, with only one access road and all the seats a good distance from the sidelines, had proved a costly venture.

Because of these drawbacks, "nobody wanted to come to the Autostade, even when the team was winning."

The Als' owner said that while a home-game average attendance of 25,000 was needed at the Autostade, the largest crowd last season had been only 29,000 with a gate of $250,000 or $180,000. The remainder of the home dates fell short of this objective.

The deal will ensure McGill an income of $100,000 a year for the next three football seasons. In return the university has agreed to refurbish its park with any excess money going toward costs of intercollegiate sport and bursaries.

Berger currently is reeeps tisting his $65,000 basic rental of the Autostade, a sum he pays annually to the federal government's Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. He said that with maintenance costs his yearly outlay for the premises runs close to $150,000.

"If I had a choice I would renegotiate myself right out of the Autostade," Berger said. "But CMHC has been fair and we hope to use the facilities for our offices and perhaps for our training camp."

He said the current agreement with CMHC expires in 1975.

Berger also said the McGill Stadium would be much more readily accessible because of its proximity to the main downtown shopping district and east-west subway lines.

He said the club was arranging for shuttle buses to run between the stadium and the closest subway stop at University and two blocks south of the stadium.

He also said the club will ask the city to lift no-parking restrictions in the area on the day of a game.

"All things considered, it's still easier to get to McGill than to the Autostade. Traffic control was not good at the Autostade and it's only going to get worse, not better."

Mexicans Lack Challenge

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Jose Napoles and Ruben Olivares, the two world boxing champions from Mexico City, could be forced into big weight divisions unless there's a surge of talent in their divisions.

Napoles, weighing 145¾, outpointed fleet Hedgemon Lewis, 144¾, of Los Angeles, Tuesday night to successfully defend his welterweight title. Olivares, the bantamweight champion, knocked his foe into retirement.

Jesus Pimentel, 19¾, from Mexicali, Mexico, fought gamely but was outgunned by the 118-pound Olivares, and his manager called a halt after 11 rounds.

"That was his last fight," said manager Harry Kabakoff who had rushed into the ring to declare, "Ruben, you're still the champion."

Bucks Showing Jealousy?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Are Milwaukee Bucks, holders of the National Basketball Association record for consecutive victories before Los Angeles broke it recently, getting jealous of the Lakers' streak?

Apparently so.

While the Lakers, who have been grabbing all the record headlines, extended their record string to 22 victories, beating Portland Trailblazers 120-102 Tuesday night, the Bucks quietly reeled off their sixth straight triumph, downing Houston Rockets 106-98.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Phoenix Suns topped New York Knicks 110-100, Seattle Supersonics trounced Detroit Pistons 103-86, Buffalo Braves defeated Philadelphia 76ers 117-110, Boston Celtics trounced Chicago Bulls 116-100, and Cleveland Cavaliers edged Baltimore Bullets 88-85.

In the American Basketball Association, it was: Carolina 124, Virginia 121; Pittsburgh 130, Memphis 123; Indiana 107, Dallas 98, and Denver 129, New York 118

Los Angeles' unbeaten since Oct. 31, used a balanced attack in subduing Portland. Five Lakers scored at least 20 points, with Wilt Chamberlain and Gail Goodrich leading the way with 24 points apiece.

Milwaukee, which established the previous record of 20 straight victories last season en route to the league title, was paced by Oscar Robertson's 29 points.

Spencer Haywood returned to Detroit, the city where he starred in high school and college, and fired 31 points and grabbed 14 rebounds, aiding Seattle over the Pistons.

Veteran Walt Hazzard's 26 points and rookie Elmore Smith's 23 points helped Buffalo Beat Philadelphia for the second time in five meetings over two seasons.

John Havlicek collected 16 of his 33 points in the third period, helping Boston upset past Chicago.

John Warren and Butch Beard each converted two free throws in the final 30 seconds, stealing Cleveland's victory over Baltimore.

Sport Briefs

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Herve Filion, the North American harness racing champion, brought home six winners on the nine-race card at Yonker Raceway Tuesday night, matching the Metropolitan New York record.

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Wellwood, Canada's top harness driver, moved one step closer to setting the record for the most wins in an Ontario circuit season as he drove Talisa to victory in the fourth race at Greenwood Raceway Tuesday night.

Wellwood, 31, set the all time Ontario purse record Monday night when he eclipsed Ron Feagan's 1970 mark of $340,421. Now he is only one victory short of shattering the win record set by Keith Waples in 1967.

Both figures represent the highest in wins and purse money earned by a driver in a single season on the three track tour of Greenwood, Garden City in St. Catharines and Mohawk in Campbellville.

Wellwood, the fourth ranked driver in North America, has 221 wins and $350,000 in purses this year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier has been named Fighter of the Year for 1971 by the Boxing Writers Association.

In his only bout in 1971 the 27-year-old Frazier knocked down Muhammad Ali in the 15th round and won a unanimous 15-round decision the night of March 8 in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Frazier's victory over Ali was considered so outstanding that no other boxer was nominated for the Neil Award.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax, former star left-handed pitcher for Los Angeles Dodgers, will be eligible for election into baseball's Hall of Fame next year.

Ballots were distributed to eligible members of the Baseball Writers Association of America this week. To be elected, a player must receive 75 per cent of the votes from writers who have been members in the association for at least 10 years.

Koufax, three-time winner of the Cy Young Award, with a 2.76 lifetime earned-run average, named Jackie Robinson and Bob Feller by making the Hall of Fame on the first try.

Results of the ballot are expected late in January.

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Wrestler Whipper Billy Watson said from his hospital bed Tuesday he may have to undergo another operation to repair torn ligaments in his left leg.

Watson, 51, was hit by a car in Toronto two weeks ago. The injury threatens to terminate his wrestling career.

He said that before he was moved here from Toronto's Northwestern Hospital, doctors told him he may be faced with another operation on the injured leg.

Litter May Be Taxed

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister George Kerr said Tuesday he is considering a proposal to place a special tax on non-returnable containers.

He said the revenue received by the government might be used to ensure better cleanup programs and to establish pilot projects to recycle water.

Mr. Kerr's remarks came outside the legislature after he told the house that regulations governing littering probably cannot be enforced for at least another year even if they are introduced this month.

After Mr. Kerr told the house that regulations needed to bring into effect anti-litter legislation -quag aq pnoa Ajnp ut passed coming. Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, said that the minister had backed away from a previous promise to ban non-returnable containers.

Mr. Kerr said the regulations "are not simple . . . but involve a great deal of consequences."

He also said he had never promised to ban non-returnable bottles. Instead, he said, he had just promised to do something about them.

Mr. Kerr said in an interview that a ban on non-returnable containers would affect about "a dozen plants here in Ontario . . . and there is a long hard winter ahead."

Canadian Professors Required

TORONTO (CP) — The presidents of Ontario's 14 provincially-supported universities asked Tuesday that the provincial government guarantee a minimum number of potential Canadian professors to counteract the increase in staff from the United States.

Meeting with the Committee on University Affairs, the presidents noted a drop in the enrolment of graduate students—the group which traditionally produces this country's professors.

On Monday, Statistics Canada released figures showing an increase in the number of U.S.-born professors teaching in Canada.

After the meeting with the government-appointed committee, Dr. John Macdonald, executive-director of the Council of Ontario Universities, the presidential group, said there is "clear evidence of a dramatic overproduction of graduates in a number of areas in the United States."

They "spill over . . . into Canada", said Dr. D. Carleton Williams, president of the University of Western Ontario and chairman of the presidents' council.

"In certain areas it's just not possible to find Canadian scholars," he added.

M. A. Preston, an executive with the presidents' council, said in an interview there is a lack of Canadian professors in three sensitive areas—political science, sociology and economics.

He said he will be involved in studies over the next five years of about 30 fields of teaching in Ontario universities and hopes to produce a series of reports showing needs for graduates and suggesting which field each university should concentrate on.

Taxes Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced Tuesday a $453 million package of increased taxes, including higher income taxes and increases in liquor, cigarette and motor fuel levies.

Rockefeller said the additional tax revenues, coupled with an estimated $400 million he hopes to get from the federal government, would help close the $1.5 billion gap in the state budget over the next 15 months.

Tweed

TWEED — Mr. Bert Jones of McLennan Street, Tweed, has returned from the Kingston General Hospital where he was a patient for some time.

The A.C.W. of Plevna had another quilting in Clar-Mill hall recently. They quilted and bound a lovely Maple Leaf quilt the same day.

Mrs. Nellie Booth of Marlbank is home from the Kingston General Hospital, where she was a patient. She is at the home of her daughter and son-in-law at present, Mr. and Mrs. Harold York.

Opportunities-for-Youth Plan Won Wide Public Acceptance

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal Opportunities-for-Youth program last summer was highly successful in gaining public acceptance and creating strong student identity, says a non-government study.

But the study by the Canadian Council on Social Development, which it labels "largely impressionistic," said a significant number of persons interviewed saw the program as an attempt to hide a critical general unemployment problem and to keep more aggressive students away from violent social protest.

Released Tuesday, it calls the $24.7-million program involving more than 27,000 young people "a great idea in search of understanding."

The jobs created were useful and the youth involved felt they had done something for the community.

Reuben Baetz, executive director of the council, said it is imperative that the program be continued, with further experimentation.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier has said previously that he will make a decision by Jan. 15 on whether to continue the program next year.

The council's survey involved interviews with 174 persons and groups across Canada. Of these, 89 were directly involved in program projects, 27 were consultants and 68 were not involved.

Those interviewed included youth co-ordinators and project workers, representatives of social service agencies and officials of municipal and provincial governments.

Council on Social Development Thinks Youth's Urge to Travel to Taper Off

OTTAWA (CP) — A study by the Canadian Council on Social Development reports a strong public impression that youth's urge to travel has peaked and will soon taper off.

The study, released Tuesday, says most people think that the number of transient youths will increase next year and then decline as hitch-hiking begins to lose its appeal, especially if job prospects are better.

But interviews by the council with 237 young transients show that almost 61 per cent of them would have travelled last summer even if full-time work had been available. Almost 66 per cent plan to travel again next summer.

The council study, supplemented by information from 44 youth hostels in 18 cities and towns and from representatives of various government levels and social agencies, says the number of transients last summer increased generally but at a much lower level than expected.

Most young travellers appear to have been students and more girls travelled than in 1970. A large number of unmarried couples travelled together and a new problem arose—young people travelling with pets.

Corporate Giants and Small Businessmen Fight Over Cable TV

By KORKY KOROLUK

TORONTO (CP) — The corporate giants and the small businessmen met head-on Tuesday at public hearings of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission. The winner won't be known until the commission announces the decision in a few weeks.

Bidding for permission to build and operate cable television systems in the town of Whitby, just west of Oshawa, were four firms: Oshawa Cable TV Ltd., Maclean-Hunter Cable TV Ltd., and two as-yet unincorporated firms involving Whitby residents.

Oshawa Cable is owned partly by Canadian Cable Systems, owner of the former Famous Players holdings, and partly by Jarmain Teleservices Ltd., which operates a cable system in London, Ont., and has holdings in several other cable systems.

Maclean-Hunter Cable has more than a dozen systems in Canada, including systems in London and Toronto.

One of the new firms was represented by Richard Matthews of Whitby, and would be 55 per cent owned by Cable Utility Communications Ltd. CUC is not yet a large company, but its prime mover, Geoffrey Conway, is making a strong bid to become a power in the cable industry.

The fourth applicant was from a new firm headed by E. G. Curl, also of Whitby.

The applications were preceded by an appearance by Desmond Newman, mayor of Whitby, who asked the CRTC to move as swiftly as possible to grant a licence for the area.

He said the area has no radio station of its own, no daily newspaper and no television station. A cable outlet, he said, would be the area's "major communicator."

He said both the city of Oshawa and Metropolitan Toronto would like to annex the town, but he felt this should not happen, that Whitby be allowed to preserve its own identity. A cable outlet would help achieve this, he said.

W. J. Lesnk, appearing for Oshawa Cable, said his firm already has some cable laid in Whitby. This would enable his company to serve about 25 per cent of the 5,000 homes in the area within a year. But he said homes in the community of Brooklin, just north of Whitby, but within Whitby's corporate limits, would have to wait up to five years for service.

His firm already serves about 47 per cent of the households in Oshawa and in Bowmanville to the east.

Mr. Curl said residents of Whitby are "afraid others will just move in and gobble up Whitby as part of an empire." He said the town needs its own voice, and stressed that his group planned extensive local broadcasting.

He said his group planned to make available, free of charge, part-time instructors in the various television trades to students at Durham College in Oshawa and to use some programs students would produce.

Israel Switzer, speaking for Maclean-Hunter, said an advantage in granting a licence to a large firm such as his is that such a company can afford to spread its resources to provide service to such communities as Brooklin immediately, absorbing any loss until the service begins to pay its way.

Mr. Matthews' presentation was similar to Mr. Curl's, placing emphasis on local ownership willing to undertake programming attuned to the area's needs.

Engineers to Be Hired To Solve Rink Problem

City council Monday will be asked to approve the hiring of a firm of consulting engineers to design a ventilation system for the Dick Ellis Rink currently being plagued by the presence of carbon monoxide fumes.

The firm to be recommended by the Recreation and Arena Committee is Totten, Sims and Hubicki Associates, who in the meantime will be given a letter of intent.

Hepes are that a report will be available by Monday outlining what is required by way of ventilation for the rink.

That there was a problem at the new West End rink came to light on December when a local doctor complained of feeling ill after playing hockey.

Several minor hockey players and a referee had also complained of becoming ill at the rink.

Later it was determined the problem was carbon monoxide from the tractor used in the ice cleaning operation. The airtight construction of the building prevented the fumes from being dispersed.

Since the problem was identified the rink has been operated on a doors - open basis to provide ventilation.

Recreation Body to Study Arena Facilities' Priority

Increased adult use of present indoor rink facilities could advance the time when a third skating rink is considered for the east end of the city.

This was indicated at yesterday's regular meeting of the Recreation and Arena Committee following a request from City Manager J. R. Reynolds for submission of the committee's proposed capital works budget for the years 1972-76.

The city has an amount of $350,000 in its capital works budget for 1973 but in view of the increased adult use of present facilities the possibility of earlier construction will be considered.

In addition of the increased adult use for hockey, the meeting was told that figure skaters and minor hockey also require more ice time.

Several of the committee members felt that construction of the proposed East End rink should have precedence over any large scale renovation of the present downtown arena.

The committee directed that Recreation Director Lorne Williams do a detailed report on projected rink needs for consideration at a special committee meeting late in December.

The decision at the December meeting will determine the committee recommendation for its proposed capital works budget.

Nicholson to Repay Debt to School Board

The lost loose end of the troubled separate school situation has been tied up.

Nicholson Catholic College has provided the full settlement of its indebtedness to the separate school board.

Nicholson, one of the few private Roman Catholic schools in the province that never charged tuition fees, was operating at a loss.

The separate school auditor's statement last year showed a debt of $36,800 owed by Nicholson to the separate school board. The separate school board operates grades 9 and 10 at the college with public funds. The senior school, grades 11, 12 and 13, is considered a private school and receives no government grants.

The $36,800 debt had accumulated over a period of years, going back as far as the Belleville Separate School Board, one of those merged to form the Hastings - Prince Edward board in 1969.

Nicholson's board of govern ors will repay the debt at the rate of about $3,000 a year.

Nicholson is now on a firm financial footing with a tuition fee of $720 a year charged each student in the senior school this year.

"There is no possibility of the college closing through lack of funds," said a spokesman.

In addition to the annual $120 paid by each of the 166 senior students, the college receives $150 a student a year from those parishes with students enrolled at Nicholson. This amounts to about $40,000.

The junior school, grades 9 and 10, is staffed by four nuns and lay teachers, who are paid at regular rates for teachers. There are 224 junior students.

The seven nuns and the priest who staff the senior school earn $1,400 a year, paid to their order.

Residents Seek Rink To Serve East Area

Weather and other factors permitting, parents and children in the Stanley Parkette area in East Belleville could get their local outdoor rink back this winter.

Three or four years ago an outdoor rink was operated at the parkette, but it was discontinued in an effort to allow the re-establishment of grass on the park.

This year, despite the fact there will be rinks at Hard Head, the Harry J. Clarke School and at Moira Secondary School, the Stanley Parkette area residents want their own rink back and have forwarded a request backed by petition bearing the names of approximately 100 parents. There are approximately 215 children living in the immediate area.

Yesterday members of the Recreation and Arena Committee agreed that efforts could be made to re-establish the outdoor rink this winter.

The recommendation was that the Stanley Parkette rink be added to the already approved list of rinks and that it be operated if works crews have the time for maintenance.

The committee also agreed that a proposed recreational parkette on St. Columba church property be referred for budget consideration.

The recreational parkette was originally discussed in 1970. Planned are girls' softball facilities and a playground area.

Christmas Kitty

What youngster wouldn't like to find a furry little creature like this one from the Ontario Humane Society under their tree Christmas morning? Honey Martin, 9, of RR2, Belleville, certainly is excited to the prospect.

The Avonlaugh Road shelter will be holding its first, ever Christmas party Saturday at 2 p.m. Santa Claus will be there to greet children and hand out candies. He may even have a few puppies and kittens!

Armories Fire Calls Now Over

Belleville firefighters have been getting quite a workout trying to the armories on Pinnacle Street in response to false alarms.

The firemen have made three calls in response to alarms registering on the automatic panel at the fire hall.

The cause is repair work now being carried out on wiring damaged in a recent electrical mishap.

The work is now complete and no more alarms should register on the automatic system, said fire chief Leo Culhane today.

Last call was made this morning when three vehicles were dispatched to the armories. Workmen had forgotten to notify the fire department that they were working on the alarm system.

Citizens' Arrest Made Last Night

Two air force officers from CFB Trenton will receive official commendation from the Belleville City Police as the result of a citizens' arrest made last night.

At 11 p.m. the two students Led officers were passing Doug Jones Jewelry Store at 225 Front Street, when two observed a youth making good an escape after breaking into the establishment.

Arrested and charged with break and enter was Michael Carey Trahan, 17, of 382 Bond Street. Several hundred dollars worth of wrist watches were recovered.

Kiln Damaged

Bomb Threat Closes Plant

PICTON (Staff) — A bomb threat at the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. last Saturday night led to immediate evacuation of the plant for a 90-minute search by constables from the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Damage to one of the kilns shut down for the search while filled with extremely hot material (its weak is attributed "at least partly" to the bomb threat according to plant manager John Clarke.

Mr. Clarke said that a telephone call was made to the plant at about 9.30 p.m. Saturday and an unidentified caller warned an employee that a bomb hidden at the plant would explode in about one hour.

The plant manager added that damage to the number two kiln was discovered when workers returned to their jobs following the police search. He predicted it would take approximately a week to repair the kiln for operation.

Ore Train Hits Car

A 33-year-old Trenton area man escaped injury Tuesday noon when his auto was struck by the locomotive of a northbound CN ore train just south of Trenton.

Provincial police at Brighton reported that Raymond E. Summers, RR4, Trenton, was proceeding out a private driveway toward Highway 33 when he failed to see the approaching train.

Two Break-ins Last Night

Two overnight break and enters have been reported by city police.

Some time between 7 and 7:30 p.m. the home of Harold Mutcher, 88 Octavia Street, was entered after a thief or thieves forced a rear door.

The haul included $63 in cash and a portable radio valued at $90.

Approximately $200 in tools were stolen.

Tax Bill Will Pass Commons on Friday; Senators Won't Balk

OTTAWA (CP) — The government assured life for its tax bill by imposing a death sentence Tuesday on Commons debate.

The sentence means the massive bill departs the Commons Friday afternoon, further talk on it ended under the guillotine rule.

Preliminary indications that the Senate might slip up a fast —for having to handle the bill virtually without debate—have gone glimmering. Royal assent before Jan. 1, the government's announced target date for implementation of the 707-page, 332-clause measure, appears certain.

Saying 50 days of debate—that will be the total by Friday—is enough for the tax bill, the government formally moved Tuesday to trip the guillotine for the second time since the bill came before the House. The 1969 rule was used, effective Dec. 8, to cut off debate on clause-by-clause study of the bill.

After a two-hour debate Tuesday on the question of using the cutoff rule, the Liberal majority easily swamped the opposition 123 to 93. The 63 Conservatives opposing were joined by 20 New Democrats and 10 Social Credit MPs.

Standing in the 264-seat House: Liberal 150, Conservative 71, NDP 25, Social Credit 13, Independent Liberal 1, Independent 2, vacant 2.

Allan MacEachen, government House leader, had to buck steady Conservative heckling as he argued there had been ample scope for debate, every main aspect of the bill had been considered and the public had "not been roused to any state of indignation" by the government forcing a decision.

Mr. MacEachen said that if Parliament is to handle the volume of business required in modern times all members will have to learn to accept more time limits on debate, a theme continued by other Liberal speakers.

But Opposition spokesmen reiterated that the size of the bill makes it a mystery to most Canadians — and even many tax experts—and complained that the government kept amending it even after announcing debate would be limited.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said it was a mockery for any Liberal to suggest that all aspects of the tax bill had been discussed when some 30 clauses were bulled through at the end of detailed study without any consideration.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said he had voted for use of the debate-limit rule at the clause-by-clause stage because talk had become repetitive. But he objected at third reading because this had become the most important stage, where the opposition could present reasoned amendments that might change the effect of a bill.

He was convinced that the bill as it stood would foist "a grossly unfair" taxation system on Canadians.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said the Liberals had chalked up a lot of dubious records by becoming the first government ever to use a closure device on a tax bill, ever to use it on a bill as big as this one, and ever to use it before all contents had been put before the House.

Andre Fortin (Social Credit—Lotbiniere) said it was hypocrisy for the Liberals to talk of parliamentary democracy and at the same time put a legalistic gun to the head of the Senate.

They had put "democracy in Canada under a death sentence."

With the Liberal whips on in the Commons, the only malcontent hurdle for the bill is the Senate, where party-lapel Liberals outnumber Conservatives 62 to 19.

There has been some talk in recent days of a revolt there against processing the government bill in the week before Christmas.

But that appeared to fizzle this week when Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario), chairman of the banking committee which went over possible tax measures for three months, said his party is ready to be conciliatory.

Senator Jacques Flynn, the Conservative leader, said Senate will not accept tokenism, that the bill either should be passed through all stages in an hour or that it should be discussed for a minimum of three weeks.

With the indications that not even a maverick Liberal or two would join the Conservative senators in a stand against the bill, prospects are that the bill will get swift passage there.

Almost, but never quite forgotten in the debate, are some of the bill's provisions that make it difficult to challenge from an opposition point of view.

The government says it would take about one million people off the income tax rolls and reduce taxes for every married couple with two children living on a salary.

It also would impose for the first time a Canadian tax on such capital gains as stock market profits.

But opposition MPs, depending on party, have objected to the new tax bites for small businesses and for the resources industries extracting Canadian mineral wealth and to the way the gains tax would hit the man trying to deed his family farm to his sons or daughters.

La Presse Workers Stay Out

QUEBEC (CP) — Unions affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions slammed the door Tuesday on the Quebec government's "final" effort to settle a bitter contract dispute at Montreal La Presse.

But Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer tried to keep it ajar with hints that he would appoint one of his officials for further conciliation if there was any hope of meeting CNTU objections.

Mr. Cournoyer had said his department would end completely its "farcewinsi" unless management and 11 unions representing workers at the newspaper submitted a list of settlement proposals presented Dec. 10.

Both sides were to reply by 5 p.m. on following day.

While La Presse hasn't ordered its sealed reaction by the deadline, the unions asked for a delay to clarify and discuss the recommendations and this was granted.

However, the CNTU announced Tuesday that four unions rejected the proposals while a fifth, representing office employees, accepted them on condition that other principle demands on job security, wages and other matters be added.

Claude Beaudoin, spokesman for the journalists union, said the recommendations were unacceptable because they were almost a carbon copy of management offers already known, contained many gaps and ambiguities and the Labor minister refused in advance to consider any modifications or partial acceptance.

Bayside Contractor Is Quizzed by Board

Hastings county's school trustees had it out Monday night at Batawa Public School with their architect and general contractor for Bayside Secondary School.

Phases like "dismayed with progress, pretty upset and very wrong" were bandied about as the board demanded explanations for Konvey Construction Company Ltd.'s failure to complete the school by the target date of Jan. 1, 1972.

However, Dennis Hawley, Konvey's president, noted that the completion date in the original contract was July, 1972.

Architect Irving Bolgan and Mr. Hawley, with members of their firms, were put on the hot seat to face a ring of trustees determined to learn why the Bayside job probably won't be completed until the end of April.

Mr. Bolgan blamed the general contractors' "over-optimistic" estimate of completion dates of various sub-trade jobs for the delay. He also blamed bad weather last winter and several strikes.

"The sub - contractors let him down," said Mr. Bolgan noting that some sub contractors will not bring men to Belleville from Toronto for only a day or two's work.

Trustees decided to arrange an on-site meeting with the architects, contractor and sub-contractors as soon as possible "to help take some of the heat off Mr. Hawley."

Although students will not get into the new open-concept, $3.5-million school immediately after the Christmas holidays, trustees were agreed that they should move in sometime this year, if even for only two months.

Keith Perkins, the board's controller of plant, gave his estimates of completion dates for the building. The shops should be ready by Dec. 15, he said, and part of the academic wing by March 30. The cafetorium and music room area will be done by April 15 and the gym and activities section by April 30. The greenhouse is now completed and final external work should be finished by next September.

Traffic Makes Entry Difficult

Increasing traffic on North Front Street is creating a rush hour entry problem for motorists emerging from intersecting side streets.

This was revealed to city traffic committee members yesterday through a letter from a College Hill resident who complained of the problem of getting onto North Front Street from Donald St.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell agreed that some consideration should be given the intersection and stated that Craig Street and Tracey Street should also be looked at.

And as the result of a request from another area resident, which was referred from council, the committee will also investigate the need for a sidewalk on the west side of North Front Street from Treacy Street to Bell Blvd.

No action was taken by the committee on letters from Albert College and American Optical objecting to the proposed construction of a sidewalk on the east side of Sidney Street from Dundas to Bridge Street.

Police Inspector Ralph Blatchford said in his opinion the walk should still go on the east side of the street as had been previously recommended.

An east side walk would match up with the walk on the East side of Sidney north of Catherine Street, according to the city engineer.

Shriners Yule Party Bright

Reginald MacCormac's Job Is to Police Car Dealers

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the more printable names for Reginald MacCormac, registrar of used-car dealers and salesmen in Ontario, include dictator, czar and bureaucrat.

But the 57-year-old former car dealer from the Ottawa Valley, who has helped clean up the used-car business in the province, is not worried about the names he is called.

"I suppose there are those have little love for me," he said in an interview.

"Most dealers can and do live with the act, but the fact there is such a person as a registrar with power to regulate their business doesn't sit well with them. But I'm not interested in popularity, a fleeting thing at best. As far as I'm concerned, an ounce of respect is worth a ton of popularity."

When the province's Used Car Dealers Act eventually becomes the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, all car dealers will be under Mr. MacCormac's supervision.

Since Mr. MacCormac became registrar seven years ago, he has seen the virtual disappearance of the car gypsy who moved from one temporary location to another unloading old wrecks on the public.

The registrar said he feels there has been steady improvement in the relationship between dealer and buyer, with most dealerships sticking to a code of ethics.

The sub-marginal operators with no stake in a community were dwindling and their places were being taken by responsible businessmen with a heavy investment in physical plant.

The minority who cut corners, indulge in false, misleading or deceptive advertising find that Mr. MacCormac is a tough bureaucrat with ample disciplinary powers.

While regional directors administer the act, Mr. MacCormac depends mainly on the public to send him complaints. Between January of 1970 and last July his office received 9,983 telephoned complaints from used-car buyers and these boiled down to 1,066 written complaints on which his agency could act.

"People like to have some place where they can telephone and pour out their troubles, regardless of whether their complaints are matters that come within our jurisdiction," he said.

"About 25 per cent have to do with the certificate of mechanical fitness and the rest concern such matters as warranty guarantees and money-back undertakings."

When a buyer makes a written complaint, a copy is sent to the dealer with a request for his version of the affair. When the dealer answers—and they always do—it is up to the registrar to decide whether an investigation is warranted.

"Most dealers are good about fixing a defective car," Mr. MacCormac said.

"A few hard-nosed dealers don't move. We have no power to order restitution and the last thing we want to do is use the threat of cancellation of the dealership's registration. We never tell a dealer what he has to do. It's up to him."

But the dealers who become involved with Mr. MacCormac invariably get the message. They find the best way to avoid unpleasantness is to look after the complainant and send him away happy.

NEW PRINCESS

HAGUE, Sask. (CP) — When Darleen Reudorf of Hague decided to get married, she resigned as Saskatchewan Dairy Princess, a title she won last summer. Regulations specify the princess must be single. Karen Fink of Vibank, runner-up in the competition, was declared the new dairy princess.

Post Office May Anchor Its Boxes

The Canadian postal department is considering a plan to anchor its free-standing mail boxes to the ground as a measure to reduce vandalism.

The move would be on a national basis, but members of the city traffic committee are being asked for suggestions on how the program might be carried out in Belleville.

Police Inspector Ralph Blatchford told the committee that mail box vandalism in Belleville was minimal.

Bell Canada and Public Utilities representatives said if the free - standing mail boxes were to be anchored to the ground, they should be placed at least seven feet from telephone and hydro poles. And city engineer Wilbur Purcell said they should be placed far enough from corners as to not interfere with visibility.

A city map with proposed locations for the mail boxes was before the committee but members will request more information from the postal department.

Briton Warns Of Tax Effect

TORONTO (CP) — Changes in Canada's taxation policies could inhibit foreign companies from entering mineral exploration in Canada, and drive such investment to other countries, an executive of a British based international mining development company said Tuesday.

John Du Cane, assistant managing director of Selection Trust Exploration Ltd., of London, told the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy that "nothing can reduce ore to mere rock quicker" than unfavorable tax conditions.

He said mining is a high risk undertaking at any time, and political risk, together with straightforward taxation policies, are additional factors that frighten off capital.

"We are not alone in going to countries that offer the right political and fiscal climate to extend our activities. Canada has been, and is, such a country and we look forward to its continuance to be so.

"Canada's tax policies have inherently acknowledged the importance of the development of its natural resources, but if changes in fiscal policy and investment guidelines were to discourage such development it would be difficult to see how this could be regarded as a progressive step."

Research On Liver Rewarded

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada announced Tuesday that Dr. Murray M. Fisher of the University of Toronto has won the college's 1972 gold medal award for his research in the liver.

An associate professor of pathology at the university, Dr. Fisher has found in research with animals that female sex hormones affect the way the body uses bile, a fluid manufactured in the liver that aids digestion.

His work may help explain why women are more prone to gallstones than men.

Dr. T. D. V. Cooke, an assistant professor of surgery at McMaster University, Hamilton, will receive the college's medal for surgery because of his research into arthritis.

Dr. Cooke studies if arthritis in rabbits.

His findings indicate that arthritis may be caused by an immunological reaction that both stimulates production of an antibody to defend itself against a substance it considers foreign material.

Both men will receive their medals and $400 at the college's annual meeting here April 20-29.

Lennon Sings Thant Tribute

NEW YORK (AP) — John Lennon,the former Beatle, borrowed folksinger Pete Seeger's guitar and offered a surprise tribute to U Thant at an unusual farewell Tuesday for the Burmese diplomat who retires Dec. 31 after 10 years as secretary-general of the United Nations.

Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, were among the special guests at a luncheon at the Pierre Hotel given by the World Federalists, a non-partisan organization working for world peace through strengthening the United Nations.

"We came because we respect U Thant's sincerity and his efforts for peace," Lennon told reporters.

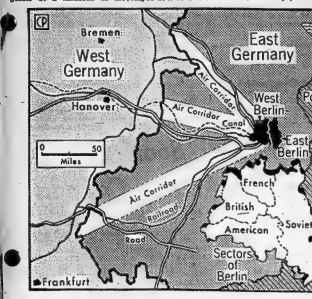
"The UN is like a white elephant, but Thant really tried. Maybe he'll be able to do more from outside."

Lennon's song, Imagine, envisaged a world with "nothing to kill or die for," a world in which people would live as one in peace.

Thant listened attentively.

NEW YORK (AP) — Artie Shaw, the clarinetist and band leader turned author, sued Broadway producer David Merrick for $5.4 million Tuesday for breach of contract over the dramatization rights of F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel The Great Gatsby.

Shaw said in his New York state Supreme Court suit that he and a partner had already spent $200,000 preparing a musical version of the famous novel of jazz age manners, morals and money.



Shaw said they had acquired the rights from Fitzgerald's daughter, Frances Scott Fitzgerald Smith.

The suit said that subsequently Merrick, and other defendants, [illegible] schemed to have Mrs. Smith "break the agreement and also advertised that their group had acquired the motion picture rights.

DUBLIN (AP) — Kevin McClory, Irish film producer and director, was acquitted in Dublin criminal court Tuesday of assaulting John Bailey, a former magistrate in the Bahamas, during a brawl in a saloon here last year.

McClory, 46, directed the James Bond film Thunderball. Prosecutor Hugh O'Flaherty charted that McClory beat Bailey up in a fight in a Duke Street bar.

The jury acquitted the film producer, from after Bailey had admitted in testimony having an affair with McClory's wife.

A Crack in the Berlin Wall?

The four-power accord signed Sept. 3 on the status of West Berlin was seen as the first real crack in the Berlin Wall. The representatives of the four powers expressed hope that the agreement would bring an end to the East-West confrontations over the city which has been going on since the Berlin Blockade of 1948-49.

Under the terms of the pact:

— Road, rail and water traffic between West Germany and West Berlin was to move unimpeded. Commercial air traffic was not included since it had been covered by a four power agreement since 1945.

— West Germany will represent the interests of West Berlin in international affairs, including consular services. The Soviet Union is to be granted diplomatic representation in West Berlin.

— Disputes involving Berlin are to be settled without threats or use of force.

In the agreement, the Russians did not specifically guarantee right of access to West Berlin, but they said that they and the East Germans had agreed to allow unimpeded transit traffic through East Germany. (CP Newsmap)

Hollywood Stars Making It Big in Literary World

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shirley MacLaine hit the best-seller lists with Don't Fall Off the Mountain. Tom Tryon with The Other, and Hildegarde Knef with The Gift Horse. Now another performers are seeking the gold and glory of the literary world.

Lawrence Welk, the author, has sold 125,000 copies of his memoirs, Wunnerful, Wunnerful. Ruth Gordon made the lists with her reminiscences, Myself Among Others. Julie Andrews supplied Harper and Row with its best-selling children's book in years, Mandy.

Latest to join the author star sweepstakes is Evelyn Keyes.

Movie fans of the 1940s and late show will recall her in Ruby Keeler role of The Jolson Story. She played one of Scarlett O'Hara's sisters in Gone with the Wind.

She was noted for a tempestuous marriage to John Houston and a surprisingly placid one to Artie Shaw. She is the longest lasting of his wives; they are still wed after 15 years.

Miss Keyes admitted that her bandleader husband, himself an author, influenced the writing of her new novel, I Am a Bill on board.

"He left me alone during the writing, but he offered some apt criticism when I had finished. For one thing, he pointed out that the girl in the story was too much of a victim; that was changed with a whole new section.

I Am a Billboard concerns a Hollywood starlet who comes to California, has a test-age marriage, gets divorced for films and has a wild love match with a famous director. Pretty much the Evelyn Keyes story.

"I suppose it might be called autobiographical; you write about what you know," she remarked. "At least one part is recognizable.

"Remember when John Huston was directing We Were Strangers with Jennifer Jones and John Garfield, and she gave him a chimpanzee as a gift? The chimp fell in love with John, and he brought it home to live with us in an all-white apartment we had. That's in the book."

Sifti blonde and beautiful, Miss Keyes keeps her hand in acting. She did a television play and two English television shows during the last year.

When Smoke Clears in Money Shakedown, Canada May Gain

OTTAWA (CP) — When the smoke clears after the coming shakedown of the international currency system, Canada probably will retain its present trading terms with the United States, says Finance Minister Benson. It could even improve its selling position in the rest of the world.

He told reporters Tuesday—in response to President Nixon's announced readiness to devalue the U.S. dollar—that "theoretically, at least, we should move down with them." Others disagree.

In Mr. Benson's forecast, Canadian dollars would be worth as many U.S. dollars as they now are.

Since other world currencies would rise in relative value, Canadian dollars—like U.S. dollars —would be cheaper abroad. That would mean Canadian goods would be cheaper, and easier to sell on export markets.

The Canadian dollar has been floating, its value set mainly by market pressures, since June 1, 1970, when it was unpegged from a value of 92½ U.S. cents.

A Canadian dollar could buy 100.27 44 U.S. cents in New York Tuesday, up from 99.54 cents 6 cents a week earlier.

Mr. Benson said the Canadian dollar would continue to float, at least until a new market value is reached after the result of a worldwide adjustment.

But Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield disputed the government's prediction—reiterated by Prime Minister Trudeau—in the House Tuesday.

In fact, he said, the effect of a U.S. devaluation would "be precisely the opposite" of the government forecast. He said the Canadian dollar would rise in value compared to the U.S. dollar, making Canadian goods more expensive in U.S. markets and U.S. imports cheaper in Canada.

And Mr. Trudeau acknowledged that Washington has pressed Canada and other members of the Group of ten biggest western trading countries to revalue its currency upward.

"Our position has always been that we would have a free float," Mr. Trudeau added.

The complex currency issue, simmering for years, was brought to the boil after the United States imposed its 10-per-cent import surcharge Aug. 15 and moved aggressively for an international agreement that would slow the outflow of U.S. dollars.

Put simply, the United States is seeking agreement from its trading partners to revalue their currencies, making their exports more expensive on the U.S. market.

President Nixon said Tuesday he is ready to consider a devaluation of the U.S. dollar as part of the deal.

Mr. Benson said the amount of the shift would be worked out by the Group of Ten, which continues its recent series of meetings in sessions Friday and Saturday in Washington.

Reports from Washington Tuesday suggested the U.S. devaluation could amount to seven per cent.

Mr. Benson said such predictions were pure speculation until the agreement by the Group of Ten.

Mr. Benson referred to the present Canadian position as a clean float—the Canadian dollar being valued by the supply and demand created by cross-border transactions, without government intervention.

But some authorities have suggested the government is really intervening, the Bank of Canada buying up U.S. dollars to relieve pressure that could push the Canadian dollar higher than the 100 U.S. cents level.

They cite the rapidly increased size of U.S. currency now held by the Bank of Canada, the federal money authority.

On another issue, Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Tuesday that the government "will have to take counter measures" if the U.S. permits establishment of domestic exporting subsidiaries that would enjoy long-term tax deferrals.

The government has said that the U.S. plan for domestic international sales corporations—DISC—amounts to subsidization of exports and contravenes international trading rules.

It also fears that DISC could induce U.S. corporations to close subsidiaries in Canada, moving their operations to the United States to take advantage of the tax break.

Mr. Pepin told the Commons it would be announced in due course whether the Canadian counter-measures would involve pressure for multilateral action or direct response by Canada alone.

Dollar Devaluation First Since 1934

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has agreed to devalue the dollar for the first time since 1934, a move that could bring a speedy settlement to the simmering international monetary crisis, perhaps before Christmas.

The agreement, reached Tuesday in a nine-hour meeting with French President Georges Pompidou in the Azores, eliminated a major obstacle to settlement of worldwide monetary disruptions.

No percentage devaluation was mentioned in the Nixon-Pompidou communique, nor was the method of devaluation. But a high administration official said an eight-per-cent devaluation was "about the official figure mentioned" and was "very much in the ballpark."

Should devaluation be accomplished by congressional action raising the price of gold, an eight-per-cent change would result in a gold price of $37.80 an ounce.

The official price of gold has held at $35 an ounce since the United States stopped redeeming paper money for gold in 1931.

In simple terms, devaluation would make U.S. products more competitive in foreign markets and imported products more expensive in the United States.

The formal communique was released as finance ministers and central bankers of the 10 richest non-Communist nations prepared to gather in Washington Friday and Saturday to discuss ending worldwide monetary disorders.

High-level U.S. officials indicated that firm agreement on currency revaluation will result in dropping the 10-per-cent surcharge the United States levied on imports Aug. 15.

The Azores communique said: "In co-operation with other nations concerned, they intend to work toward a prompt realignment of exchange rates through a devaluation of the dollar and revaluation of some other currencies."

The high administration official said the accord with Pompidou envisions a settlement along these lines:

—The value of the French franc would remain the same.

—West Germany would be expected to revalue its mark upward and not even move up the ward revaluators of the Japanese yen would be expected.

—Exchange rates of major currencies would be allowed to fluctuate over a broader range than the present one per cent up or down. This, said the administration official, represented a major concession by the French.

Since Aug. 15, when Nixon announced the United States would no longer redeem dollars for gold, the international monetary system has been without any semblance of order. The old system of fixed exchange rates was scrapped, because it was based on the dollar.

After standing fast against a devaluation for months, the Nixon administration finally caved in during a Group of Ten meeting in Rome earlier this month.

But the Nixon-Pompidou statement Tuesday was the first public word the United States had agreed to a devaluation.

Development Project Reported Kept Secret

KITCHENER (CP) — The city's news media suppressed information about a $15 million downtown redevelopment project before the project was approved by city council, Sandra Sachs of Waterloo, Ont., said Tuesday.

Mrs. Sachs, who is with Wired World, a community television project, told the Ontario Municipal Board she also felt media coverage of the issue was one-sided in favor of the project.

Board Chairman J. A. Kennedy ruled Mrs. Sachs' accusations irrelevant but said he would report them to the board.

The board hearing is concerned with the sale of city lands, lease and financial arrangements between the city and the developers, Oxiva Investments Ltd. of Kitchener and the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. of Toronto.

Hellyer Will Soon Decide Future of Action Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Paul Hellyer was busy Tuesday making telephone calls in the next few weeks which he says will decide whether to turn the Action Canada movement into a full-scale political party.

"Actually, we are doing a bit better than we had hoped for," he said in an interview, a few days after being quoted in Washington as saying Action Canada has not been very successful.

The 48-year-old former Liberal cabinet minister who co-founded Action Canada last spring, said he was talking about his economic theories, not the movement itself, when he said "more and more are exactly sweeping the country."

Mr. Hellyer was in Washington promoting a book on economics.

Asked about another quote attributed to him in Washington—"I am sick to death of politics"—Mr. Hellyer said that "every once in a while everyone says something that reflects the inner self, and I was merely trying to say there are more effective ways to make a living than a stumping the country through various time zones.

"It doesn't mean I plan to quit doing it. I am now more committed than I ever have been."

He founded Action Canada in protest against Liberal government economic policies.

In the next few weeks there will be a series of small meetings to decide whether Action Canada will remain a protest movement, align itself with another party or become a fully-fledged party in its own right.

In the meantime, supporters have been busy organizing at the constituency level.

Mr. Hellyer, who has private resources, admits he has made a "considerable" financial contribution to the movement so far. There are about 10 paid employees at Action Canada headquarters here.
